1 And it came to pass <at the end of twenty years, wherein Solomon had built the house of Yahweh, and his own house> that ||the cities which Huram
had given to Solomon|| Solomon built them,—and caused [the sons of Israel] to dwell there.

3 And Solomon went to Hamath-zobah,—and prevailed against it; 4 and he built Tadmor, in the wilderness,—and all the store cities, which he built in Hamath; 5 and he built Beth-horon, the upper, and Beth-horon, the nether,—fortified cities, with walls, and doors and bars; 6 and Baalath, and all the store cities which pertained to Solomon, and all the chariot cities, and the cities of the horsemen,—and every delight of Solomon which he delighted to build in Jerusalem, and in the Lebanon, and in all the land of his dominion.

7 As for all the people that were left, of the Hittites and the Amorites and the Perizzites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, who were not of Israel; 8 of their sons who were left after them in the land, whom the sons of Israel' had not utterly destroyed> Solomon enrolled them as tributary—unto this day. 9 But <of the sons of Israel> were there none whom he delivered up as bondmen' unto his work,—for ||[they]] were men of war, and his captains and his heroes, 10 and captains over his chariots, and his horsemen. 10 ||[These]] moreover, were the chiefs of his officers whom King Solomon had, two hundred and fifty,—who wielded dominion over the people.

11 And <the daughter of Pharaoh> Solomon brought up, out of the city of David, unto the house which he had built for her,—for he said,

A wife of mine must not dwell in the house of David king of Israel, for holy' are those places whereinto the ark of Yahweh hath come.

12 ||[Then]] Solomon offered up ascending-sacrifices, unto Yahweh,—upon the altar of Yahweh, which he had built before the porch; 13 even according to the duty of each a day upon [its own] day, offering up according to the commandment of Moses, for the sabbaths, and for the new moons, and for the appointed feasts, three times in the year,—in the festival of unleavened cakes and in the festival of weeks, and in the festival of booths; 14 and he caused to stand, according to the regulation of David his father, the courses of the priests over their service and of the Levites over their charges, to offer praise and to minister before the priests, for the duty of each day upon its own day, and the gate-keepers in their courses, at every several gate,—for [[such]] was the commandment of David the man of God; 15 neither departed they from the commandment of the king, concerning the priests and the Levites as to any duty, or as to the treasuries. 16 So all the work of Solomon was prepared, from d the day of founding the house of Yahweh, even as far as the finishing thereof,—complete' was the house of Yahweh.

17 ||[Then]] went Solomon to Ezion-geber, and unto Elath on the seashore in the land of Edom. 18 And Huram sent him—by the hand of his servants—ships, and servants skilled in the sea, and they came, with the servants of Solomon, towards Ophir, and took from thence, four hundred and fifty talents of gold,—and brought unto King Solomon.

§ 9. Visit of the Queen of Sheba.
(Cp. I K. x.)

Chapter 9.

1 And ||[the queen of Sheba]] heard the report of Solomon, so she came to prove Solomon with abstruse questions, in Jerusalem, with a very great train, and camels bearing spices, and gold in abundance, and precious stones,—and <when she was come to Solomon> she spake with him, as to all that was near her heart. 2 And Solomon answered her all her questions,—and there was nothing hidden from Solomon, which he told her not. 3 And <when the queen of Sheba had seen the wisdom of Solomon, and the house which he had built; 4 and the food of his table, and the seats of his servants, and the standing of his attendants, with their apparel, and his cupbearers, and their apparel, and his ascent whereby he used to ascend the house of Yahweh> then was there in her no more spirit.

5 And she said unto the king,

True' was the word, which I heard in my own land,—concerning thine affairs, and concerning thy wisdom.

6 Howbeit I believed not their words, until I had come and mine own eyes had seen, when lo! there had not been told me, the half of the fulness of thy wisdom,—thou dost exceed the report which I heard.

7 How happy! are thy men, and how happy! are these thy servants,—who are standing before thee continually, and hearing thy wisdom.

8 Yahweh thy God be blessed, who hath delighted in thee, to set thee upon his throne as king unto Yahweh thy God. <Because of the love of thy God unto Israel, to establish them unto times age-abiding> therefore hath he set thee over them, as king, to execute justice and righteousness.

9 And she gave unto the king, a hundred and twenty talents of gold, and spices in great abundance and precious stones,—and there was none, like that spice, which the queen of Sheba gave unto King Solomon.

10 Moreover also ||the servants of Huram, a and the servants of Solomon, who brought gold from Ophir|| brought sandal-wood and precious stones. And the king made of the sandal-wood, stairs unto the house of Yahweh, and unto the house of the king, also lyres and harps, b for the singers,—and there were none seen like them before, in the land of Judah.

12 And ||King Solomon|| gave to the queen of Sheba all her desire, whatsoever she asked, besides ||a return for|| that which she had brought unto the king,—so she turned, and went away to her own land, ||she, and her servants||.

§ 10. A further Account of Solomon’s Wealth and Fame closes the Chronicler’s History of that Monarch.

13 Now ||the weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year|| was six hundred and sixty-six talents of gold; besides what came in from the subjugated, and what the travelling merchants were bringing in,—and ||all the kings of Arabia and the pashas of the land|| were bringing gold and silver, unto Solomon.

15 And King Solomon made two hundred shields of beaten gold,—||six hundred [shekels] of beaten gold|| overlay one shield; also three hundred bucklers of beaten gold,—||three hundred [shekels] of gold|| overlay one buckler,—and the king placed them in the house of the forest of Lebanon. 17 And the king made a great throne of ivory,—and overlaid it with pure gold; and there were six steps to the throne, and a footstool in gold, <unto the throne> made fast, and supports, on this side and on that, unto the seat,—and ||two lions|| standing by the supports; 19 and ||twelve lions|| standing there upon the six steps, on this side and on that,—there was never made the like, for any kingdom. 20 And ||all the drinking vessels of King Solomon|| were of gold, and ||all the vessels of the house of the forest of Lebanon|| were of purified gold,—there was no silver, it was esteemed, in the days of Solomon, ||as nothing||.

21 For ||the ships of the king|| used to go to Tarshish, with the servants of Huram,—<once in three years> came in the ships of Tarshish, bearing gold and silver, ivory and apes, and peacocks.

22 And so King Solomon became greater than all the kings of the earth,—as to riches, and wisdom.

23 And ||all the kings of the earth|| were seeking the face of Solomon,—to hear his wisdom, which God had put in his heart: 24 and ||they|| were bringing in every man his present—utensils of silver, and utensils of gold, and mantles, armour, and spices, horses and mules,—the need of a year in a year.

25 And Solomon had four thousand stalls of horses, and chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen,—and he settled them in the chariot cities, and with the king in Jerusalem. 26 And he ruled over all the kings,—from the river [Euphrates], even up to the land of the Philistines, yea up to the bounds of Egypt. 27 And the king made the silver in Jerusalem like the stones,—and ||the cedar trees|| made he like the sycomores which are in the lowland, for abundance. And they used to bring horses out of Egypt unto Solomon, and out of all lands.

29 Now ||the rest of the acts of Solomon, first and last|| are they not written in the records of Nathan the prophet, and in the prophecy of Ahijah the Shilonite, and in the visions of Iddo the seer, concerning Jeroboam son of Nebat? 30 And Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel, forty years. 31 And Solomon slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David his father,—and Rehoboam his son reigned in his stead.

§ 11. Rehoboam succeeds Solomon; loses Ten Tribes; forsakes the Law, and is punished by an Egyptian Invasion under Shishak.

Chapter 10.

1 And Rehoboam went to Shechem,—for <to Shechem> had all Israel come, to make him king.
2 And it came to pass, <when Jeroboam son of Nebat, who was in Egypt—whether he had fled from the face of Solomon the king—heard' of it> then returned Jeroboam out of Egypt. 3 And they sent, and called him, so Jeroboam and all Israel came,—and spake unto Rehoboam, saying:
4 ||Thy father|| made our yoke oppressive,—||now|| therefore, lighten thou somewhat the oppressive servitude of thy father and his heavy yoke which he put upon us, and we will serve thee.

5 And he said unto them, <Yet three days> and then return unto me,—and the people departed. 6 Then King Rehoboam took counsel with the old men who had been standing before Solomon his father, while he yet lived, saying,—How do ||ye|| counsel to return answer unto this people?

7 And they spake unto him saying, <If thou wilt be kind to this people, and please them, and speak unto them kind words> then will they be thy' servants, all the days.

8 But he declined the counsel of the old men, which they gave him,—and took counsel with the young men who had grown up with him, who were standing before him. 9 And he said unto them, What do ||ye|| counsel that we should return as answer unto this people,—who have spoken unto me saying,

Lighten thou somewhat the yoke, which thy father put upon us?

10 Then spake with him the young men who had grown up with him, saying, ||Thus|| shalt thou say unto them, ||My little finger|| is thicker than my father's loins;

11 ||Now|| therefore, ||my father|| laid upon you a heavy yoke,
But ||I|| will add to your yoke,—
||My father|| chastised you with whips,
But ||I|| with scorpions.\(^a\)

12 So Jeroboam and all the people came unto Rehoboam, on the third day,—as the king spake, saying,

Return unto me on the third day.

13 And the king answered them harshly,—and King Rehoboam declined the counsel of the old men; 14 and spake unto them according to the counsel of the young men, saying,

||My father|| made\(^b\) your yoke heavy,
But ||I|| will add thereunto,—
||My father|| chastised you with whips,
But ||I|| with scorpions.

15 So the king hearkened not unto the people,—for there had come to be a turn' from God, to the end Yahweh might establish his word which he had spoken by means of Ahijah the Shilonite, unto Jeroboam, son of Nebat. 16 And <when ||all Israel|| [saw]\(^d\) that the king hearkened not unto them> the people answered the king, saying—What portion have ||we|| in David,
Or inheritance in the son of Jesse?
||Every man|| to your homes, O Israel!
||Now|| see to thine own house, O David!
And all Israel departed to their homes.\(^e\) But <as for the sons of Israel who were dwelling in the cities of Judah> Rehoboam reigned over them.

18 Then King Rehoboam sent Hadoram, who was over the tribute, and the sons of Israel stoned him with stones, that he died. So ||King Rehoboam|| hasted to mount his chariot, to flee to Jerusalem.

19 Thus Israel rebelled against the house of David—unto this day.

Chapter 11.

kingdom to Rehoboam. 2 Then came the word of Yahweh, unto Shemaiah the man of God, saying:

Speak unto Rehoboam son of Solomon, king of Judah,—and unto all Israel in Judah and in Benjamin, saying:

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,

Ye shall not go up neither shall ye fight against your brethren, return every man to his own house, for <from me> hath this thing been brought about.

So they hearkened unto the words of Yahweh, and turned back from going against Jeroboam.

And Rehoboam dwelt in Jerusalem,—and built cities for defence, in Judah: 6 yea he built Bethlehem and Etam, and Tekoa; 7 and Beth-zur and Soco, and Adullam; 8 and Gath and Marreshah, and Ziph; 9 and Adoraim and Lachish, and Azekah; 10 and Zoar, and Aijalon and Hebron, which are in Judah and Benjamin,—as fortified cities. 11 And he strengthened the fortified places,—and put therein captains, and stores of food, and oil and wine; 12 and <in every several city> shields and spears, and made them exceedingly strong,—thus Judah and Benjamin remained his.

And ||the priests and Levites that were in all Israel|| took their stand with him, out of all their boundaries. 14 For the Levites left their pasture lands, and their possessions, and came to Judah, and to Jerusalem,—for Jeroboam and his sons cast them off, from ministering as priests unto Yahweh; 15 and appointed for himself priests for the high places, and for the demons—and for the calves which he had made. 16 And <after them>—out of all the tribes of Israel> ||such as were setting their heart to seek Yahweh God of Israel|| came to Jerusalem, to sacrifice unto Yahweh, God of their fathers.

So they strengthened the kingdom of Judah, and emboldened Rehoboam son of Solomon, for three years,—for they walked in the way of David and Solomon, for three years.

And Rehoboam took him to wife, Mahalath, daughter of Jerimoth, son of David,—and Abihail, daughter of Eliab, son of Jesse; 19 and she bare him sons,—Jeush and Shamariah and Zaham. 20 And <after her> he took Maacah daughter of Absalom,—and she bare him Abijah, and Attai, and Ziza, and Shelomith.

And Rehoboam loved Maacah daughter of Absalom, above all his wives and his concubines, for <eighteen wives> took he, and sixty concubines,—and begat twenty-eight sons, and sixty daughters. 22 So then Rehoboam appointed Abijah son of Maacah as head, to be chief ruler among his brethren,—yea that he might make him king. 23 So he took heed, and dispersed all his sons throughout all the lands of Judah and Benjamin, unto all the fortified cities, and gave them food in abundance,—and asked a multitude of wives. 24

Chapter 12.

1 And it came to pass <when Rehoboam had established the kingdom, and had strengthened himself> he forsook the law of Yahweh,—and all Israel with him. 2 And so it came to pass <in the fifth year of King Rehoboam> that Shishak b king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem,—because they had dealt treacherously against Yahweh;—3 with twelve hundred chariots, and with sixty thousand horsemen,—and <without number> the people who came with him out of Egypt—Lybians, Sukkiim, i and Ethiopians. 4 And he captured the cities of defence which belonged to Judah,—and came, as far as Jerusalem.

And ||Shemaiah the prophet|| came unto Rehoboam, and the rulers of Judah, who had gathered themselves together unto Jerusalem because of Shishak,—and said unto them,

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,

||Ye|| have left [me].

Therefore ||I also|| have left [you], in the hands of Shishak.

6 Then the rulers of Israel d the king humbled themselves,—and said,

||Righteous|| is Yahweh!

7 And <when Yahweh saw that they humbled themselves> the word of Yahweh came unto Shemaiah, saying—

They have humbled themselves, I will not destroy them,—but will grant them, in a little while, to escape, and my wrath shall not be poured out upon Jerusalem, by the hand of Shishak.

8 Nevertheless they shall become his’ servants, that they may know my service,a and the service of the kingdoms of the countries.

9 So Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem, and took the treasures of the house of Yahweh, and the treasures of the house of the king <the whole> he took,—and he took the bucklers of gold, which Solomon had made. 10 And King Rehoboam made, instead of them, bucklers of bronze,—and committed them unto the hand of the captains of the runners, who kept guard at the entrance of the house of the king. 11 And so it was <whenever the king came into the house of Yahweh> the runners came and bare them, and then returned them into the chamber of the runners. 12 But <when he humbled himself> then turned from him the anger of Yahweh, that he would not destroy, to make an end,—moreover also <in Judah> there were some good things.

13 So King Rehoboam strengthened himself in Jerusalem, and reigned,—because <forty-one years old> was Rehoboam when he began to reign, and <seventeen years> reigned he in Jerusalem, the city which Yahweh had chosen, to set his Name there—from among all the tribes of Israel, and ||the name of his mother|| was Naamah, the Ammonites. 14 But he did evil,—in that he did not fix his heart to seek Yahweh.

15 Now <the story of Rehoboam, first and last> is itf not written in the story of Shemaiah the prophet and Iddo the seer, for enrolling,—also the wars of Rehoboam and Jeroboam, all the days? 16 And Rehoboam slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David,—and Abijah his son reigned in his stead.

And lo! <with us as Head|| is God himself, and his priests, and the trumpets of alarm, to sound an alarm against you,—O sons of Israel! do not fight against Yahweh God of your fathers, for ye shall not prosper.

But ||Jeroboam|| sent round an ambush, to come up from behind them,—so they were before Judah and |the ambush| did come up from behind them. And <when Judah turned and lo|as for them> the battle was before and behind|> then made they outcry unto Yahweh,—and |the priests| kept on blowing with the trumpets. Then the men of Judah gave a shout,—and it came to pass <when the men of Judah shouted> then ||God himself|| smote Jeroboam and all Israel, before Abijah and Judah. And the sons of Israel fled from before Judah,—and God delivered them into their hand. And Abijah and his people smote among them with a great smiting,—and there fell down slain, of Israel, five hundred thousand chosen men.

Thus were the sons of Israel subdued at that time,—and the sons of Judah prevailed, because they leaned upon Yahweh the God of their fathers.

And Abijah pursued after Jeroboam, and captured from him, cities, even Bethel, with the villages thereof, and Jeshanah, with the villages thereof,—and Ephron, with the villages thereof; neither was Jeroboam strong any more, in the days of Abijah,—and Yahweh smote him that he died.

And Abijah strengthened himself, and took him, fourteen wives,—and begat twenty-two sons, and sixteen daughters.

And <the rest of the story of Abijah, both his ways and his words>,—are written, in the commentary of the prophet Iddo.

§ 13. The Reign of Asa, a good and victorious King, who, however, sins, and is punished before he dies.

Chapter 14.

1 So Abijah slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David, and Asa his son reigned in his stead,—<in his days> the land rested ten years.

2 And Asa did that which was good and that which was right, in the eyes of Yahweh his God; and took away the foreign altars, and the high places,—and brake in pieces the pillars, and cut in twain the Sacred Stems; and bade Judah seek Yahweh, God of their fathers,—and execute the law, and the commandment;

and removed from all the cities of Judah, the high places, and the sun-images,—and the kingdom became quiet before him. And he built cities of defence, in Judah,—for the land had quiet, nor was there near him any war, in these years, because Yahweh had given him rest. Therefore said he to Judah,

Let us build these cities, and let us surround them with walls and towers, doors and bars, while the land is yet before us, for we have sought Yahweh our God, we have sought him, and he hath given us rest on every side.

So they built, and prospered.

8 And it came to pass that ||Asa|| had a force bearing shield and spear, <out of Judah> three hundred thousand, and <out of Benjamin> such as bare a buckler and trode a bow, two hundred and eighty thousand,—||all these|| were heroes of valour.

9 Then came out against them Zerah the Ethiopian, with a force of a thousand thousand, and three hundred chariots,—and he came as far as Mareshah. And Asa went out to meet him,—and they set in array for battle, in the valley of Zaphonah, at Mareshah. Then Asa cried out unto Yahweh his God, and said,

O Yahweh, it is [nothing with thee] to help whether with many or with such as have no strength.

Help us, O Yahweh our God, for <on thee> do we lean, and <in thy name> have we come against this multitude,—
O Yahweh! <our God> thou art’, let not [weak man] have power against thee’.

12 So Yahweh smote the Ethiopians, before Asa, and before Judah,—and the Ethiopians fled. 13 And Asa and the people that were with him pursued as far as to Gerar, and the Ethiopians fell, so that there was no way for them to recover, for they were routed before Yahweh, and before his host,—and they carried away exceeding much spoil. 14 And they smote all the cities round about Gerar, for the dread of Yahweh was upon them,—and they plundered all the cities, for <great plunder> was there in them. 15 Moreover also <the tents of the cattle> they smote,—and carried off sheep in abundance, and camels, and returned to Jerusalem.

Chapter 15.

1 Now <as for Azariah son of Oded> there came upon him, the spirit of God. 2 So he went forth to meet Asa, and said unto him,
Hear me, O Asa, and all Judah and Benjamin,—[[Yahweh]] is with you, so long as ye are with him, and <if ye seek him> he will be found of you, but <if ye forsake him> he will forsake you.

3 Now <many days> had Israel’ been,—without the faithful God, and without a teaching priest, and without the law;
4 But they turned, in their distress, unto Yahweh God of Israel,—and sought him, and he was found of them.
5 And <in those times> there had been no prosperity, to him that went out nor to him that came in,—for [great consternations] were upon all the inhabitants of the lands; 6 and they were beaten in pieces—nation against nation, and city against city,—for [God] discomfited them with all manner of distress.

6 [[Yeh]] therefore, be strong, and let not your hands be slack,—for there is’ a reward for your work!
8 And <when Asa heard these words and the prophecy of Oded the prophet> a he strengthened himself, and put away the abominations out of all the land of Judah and Benjamin, and out of the cities which he had captured out of the hill country of Ephraim,—and renewed the altar of Yahweh, that was before the porch of Yahweh. 9 And he gathered together all Judah and Benjamin, and the sojourners with them, out of Ephraim and out of Manasseh, and out of Simeon,—for they fell unto him out of Israel, in great numbers, because they saw that [[Yahweh his God]] was with him. 10 So they gathered themselves together unto Jerusalem, in the third month of the fifteenth year of the reign of Asa. 11 And they sacrificed unto Yahweh, on that day, out of the spoil they had brought in,—oxen’ seven hundred, and sheep’ seven thousand.

12 And they entered into a covenant, to seek Yahweh, God of their fathers,—with all their heart, and with all their soul; 13 and [whosoever would not seek unto Yahweh God of Israel] should be put to death,—whether small or great, whether man or woman. 14 So they bound themselves by oath unto Yahweh, with a loud voice, and with shouting,—and with trumpets and horns. 15 And all Judah rejoiced over the oath, for <with all their heart> had they sworn, and <with all their good will> had they sought him, and he was found of them,—and Yahweh gave them rest round about. 16 Moreover also’ <as touching Maacah mother of Asa the king> he removed her from being queen, because she had made, unto the Sacred Stem, c a monstrous thing,—so Asa cut down her monstrous thing, and reduced it to dust, and burnt it up, in the Kidron ravine. 17 But [the high places] were not taken away out of Israel,—only [the heart of Asa] was perfect, all his days.

18 And he brought the hallowed things of his father and his own hallowed things, into the house of God,—silver and gold, and utensils.

19 And [war] was there none,—until the thirty-fifth year of the reign of Asa.

12 And Asa became diseased—in the thirty-ninth year of his reign—in his feet, <exceedingly severe> was his disease,—yet <even in his disease> he sought not Yahweh, but unto physicians.

13 And Asa slept with his fathers,—yea he died in the forty-first year of his reign; 14 and they buried him in his own stately sepulchre, which he had hewn for himself in the city of David, and laid him on a couch which was full of sweet spices—yea of various kinds, made by the perfumer’s art,—and they burned for him with an exceeding great burning.

§ 14. The Reign of Jehoshaphat: his reforming Zeal and Prosperity; his entangling Alliances with Ahab and Israel; the Invasion of his Land and his signal Deliverance.

Chapter 17.

1 And Jehoshaphat his son reigned in his stead,—and strengthened himself against Israel;

2 and put forces in all the fortified cities of Judah,—and set garrisons in the land of Judah, and in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa his father had captured.

3 And it came to pass, that ||Yahweh|| was with Jehoshaphat,—because he walked in the first ways of David his father, and sought not unto the Baalim; 4 for <unto the God of his father> he sought, and <in his commandments> he walked,—and not according to the doing of Israel. 5 Therefore did Yahweh establish the kingdom in his hand, and all Judah gave a present unto Jehoshaphat,—and he came to have riches and honour, in abundance.

6 And his heart was encouraged, in the ways of Yahweh,—and he [yet further] took away the high places and the Sacred Stems, out of Judah.

7 And <in the third year of his reign> he sent to his rulers, even to Ben-hail and to Obadiah and to Zechariah, and to Nethanel, and to Micaiah,—that they were to teach throughout the cities of Judah; 8 and <with them> Levites, Shemaiah and Nethaniah and Zebadiah and Asahel and Shemiramoth and Jehonathan and Adonijah and Tobijah and Tob-adonijah, Levites,—and <with

And it came to pass when Jehoshaphat had riches and honour, in abundance, that he contracted by marriage, affinity with Ahab.

So he went down, at the end of some years, unto Ahab, to Samaria. Ahab therefore sacrificed for him, sheep and oxen, in abundance; also for the people whom he had with him; and then persuaded him to go up against Ramoth-gilead. For Ahab king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat king of Judah, Wilt thou go up with me to Ramoth-gilead? And he said unto him—

And so it came to pass that, '[the dread of Yahweh] was upon all the kingdoms of the countries, that were round about Judah,—and they warred not against Jehoshaphat.' And <from among the Philistines> were they bringing in unto Jehoshaphat a present, and silver as tribute,—[even the Arabians] were bringing in unto him flocks, seven thousand seven hundred rams, and seven thousand seven hundred he-goats. And so it came to pass that '[Jehoshaphat] went on waxing surpassingly great,—and he built throughout all the cities of Judah, and taught the people whom he had with him,—and then these were they who were waiting upon the king!—besides those whom the king placed in the forts and cities for store; [the men of war] were round about Judah,—and they warred not against Jehoshaphat. And <under his direction> was Jehohanan the chief,—and <with him> two hundred and eighty thousand

And <out of Benjamin> a hero of valour, Eliada,—and <with him> armed with bow and buckler> two hundred thousand; and <under his direction> Jehozabad,—and <with him> a hundred and eighty thousand, equipped for war. These were they who were waiting upon the king,—besides those whom the king placed in the fortified cities, throughout all Judah.

12 And ||the messenger who went to call Micaiah|| spake unto him, saying, Lo! ||the words of the prophets|| <with one mouth> are good’ for the king,—be thy word then, I pray thee, like one of theirs, so wilt thou speak good.

13 Then said Micaiah,—||By the life of Yahweh|| <whatsoever my God shall say> [that] must I speak.

14 Now, when he came unto the king, the king said unto him, Micah, shall we go against Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I forbear? And he said, Go ye up and prosper, and may they be delivered into your hand.

15 Then the king said unto him, <How many times> must [[|]] be putting thee on oath,—that thou speak unto me nothing’ but the truth’ in the name of Yahweh?

16 So he said, I saw all Israel, scattered upon the mountains, like sheep that have no’ shepherd,—and Yahweh said, <No masters> have these! let them return every man unto his own house, in peace.

17 Then said the king of Israel, unto Jehoshaphat,—Said I not unto thee, He wilt not prophesy concerning me anything good, but evil?

18 Then said he, ||Therefore|| hear ye the word of Yahweh,—I saw Yahweh, sitting upon his throne, and ||all the host of the heavens|| standing, on his right hand and his left.

19 Then said Yahweh, Who will persuade Ahab king of Israel, that he may go up and fall in Ramoth-gilead?

20 Then came there forth a spirit and stood before Yahweh, and said, [[|]] will persuade him. And Yahweh said unto him, Wherewith?

21 And he said, I will go forth and become a spirit of falsehood, in the mouth of all his prophets. And he said—Thou mayest persuade, moreover also’ thou shalt prevail, go forth, and do so.

22 ||Now|| therefore, lo! Yahweh hath suffered a spirit of falsehood to be put into the mouth of these’ thy prophets,—but ||Yahweh|| hath spoken concerning thee—evil.

23 Then drew near Zedekiah son of Chenaanah, and smote Micaiah upon the cheek,—and said, Which then is the way the spirit of Yahweh passed from me, to speak with thee?

24 Then said Micaiah, Lo! thou shalt see, b on that day when thou shalt enter into a chamber within a chamber, to hide thyself.

25 Then said the king of Israel, Take ye Micaiah, c and carry him back unto Amon ruler of the city, and unto Joash son of the king; 26 and ye shall say, ||Thus|| saith the king, Put ye this one into the prison,—and feed him with the bread of oppression, c and with the water of oppression, c until I return in peace.

27 Then said Micaiah, <If thou do ||at all return|| in peace> Yahweh hath not spoken by me. And he said, Hear! ye peoples, all!

28 Then went up the king of Israel, and Jehoshaphat king of Judah, against Ramoth-gilead. 29 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, [I am about] to disguise myself, and enter into the battle, but [[|]] put on thy robes. So the king of Israel disguised himself, and entered d into the battle. 30 Now [the king of Syria] had commanded the captains of chariots which he had, saying, Ye shall not fight, with small [or] 9 with great,—save with the king of Israel [alone].

And they compassed him about, to fight,—but Jehoshaphat made outcry, and ||Yahweh|| helped him, yea God allured them away from him.

And so it came to pass <when the chariot-captains saw that it was not the king of Israel> that they turned back from pursuing him; but ||a certain man|| drawing a bow in his innocence, smote the king of Israel between the shoulder-joints and the coat of mail,—wherefore he said to the charioteer,

But the battle increased on that day, and ||the king of Israel|| was propping himself up in the chariot before the Syrians, until evening,—and died at the time of the going in of the sun.

Chapter 19.

And Jehoshaphat the king of Judah returned unto his own house in peace, to Jerusalem.

And there came out to meet him, Jehu son of Hanani, the seer, who said unto King Jehoshaphat, <Unto the lawless> was it [right] to give help? and <on them who hate Yahweh> to bestow thy love?

<For this cause> therefore, is there wrath against thee, from before Yahweh; 3 howbeit ||good things|| are found with thee,—for that thou hast consumed the Sacred Stems<sup>c</sup> out of the land, and hast fixed thy heart to seek God.

So Jehoshaphat dwelt in Jerusalem,—and he again went forth among the people, from Beersheba as far as the hill country of Ephraim, and brought them back unto Yahweh, the God of their fathers. 5 And he stationed judges in the land, throughout all the fortified cities of Judah, city by city; 6 and said unto the judges,

See what ||ye|| are doing, inasmuch as <not for man> must ye judge, but for Yahweh,—who will be with you, in the word of justice.<sup>d</sup>

||Now|| therefore, let the dread of Yahweh be upon you,—observe and do, for there is, with Yahweh our God, neither perversity nor respect of persons nor the taking of bribes.

And <even in Jerusalem> did Jehoshaphat station some of the Levites and the priests, and of the ancestral chiefs of Israel, to pronounce the just sentence of Yahweh, and to settle disputes,—when they returned to Jerusalem. 9 And he laid charge upon them, saying,—

||Thus|| shall ye act, in the fear of Yahweh, faithfully and with an undivided heart.

<Any dispute that shall come in unto you from among your brethren who are dwelling in their cities, between blood and blood, between law and commandment and statutes and regulations> then shall ye warn them, that they may not become guilty against Yahweh, and so wrath come upon you and upon your brethren,—

||Thus|| shall ye act, and not incur guilt.

And lo! ||Amariah the chief priest|| is over you as to every matter of Yahweh, and ||Zebadiah son of Ishmael the chief ruler for the house of Judah|| as to every matter of the king, and <as officers> the Levites are before you,—Be strong and act, and Yahweh be with the good!

Chapter 20.

And it came to pass <after this> that the sons of Moab and the sons of Ammon, and <with them> some of the Meunim<sup>f</sup> came against Jehoshaphat, to battle. 2 And there came [some] and told Jehoshaphat, saying,

There is coming against thee, a great multitude from beyond the sea, from Syria,—and lo! they are in Hazazon-tamar, ||the same|| is Engedi.

And Jehoshaphat was afraid, and set his face to seek unto Yahweh,—and proclaimed a fast for all Judah. 4 And Judah gathered themselves together, to enquire of Yahweh,—even <out of all the cities of Judah> came they in, to seek Yahweh.

And Jehoshaphat stood, in the convocation of Judah and Jerusalem<sup>g</sup> in the house of Yahweh,—before the new court; 6 and said,

O Yahweh, God of our fathers, art not ||thou|| God in the heavens? and art ||thou|| not ruling throughout all the kingdoms of the nations? and <in thy hand> [are there not] strength and might? and is there any who can stand?

7 Art not our God, who didst dispossess the inhabitants of this land, from before thy people Israel, and didst give it unto the seed of Abraham who loved thee, unto times age-abiding? and they have dwelt therein, and have built for thee therein, a sanctuary for thy Name, saying:

9 If there come upon us calamity, the sword of judgment or pestilence or famine we will stand before this house, and before thee, for thy Name is in this house,—that we may make outcry unto thee out of our distress, that thou mayest hear and save.

||Now|| therefore, lo! <the sons of Ammon and Moab and Mount Seir, whom thou didst not suffer Israel to invade, when they came out of the land of Egypt, but they turned away from them and destroyed them not> yea lo! ||they|| arerequitingus,—by coming to drive us out, from thy possession, which thou didst cause us to possess.

10 O our God, wilt thou not bring judgment upon them, seeing that there is in us no strength, before this great multitude, that is coming against us,—we therefore, know not what we shall do, but unto thee are our eyes.

11 And all Judah were standing before Yahweh,—also their little ones, their wives and their children.

12 Now <as for Jahaziel son of Zechariah son of Benaiah son of Jeiel son of Mattaniah a Levite, of the sons of Asaph> there came upon him

13 And all Judah were standing before Yahweh,—also their little ones, their wives and their children.

14 Now <as for Jahaziel son of Zechariah son of Benaiah son of Jeiel son of Mattaniah a Levite, of the sons of Asaph> there came upon him

15 and he said,

Give ye heed, all Judah and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and King Jehoshaphat!

Thus saith Yahweh unto you.

As for you do not fear nor be dismayed, by reason of this great multitude, for thou is the battle, but God's.

To-morrow go ye down against them, for lo! there they are coming up by the ascent of Ziz,—and ye shall find them at the end of the ravine, facing the wilderness of Jeruel.
for themselves, beyond what they could carry away,—and they were three days plundering the spoil, for great’ it was. 26 And <on the fourth day> they assembled themselves in the vale of Beracah, a for there’ they blessed Yahweh,—<on this account> was the name of that place called The Vale of Beracahb—unto this day.

27 Then turned every man of Judah and Jerusalem, with ||Jehoshaphat|| at their head, to go again to Jerusalem with joy,—for Yahweh had caused them to rejoice over their enemies. 28 So they came to Jerusalem, with harps’ and with lyres, and with trumpets,—unto the house of Yahweh.

And it came to pass that [the dread of God] was upon all the kingdoms of the countries,—when they heard, that Yahweh had fought against the enemies of Israel. 30 So the kingdom of Jehoshaphat was quiet,—for his God [gave him rest] round about.

Thus Jehoshaphat reigned over Judah,—<thirty-five years old> was he when he began to reign, and <twenty-five years> reigned he in Jerusalem, and the ||name of his mother|| was Azubah, daughter of Shilhi. 32 And he walked in the way of his father Asa, d and turned not from it,—doing that which was right, in the eyes of Yahweh. 33 Howbeit [the high places] were not taken away,—for as yet ’ [the people] had not fixed their heart unto the God of their fathers.

But <the rest of the story of Jehoshaphat, first and last> lo! there it is written in the story of Jehu son of Hanani, which hath been added to the book of the Kings of Israel.

Yet <after this> did Jehoshaphat king of Judah join himself with Ahaziah king of Israel,—||he|| was lawless in his doings; 36 and he joined with him, to make ships to go unto Tarshish,—and they made ships in Ezion-geber. 37 Then prophesied, Eliezer son of Dodavahu of Mareshah, against Jehoshaphat, saying,—

Because thou hast joined thyself with Ahaziah> Yahweh hath broken in pieces thy works.

So the ships were wrecked, and were not able to go unto Tarshish.

§ 15. The Wicked Reign of Jehoram (Jehoshaphat’s Son) calls forth a Warning Letter from the Prophet Elijah, which is fearfully fulfilled.

Chapter 21.

1 And Jehoshaphat slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers, in the city of David,—and Jehoram his son reigned in his stead. 2 Now ||he|| had brethren, sons of Jehoshaphat, —Azariah and Jehiel and Zechariah and Azariah, and Michael and Shephatiah,—||all these|| were sons of Jehoshaphat king of Israel, e

and their father gave them large presents—of silver and of gold and of precious things, with cities of defence, in Judah,—but <the kingdom> gave he unto Jehoram, for ||he|| was the firstborn.

4 But <when Jehoram had arisen over the kingdom of his father> he strengthened himself, and slew all his brethren, with the sword,—moreover also’ some of the rulers of Israel.

5 <Thirty-two years old> was Jehoram when he began to reign,—and <eight years> reigned he, in Jerusalem.

And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, like as did the house of Ahab, for <the daughter of Ahab> had he, to wife,—so he wrought wickedness, in the eyes of Yahweh.

Howbeit Yahweh was not willing to destroy the house of David, because of the covenant which he had solemnised, unto David,—and as he had promised to give unto him a lamp, and unto his sons, all the days.

8 <In his days> revolted the Edomites, from under the hand of Judah,—and set over themselves a king. 9 So Jehoram passed over, with his captains, f and all his chariot, with him,—and it came to pass that he rose up by night, and smote the Edomites that were round about unto him, and the chariot-captains.

10 So Edom revolted from under the hand of Judah—unto this day. ||Then|| must Libnah needs revolt at the same time, from under his hand,—because he had forsaken Yahweh, the God of his fathers. 11 ||He too|| made high places among the mountains of Judah,—and caused the inhabitants of Jerusalem to be unchaste, and seduced Judah.

12 Then came there unto him, a writing, from Elijah the prophet, saying,—

||Thus|| saith Yahweh, God of David thy father,

<Because thou hast not walked in the ways of Jehoshaphat thy father, nor in the ways of Asa, king of Judah, 13 but hast walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, and hast caused Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to be unchaste, after the unchastities of the house of Ahab,—moreover also' <thine own brethren of the house of thy father who were better than thou> hast thou slain>= 14 lo! ||Yahweh|| is about to plague, with a great plague, thy people,—and thy children and thy wives, and all thy possessions; 15 also ||thysel|| with sore diseases, with disease of thy bowels,—until thy bowels shall fall out, by reason of the disease, in a year added to a year. b

16 And Yahweh stirred up against Jehoram the spirit of the Philistines, and the Arabians, who were under the direction of the Ethiopians;

and they came up against Judah, and forced their way into it, and carried off all the possessions that were found belonging to the house of the king, moreover also his sons and his wives,—so that there was left him never a son, save only Jehoahaz the youngest of his sons. 18 And <after all this> Yahweh plagued him in his bowels with an incurable disease. 19 And it came to pass, <in a year beyond a year, even when the end of the days of two years had passed> that his bowels fell out by reason of his disease, so that he died, of malignant disease,—and his people made him no burning, ||like the burning of his fathers|. 20 <Thirty-two years old> was he when he began to reign, and <eight years> reigned he in Jerusalem,—and went his way—unregretted, and <though they buried him in the city of David> yet ||not in the sepulchres of the kings||.

§ 16. Jehoram's Son and Successor, Ahaziah, counselled by his own wicked mother Athalial and by the house of Ahab, works wickedness, and is slain in Samaria by Jehu. His Mother usurps the Throne after (as she supposes) having slain all the Seed Royal; from whom, however, the boy Joash is secretly rescued.

Chapter 22.

1 And the inhabitants of Jerusalem made Ahaziah his youngest son king, in his stead, for <all the elder sons> had the band of men slain' who came in with the Arabians into the camp,—so Ahaziah son of Jehoram king of Judah reigned. 2 <Forty-two years old> was Ahaziah when he began to reign, and <one year> reigned he in Jerusalem,—and ||the name of his mother|| was Athalial, daughter of Omri. 3 ||He too|| walked in the ways of the house of Ahab,—for ||his mother|| became his counselor, to work lawlessness.

4 Wherefore he did the thing that was wicked in the eyes of Yahweh, like the house of Ahab,—for ||they|| became his' counselors, after the death of his father, to his destruction. 5 <Even in their counsel> he walked, and went with Jehoram son of Ahab king of Israel, to war against Hazael king of Syria, in Ramoth-gilead,—and the Syrians smote Joram. 6 And he returned to be healed in Jezreel, because of the wounds wherewith they smote him in Ramah, when he fought with Hazael, king of Syria,—and ||Azariah son of Jehoram king of Judah|| went down to see Jehoram son of Ahab in Jezreel, because ||sick|| was he! 7 But <from God> came the downfall of Azariah, through his coming to Joram,—and because <through his coming> he went out with Jehoram against Jehu son of Nimshi, whom Yahweh had anointed to cut off the house of Ahab. 8 And so it came to pass <when Jehu was executing judgment upon the house of Ahab,—and found the rulers of Judah and the sons of the brethren of Ahaziah ministering to Ahaziah> that he slew them. 9 And he sought Ahaziah, and they captured him, ||he|| having hid himself in Samaria, and they brought him unto Jehu, and he< put him to death, and they buried him, because, said they, he is ||the son of

10. But when Athaliah mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, she rose up and destroyed all the seed royal of the house of Judah. 11. But Jehoshabeath, daughter of the king, took Joash son of Ahaziah, and stole him from among the sons of the king who were being slain, and put him and his nurse in a bedchamber,—so Jehoshabeath daughter of King Jehoram—wife of Jehoiada the priest, for she was the sister of Ahaziah—hid' him from the face of Athaliah so that she slew him not. 12. And it came to pass that he was with them, in the house of God, hidden six years,—while Athaliah was reigning over the land.

§ 17. Jehoiada the Priest secures the Royal Succession to Joash, who reigns well during Jehoiada's life, but then becomes corrupt, slays Jehoiada's faithful son Zechariah, and himself comes to an untimely end.

Chapter 23.

1 And in the seventh year Jehoiada strengthened himself, and took the rulers of hundreds—even Azariah son of Jeroham, and Ishmael son of Jehohanan, and Azariah son of Obed, and Maaseiah son of Adaiah, and Elishaphat son of Zichri—unto himself, in covenant. 2 And they went round throughout Judah, and gathered together the Levites out of all the cities of Judah, and the ancestral chiefs of Israel,—and they came into Jerusalem. 3 And all the convocation solemnised a covenant in the house of God, with the king,—and he said to them, Lo! the king's son must reign, as spake Yahweh concerning the sons of David.

4 ||This|| is the thing that ye shall do,—

≤A third of you entering on the sabbath, both of the priests and of the Levites, as doorkeepers of the porch; and a third, being in the house of the king, and a third, at the foundation gate,—and all the people, being in the courts of the house of Yahweh, then let no one enter the house of Yahweh, save only the priests, and they who are in attendance of the Levites, may enter, for they are,—but all the people shall keep the watch of Yahweh.

7 So shall the Levites encompass the king round about, every man with his weapons in his hand, and he that entereth into the house shall be put to death. Thus be ye with the king, when he cometh in and when he goeth out.

8 So the Levites and all Judah did according to all that Jehoiada the priest commanded, and they took every man his men, who were coming in on the sabbath, with them who were going out on the sabbath,—for Jehoiada the priest dismissed not the courses. 9 And Jehoiada the priest gave unto the captains of hundreds, the spears and the bucklers and the shields, which belonged to King David,—which were in the house of God. 10 And he caused all the people to stand, every man with his weapon in his hand, from the right corner of the house as far as the left corner of the house, by the altar and the house,—near the king round about.

11 Then brought they forth the king's son, and set upon him the crown and the testimony, and made him king,—and Jehoiada and his sons anointed him, and said,

May the king live!

12 Now when Athaliah heard the noise of the people who were running, and those who were praising the king,—then came she unto the people in the house of Yahweh; and looked, and lo! the king, standing by his pillar at the entrance, and the captains and the trumpets by the king, and all the people of the land rejoicing, and blowing with trumpets, and the singers, with instruments of song; and such as led the offering of praise then Athaliah rent her garments, and said,

Conspiracy! conspiracy!

13 Then Jehoiada the priest commanded the captains of hundreds, officers of the force, and said unto them,
Take her forth within the ranks, and he that cometh in after her let him be slain with the sword,— for, said the priest,
Ye must not slay her in the house of Yahweh!

15 So they made way for her, and she came into the entrance of the horse-gate of the house of the king,—and they slew her there.

16 And Jehoiada solemnised a covenant, between himself and all the people, and the king,—that they should become a people unto Yahweh. 17 Then all the people entered into the house of Baal and brake it down, and his altars and his images brake they in pieces,—and Mattan the priest of Baal> they slew, before the altars. 18 And Jehoiada put the oversight of the house of Yahweh into the hand of the priests and the Levites, whom David set by courses over the house of Yahweh, that they might offer up the ascending-sacrifices of Yahweh, as it is written in the law of Moses, with rejoicing and with song,—under the direction of David. 19 And he caused gatekeepers to stand, at the gates of the house of Yahweh,—that no one who was unclean should, on any account, enter.

20 Then took he the captains of hundreds—and the nobles—and the rulers over the people—and all the people of the land, and brought down the king out of the house of Yahweh, and they entered, through the midst of the upper gate, into the house of the king,—and they seated the king, upon the throne of the kingdom. 21 And all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet,—when Athaliaiah> they had slain with the sword.

Chapter 24.

1 Seven years old> was Joash when he began to reign, and forty years> reigned he, in Jerusalem,—and the name of his mother> was Zibiah, of Beersheba. 2 And Joash did that which was right, in the eyes of Yahweh,—all the days of Jehoiada the priest. 3 And Jehoiada took for him two wives,—and he begat sons and daughters.

4 And it came to pass that it was near the heart of Joash to renew the house of Yahweh.

5 So he gathered together the priests and the Levites, and said unto them—

Go ye out unto the cities of Judah, and gather out of all Israel silver to repair the house of your God, year by year, and ye shall hasten the matter,— but the Levites hastened it not.

6 Then the king called for Jehoiada the chief, and said unto him,
Wherefore hast thou not required of the Levites, to bring in out of Judah and out of Jerusalem the tribute of Moses the servant of Yahweh, and of the convocation of Israel,—for the tent of testimony?

7 For Athaliaiah> brake up the House of God,—moreover all the hallowed things of the house of Yahweh> offered they unto the Baalim. 8 So the king bade them, and they made a certain chest,—and set it in the gate of the house of Yahweh, outside. 9 And they made a proclamation, throughout Judah and Jerusalem, to bring in unto Yahweh the tribute of Moses the servant of God laid upon Israel in the desert. 10 And all the rulers and all the people rejoiced,—and brought in and cast into the chest, until they had finished. 11 And it came to pass that the chest was brought into the office of the king by the hand of the Levites, and when they had seen that abundant was the silver> that the scribe of the king came in, and the officer of the chief priest, and they emptied the chest, and bare it, and put it back in its place,—[thus] they did, day by day, and collected silver, in abundance; 12 and the king and Jehoiada gave it unto such as were doing the work of labouring upon the house of Yahweh, and they were hiring masons and carpenters, to renew the house of Yahweh,—moreover also, such as were fashioners of iron and bronze, to repair the house of Yahweh.

13 So the doers of the work wrought, and the work of restoration went forward, in their hand,—and they caused the house of God to stand forth according to its due proportions, and made it strong. 14 And when they had finished> they brought in before the king and Jehoiada the rest of the silver, and he made it into utensils for the house of Yahweh, utensils of attendance, and bowls and spoons, even utensils of gold and silver.

Then were they offering ascending-sacrifices in the house of Yahweh, continually, all the days of Jehoiada.

15 But Jehoiada waxed old and became satisfied with days, and died,—a hundred and thirty years old, when he died. 16 And they buried him in the city of David, with the kings,—because he had done good in Israel, both toward God and his house.

17 Now <after the death of Jehoiada> came the rulers of Judah, and bowed themselves down unto the king,—[then] hearkened the king unto them. 18 And they forsook the house of Yahweh, God of their fathers, and served the Sacred Stems, and the images,—so there was wrath against Judah and Jerusalem, for this their guilt. 19 And he sent among them prophets, to bring them back unto Yahweh,—and they testified against them, but they would not give ear.

20 And ||the spirit of God|| clothed Zechariah son of Jehoiada the priest, and he took his stand above the people,—and said unto them,

||Thus] saith God, Wherefore are ||ye|| transgressing the commandments of Yahweh, so that ye cannot prosper, <because ye have forsaken Yahweh> therefore hath he forsaken you.

21 So they conspired against him, and stoned him with stones, by the commandment of the king,—in the court of the house of Yahweh. 22 Thus Joash the king [remembered not] the lovingkindness which Jehoiada his father had done for him, but slew his son,—and [as he died] he said, Yahweh see' and require!

23 And it came to pass <when the year had gone round> that the force of Syria came up against him, and they entered Judah, and Jerusalem, and destroyed all the rulers of the people, from among the people,—and <all the spoil of them> sent they unto the king of Damascus. 24 <Although ||with a comparatively few men|| came the force of Syria> yet ||Yahweh|| delivered into their hand an exceeding large force,—because they had forsaken Yahweh, the God of their fathers,—and <upon Joash> executed they judgments. 25 And when they had departed from him, for they left him with sore diseases> his own servants conspired against him, for the blood of the son of Jehoiada the priest, and slew him upon his bed, and he died,—and <though they buried him in the city of David> yet did they not bury him in the sepulchres of the kings. 26 Now ||these|| are they that conspired against him,—Zabad son of Shimrith the Moabitess, and Jehozabad son of Shimrith the Moabitess.

27 But <as for his sons> and the greatness of the oracle on him, and the foundation of the house of God> lo! there they are written in the commentary of the Book of Kings,—and Amaziah his son reigned in his stead.

§ 18. The Reign of Amaziah, not wholly good; a victorious War with Edom, a disastrous one with Israel; Amaziah dies in Lachish by conspiracy.

Chapter 25.

1 <Twenty-five years old> was Amaziah, when he began to reign, and <twenty-nine years> reigned he in Jerusalem,—and ||the name of his mother|| was Jehoaddan, of Jerusalem. 2 And he did that which was right in the eyes of Yahweh,—only' not with a whole heart.

3 And it came to pass <when the kingdom was confirmed unto him> that he slew his servants who had smitten the king his father; 4 but <their sons> he put not to death,—but as it is written in the law—in the book of Moses—how that Yahweh commanded, saying—[Fathers] shall not die for [sons], and [Sons] shall not die for [fathers], but

Each man <for his own sin> shall die.

5 And Amaziah gathered Judah together, and appointed them by their ancestral houses, as rulers of thousands and as rulers of hundreds, for all Judah and Benjamin,—and he numbered them, from twenty years old and upwards, and found them three hundred thousand choice men, able to go forth to war, who could grasp spear and shield. 6 And he hired out of Israel, a hundred thousand heroes of valour, for a hundred talents of silver. 7

But [a man of God] came unto him, saying, O king! let not the host of Israel' come with thee,—for Yahweh is not with Israel, [with] any of the sons of Ephraim.
8 But <if thou art going> do, be strong for the battle,—God will cause thee to fall before the enemy, for there is' strength in God, to help or to cause to fall.
9 And Amaziah said unto the man of God,
What then shall be done as to the hundred talents, which I have given to the company of Israel?
Then said the man of God,
Yahweh is able to give thee much more than this.
10 So Amaziah separated them, [appointing] unto the company which had come unto him out of Ephraim, to depart unto their own place,— wherefore their anger was greatly kindled against Judah, so they returned to their own place, in a heat of anger.
11 And <[Amaziah]] took courage, and led forth his people, and went to the valley of salt,—and smote of the sons of Seir, ten thousand; 12 and the sons of Judah took captive [ten thousand alive], and brought to the top of the crag,—and cast them down from the top of the crag, —and cast them as for the sons of the company which had come unto him out of Samaria, even unto Beth-horon,— and smote of them three thousand, and took great plunder.
13 And so it was <after Amaziah came in from smiting the Edomites> that he brought in the gods of the sons of Seir, and set them up for himself, as gods,—and <before them> used he to bow himself down, and <unto them> used he to burn a perfume. 15 Then was kindled the anger of Yahweh against Amaziah,—and he sent unto him
a prophet, and said unto him, Wherefore' hast thou sought the gods of the people, which delivered not their own people out of thy hand?
16 And it came to pass <as he spake unto him> that he said to him,
To be <counselor to the king> have we appointed thee? forbear thou, wherefore' should they smite thee?
So the prophet forbare, and said—
I know that God hath determined to destroy thee, because thou hast done this, and hast not hearkened unto my counsel.
17 Then Amaziah king of Judah took counsel, and sent unto Joash, son of Jehoahaz son of Jehu king of Israel, saying,—
Come, let us look one another in the face!
18 And Joash king of Israel sent unto Amaziah king of Judah, saying,
||A thistle that was in Lebanon|| sent unto a cedar that was in Lebanon, saying, Come! give thy daughter unto my son to wife,—
but there passed by a beast of the field that was in Lebanon, and trampled down the thistle.
19 Thou hast said—
Lo! thou hast smitten the Edomites, and thy heart hath lifted thee up to display honour,—
||Now|| abide in thine own house, wherefore' shouldst thou engage in strife with Misfortune, and fall, ||thou and Judah with thee||?
20 But Amaziah hearkened not, because <from God> it was', to the end he might deliver them up into [their enemies’] hand,—because they had sought the gods of Edom. 21 So Joash king of Israel came up, and they looked one another in the face,
||he, and Amaziah king of Judah||,—in Bethshemesh, which belongeth unto Judah. 22 Then was Judah defeated, before Israel,—and they fled every man to his own home;" and ||Amaziah king of Judah, son of Joash son of Jehoahaz|| was taken by Joash king of Israel, in Beth-shemesh,—and he brought him to Jerusalem, and brake down the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim as far as the corner-gate, four hundred cubits; 24 and <all the gold and the silver and all the utensils that were found in the house of God with Obed-edom, and the treasures of the house of the king, and hostages> b [he took],—and returned to Samaria.
25 And Amaziah son of Joash king of Judah lived, after the death of Joash son of Jehoahaz king of Israel,—fifteen years.

§ 19. The Reign of Uzziah: a Good and Prosperous King, who, however, presumptuously thrusting himself into the Priest’s Office, is smitten with Leprosy; and his son Jotham acts as Regent.

Chapter 26.

Then all the people of Judah took Uzziah, when [he] was sixteen years old, and made him king, instead of his father Amaziah. 2 So he built Elloth, and restored it to Judah,—after that the king slept with his fathers. 3 Sixteen years old was Uzziah, when he began to reign, and fifty-two years reigned he in Jerusalem,—and the [name of his mother] was Jechiliah, of Jerusalem. 4 And he did that which was right in the eyes of Yahweh,—according to all that Amaziah his father had done.

And it came to pass that he set himself to seek God, in the days of Zechariah, who gave understanding in the seeing of God,—and throughout the days of his seeking Yahweh God [prospered him]. 6 So he went forth and made war against the Philistines, and brake down the wall of Gath, and the wall of Jabneh, and the wall of Ashdod,—and built cities in Ashdod,—and among the Philistines. 7 And God helped him against the Philistines and against the Arabians who dwelt in Gur-baal, and the Meunim. 8 And the Ammonites gave a present to Uzziah,—and his name went forth as far as the entering in of Egypt, for he shewed exceeding great strength.

And Uzziah built towers, in Jerusalem, over the corner-gate, and over the valley-gate, and over the angle,—and he made them strong. 10 And he built towers in the desert, and dug many wells, for much cattle had he, both in the lowland, and in the plain,—husbandmen and vine-dressers, in the mountains and in the fruitful field, for, a lover of the soil was he. 11 And it came to pass that Uzziah had a force ready to make war, to go forth as a host in company, by the number of their reckoning, under the direction of Jeiel the scribe, and Maaseiah the officer,—under the direction of Hananiah, from among the captains of the king. 12 The whole number of the ancestral chiefs pertaining to the heroes of valour was two thousand and six hundred;

and was the force of a host, three hundred and seven thousand five hundred, ready to make war, with the strength of a force,—for helping the king against an enemy. 14 And Uzziah prepared for them, for all the host, bucklers and spears and helmets, and coats of mail, and bows,—and yea even sling-stones. 15 And he made in Jerusalem, inventions invented of the inventor, to be upon the towers and upon the turrets, for throwing with arrows, and with great stones,—so that his name went forth afar, until he was strong.

But when he became strong uplifted his heart, unto ruin, for he acted unfaithfully against Yahweh his God,—and entered into the temple of Yahweh, to burn incense upon the altar of incense. 17 Then entered after him, Azariah the priest,—and with him eighty priests of Yahweh, sons of valour;

and they took their stand against Uzziah the king, and said unto him—

It is not for thee O Uzziah, to burn incense unto Yahweh, but <for the priests, the sons of Aaron, who are hallowed> to burn incense. Go forth out of the sanctuary, for thou hast acted unfaithfully, and <not to thee, for an honour> shall it be from Yahweh Elohim.

Then was Uzziah wroth, and in his hand was a censor, to burn incense,—and when he was wroth with the priests [a leprosy] shot forth in his forehead, before the priests, in the house of Yahweh, from off the altar of incense. 20 <When Azariah the chief priest and all the priests turned towards him> lo! [he] was leprous, in his forehead, so they hastened him from thence,—yea [even he himself] hurried to go out, because Yahweh had smitten him. 21 And it came to pass that Uzziah the king was a leper until the day of his death, and dwelt in a house apart—a leper, for he was cut off from the house of Yahweh,—and [Jotham his son] was over the house of the king, judging the people of the land.

22 Now <the rest of the story of Uzziah, first and last> hath Isaiah son of Amoz, the prophet, written.

23 And Uzziah slept with his fathers, and they buried him with his fathers in the field of burial that pertained unto the kings, for they said,
[A leper] he is'.
And Jotham his son reigned in his stead.

§ 20. Jotham’s excellent and prosperous Reign.

Chapter 27.

<Twenty-five years old> was Jotham when he began to reign, and <sixteen years> reigned he in Jerusalem,—and [the name of his mother] was Jerushah, daughter of Zadok. 2 And he did that which was right in the eyes of Yahweh, according to all that Uzziah his father had done, only' he entered not into the temple of Yahweh,—though still' were the people' acting corruptly. 3 [He] built the upper gate of the house of Yahweh,—and <on the wall of Ophel> built he extensively. 4 <Cities also> built he, in the hill country of Judah,—and <in the thick woods> built he fortresses and towers. 5 [He] also made war against the king of the sons of Ammon, and prevailed against them, and the sons of Ammon gave him, during that year, a hundred talents of silver, and ten thousand measures of wheat, and <of barley> ten thousand,—<this> did the sons of Ammon render him, both in the second year, and the third. 6 So Jotham strengthened himself,—for he fixed his ways before Yahweh his God.

7 But <the rest of the story of Jotham, and all his wars, and his ways> lo! there they are written in the book of the Kings of Israel and Judah. 8 <Twenty-five years old> was he when he began to reign,—and <sixteen years> reigned he in Jerusalem. 9 And Jotham slept with his fathers, and they buried him, in the city of David,—and Ahaz his son reigned in his stead.

§ 21. The Reign of Ahaz—a wicked King; chastised by Syrians, Israelites, Edomites, and Philistines; and buried with dishonour. First Appeal to Assyria. Charming Incident at Samaria.

Chapter 28.

<Twenty years old> was Ahaz when he began to reign, and <sixteen years> reigned he in Jerusalem,—but he did not that which was right in the eyes of Yahweh, like David his father; 2 but walked in the ways of the kings of Israel,—yea <even molten images> made he to the Baalim; 3 and [he] burned incense, in the valley of the son of Hinnom,—and burnt his sons, in the fire, according to the abominable ways of the nations, whom Yahweh dispossessed from before the sons of Israel. 4 And he sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places, and upon the hills,—and under every green tree. 5 Wherefore Yahweh his God delivered him into the hand of the king of Syria, who smote him, and carried away captive from him a large body of captives, and brought them into Damascus,—yea <even into the hand of the king of Israel>, was he delivered, who smote him with a great smiting. 6 And Pekah son of Remaliah slew, in Judah, a hundred and twenty thousand in one day, [all] sons of valour,—because they had forsaken Yahweh, God of their fathers. 7 And Zichri a hero of Ephraim, slew Maaseiah son of the king, and Azrikam, chief ruler of the house,—and Elkanah, that was next unto the king. 8 And the sons of Israel carried away captive from among their brethren two hundred thousand, wives, sons and daughters, moreover also' <of much spoil> did they plunder them,—and brought the spoil to Samaria.

9 But <in that place> was a prophet unto Yahweh, Oded’ his name, so he went out to meet the host that was coming unto Samaria, and said unto them,

Lo! <in the wrath of Yahweh, God of your fathers, against Judah> hath he delivered them into your hand,—and ye have slain them in a rage, until <to the heavens> it hath reached.

10 [Now] therefore, [ye] are thinking to tread down [the children of Judah and Jerusalem] as servants and as handmaids for yourselves.

a “On the wooded heights”—O.G.
But is it not so—that ||ye yourselves|| are altogether guilty against Yahweh your God?
11 ||Now|| therefore, hearken unto me, and restore the captives whom ye have taken captive from among your brethren,—for ||the glow of the anger of Yahweh|| is over you.
12 Then rose up certain of the chiefs of the sons of Ephraim—Azariah son of Jehohanan,a Berechiah son of Meshillemoth, and Jehizkiah son of Shallum, and Amasa son of Hadlai,—against them who were coming in from the army; 13 and said unto them, Ye shall not bring in the captives hither, for ||ye|| are thinking to add unto our sins, and unto our guilt,—for great is the guilt we have, and fierce is the anger over Israel.
14 So the armed men left the captives, and the plunder, before the rulers, and all the convocation.
15 Then rose up the men who have been expressed by name—and took the captives, and <all who were naked among them> clothed they out of the spoil, and arrayed them and sandalled them, and gave them to eat and to drink, and anointed them, and conducted them with asses for every one that was exhausted, b and brought them to Jericho the city of palm-trees, near unto their brethren,—and then returned to Samaria.
16 <At that time> sent King Ahaz unto the kings of Assyria to help him. 17 For again' had [the Edomites] come and smitten Judah, and carried away captives; 18 and [the Philistines] had spread themselves out against the cities of the lowland and of the south, pertaining to Judah, and had captured Beth-shemesh and Aijalon and Gederoth and Socoh with its villages, and Timnah with its villages, and Gimzo, with its villages,—and dwelt there.
19 For Yahweh had brought Judah low, because of Ahaz king of Israel,—for he had given the rein in Judah, and ||been grievously unfaithful|| with Yahweh. 20 And Tilgath-pilneser king of Assyria [came against him],—and distressed him, but strengthened him not.
21 For Ahaz took away a portion out of the house of Yahweh, and out of the house of the king, and the rulers,—and gave unto the king of Assyria, but he helped him not. 22 And <in the time of his distress> he yet further' acted unfaithfully with Yahweh,— ||he|| King Ahaz!
23 For he sacrificed unto the gods of Damascus who had smitten him, and said, <Because the gods of the kings of Syria are helping them> ||unto them|| will I sacrifice, that they may help me.
But ||they|| served to seduce him and all Israel. 24 And Ahaz gathered together the utensils of the house of God, and brake away the fittings of the house of God, and shut up the doors of the house of Yahweh,—and made for himself altars at every corner in Jerusalem; 25 and <in every several city of Judah> made he high places, for burning incense unto other gods,—and provoked Yahweh, God of his fathers.
26 But <the rest of his story, and all his ways, first and last> [there they are] written in the book of the Kings of Judah and Israel.
27 And Ahaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city, in Jerusalem, but they brought him not into the sepulchres of the kings of Israel,—and Hezekiah his son reigned in his stead.

§ 22. The Reign of Hezekiah, who purifies and rededicates the Temple; celebrates a Great Passover; destroys Idolatrous Images; restores Temple Services; provides for Priests and Levites; is saved from Assyrian Invasion; falls sick and receives a wonderful Token; is uplifted with Pride, but humbles himself, and dies greatly honoured.

Chapter 29.

1 And ||Hezekiah|| began to reign when he was twenty-five years old, and <twenty-nine years> reigned he in Jerusalem,—and ||the name of his father|| was Abijah, daughter of Zechariah. 2 And he did that which was right in the eyes of Yahweh,—according to all that ||David his father|| had done.
3 ||He|| <in the first year of his reign, in the first month> opened the doors of the house of Yahweh, and repaired them. 4 And he brought in the priests, and the Levites,—and gathered them together in the broadway on the east; 5 and said unto them, Hear me, O Levites!

a So it shd be; wrong in A.V. and in R.V.
| Now | hallow yourselves, and hallow the house of Yahweh, God of your fathers, and take forth the impure thing out of the holy place.

6 For our fathers have acted unfaithfully and done the thing that was wicked in the eyes of Yahweh our God, and have forsaken him,—and have turned round their faces from the habitation of Yahweh, and have offered their backs.

7 Moreover they have shut up the doors of the porch, and have quenched the lamps, and have not burned,—and have not caused to go up in the holy place, unto the God of Israel.

8 Thus hath it come to pass, that the wrath of Yahweh hath been upon Judah and Jerusalem,—and he hath delivered them up as a terror and as an astonishment and as hissing, even as can see with your own eyes.

9 And lo! our fathers have fallen by the sword, and their sons and our fathers and our wives and our daughters have been brought out every unclean thing which they found in the temple of Yahweh, into the court of the house of Yahweh,—where the Levites received it, to carry it forth to the Kidron ravine outside. 17 And they began, on the first of the first month, to hallow,—and on the eighth day of the month they came to the porch of Yahweh, so they hallowed the house of Yahweh in eight days,—and on the sixteenth day of the first month they finished.

18 Then came they in unto Hezekiah the king, and said,

We have purified all the house of Yahweh,—the altar of ascending-sacrifice, and all the utensils thereof, and the table for setting in array, and all the utensils thereof.

19 And the utensils which King Ahaz in his reign rejected when he acted unfaithfully have we made ready and hallowed,—and before the altar of Yahweh.

20 So Hezekiah the king rose up early, and gathered together the rulers of the city,—and went up to the house of Yahweh. 21 And they brought in seven bullocks, and seven rams, and seven young sheep, and seven he-goats for bearing sin, for the kingdom and for the sanctuary and for Judah,—and he bade the sons of Aaron, the priests, cause them to ascend upon the altar of Yahweh. 22 So they slaughtered the bullocks, and the priests received the blood, and dashed it against the altar, and slaughtered the rams, and dashed the blood against the altar, and slaughtered the young sheep, and dashed the blood against the altar. 23 And they brought near the he-goats for bearing sin, before the king, and the convocation,—and they leaned their hands upon them; 24 and the priests slaughtered them, and sin-cleansed, with their blood, the altar, to put a propitiatory-covering over all Israel,—because did the king appoint the ascending-sacrifice and the offering for bearing sin.

25 And he caused the Levites to stand in the house of Yahweh, with cymbals and with harps and with lyres, by the commandment of David, and of Gad the seer of the king, and of Nathan the prophet,—for by the hand of Yahweh came the commandment by the hand of his prophets. 26 So the Levites took their stand, with the instruments of David, and the priests, with the trumpets. 27 And Hezekiah gave word, to cause the ascending-sacrifice to go up on the altar,—and <when the ascending-sacrifice began> the singing unto Yahweh began, and the trumpets, even under the direction of the instruments of David, king of Israel.

28 And ||all the convocation|| were bowing themselves in prostration, and ||the song|| was resounding and the trumpets were blowing,—||the whole|| until the completing of the ascending-sacrifice. 29 And <when the offering was complete> the king knelt down and all who were present with him, and bowed themselves in prostration. 30 And Hezekiah the king and the rulers gave word to the Levites, to offer praise unto Yahweh, in the words of David, and of Asaph the seer,—so they offered praise right joyfully, and bent their heads and bowed themselves in prostration. 31 Then responded Hezekiah and said—

||Now|| have ye consecrated yourselves unto Yahweh. Draw near, and bring in sacrifices and thank-offerings unto the house of Yahweh,—

So the convocation brought sacrifices and thank-offerings, and ||everyone of a willing heart|| [brought] ascending-sacrifices. 32 And it came to pass that ||the number of ascending-sacrifices which the convocation brought|| was—seventy bullocks, and a hundred rams, and two hundred young sheep,—as an ascending-sacrifice unto Yahweh, ||all these||.

33 But ||the hallowed beasts|| were six hundred bullocks, and three thousand sheep. 34 Only ||the priests|| were too few, and were unable to flay all the ascending-sacrifices,—so their brethren the Levites strengthened them, until the work was complete and until the priests had hallowed themselves, for ||the Levites|| were more upright in heart to hallow themselves, than the priests. 35 Moreover also, ||the ascending-sacrifices|| were in abundance, with the fat portions of the peace-offerings, and with the drink-offerings to every ascending-sacrifice,—thus was established' the service of the house of Yahweh. 36 And Hezekiah rejoiced, and all the people, because God had established it for the people,—for <suddenly> had the thing come about.

Chapter 30.

1 Then sent Hezekiah unto all Israel and Judah, moreover also' <letters> wrote he unto Ephraim and Manasseh, that they should come unto the house of Yahweh, in Jerusalem,—to keep a passover' unto Yahweh, God of Israel. 2 Yea, the king and his rulers and all the convocation in Jerusalem, had taken counsel,—to keep the passover in the second month. 3 For they were unable to keep it at that time,—because ||the priests|| had not hallowed themselves in sufficient numbers, and ||the people|| had not gathered themselves unto Jerusalem. 4 And the thing was right, in the eyes of the king,—and in the eyes of all the convocation. 5 So they established a decree, to make proclamation throughout all Israel, from Beer-sheba even unto Dan, that they should come in to keep a passover unto Yahweh the God of Israel, in Jerusalem,—for <not for a long time> had they kept it as written.

6 The runners, therefore, went with letters from the hand of the king and his rulers, throughout all Israel and Judah, and according to the commandment of the king, saying,—

Ye sons of Israel, return ye unto Yahweh, God of Abraham, Isaac and Israel, and he will return unto the remnant, that which is left to you, out of the hand of the kings of Assyria. And be not ye like your fathers, or like your brethren, who acted unfaithfully with Yahweh, God of your fathers,—who therefore delivered them up for an astonishment, as ||ye yourselves|| can see.

8 ||Now|| do not stiffen your neck, like your fathers,—stretch forth' the hand unto Yahweh, and enter into his sanctuary which he hath hallowed unto times age-abiding, and serve Yahweh your God, that he may turn from you the glow of his anger.

For <by your returning unto Yahweh> ||your brethren and your children] shall find compassion before their captors, so as to return unto this land.

For <gracious and compassionate> is Yahweh your God, and will not turn away his face from you, if ye will return unto him.

So the runners were passing from city to city throughout the land of Ephraim and Manasseh, even unto Zebulun,—but they were laughing them to scorn, and mocking them. 11 Howbeit ||some, out of Asher and Manasseh and out of Zebulun] humbled themselves, and came to Jerusalem. 12 Also <upon Judah> came the hand of God, to give them one heart,—to keep the commandment of the king and the rulers, as the word of Yahweh.

And there gathered themselves unto Jerusalem much people, to keep the festival of unleavened cakes, in the second month,—||[an exceeding large convocation]. 14 Then rose they up, and removed the altars, which were in Jerusalem,—and <all the censers> removed they, and cast them into the Kidron ravine, 15 Then slaughtered they the passover, on the fourteenth of the second month,—and ||the priests and the Levites|| were put to shame, and hallowed themselves, and brought in the ascending-sacrifices of the house of Yahweh. 16 And they stood in their place, according to their regulation, according to the law of Moses the man of God,—||[the priests]|| dashing the blood, [which they received] at the hand of the Levites. 17 For there were many in the convocation, who had not hallowed themselves,—but ||the Levites|| were over the slaughtering of the passover-lambs, for every one who was not pure, to hallow him unto Yahweh. 18 For ||[the multitude of the people]|| <many out of Ephraim and Manasseh, Issachar and Zebulun> had not purified themselves, for they did eat the passover, otherwise than as was written,—for Hezekiah prayed for them, saying,

May Yahweh the Good, put a propitiatory-covering about every one who hath prepared ||his heart|| to seek God, even Yahweh’ God of his fathers,—though not according to the purification of the sanctuary!

And Yahweh hearkened unto Hezekiah, and healed the people.

And so the sons of Israel who were found in Jerusalem kept the festival of unleavened cakes seven days, with great rejoicing,—and the Levites and the priests were offering praise unto Yahweh day by day, with loud instruments, unto Yahweh.

And Hezekiah spake unto the heart of all the Levites who were giving good instruction respecting Yahweh,—and they did eat the appointed feast seven days, sacrificing the peace-offerings, and offering praise unto Yahweh, God of their fathers.

Then all the convocation took counsel, to keep seven days more,—and they kept seven days, with rejoicing. 24 For ||Hezekiah king of Judah|| presented to the convocation, a thousand bullocks and seven thousand sheep, and ||[the rulers]|| presented to the convocation, a thousand bullocks and ten thousand sheep,—and ||[priests in great numbers]|| hallowed themselves. 25 So all the convocation of Judah, and the priests and the Levites, and all the convocation that came in out of Israel [rejoiced],—also the sojourners who were coming in out of the land of Israel, and the dwellers in Judah. 26 Thus was there great rejoicing, in Jerusalem,—for <since the days of Solomon son of David king of Israel> there had not been the like of this, in Jerusalem. 27 Then rose up the priests the Levites, and blessed the people, and there was a hearkening unto their voice,—and their prayer entered into his holy dwelling-place, even into the heavens.

Chapter 31.

1 Now <when all this was finished> all Israel who were present went forth unto the cities of Judah, and brake in pieces the pillars—and cut down the Sacred Stems—and threw down the high places and the altars, out of all Judah and Benjamin—and throughout Ephraim and Manasseh, until they had made an end,—then all the sons of Israel returned every man to his own possession, unto their own cities.

2 And Hezekiah appointed the courses of the priests and the Levites, over their courses, every man according to the requirements of his service, both priests and Levites, for ascending-sacrifice and for peace-offerings,—to be in attendance and to give thanks and to offer praise, in the gates of the camps of Yahweh; 3 also the portion of the king out of his own substance, for the ascending-sacrifices,—[even] for the ascending-sacrifices of the morning and of the evening, and the ascending-sacrifices for the sabbaths, and for the heave-offering of Yahweh, and for the tithe of hallowed things, which had been hallowed unto Yahweh their God;—unto all who were expressed by name,—to give portions to every male among the priests, and to the Levites,—to the end they might persevere in the law of Yahweh. 5 And <as soon as the thing spread abroad> the sons of Israel caused to abound the firstfruit of corn, new wine, and oil, and honey, and all the increase of the field,—yea <the tithe of all—in abundance> brought they in. 6 And <as for the sons of Israel and Judah who were dwelling in the cities of Judah> [[even they]]  did bring in and pile up<——[[heaps, heaps]]. 7 <In the third month> began they the heaps, at the foundation,— and <in the seventh> they finished. 8 And Hezekiah and the rulers came, and saw the heaps,—and blessed Yahweh, and his people Israel.

9 Then applied Hezekiah unto the priests and the Levites, concerning the heaps. 10 And Azariah, the chief priest of the house of Zadok, spake unto him,—and said—

<<From the time of beginning to bring in [the heave-offering] into the house of Yahweh—to eat and to be full> there hath still been left, even to this abundance.

For [[Yahweh]] hath blessed his people, and [[that which is left]] is this great plenty.

11 Then Hezekiah gave word to prepare chambers, in the house of Yahweh, and they prepared them; 12 and brought in the heave-offering and the tithe and the hallowed things, faithfully,—and <over them, as chief ruler> was Cononiah" the Levite, and Shimei his brother, next; 13 and Jehiel and Azaziah and Nahath and Asahel and Jerimoth and Jozabad, and Elie and Ismachiah, and Mahath, and Benaiah,—overseers under the direction of Cononiah and Shehem his brother, by the appointment of Hezekiah the king, and Azariah the chief ruler of the house of God.

14 And [[Kore, son of Immah the Levite, the doorkeeper on the east]] was over the freewill offerings of God,—to give the heave-offering of Yahweh, and the most holy things. 15 And <under his direction> were Eden and Miniamin and Jeshua and Shemaiah, Amariah and Shecaniah, in the cities of the priests, in trust to give unto their brethren by courses, as the great so the small; 16 besides’ registering them2 by males, from three years old and upward, unto every one that entered into the house of Yahweh, in the need of a day upon its day,—by their service, in their watches, according to4 their courses: 17 both the registering of the priests, by their ancestral houses, and the Levites, from twenty years old and upward,—in their watches, in5 their courses;

18 even to the registering of all their little ones, their wives and their sons and their daughters, unto all the convocation,—for <in their trust> they hallowed themselves in holiness; 19 also unto the sons of Aaron the priests8 in the fields of the pasture land of their cities, in every several city, men who were expressed by name,—to give portions to every male among the priests, and to all registered among the Levites.

20 And Hezekiah did thus, throughout all Judah,—and he did that which was good and right and faithful, before Yahweh his God.

21 And <in all the work which he began in the service of the house of God—and in the law—and in the commandment, to seek unto his God> [[with all his heart]] he wrought, and prospered.
Chapter 32.

1 <After these things done in faithfulness> came Sennacherib king of Assyria,—and entered into Judah, and encamped against the fortified cities, and thought to break into them for himself. 2 And <when Hezekiah saw that Sennacherib had come,—and that ||his face|| was—to war, against Jerusalem>

3 he took counsel with his captains and his heroes, to stop the waters of the fountains, which were outside the city,—and they helped him. 4 And there were gathered together much people, so they stopped all the fountains, and the torrent that flowed through the midst of the land, saying,—

Wherefore’ should the kings of Assyria come, and find many waters?

5 And he took courage, and built all the wall that was broken down and carried up thereon towers, and strengthened Millo, the city of David,—and made weapons in abundance, and bucklers,

6 and set captains of war over the people,—and gathered them together unto him in the broadway of the gate of the city, and spake unto their heart, saying,—

Be strong and bold, do not fear neither be dismayed, because of the king of Assyria, nor because of all the multitude that is with him,—for <with us> is One greater than with him: 8 <with him> is an arm of flesh, but <with us> is Yahweh our God, to help us, and to fight our battles.

And the people leaned upon the words of Hezekiah king of Judah.

9 <After this> Sennacherib king of Assyria sent his servants towards Jerusalem, ||himself|| being near Lachish, and all his imperial might’ with him,—unto Hezekiah king of Judah, and unto all Judah that was in Jerusalem, saying:

10 ||Thus|| saith Sennacherib, king of Assyria,—<Upon what> are ||ye|| trusting, that ye are awaiting the siege in Jerusalem?

11 Is not ||Hezekiah|| persuading you, so as to deliver you up to die with hunger and with thirst, saying,—

||Yahweh our God|| will deliver us out of the hand of the king of Assyria?

12 Is it not ||the same Hezekiah|| who hath removed his high places, and his altars,—and hath given word to Judah and Jerusalem, saying,

<Before one altar> shall ye bow yourselves down, and <thereupon> shall ye burn incense?

13 Will ye not take note, what I have done, ||I and my fathers||, to all the peoples of the countries? Have the gods of the nations of the countries been ||at all able|| to deliver their country, out of my hand?

14 Who <among all the gods of these nations whom my fathers devoted to destruction> hath ever been able to deliver his people out of my hand,—that your’ god should be able to deliver you’ out of my hand?

15 ||Now|| therefore, do not let Hezekiah beguile you nor persuade you thus, neither do ye believe him.

For no gob’ of any nation or kingdom hath ever been able to deliver his people out of my hand, or out of the hand of my fathers,—how much less shall ||your gods|| deliver you’ out of my hand?

16 And ||yet more|| spake his servants, against Yahweh, God,—and against Hezekiah his servant.

17 <Letters> also wrote he, to scoff at Yahweh God of Israel, and to speak against him, saying,

<Like the gods of the nations of the countries, who delivered not their people out of my hand> ||so|| shall the god of Hezekiah not deliver his people out of my hand.

18 Then cried they out, with a loud voice, in the Jews’ language, unto the people of Jerusalem who were upon the wall, to affright them, and to terrify them,—to the end they might capture the city. 19 And they spake against the God’ of Jerusalem,—as against the gods of the peoples of the earth, the work’ of the hands of men.

20 And Hezekiah the king and Isaiah son of Amoz, the prophet, prayed concerning this,—and made outcry unto the heavens. 21 So Yahweh sent a messenger, who cut off every hero of valour, and chief ruler and captain, in the camp of the king of Assyria,—and he returned with shame of face to his own land, and when he entered the house of his god> then [the issue of his own body—there] caused him to fall by the sword.

22 Thus did Yahweh save Hezekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem out of the hand of Sennacherib king of Assyria, and out of the hand of every one,—and gave them rest on every side.

23 And [many] were bringing in a present unto Yahweh, to Jerusalem, and precious things, unto Hezekiah king of Judah,—so that he was exalted in the eyes of all the nations, from thenceforth.

24 <In those days> was Hezekiah sick unto death,—and he prayed unto Yahweh> when he entered the house of his god,—and there came upon him the wrath of Yahweh,—and so there came upon him, wrath, and upon Judah and Jerusalem. 25 But <not according to the benefit done unto him> did Hezekiah make return, for uplifted' was his heart,—and so there came upon him, wrath, and upon Judah and Jerusalem. 26 Then Hezekiah humbled himself, [for the uplifting of his heart], [he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem],—so that the wrath of Yahweh came not upon them, in the days of Hezekiah.

27 And it came to pass that [Hezekiah] had riches and honour in great abundance,—and [treasuries] made he for himself—for silver and for gold and for costly stones, and for spices and for precious things, and for all utensils to be covetted; 28 storehouses also, for the increase of corn, and new wine and oil,—and cribs for every kind of beast, and cribs for the flocks; 29 and cities made he for himself, and possessions of flocks and herds, in abundance,—for God had given him exceeding great wealth. 30 And [the same Hezekiah] stopped up the upper spring of the waters of Gihon, and brought them straight down the west side of the city of David,—and Hezekiah prospered in all his work. 31 |Yet verily| <with regard to the ambassadors of the rulers of Babylon, who sent unto him to enquire concerning the wonderful token which came to pass in the land> God left' him,—to prove him, to take note of all that was in his heart.

32 But <the rest of the story of Hezekiah, and his lovingkindnesses> [there they are] written in the visions of Isaiah son of Amoz, the prophet, in the book of the Kings of Judah and Israel.

33 And Hezekiah slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the ascent of the sepulchres of the sons of David, and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem did him [honour] in his death,—and Manasseh his son reigned in his stead.

§ 23. Manasseh’s wicked and debasing Reign: the King, degraded and carried to Babylon, humbles himself, and is pardoned: being brought back, he fortifies Jerusalem, and restores the Worship of Israel’s God.

Chapter 33.

1 Twelve years old was Manasseh when he began to reign,—and <fifty-five years> reigned he in Jerusalem. 2 And he did the thing that was wicked in the eyes of Yahweh,—according to the abominable ways of the nations, whom Yahweh dispossessed from before the sons of Israel. 3 And he again built the high places, which Hezekiah his father had thrown down,—and set up altars to the Baalim, and made Sacred Stems, and bowed in prostration unto all the army of the heavens, and served them; 4 and built altars in the house of Yahweh,—as to which Yahweh had said,

<In Jerusalem> shall be my Name, unto times age-abiding.

5 Yea he built altars unto all the army of the heavens,—in the two courts of the house of Yahweh. 6 And [he] caused his sons to pass through the fire, in the valley of the son of Hinnom, and practised hidden arts and used divination, and practised sorcery, and appointed a necromancer, and a wizard,—he exceeded in doing the thing that was wicked in the eyes of Yahweh, to provoke him to anger; 7 and he set a resemblance-image which he had made,—in the house of God, as to which God had said unto David, and unto Solomon his son,
<In this house and in Jerusalem which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel> will I put my Name, unto times age-abiding.

8 So will I not again remove the foot of Israel away from the soil which I appointed for their fathers.

Only' they must observe to do, all that I have commanded them, even all the law and the statutes and the regulations, by the hand of Moses.

9 And so Manasseh led astray Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem,—to commit wickedness beyond the nations which Yahweh had destroyed from before the sons of Israel.

10 And Yahweh spake unto Manasseh and unto his people, but they did not give ear. 11 So Yahweh brought in upon them, the captains of the army that belonged to the king of Assyria, and they captured Manasseh with hooks, and bound him captive with a pair of bronze fetters, and took him away to Babylon. 12 But <in his distress> he appeased the face of Yahweh his God,—and humbled himself greatly, before the God of his fathers; 13 and <when he prayed unto him> then was he entreated of him, and hearkened unto his supplication, and brought him back to Jerusalem, unto his own kingdom, and so Manasseh came to know, that ||Yahweh|| is God.

14 And <after this> he built an outer wall to the city of David on the west of the Gihon in the ravine, even to the entering in through the fish-gate, and went round to Ophel, and carried it up very high,—and put captains of valour in all the fortified cities, throughout Judah. 15 And he removed the gods of the foreigner and the image, out of the house of Yahweh, and all the altars that he had built in the mountain of the house of Yahweh, and in Jerusalem,—and he cast them forth outside the city. 16 And he built' the altar of Yahweh, and sacrificed thereon peace-offerings, and thanksgiving sacrifices,—and gave word to Judah to serve Yahweh, God of Israel. 17 Howbeit' still' were ||the people|| sacrificing in the high places,—only' unto Yahweh their God.

18 But <the rest of the story of Manasseh, and his prayer unto his God, and the story of the seers who spake unto him in the name of Yahweh God of Israel> [there they are] in the story of the kings of Israel: 19 <both his prayer and how [God] was entreated of him—and all his sin and his treacherous act, and the sites whereon he built high places, and set up the Sacred Stems and the images, before he humbled himself> [there they are] written in the story of the seers. 20 And Manasseh slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the garden of his own house,—and Amon his son reigned in his stead.

§ 24. Amon’s brief but wicked Reign: ended by the Assassination of the King by his own Servants in his own House.

21 <Twenty-two years old> was Amon when he began to reign,—and <two years> reigned he in Jerusalem. 22 And he did the thing that was wicked in the eyes of Yahweh, as Manasseh his father had done,—and <unto all the images> which Manasseh his father had made> Amon offered sacrifice, and did serve them. 23 But he did not humble himself before Yahweh as Manasseh his father humbled himself,—for ||he, Amon|| made guilt abound. 24 And his servants conspired against him, and put him to death, in his own house. 25 But the people of the land smote all the conspirators against King Amon,—and the people of the land made Josiah his son king in his stead.

§ 25. Josiah’s good Reign, during which the Book of the Law is found. The King’s reforming Zeal postpones but cannot avert the Coming Visitation. Josiah is slain at Megiddo by Pharaoh-neco king of Egypt.

Chapter 34.

1 <Eight years old> was Josiah when he began to reign,—and <thirty-one years> reigned he in Jerusalem. 2 And he did that which was right, in the eyes of Yahweh,—and walked in the ways of David his father, and turned not aside, to the right hand or to the left. 3 And <in the eighth year of his reign, ||he|| being yet a boy> he began to seek unto the God of David his father,—and <in the twelfth year> he began to purify Judah and
Jerusalem, from the high places and the Sacred Stems, and the carved images and the molten images. And they threw down before him, the altars of the Baalim, and the sun-pillars which were on high above them; he hewed down,—and the Sacred Stems and the carved images brake he in pieces and ground to dust, and tossed over the face of the graves, of them who had been sacrificing unto them.

And the bones of the priests burned he upon their altars,—and so purified Judah and Jerusalem: also throughout the cities of Manasseh and Ephraim and Simeon, even as far as Naphtali,—searched he their houses, round about. And when he had thrown down the altars and the Sacred Stems, and the images he had beaten to powder, and the sun-pillars he had hewn down throughout all the land of Israel; then returned he to Jerusalem.

And in the eighteenth year of his reign, when he had purified the land and the house; he sent Shaphan son of Azaliah and Maaseiah the ruler of the city and Joah son of Joaz the recorder, to repair the house of Yahweh his God. So they went in unto Hilkiah the high priest, and delivered the silver that had been brought into the house of God, which the Levites who kept the entrance-hall had collected from the hand of Manasseh, and Ephraim, and from all the remnant of Israel, and from all Judah and Benjamin,—and returned to Jerusalem.

And the overseers in the house of Yahweh [delivered it into the hand of the doer of the work];—yea they delivered it to the doers of the work, because they were working in the house of Yahweh, in searching and repairing the house; yea they delivered it to the artificers and to the builders, to buy carved stones and timbers for the joinings,—and to build up the houses which the kings of Judah had destroyed. Now [the men] were working faithfully in the work, and over them as overseers, were—Jahath and Obadiah, Levites, of the sons of Merari, and Zechariah and Meshullam, of the sons of the Kohathites, to preside,—and Levites, all who had understanding in instruments of song; also over the burden-bearers, and such as took the lead, for everyone who was working in any manner of service,—and of the Levites were scribes and officers and doorkeepers.

Now as they were taking out the silver which had been brought into the house of Yahweh Hilkiah the priest found the Book of the Law of Yahweh, by the hand of Moses. Then spake Hilkiah, and said unto Shaphan the scribe, <The Book of the Law> have I found, in the house of Yahweh,—and Hilkiah gave the book unto Shaphan.

Then Shaphan took in the book unto the king, and returned yet further unto the king a message, saying,—

<All that was delivered into the hand of thy servants> they' are doing; and they have poured out the silver that was found in the house of Yahweh, and have delivered it into the hand of the overseers, and into the hand of the doers of the work.

Then Shaphan the scribe told the king, saying, <A book> hath Hilkiah the priest given to me. And Shaphan [read therein] before the king.

And it came to pass when the king heard the words of the law that he rent his clothes.

Then did the king command Hilkiah—and Ahikam son of Shaphan—and Abdon son of Micah—and Shaphan the scribe—and Asaiah servant of the king, saying:

Go, enquire of Yahweh for me, and for the remnant in Israel and in Judah, concerning the words of the book which hath been found,—for great is the wrath of Yahweh which hath been poured out upon us, because our fathers

II CHRONICLES – Chapter 35.

1 And Josiah kept, in Jerusalem, a passover unto Yahweh,—and they slaughtered the passover, on the fourteenth of the first month. 2 And he set the priests over their charges,—and encouraged them unto the service of the house of Yahweh,; and said to the Levites who gave instruction to all Israel as to the things which were hallowed unto Yahweh, Put the holy ark in the house which Solomon son of David king of Israel did build, it is not yours as a burden on the shoulder,—

||Now|| serve ye Yahweh your God, and his people Israel; and prepare yourselves by your ancestral houses, according to your courses,—by the writing of David king of Israel, and by what hath been written by Solomon his son; and stand ye in the holy place, by the divisions of the ancestral house, for your brethren, the sons of the people, and the partitioning of an ancestral house, for the Levites.

6 So slaughter ye the passover,—and hallow yourselves, and prepare for your brethren, that in their ears, all the words of the book of the covenant, which had been found in the house of Yahweh.

31 And the king stood in his place, and solemnised the covenant before Yahweh, to walk after Yahweh, and to keep his commandments and his testimonies and his statutes, with all his heart and with all his soul,—to perform the words of the covenant that are written in this book. 32 And he caused to take a stand, all that were present in Jerusalem, and Benjamin,—and the inhabitants of Jerusalem did according to the covenant of God, the God of their fathers. 33 And Josiah removed all the abominations, out of all the lands which belonged to the sons of Israel, and caused all that were present in Jerusalem to serve, ||yea to serve|| Yahweh their God,—<all his days> turned they not aside from following Yahweh, God of their fathers.

|kept not| the word of Yahweh, to do according to all that is written in this book.

22 So Hilkiah and they whom the king had named went into Huldah the prophetess, wife of Shallum son of Tokhath son of Hasrah keeper of the wardrobe, [she] having her dwelling in Jerusalem, in the new city,—and they spake unto her accordingly. 23 And she said unto them, ||Thus|| saith Yahweh God of Israel,—Say ye unto the man who hath sent you unto me:

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
Behold me bringing in calamity upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof,—even all the curses that are written in the book which they have read before the king of Judah:

<Because they have forsaken me, and burned incense unto other gods, so as to provoke me to anger, with all the works of their hands> therefore hath my wrath been poured out upon this place, and shall not be quenched.

26 But <unto the king of Judah, who hath sent you to enquire of Yahweh> ||thus|| shall ye say unto him,—

||Thus|| saith Yahweh God of Israel, As touching the words which thou hast heard: 27 <Because tender was thy heart, and thou didst humble thyself before God when thou hearest his words against this place and against the inhabitants thereof, and didst humble thyself before me, and didst rend thy clothes and weep before me> therefore ||also|| have heard, Is the declaration of Yahweh.

28 Behold me! gathering thee unto thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered unto thy sepulchres in peace, and thine eyes shall not look upon all the calamity which ||I|| am bringing in upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof.

And they returned, unto the king, the message.

29 Then the king sent,—and gathered together all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem. 30 And the king went up to the house of Yahweh—and all the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem—and the priests and the Levites, and all the people, from the great even unto the small,—and he read in their ears, all the words of the book of the covenant, which had been found in the house of Yahweh.

31 And the king stood in his place, and solemnised the covenant before Yahweh, to walk after Yahweh, and to keep his commandments and his testimonies and his statutes, with all his heart and with all his soul,—to perform the words of the covenant that are written in this book. 32 And he caused to take a stand, all that were present in Jerusalem, and Benjamin,—and the inhabitants of Jerusalem did according to the covenant of God, the God of their fathers. 33 And Josiah removed all the abominations, out of all the lands which belonged to the sons of Israel, and caused all that were present in Jerusalem to serve, ||yea to serve|| Yahweh their God,—<all his days> turned they not aside from following Yahweh, God of their fathers.

1 And Josiah kept, in Jerusalem, a passover unto Yahweh,—and they slaughtered the passover, on the fourteenth of the first month. 2 And he set the priests over their charges,—and encouraged them unto the service of the house of Yahweh,; and said to the Levites who gave instruction to all Israel as to the things which were hallowed unto Yahweh, Put the holy ark in the house which Solomon son of David king of Israel did build, it is not yours as a burden on the shoulder,—

||Now|| serve ye Yahweh your God, and his people Israel; and prepare yourselves by your ancestral houses, according to your courses,—by the writing of David king of Israel, and by what hath been written by Solomon his son; and stand ye in the holy place, by the divisions of the ancestral house, for your brethren, the sons of the people, and the partitioning of an ancestral house, for the Levites.

6 So slaughter ye the passover,—and hallow yourselves, and prepare for your brethren, that they may do according to the word of Yahweh, by the hand of Moses.

7 And Josiah presented to the sons of the people—<of flocks> young sheep and the young of the goats, the whole for the passover offerings, for all present, to the number of thirty thousand, and <of bullocks> three thousand,—[these] out of the substance of the king. ⁸ And [his rulers] willingly <to the people and to the priests and to the Levites> presented,—[[Hilkiah and Zechariah and Jehiel, chief rulers of the house of God]], <unto the priests> did give [for passover offerings] two thousand and six hundred, and <of bullocks> three hundred; ⁹ and [Conaniah, and Shemariah and Nethanel his brethren, and Hashabiah and Jeiel and Joazabad, rulers of the Levites]] presented to the Levites [for passover offerings] five thousand, and <of bullocks> five hundred.

10 Thus was the service prepared,—and the priests stood in their place, and the Levites in their courses, according to the commandment of the king. ¹¹ So they slaughtered the passover, and the priests dashed [the blood received] at their hand, and the Levites were flaying [the offerings]. ¹² Then they removed the ascending-sacrifice, that they might give them—by the divisions of each ancestral house—unto the sons of the people, to offer unto Yahweh, as it is written in the Book of Moses,—and <in like manner> with the bullocks. ¹³ And they cooked the passover with fire, according to the regulation,—but <the hallowed things> cooked they in cauldrons and in pots and in bowls, and then took quickly, unto all the sons of the people. ¹⁴ And <afterwards> prepared they for themselves and for the priests, because [[the priests, the sons of Aaron]] had been engaged in offering up the ascending-sacrifice and the fat pieces, until night,—[[the Levites]] therefore prepared for themselves, and for the priests, the sons of Aaron. ¹⁵ [[The singers also, the sons of Asaph]] were in their place, according to the commandment of David, and Asaph, and Heman, and Jeduthun the seer of the king, and [[the doorkeepers]] were at the several doors,—there was no need' for them' to remove from their service, for [[their brethren the Levites]] prepared for them.

16 Thus was all the service of Yahweh prepared on that day; to keep the passover, and to offer up the ascending-sacrifice, upon the altar of Yahweh,—according to the commandment of King Josiah. ¹⁷ So the sons of Israel who were present kept the passover at that time,—and the festival of unleavened cakes, seven days. ¹⁸ And there had not been kept, a passover like it, in Israel, since the days of Samuel the prophet,—yea [[none of the kings of Israel]] had kept such a passover as was kept by Josiah and the priests and the Levites and all Judah and Israel that were present, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. ¹⁹ <In the eighteenth year of the reign of Josiah> was kept this passover. ²⁰ <After all this>—when Josiah had prepared the house> Neco king of Egypt came up,—to fight against Carchemish, by Euphrates, and Josiah went forth against him. ²¹ But he sent unto him messengers, saying—

What have I to do with thee, O king of Judah? <not against thee> [have I come] this day, but against the house wherewith I have war, and [[God]] hath given word to speed me,—cease thou from [provoking] God who is with me, lest he destroy thee.

And <them who had familiar spirits, and the wizards, and the household gods, and the things of nought, and the abominations, which were in the land of Judah and in Jerusalem> did King Josiah consume,—that he might confirm the words of the law which were written in the book which Hilkiah the priest had found in the house of Yahweh. <Like him> was none before him, who turned unto Yahweh with all his heart, and with all his soul, and with all his might, according to all the law of Moses, neither <after him> arose one like him. ||Howbeit|| Yahweh, turned not away from the glow of his great anger, wherewith the anger of Yahweh gloved against Judah, because of all the provocations wherewith Manasseh had provoked him. So Yahweh said:

<Even Judah> will I remove from my presence, as I have removed Israel; and will reject the city, which I had chosen even Jerusalem, and the house as to which I had said—

9 <Eight years old> was Jehoiachin when he began to reign, and <three months and ten days> reigned he in Jerusalem, and he did the thing that was wicked in the eyes of Yahweh;

10 and <when the year came round> King Nebuchadnezzar sent, and carried him to Babylon,—with the precious utensils of the house of Yahweh,—and made Zedekiah his brother king over Judah and Jerusalem.

11 <Twenty-one years old> was Zedekiah when he began to reign,—and <eleven years> reigned he in Jerusalem.

12 And he did the thing that was wicked in the eyes of Yahweh his God,—he humbled not himself before Jeremiah the prophet, from the mouth of Yahweh.

13 Moreover also <against King Nebuchadnezzar> he rebelled, who had made him swear by God,—and he stiffened his neck, and emboldened his heart, from turning unto Yahweh, God of Israel.

14 Also ||all the rulers of the priests and of the people|| abounded in committing treachery, according to all the abominable ways of the nations,—and polluted the house of Yahweh, which he had hallowed in Jerusalem. 15 And <though Yahweh God of their fathers sent unto them through his messengers, zealously sending them,—because he had compassion upon his people and upon his habitation> yet became they mockers of the messengers of God, and despisers of his words, and mimics of his prophets,—until the mounting up of the wrath of Yahweh against his people, until there was no healing. 17 So he brought up against them the king of the Chaldeans, who slew their young men with the sword, in the house of their sanctuary, and had no compassion upon young man or virgin, elder or ancient,—<all> delivered he into his hand. 18 And <all the utensils of the house of God, both great and small, and the treasures of the house of Yahweh, and the treasures of the king and of his rulers> ||the whole|| carried he to Babylon;

19 and they burned the house of God, and threw down the wall of Jerusalem,—and <all the palaces thereof> burned they with fire, and <all the precious vessels thereof> he destroyed;

20 and he exiled the remnant left from the sword, into Babylon,—where they became his and his sons, as servants, until the reign of the kingdom of Persia:

21 to fulfil the word of God, by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had paid off her sabbaths,—<all the days of her lying desolate> she kept sabbath, to fulfil seventy years.

22 But <in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, to accomplish the word of God by the mouth of Jeremiah> Yahweh aroused the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, so that he made proclamation throughout all his kingdom, moreover also in writing, saying:

23 ||Thus|| saith Cyrus king of Persia, <All the kingdoms of the earth> hath Yahweh God of the heavens |given unto me, and ||the himself|| hath laid charge upon me, to build to him a house, in Jerusalem, which is in Judah.

§ 1. Edict of Cyrus encouraging Jews to return and build their Temple in Jerusalem.

Chapter 1.

1 <In the first year of Cyrus, king of Persia, to fulfil the word of Yahweh from the mouth of Jeremiah> Yahweh aroused the spirit of Cyrus, king of Persia, and he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, moreover also in writing, saying:

2 ||Thus saith Cyrus, king of Persia, <All the kingdoms of the earth> hath Yahweh God of the heavens |given to me|,—and ||he himself|| hath laid charge upon me, to build for him a house, in Jerusalem, which is in Judah.

3 Who is there among you of all his people? His God be with him, a and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah,—and build the house of Yahweh God of Israel, (||he|| is God!) which is in Jerusalem;

4 And <whosoever is left, of all the places where he doth sojourn> let the men of his place uphold him, with silver and with gold, and with goods and with beasts,—along with a voluntary offering for the house of God, which is in Jerusalem.

5 Then arose the ancestral chiefs of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests, and the Levites,—even every one whose spirit God had aroused, to go up to build the house of Yahweh, which was in Jerusalem; 6 and ||all they who were round about them|| strengthened their hands, with utensils of silver, with gold, with goods and with beasts, and with precious things,—besides any thing he had volunteered. 7 And ||King Cyrus|| brought forth the utensils of the house of Yahweh,—which Nebuchadnezzar had brought forth from Jerusalem, and put in the house of his gods:

2 Then arose—Jeshua son of Jozadak and his brethren the priests, and Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and his brethren, and built the altar of the God of Israel,—to offer thereon ascending-sacrifices, as it was written in the law of Moses, the man of God. 3 So they settled the altar upon its stands, for [dread] was upon them, b because of the peoples of the countries,—therefore caused they to go up thereon, ascending-sacrifices unto Yahweh, ascending-sacrifices for the morning and for the evening. 4 And they kept the festival of booths, as it was written,—and the ascending-offering of each day upon its own day, by number, according to regulation, the matter of a day upon its day; 5 and <afterwards> the continual ascending-sacrifice, and <on the new moons, and on all the appointed seasons of Yahweh> the hallowed things,—also for every one that volunteered a voluntary offering unto Yahweh. 6 <From the first day of the seventh month> began they to offer up ascending-sacrifices unto Yahweh,—but [the temple of Yahweh] had not had its foundation laid. 7 And they gave silver, unto the masons and carpenters,—and food and drink and oil, unto them of Zidon and unto them of Tyre, to bring in cedar-trees out of the Lebanon, unto the sea of Joppa, l according to the grant of Cyrus king of Persia unto them.

8 Now <in the second year of their coming in unto the house of God, to Jerusalem, in the second month> began Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and Jeshua son of Jozadak and the rest of their brethren—the priests and the Levites, and all that were come out of the captivity to Jerusalem, and stationed the Levites, of twenty years old and upwards, to preside over the work of the house of Yahweh.

9 So they took their station—even Jeshua, his sons and his brethren, Kadmiel and his sons, sons of Judah, l as one man to preside over the doer m of the work in the house of God, the sons of Henadad, their sons and their brethren, the Levites.

Chapter 4.

1 Now [when the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin heard]—that [the Sons of the Exile] were building the temple, unto Yahweh, God of Israel—

2 then drew they near unto Zerubbabel, and unto the ancestral chiefs, and said unto them,

Let us build with you, for [like you] we seek your God, and [unto him] have [well] been sacrificing since the days of Esar-haddon, king of Assyria, who brought us up hither.

3 But Zerubbabel and Joshua and the rest of the ancestral chiefs of Israel, [said unto them],

<It pertaineth not to you and to us [in common]> to build a house unto our God,—but [we] ourselves together] will build unto Yahweh, God of Israel, even as King Cyrus, king of Persia, [hath commanded us].

4 Then came it to pass, that [the people of the land] were weakening the hands of the people of Judah,—and troubling them in building;

5 and hiring against them counselors, to overturn their purpose,—all the days of Cyrus, king of Persia, even until the reign of Darius, king of Persia. And [in the reign of Ahasuerus, in the beginning of his reign] wrote they an accusation, against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem. And [in the days of Artaxerxes] wrote Bishlam, Mithredath, Tabeel, and the rest of his associates, unto Artaxerxes, king of Persia,—and [the writing of the letter] was written in Aramean, and was to be interpreted as Aramean.

8 [Rehum holder of judicial authority, and Shimshai the scribe] wrote a certain letter against Jerusalem,—to Artaxerxes the king, thus: [9 Then Rehum holder of judicial authority, and Shimshai the scribe, and the rest of their associates,—the Dinaites and the Apharsathchites, the Tarpelites, the Apharsites, the Archevites, the Babylonians, the Shushanchites, the Dehaites, the Elamites; and the rest of the peoples, whom the great and noble Osnappar hath exiled, and set in the city of Samaria,—and the rest Beyond the River, and so forth: [11 [This]] is a copy of the letter which they sent unto him,—unto Artaxerxes the king,—

Thy servants, the men Beyond the River and so forth:

12 Be it known unto the king,—that [the Jews who came up from thee unto us] are come to Jerusalem,—<the rebellious and wicked city> are they building, and <the walls> have they finished, and <the foundations> will they repair.

13 Now be it known to the king, that <if this city> be built, and <the walls thereof> be finished> neither <tribute, excise, nor toll> will they render, and so <the revenue of the kings> shalt thou damage.
Now <because the salt of the palace we have eaten> <the impoverishment of the king> it is not meet for us to see,—therefore’ have we sent, and certified the king; 15 so that search may be made in the book of the records of thy fathers, so shalt thou find out in the book of records—and shalt ascertain, that ||this city|| is a rebellious city, and one that causeth damage unto kings and provinces, and that <rebellion> have they been wont to cause in the midst thereof since the days of age-past time,—<for this cause> was this city laid waste.

We do certify the king that <if this city> be built, and [the walls thereof] finished> ||for that very reason|| <portion Beyond the River> shalt thou have none.

The king sent ||a message|| unto Rehum holder of judicial authority, and Shimshai the scribe, and the rest of their associates, who were dwelling in Samaria, and the rest Beyond the River, Peace, and so forth.

||The letter which ye sent unto us|| was distinctly read before me;

And <from me> went forth an edict, and they have made search and found, that ||this city|| <since the days of age-past time> <against kings> hath lifted herself up,—and ||seditious and rebellion|| have been made therein; 20 and ||mighty kings|| have there been over Jerusalem, and bearing rule everywhere Beyond the River,—and ||tribute, excise, and toll|| have been given to them.

||Now|| issue ye an edict, to forbid these men,—that ||this city|| be not built, until <from me> the edict be issued.

Beware, then, of failure to do thus,—wherefore should the damage increase, to inflict loss on the kings?

Then <when ||the copy of the letter of Artaxerxes the king|| had been read before Rehum, and Shimshai the scribe, and their associates> they journeyed in haste to Jerusalem, unto the Jews, and forbade them, with arm and force. 24 Then’ ceased the work of the house of God, which was in Jerusalem,—yea it did cease, until the second year of the reign of Darius king of Persia.

§ 5. Prophets encourage the Builders; and Pasha Tattenai writes to King Darius, who confirms the Edict of Cyrus. The Temple finished.

Chapter 5.

1 Then were moved to prophesy, Haggai the prophet, and Zechariah son of Iddo, the prophets, unto the Jews who were in Judæa and in Jerusalem,—in the name of the God of Israel, unto them. 2 Then’ arose—Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Jeshua son of Jozadak, and began to build the house of God, which was in Jerusalem,—and <with them> were the prophets of God, strengthening them.

3 <At that time> came unto them Tattenai pasha Beyond the River, and Shethar-bozenai, and their associates,—and <thus> spake they unto them, Who hath issued unto you an edict, <this house> to build, and <this wall> to complete?

4 Then’ <after this manner> spake we unto them,—What are <the names of these men, who <this building> do rear?>

5 Nevertheless ||the eye of their God|| was upon the elders of Judah, and they did not forbid them, until ||the matter|| <unto Darius> should come,—and <then> answer be returned by letter, concerning this.

6 A copy of the letter which Tattenai pasha Beyond the River, and Shethar-bozenai, and his associates,|| the Apharsachites, who were Beyond the River, sent unto Darius the king: 7  sent they unto him,—and <thus> was it written therein, <Unto Darius the king> all prosperity!

8 Be it known’ unto the king, that we journeyed into the province of Judah, unto the house of the Great God, and ||the same|| is being built with large stones, and ||timber|| is being laid in the walls,—and ||this work|| <with speed> is being done, and is prospering in their hands.

9 Then’ asked we of these elders, <thus> we said to them,—Who hath issued to you an edict <this house> to build, and <this wall> to complete?

10 Yea <their names also> asked we of them, to certify thee,—that we might write the name, of the men who are at their head.

And <thus> returned they [answer] to us, saying,—

||We|| are servants of the God of the heavens and the earth, and are building the house which was built these many years ago, which ||a great king of Israel|| built and completed.

But <after that our fathers had provoked the God of the heavens to wrath> he delivered them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, the Chaldean,—and <this house> he destroyed, and <the people> he exiled to Babylon.

Howbeit <in the first year of Cyrus king of Babylon> ||Cyrus the king|| issued an edict <this house of God> to build.

Moreover also <the utensils of the house of God, of gold and silver, which ||Nebuchadnezzar|| had brought forth out of the temple which was in Jerusalem, and had brought into the temple of Babylon> Cyrus the king [brought them forth] out of the temple of Babylon, and they were delivered to one Sheshbazzar by name, whom he made, [pasha]a, and said to him—

<These utensils> take, go carry them into the temple that is in Jerusalem,—and let ||the house of God|| be built in its place.

Then' ||this Sheshbazzar|| came, he laid the foundations of the house of God, which was in Jerusalem,—and <since then, even until now> it hath been in building, and is not finished.

||Now|| therefore, <if unto the king> it seem good> let search be made in the treasure-house of the king which is there, in Babylon, whether it be so, that <from Cyrus the king> issued an edict, to build this house of God, in Jerusalem,—and <the pleasure of the king concerning this> let him send unto us.

Chapter 6.

1 Then' ||Darius the king|| issued an edict,—and they made search in the house of the books, where the treasures were laid up in Babylon.

2 And there was found in Achmetha, in the fortress which is in the province of Media, a roll,—and <thus> was it written therein, as a record:—

3 In the first year of Cyrus the king> ||Cyrus the king|| issued an edict, as to the house of God in Jerusalem,

Let the house be built, the place where they used to offer sacrifices, and let the foundations thereof be reared,—[the height thereof] sixty cubits, [the breadth thereof] sixty cubits; 4 layers of large stones, three, and oneb layer of new timber,—and <as for the expenses> <out of the house of the king> let them be given.

Moreover also <the utensils of the house of God, of gold and silver, which ||Nebuchadnezzar|| took forth out of the temple that was in Jerusalem, and brought unto Babylon> let them again' be taken to the temple which is in Jerusalem, every one to its place, and lay them up in the house of God.

6 [Now] therefore, Tattenai pasha Beyond the River, Shethar-bozenai, and their associates, the Apharsachites, who are Beyond the River,—be ye far' from thence: 7 let alone the work of this house of God,—||the pasha of Judah, and the elders of Judah|| <this house of God> shall build upon its place;

And <from me> is issued an edict, as to that which ye shall do, with these elders of Judah, for the building of this house of God,—

That <of the resources of the king, even the tribute Beyond the River> [forthwith] the expenses be given unto these men, for they must not be hindered.

And whatever may be the need—whether young bullocks or rams or lambs for ascending-sacrifices unto the God of the heavens, wheat, salt, wine or oil, according to the command of the priests who are in Jerusalem—<that it be given to them, day by day, without fail; > that they may be offering sweet-smelling sacrifices unto the God of the heavens,—and be praying for the life of the king, and his sons.

And <from me> is issued an edict, that <any man who shall alter this message> let timber be torn out of his house, and being lifted up let him be fastened thereunto,—and his house  be made for this; 12 and ||the God who hath caused his Name to dwell there|| destroy any king or people, who shall put forth their hand to alter to destroy this house of God, which is in Jerusalem.

Then did the sons of Israel, the priests and the Levites, and the rest of the Sons of the Exile, keep the dedication of this house of God, with joy; and offered, for the dedication of this house of God, bullocks one hundred, rams two hundred, lambs four hundred, and he-goats as a sin-offering for all Israel twelve, according to the number of the tribes of Israel. And they set up the priests in their divisions, and the Levites in their courses, over the service of God, which was in Jerusalem,—as it is written, in the Book of Moses.

And the Sons of the Exile kept the passover,—on the fourteenth of the first month; for the priests and the Levites and the singers and the doorkeepers and the Nethinim, unto Jerusalem,—in the seventh year of Artaxerxes the king. And he entered Jerusalem, in the fifth month,—the same was the seventh year of the king. For on the first month was a beginning made of coming up from Babylon,—and on the first day of the fifth month he entered into Jerusalem, according to the good hand of his God upon him. For ||[this]|| was a copy of the letter which King Artaxerxes gave, to Ezra the priest the scribe,—the scribe of the words of the commandments of Yahweh, and of his statutes, for Israel:—

12 ||[Artaxerxes, king of kings]|| Unto Ezra the priest, scribe of the law of the God of the heavens—To despatch and so forth.

13 Then Tattenai the pasha Beyond the River, Shethar-bozenai, and their associates, as—<according as Darius the king had sent> ||[so, forthwith]|| they did.

§ 7. Ezra is empowered by a Letter from Artaxerxes to visit Jerusalem.

Chapter 7.

Now <after these things, in the reign of Artaxerxes king of Persia>||[Ezra]||—son of Seraiah, son of Azariah, son of Hilkiiah;

2 son of Shallum, son of Zadok, son of Ahitub,

3 son of Amariah, son of Azariah, son of Merioth;

4 son of Zerahiah, son of Uzzi, son of Bukki;

5 son of Abishua, son of Phinehas, son of Eliazar, son of Aaron the first priest;—

6 ||[this]|| came up out of Babylon, ||[he]|| being a ready scribe in the law of Moses, which Yahweh had given,—and the king gave him, according to the hand of Yahweh his God upon him, all his request.

So then there came up some of the sons of Israel, and some of the priests and the Levites and the singers and the doorkeepers and the Nethinim, unto Jerusalem,—in the seventh year of Artaxerxes the king. And he entered Jerusalem, in the fifth month,—the same was the seventh year of the king. For <on the first of the first month> was a beginning made of coming up from Babylon,—and <on the first of the fifth month> entered he into Jerusalem, according to the good hand of his God upon him. For ||[Ezra]|| had settled his heart, to study the law of Yahweh, and to do [it],—and to teach in Israel, statute and regulation.

11 Now ||[this]|| is a copy of the letter which King Artaxerxes gave, to Ezra the priest the scribe,—the scribe of the words of the commandments of Yahweh, and of his statutes, for Israel:—

12 ||[Artaxerxes, king of kings]|| Unto Ezra the priest, scribe of the law of the God of the heavens—To despatch and so forth.
<From me> is issued an edict, that <every one in my kingdom, of the people of Israel, and of their priests and the Levites, who is minded of his own freewill to go to Jerusalem> ||with thee|| let him go.

And <forasmuch as |from before the king and his seven counselors| thou art sent, to enquire concerning Judah and as to Jerusalem,—by the law of thy God which is in thy hand; 15 and to carry the silver and gold which the king and his counselors have freely offered unto the God of Israel, who |in Jerusalem| hath his habitation; and all the silver and the gold, which thou shalt find, in all the province of Babylon,—with the freewill offering of the people and of the priests offered willingly for the house of their God which is in Jerusalem> ||therefore| <with all diligence> shalt thou buy,—with this silver—bullocks, rams, lambs, with their meal-offerings, and their drink-offerings,—and shalt offer them upon the altar of the house of your God which is in Jerusalem; 18 and <whatsoever unto thee and unto thy brethren| shall seem good |with the rest of the silver and the gold> to do> |according to the pleasure of your God| shall ye do.

And <the utensils which are freely given to thee for the service of the house of thy God> put thou back, before the God of Jerusalem.

And <the rest of the need of the house of thy God, which it shall fall to thee to give> thou shalt give, out of the treasure-house of the king.

And ||from me myself, Artaxerxes the king|| issueth an edict, to all the treasurers who are Beyond the River,—that <whatsoever Ezra the priest the scribe of the law of the God of the heavens shall ask’ of you> |with diligence| shall it be done: 22 unto a hundred talents of silver, and unto a hundred measures of wheat, and unto a hundred baths of wine, and unto a hundred baths of oil,—and salt without limit.

<Whatsoever is due to an edict of the God of the heavens> let it be done diligently, for the house of the God of the heavens,—for wherefore should there be wrath against the realm of the king and his sons?

And <you> we do certify, that <as touching any of the priests or the Levites, the singers, the doorkeepers, the Nethinim, or the servitors of this house of God> |tribute, excise or toll> shall it not be competent to impose upon them.

And ||thou, Ezra|| <according to the wisdom of thy God that is in thy hand> appoint thou judges and magistrates, who shall administer justice to all the people that are Beyond the River, to all who know the law of thy God,—and <whoso knoweth not> ye shall teach.

But <whosoever shall not do the law of thy God and the law of the king> ||speedily|| let </penalty> be exactly from him,—whether to death, or to banishment, or to confiscation of goods, or to imprisonment.

Blessed’ be Yahweh, God of our fathers,—who hath put the like of this into the heart of the king, to beautify the house of Yahweh, which is in Jerusalem; 28 and <unto me> hath extended lovingkindness, before the king and his counselors, yea all the valiant captains of the king,—||II|| therefore have emboldened myself, according to the hand of Yahweh my God upon me, and gathered out of Israel, chief men, to go up with me.

Chapter 8.

1 Now ||these|| are their ancestral heads, and their genealogical register,—even of those who came up with me, in the reign of Artaxerxes the king, out of Babylon:—

2 <Of the sons of Phinehas> Gershom,
<Of the sons of Ithamar> Daniel,—
<Of the sons of David> Hattush;

3 Of the sons of Shecaniah, <of the sons of Parosh> Zechariah,—and <with him>—by genealogical registry of males> a hundred and fifty:

4 <Of the sons of Pahath-moab> Eliehoenai, son of Zerahiah,—and <with him> two hundred males;

5 <Of the sons of Zattu> Shecaniah, the son of Jehaziël,—and <with him> three hundred males;
6 And <of the sons of Adin> Ebed, son of Jonathân,—and <with him> fifty males;
7 And <of the sons of Elam> Jeshaiah, son of Athaliah,—and <with him> seventy males;
8 And <of the sons of Shephatiah> Zebadiah, son of Michael,—and <with him> eighty males;
9 <Of the sons of Joab> Obadiah, son of Jehiel, and <with him> two hundred and eighteen males;
10 And <of the sons of Bani> Shelomith, son of Josiphiah,—and <with him> a hundred and sixty males;
11 And <of the sons of Bebai> Zechariah, son of Bebai, and <with him> twenty-eight males;
12 And <of the sons of Azgad> Johanan, son of Hakkatán,—and <with him> a hundred and ten males;
13 And <of the later sons of Adonikam> these being their names, Eliphelet, Jeuel, and Shemaiah,—and <with them> sixty males;
14 And <of the sons of Bigvai> Uthai and Zabbud,—and <with him> seventy males.
15 And I gathered them together unto the river that cometh into Ahava, and we encamped there three days,—and I informed myself among the people and the priests, and <of the sons of Levi> found I none there. 16 So I sent for Eliezer, for Ariel, for Shemaiah, and for Elnathan, and for Jarib, and for Elnathan, and for Nathan, and for Zechariah, and for Meshullam, chief men,—also for Joiarib and for Elnathan, teachers. 17 And I sent them forth unto Iddo the chief, at the place Casiphia,—and I put into their mouth words, to speak unto Iddo and his brethren the Nethinim, at the place Casiphia, to bring unto us attendants for the house of our God. 18 So they brought unto us, according to the good hand of our God upon us, a man of discretion, of the sons of Mahli, son of Levi, son of Israel,—and Sherebiah, and his sons and his brethren, eighteen; 19 and Hashabiah, and <with him> Jeshaiah, of the sons of Merari,—his brethren and their sons, twenty; 20 and <of the Nethinim> whom David and the rulers had given for the service of the Levites—||Nethinim|| two hundred and twenty,—||all of them|| expressed by name.

21 Then proclaimed I there a fast, by the river Ahava, that we might humble ourselves before our God,—to seek of him a smooth way, for us and for our little ones, and for all our substance.
22 For I was ashamed to ask of the king a band of soldiers and horsemen, to help us against the enemy in the way, because we had spoken unto the king, saying, ||The hand of our God|| is upon all who seek him, for good,
But ||his power and his anger|| are against all who forsake him.
23 So we fasted and sought of our God, concerning this,—and he suffered himself to be entreated by us. 24 Then I separated from among the rulers of the priests, twelve,—even Sherebiah, Hashabiah, and <with them> from among their brethren> ten; 25 and weighed unto them, the silver and the gold, and the utensils,—the heave-offering for the house of our God, which the king and his counselors and his rulers and all Israel who were present, had offered: 26 I even weighed unto their hand, <of silver> six hundred and fifty talents, and <of utensils of silver> a hundred talents,—<of gold> a hundred talents; 27 and <bowls> of gold twenty, of a thousand darts,—and <of utensils of fine bright bronze> two, precious as gold. 28 Then said I unto them,
||Ye|| are hallowed unto Yahweh, and ||the utensils|| are hallowed,—and ||the silver and the gold|| are a freewill offering, unto Yahweh, God of your fathers:

Watch and guard, until ye weigh [them] before the rulers of the priests and the Levites and the ancestral rulers of Israel, in Jerusalem,—in the chambers of the house of Yahweh.

So the priests and the Levites accepted the weight of the silver and the gold, and the utensils,—to bring to Jerusalem, unto the house of our God.

Then brake we up from the river of Ahava, on the twelfth of the first month, to journey unto Jerusalem,—and [the hand of our God] was upon us, and he delivered us from the grasp of the enemy and of the liar in wait, by the way.

So we came to Jerusalem,—and we rested there, three days. And <on the fourth day> was weighed—the silver and the gold and the utensils, in the house of our God, unto the hand of Meremoth son of Uriah, the priest, and <with him> was Eleazar son of Phinehas,—and <with them> were Jozabad son of Jeshua and Noadiah son of Binnui, Levites: by the number and by the weight of the whole,—and all the weight, was written down, at that time.

||They who came in out of the captivity, Sons of the Exile||, offered as ascending-sacrifices unto the God of Israel—bullocks twelve for all Israel, rams' ninety-six, young sheep' seventy-seven, he-goats for bearing sin, twelve,—||the whole|| as an ascending-sacrifice unto Yahweh.

Then delivered they the decrees of the king, unto the satraps of the king, and the pashas Beyond the River,—and they upheld the people and the house of God.

§ 9. Ezra, informed of Jewish Marriages with Foreign Women, is stunned—and prays.

Chapter 9.

Now <when these things were ended> the rulers drew near unto me, saying,
The people of Israel and the priests and the Levites have not kept themselves separate from the peoples of the lands,—in view of their abominations—even of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Ammonites, the Moabites, the Egyptians, and the Amorites; for they have taken of their daughters, for themselves and for their sons, so that the holy seed have intermingled themselves among the peoples of the lands,—and [the hand of the rulers and the deputes|| hath, in this unfaithfulness, been [foremost]].

<When I heard this thing> I rent my garment, and my robe,—and tore out of the hair of my head and my beard, and sat stunned.

Then <unto me> were gathered, all who trembled at the words of the God of Israel, concerning the unfaithfulness of them who had been exiled,—but [I] sat stunned, until the evening gift. And <at the evening gift> I arose from mine affliction, which had been accompanied by the rending of my garment and my robe,—and I bowed upon my knees, and spread forth my hands unto Yahweh my God; and said,

O my God, I turn pale and am ashamed, to lift up, O my God, my face unto thee,—for [our iniquities] have multiplied above the head, and our guilt hath magnified itself unto the heavens.

<Since the days of our fathers> [we] have been in great guilt, until this day,—and <for our iniquities> have we been given up—[we], our kings, our priests,—into the hand of the kings of the lands, by sword and by captivity and by spoiling and by a turning pale of face, as at this day.

And [now] <for a very little moment> hath come favour from Yahweh our God, in leaving to us a remnant to escape, and in giving to us a nail in his holy place,—that our God may enlighten our eyes, and give us a little reviving in our bondage.

For <bondmen> we are', but <in our bondage> hath our God not forsaken us,—but extended unto us lovingkindness before the kings of Persia, to give us a reviving, to set up on high the house of our God, to raise up the desolations thereof, and to give us a wall in Judah and in Jerusalem.

But [now] what can we say, O our God, after this? for we have forsaken thy commandments, which thou didst command by the hand of thy servants the prophets, saying,

<As for the land which [ye] are entering to possess> [an impure land] it is', with the...
impurity of the peoples of the lands,—with their abominations, which have filled it from one end to the other, with their uncleanness.

12 ||Now|| therefore, <your daughters> do not ye give to their sons, and <their daughters> do not ye take for your sons, neither shall ye seek their prosperity nor their pleasure, unto times age-abiding,—to the end ye may become strong, and may eat the good of the land, and may suffer your children to possess it, unto times age-abiding.

13 And after all that hath come upon us, for our wicked doings, and for our great guilt—

For ||thou|| O our God, hast spared us, punishing us less than our iniquities deserved, and hast given us a deliverance such as this:

14 <should we again' break thy commandments and join ourselves by affinity of marriage with the peoples of these abominations>—wouldst thou not be angry with us, unto a full end, that there should be neither remainder nor deliverance?

15 O Yahweh, God of Israel, righteous' thou art', for we have had left us a deliverance as at this day,—[here we are] before thee, in our guilty deeds, for there is no' standing before thee, because of this thing!

§ 10. The Offenders sorrowfully consenting, Divorce Judges are appointed. A Record of the Guilty Individuals.

Chapter 10.

1 Now <when Ezra had prayed and when he had made confession, weeping and casting himself down, before the house of God> there gathered unto him out of Israel, an exceeding large convocation—men and women and children, for the people wept with a very bitter weeping.

2 Then responded Shecaniah son of Jehiel of the sons of Elam, and said unto Ezra,

||We|| have been unfaithful with our God, and have married foreign women from among the peoples of the land,—yet ||now|| there is' hope for Israel concerning this thing.

3 ||Now|| therefore, let us solemnize a covenant unto our God—to put away all the women and such as have been born of them, in the counsel of my lord, and them who tremble at the commandment of our God,—and <according to the law> let it be done.

4 Arise, for <upon thee> resteth the thing, but ||we|| are with thee,—be strong, and act.

5 Then arose Ezra and made the rulers of the priests, the Levites, and all Israel, swear to do according to this word,—and they swared. Then arose Ezra from before the house of God, and went into the chamber of Jehohanan son of Eliashib,—and ||when he came thither|| <bread> did he not eat, and <water> did he not drink, for he was mourning over the unfaithfulness of them of the Exile. Then made they a proclamation throughout Judah and Jerusalem, unto all the Sons of the Exile, to gather themselves together unto Jerusalem; and <whosoever should not come within three days, according to the counsel of the rulers and the elders> all his goods should be devoted,—and ||himself|| be separated from the convocation of them of the Exile.

9 Then were gathered together all the men of Judah and Benjamin unto Jerusalem, within three days, ||the same|| was the ninth month, on the twentieth of the month,—and all the people remained in the broadway of the house of God, trembling concerning the thing, and because of the heavy rains.

10 Then arose Ezra the priest, and said unto them, ||Ye|| have acted unfaithfully, and have married foreign women,—to add unto the guilt of Israel.

11 ||Now|| therefore, make confession unto Yahweh God of your fathers, and do his pleasure,—and separate yourselves from the peoples of the land, and from the foreign women.

12 Then responded all the convocation and said, with a loud voice,—

<Thus, according to thy word' concerning us> must it be done.

15 ||Only Jonathan son of Asahel and Jahzeiah son of Tikvah|| made a stand against this,—and ||Meshullam and Shabbethai the Levite|| helped them.

16 But the Sons of the Exile [did thus], and Ezra the priest separated to himself certain men—ancestral heads by their ancestral houses, and all’ of them by name,—and they took their seats on the first day of the tenth month to search into the matter; 17 and they made an end with all the men who had married foreign women,—by the first day of the first month.

THE BOOK OF NEHEMIAH.

§ 1. Nehemiah’s Permit to visit Jerusalem.

Chapter 1.

1 The story of Nehemiah, son of Hacaliah,—and it came to pass <in the month Chislev, in the twentieth year, when ||I|| was in Shusan the fortress> 2 that Hanani one of my brethren came, ||the and certain men out of Judah||,—so I asked them concerning the Jews who had escaped, who were left of the captivity, and concerning Jerusalem. 3 And they said unto me, ||The remnant who are left of the captivity, there in the province|| are in great misfortune and reproach, ||the wall of Jerusalem|| is broken down, and ||the gates thereof|| are burned with fire.

4 And it came to pass <when I heard these words> that I sat down and wept, and I mourned certain days,—and continued fasting and praying, before the God of the heavens;

5 and said, b

I beseech thee, O Yahweh God of the heavens, the great and fearful God,—keeping the covenant and lovingkindness for them who love him and keep his commandments; c

6 Let, I pray thee, thine ears be attentive and thine eyes open—to hearken unto the prayer of thy servant— which ||I|| am praying before thee now, day and night, for the sons of Israel, thy servants,—and making confession concerning the sins of the sons of Israel, which we have committed against thee, ||both I and the house of my father|| have sinned.

7 We have dealt ||very corruptly|| against thee,—and have not kept the commandments, nor the statutes nor the regulations, which thou didst command Moses thy servant.

8 Remember, I pray thee, the word, which thou didst command Moses thy servant, saying,—

9 <If ye are unfaithful> ||I|| will scatter you among the peoples:

9 <When ye return unto me and keep my commandments and do them> <though it should be that ye have been driven out unto the uttermost part of the heavens> ||from thence|| will I gather them, and bring them into the place that I have chosen to make a habitation for my Name there.

10 ||They|| therefore, are thy servants [and thy people],—whom thou hast redeemed by thy great power, and by thy firm hand.

11 I beseech thee, O My Lord, let—I pray thee—thine ear be attentive unto the prayer of thy servant, and unto the prayer of thy servants who delight to revere thy Name, and oh prosper, I pray thee, thy servant to-day, and grant him compassion before this man.

Now ||I|| was cup-bearer unto the king.

Chapter 2.

1 And it came to pass <in the month Nisan, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes the king> that ||wine|| was before him,—so I took up the wine, and gave unto the king, and I had never been sad before him.

2 Then said the king unto me, Wherefore’ is thy countenance sad, seeing that ||thou|| art not sick? this is nothing else, but sadness of heart.

Then feared I exceedingly, 3 and said unto the king—

Let the ||king|| <unto times age-abiding> live! Wherefore’ should my countenance [not be sad], when ||the city—the place of the sepulchres of my fathers|| lieth waste, and the gates thereof are consumed with fire?

4 Then the king said to me, <Concerning what> is it ||thou|| wouldst make request?

c Cp. Exo. xx. 6; xxxiv. 6, 7, n.

d “If” not expressed in Heb. Gt. it shd have been—G.n.
So I prayed unto the God of the heavens, and then said unto the king,

<If unto the king> it seemeth good, and if thy servant might find favour before thee> That thou wouldest send me unto Judah, unto the city of the sepulchres of my fathers, that I might build it.

6 And the king said unto me, ||[the queen]| also sitting beside him,

For how long’ would be thy journey? and when wouldst thou return?

Then came I unto the pashas Beyond the River,

Then said I unto the king, I will arise and build! and they strengthened their hands right well.

§ 2. Nehemiah’s Arrival. He surveys Jerusalem’s Ruins, and—despite Sanballat—is determined to rebuild.

Then came I unto the pashas Beyond the River, and gave them the letters of the king,—now the king had sent with me| captains of the army, and horsemen.

And <when Sanballat the Horonite, and Tobiah the servant the Ammonite, heard of it> it vexed them, with a great vexation,—that there had come a man, to seek welfare, for the sons of Israel.

So I entered Jerusalem,—and was there three days. Then rose I by night, ||I||, and a few men with me, I having told no man, what ||my God|| had been putting in my heart, to do for Jerusalem,—and <beast> was there none with me, save the beast on which ||myself|| was riding. So I went forth through the valley-gate by night, even unto the front of the snake-fountain, and into the dung-gate,—and I viewed the walls of Jerusalem, how ||they|| were broken down, and ||the gates thereof|| consumed with fire. Then passed I over unto the fountain-gate, and unto the pool of the king,—but there was no place for the beast that was under me to pass.

Then went I up in the torrent-bed, by night, and viewed the wall,—and turned back, and entered by the valley-gate, and so returned.

Now ||the deputies|| knew not whither I had gone, nor what I’ was doing,—<not even to the Jews, nor to the priests, nor to the nobles, nor to the deputies, nor to the rest who were doing the work> had I as yet’ told it. So I said unto them, ||Ye|| can see the misfortune that ||we|| are in, how that ||Jerusalem|| lieth waste, and ||the gates thereof|| are burned with fire:

Come, and let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may remain, no longer, a reproach.

Then told I them, of the hand of my God, that ||it|| had been good upon me, as also of the words of the king, which he had spoken unto me,—so they said,

We will arise and build!

and they strengthened their hands right well.

But <when Sanballat the Horonite, and Tobiah the servant the Ammonite, and Geshem the Arabian, heard it> they laughed at us, and poured contempt upon us,—and said,

What is this thing which ye’ would do? <against the king> would ye’ rebel?

Then answered I them, and said to them—

||The God of the heavens—he|| will prosper us, therefore ||we his servants|| will arise and build,—

But <to you> pertaineth no portion, nor right, nor memorial, in Jerusalem.

§ 3. Jerusalem’s Wall repaired, in Sections, by Groups of Workers.

Chapter 3.

Then arose Eliashib the high priest and his brethren the priests, and built the sheep-gate, ||they|| hallowed it, and set up the doors thereof,—

built, the men of Jericho,—and at his [other] hand built Zaccur, son of Imri.

And <the fish-gate> did the sons of Hasedeah build,—||they|| laid the beams thereof, and set up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof; 4 and <at their hand> repaired, Meremoth son of Uriah son of Hakkok, and <at their hand> repaired, Meshullam son of Berechjah son of Meshezabel,—and <at their hand> repaired, Zadok son of Baana; 5 and <at their hand> repaired, the Tekeotes,—but ||their chiefs|| put not their neck into the service of their lords.

And <the old gate> did Joiada son of Paseah, and Meshullam, son of Besodeiah, repair,—||they|| laid the beams thereof, and set up the doors thereof, and the locks thereof, and the bars thereof; 7 and <at their hand> repaired, Melatiah the Gibeonite and Jadan the Meronothite, men of Gibeon and of Mizpah,—who pertained to the throne of the pasha Beyond the River;

<at b> his hand repaired, Uzziah son of Harhaiah, goldsmiths, and <at his hand> repaired, Hananiah son of the perfumers,—and they fortified Jerusalem, as far as the broad wall; 9 and <at their hand> repaired, Rephaiah son of Hur, ruler of a half-circuit  of Jerusalem; 10 and <at their hand> repaired, Jedaiah son of Harumaph, even  over against his own house,—and <at his hand> repaired, Hattush, son of Hashabneiah; 11 ||a second length|| did Malchijah son of Harim and Hashub son of Pahath-moab repair,—also the tower of the ovens; 12 and <at his hand> repaired, Shallum son of Hakkohesh, ruler of a half-circuit  of Jerusalem,—||he and his daughters||.

||The valley-gate|| did Hanun and the inhabitants of Zanoah repair,—||they|| built it, and set up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof,—also a thousand cubits in the wall, as far as the dung-gate. 14 And ||the dung-gate|| did Malchijah son of Rechab, ruler of the circuit of Beth-haccherem repair,—||he|| built it, and set up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof.

And ||the fountain-gate|| did Shallun son of Col-hozeh ruler of the circuit  of Mizpah, repair, ||he|| built it, and covered it, b and set up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof,—also the wall of the pool of Shelah, by the garden of the king, even as far as the stairs that go down from the city of David; 16 <after him> repaired, Nehemiah son of Azbuk, ruler of the half-circuit  of Beth-zur,—as far as over against the sepulchres of David, even unto the pool which had been made, 1 and unto the house  of heroes; and there repaired at his hand, Ezer son of Jeshua, ruler of Mizpah, a second length,—over against the ascent of the armoury, at the corner;

<after him> zealously repaired Baruch son of Zabbai,  n a second length,—from the corner, unto the opening of the house of Eliashib, the high priest; 21 <after him> repaired, Meremoth son of Uriah son of Hakkok, a second length,—from the opening of the house of Eliashib, even unto the end of the house of Eliashib; 22 and <after him> repaired, the priests, the men of the Circuit; 23 <after him> repaired, Benjam and Hashhub, over against their own house,—<after him> repaired, Azariah son of Maaseiah son of Ananiah, beside his own house; 24 <after him> repaired, Binnui son of Henadad, a second length,—from the house of Azariah, unto the corner, even unto the pinnacle; 25 ||Palal|| son of Uzai, from over against the corner, and the tower that projecteth from the upper house of the king, which belongeth to the court of custody,—<after him> Pedaias son of Parosh. 26 Now ||the Nethinim|| were dwelling in Ophel,—as far as over against the water-gate, on the east, and the tower that projecteth; 27 <after him> repaired, the Tekoites, a second length,—from over against the great tower that projecteth, even unto the wall of Ophel: 28 <from beside the horse-gate> repaired

§ 4. The Sarcasms of Sanballat and Tobiah opposed by Prayer.

Chapter 4.

1 But it came to pass <when Sanballat heard that we were building the wall> it angered him, and he was greatly displeased,—and mocked the Jews;  2 and spake before his brethren, and the army of Samaria, and said,

What are ||these feeble Jews|| doing? will they fortify themselves?  c will they sacrifice? will they make an end in a day? will they bring to life the stones out of the heaps of dust, when ||they|| have been burned up?

3 Now ||Tobiah the Ammonite|| was beside him,—so he said,

<Even that which they' are building> <if a fox should go up> he would break down their stone wall!

4 Hear, O our God, for we have become a contempt, and turn thou back their reproach upon their own head,—and give them up as a prey, in the land of captivity,  d and do not cover their iniquity, and <their sin before thee> let it not be blotted out,—for they have caused vexation before them who are building.

6 So we built the wall, and all the wall was finished  e unto the half thereof,—and the people had a mind  f to work.

§ 5. Sanballot and his Neighbors conspire to Fight. Their Plot discovered and thwarted. Armed Watchers and Workers.

7 But it came to pass <when Sanballat and Tobiah and the Arabians and the Ammonites and the Ashdodites heard' that the repair of the walls  g of Jerusalem had gone up, that the breaches began to be stopped> that it angered them exceedingly;  8 and they conspired, all of them together, to come, to fight against Jerusalem,—and to cause it harm;  9 howbeit we prayed unto our God,—and set a watch against them, day and night, because of them.  10 Then said Judah,

The strength of the burden-bearer faileth, and ||[the rubbish]|| aboundeth,—and ||[we]|| are not able to build at  h the wall;  11 and our adversaries have said,

They shall not know, neither shall they see, until we come into their midst, and slay them,—so shall we cause the work' to cease.

12 But it came to pass <when the Jews dwelling near them came in> then said they unto us, ten times,

<From all places whither ye shall turn> [they will be] upon us!

13 So I set—on the lower slopes of the place behind the wall in the waste grounds,—yea I set the people, by their families, with their swords, their spears and their bows.  14 Then I looked and rose up, and said—unto the nobles and unto the deputies and unto the rest of the people,

Do not ye fear because of them,—<the great and fearful Lord> remember ye, so shall ye fight for your brethren, your sons and your daughters, your wives, and your houses.

15 And it came to pass <when our enemies heard that it was known to us, and that God had overturned their counsel> then returned we, all of us, unto the wall, every man unto his work.  16 And it came to pass <from that day> ||the half of my young men|| were working in the work, and ||the half of them|| were grasping the spears, the bucklers, and the bows, and the coats of mail,—but ||the rulers|| were behind all the house of

Judah. 17 <They who were building at the wall and they who were carrying burdens, they who were lifting> [each man] <with his one hand> was working at the work, and <with the other> was grasping the weapon. 18 <Even they who were building> ||every man|| had his sword girded upon his loins, and so was building,—and ||the that sounded the horn|| was by my side. 19 So I said unto the nobles and unto the deputies, and unto the rest of the people,

||The work|| is great and large,—and ||we|| are separated upon the wall, far away, each man from his brother:

20 <In what place soever ye shall hear the sound of the horn> ||thither|| gather yourselves unto us,—||our God|| will fight for us.

21 So ||we|| were working at the work,—||one half of them|| grasping the spears, from the uprisings of the dawn, until the coming out of the stars. 22 Moreover <at that time> I said to the people,

Let ||every one with his young man|| lodge for the night in the midst of Jerusalem,—so shall they serve us, in the night, as a watch, and ||the day|| for work.

23 So <neither I, nor my brethren, nor my young men, nor the men of the watch that followed me> ||none of us|| put off our clothes,—every one <went> with his weapon to the water.a

§ 6. The People’s Complaints that they were oppressed by their Brethren call forth stern Remonstrance, immediate Reform, and Nehemiah’s Record of his Own Course.

Chapter 5.

1 Then came there to be a great outcry of the people and their wives,—against their brethren the Jews. 2 And there were some’ who were saying,

<Our sons and our daughters> are we’, pledging,b—that we may obtain corn, and eat, and keep ourselves alive.

3 And there were some’ who were saying,

<Our fields and our vineyards and our houses> are we’ pledging,—that we may obtain corn in the dearth.

4 And there were others’ who were saying,

We have borrowed silver, for the king’s tribute,—||upon|| our lands and our vineyards. 5 ||Now|| therefore, <as is the flesh of our brethren> so is our flesh, <as are their children> so are our children. Yet lo! we’ are putting in subjection our sons and our daughters, for bondservants, yea there are some’ of our daughters already trodden down, and we are powerless, and, ||our fields and our vineyards|| belong to others.

6 And it angered me greatly,—when I heard their outcry, and these words.

7 So my heart took counsel unto mec and I contended with the nobles and with the deputies, and said to them,

<A loan on interest—every man to his brother> are ye’ making,—

So I appointed over them a great assembly;d

8 and I said unto them,

||We|| have bought our brethren the Jews, who had sold themselves unto the nations, according to our ability, and will ||ye|| even sell’ your brethren, or shall they sell themselves unto us?

And they were silent, and found no answer.

9 Then said I,e

<Not good> is the thing which ye’ are doing,—ought ye not <in the fear of God> to walk, because of the reproach of the nations, our enemies? 10 ||I too, then, my brethren and my young men||, might be lending unto them on interest silver and corn! I pray you, let us leave off this lending on interest! 11 Restore, I pray you, unto them this very day, their fields, their vineyards, their oliveyards, and their houses,—also the hundredthf of silver and corn, new wineg and oil, for which ye’ have been lending to them.

12 And they said,

We will restore them, and <from them> will we require nothing ||so|| will we do, as ||thou|| art saying.

a i.e., No one leaving them off, even for washing himself.

Then called I the priests, and put them on oath, to do according to this promise. 13 Also [my lap] shook I out, and said—

<Thus and thus> may God shake out every man who shall not confirm this promise, out of his house and out of his labour, yea <thus and thus> let him be shaken out and empty,—

And all the convocation said,

Amen!

and praised Yahweh, and the people did’ according to this promise.

Moreover <from the day I was commanded to become their pasha in the land of Judah, from the twentieth year, even unto the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes the king, twelve years> [I and my brethren] <pasha’s bread> have not eaten; 15 whereas [the former pashas, who were before me] suffered themselves to be a burden upon the people, and took from them in bread and wine, besides forty shekels of silver, even [their young men] bare rule over the people,—but [I] did not so, because of the fear of God. 16 Moreover also <in this work of the wall> I repaired, and <no field> did we buy,—though [all my young men] were gathered thither unto the work. 17 And [the Jews and deputies, a hundred and fifty men, and they who were coming in unto us from among the nations which were round about us] [depended] upon my table. 18 Now [that which was prepared for a single day] was—one ox, six choice sheep, also [fowls] were prepared for me, and <apportioned unto ten days> of every sort of wine, in abundance,—yet [in spite of this] [the bread of the pasha] demanded I not, because heavy’ was the bondage upon this people.

19 Remember unto me, O my God, for good,—all that I have done for this people.

§ 7. Sanballat and other Enemies, seeking a Conference, and hiring a False Prophet, to intimidate Nehemiah, are yet further baffled.

Chapter 6.

1 And it came to pass ≤when it was reported to Sanballat and Tobiah and to Geshem the Arabian and to the rest of our enemies, that I had built the wall, and there was left therein no breach,—though <up to that time, the doors> had I not set up in the gates> 2 that Sanballat and Geshem sent unto me, saying,

Come! and let us meet together in the villages, c in the valley of Ono,—But [they] were plotting’ to do me harm. 3 So I sent unto them messengers, saying,

<A great work> am [I] doing, and cannot come down,—wherefore’ should the work cease whilst I leave it, and come down unto you?

4 Yet they sent unto me, according to this message, four times,—and I replied to them according to this answer.

5 Then Sanballat sent unto me, according to this message, a fifth’ time, by his young man,—with an open letter, in his hand: 6 wherein was written—

<Among the nations> it is reported, and [Gashmu] saith it, that [thou and the Jews] are plotting to rebel, <for which cause> thou’ art building the wall,—and [thou] art to become their’ king, according to these words.

7 Moreover also <prophets> hast thou set up to make proclamation concerning thee in Jerusalem saying,

He hath become king d in Judah!

[Now] therefore, will it be reported to the king, according to these words.

8 Then sent I unto him, saying,

Nothing hath been done, according to these words, which thou art saying,—but <out of thine own heart> art thou feigning them.

9 For [they all] were seeking to put us in fear, saying,

Their hands will slacken from the work, and it will not be accomplished.

[Now] therefore, strengthen thou my hands;f

10 <When [I] came into the house of Shemaiah, son of Delaiah, son of Mehetabel, [the] being shut in> he said,

Let us meet together in the house of God, in the midst of the temple, and let us close the doors of the temple, for they are coming to slay thee, yea <by night> are they coming to slay thee.

11 Then said I,
Should ||such a man as I] flee? Who then <being such as I> would enter the temple to save his life? I will not enter.

12 Then perceived I, that lo! it was ||not God|| who had sent him,—though  he had spoken concerning me, but ||Tobiah and Sanballat|| had hired him: 13 <to this end> ||hired|| he was', to the end that I might be afraid and do so, and might sin,—and it might serve them for an evil report, to the end they might bring reproach upon me.

14 Have remembrance, O my God, of Tobiah and of Sanballat, according to these their b doings,—moreover also of Noadiah the prophetess, and of the rest of the prophets, who would have put me in fear.

15 So the wall was finished, on the twenty-fifth of Elul,—in fifty-two days.

16 And it came to pass <when all our enemies heard, and all the nations that were round about us saw> that they fell greatly in their own eyes, and took knowledge that <from God> had this work been wrought.

17 Moreover <in those days> were the nobles of Judah busy with their letters which were going unto Tobiah,—and those of Tobiah were coming unto them; 18 for ||many in Judah|| had taken an oath to him, because he was in marriage affinity with Shecaniah son of Arah,—and ||Jehohanan his son|| had taken the daughter of Meshullam, son of Berechiah. 19 Moreover <his good deeds> were they telling before me, and <my affairs> were they carrying out to him,—<letters> did Tobiah send to put me in fear.

§ 8. Nehemiah appoints Governors of the City and Watches for the Gates.

Chapter 7.

1 And it came to pass <when the wall was built, and I had set up the doors,—and the doorkeepers and the singers and the Levites had been appointed> 2 that I gave Hanani my brother, and Hananiah captain of the castle, charge over Jerusalem, for ||he|| was a truly faithful 3 man, and revered God above many.

3 And I said unto them,
Let not the gates of Jerusalem be opened until [hot] be the sun, and [while they are standing by] let them close the doors, and make them fast,—setting watches, of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, every one in his watch, and every one over against his own house.

§ 9. Intending to Enrol the People, Nehemiah finds a Register of the First Return.

(Cp. Ezr. ii.)

4 Now ||the city|| was broad on both hands, and large, but ||the people|| were few in the midst thereof,—and the houses had not' been built.

5 So then my God put it into my heart, and I gathered together the nobles and the deputies and the people, to register their genealogy,—then found I a register roll, of them who came up at the first, and found written therein:—

6 ||These|| are the sons of the province, who came up from among the Captives of the Exile, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon did exile,—but they came back to Jerusalem and to Judah, every one to his own city; 7 who came in with Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Azariah, Raamiah, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispereth, Bigvai, Nehum, Baanah,—the number of the men of the people of Israel.

§ 10. In the Seventh Month, at the People’s Request, Ezra reads publicly out of the Law; the People weep, but are counselled to rejoice.

And when the seventh month arrived the sons of Israel were in their cities.

Chapter 8.

Then all the people gathered themselves together, as one man, into the broad way that was before the water-gate,—and they spake unto Ezra the scribe, to bring the book of the law of Moses, which Yahweh had commanded Israel. So then Ezra the priest brought the law, before the convocation of both men and women, and all that had understanding to hearken,—on the first day of the seventh month; and read therein, before the broad place which was before the water-gate, from the time it was light, until the noon of the day, in presence of the men and the women, and such as had understanding,—and [the ears of all the people] were unto the book of the law. And Ezra the scribe stood upon a lofty platform of wood, which they had made for the purpose, and there stood, beside him, Mattithiah and Shema and Anaiah and Uriah and Hilkhiah and Maaseiah, on his right hand,—and <on his left> Pedaiah and Mishael and Malchijah and Hashum and Hashbadanah, Zechariah, Meshullam.

And Ezra the scribe opened the book before the eyes of all the people, for <above all the people> was he,—and <when he opened it> all the people [stood up]. And Ezra blessed Yahweh the great God,—and all the people responded' Amen! Amen!

with the lifting up of their hands,—and they bent their heads and bowed themselves down unto Yahweh, with their faces to the ground. And [Jeshua and Bani and Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, Pelaiah, and the Levites] did cause the people to understand the law. [the people] remaining in their places. So they read in the book of the law of God, distinctly, and, giving the sense, caused them to understand the reading.

9 Then Nehemiah—[he] was the governor—and Ezra the priest the scribe, and the Levites who were causing the people to understand, said unto all the people,

||To-day|| is [holy] unto Yahweh your God, do not mourn, nor weep,—

for [weeping] were all the people, when they heard the words of the law. 10 So he said unto them—

Go your way, eat the fat and drink the sweet, and send portions unto them for whom nothing’ is prepared, for holy’ is the day, unto our Lord,— and be not grieved, for ||the joy of Yahweh|| is your strength.①

11 And ||the Levites|| were quieting all the people, saying—

Hush! for ||the day|| is holy,—and be not grieved. 12 And all the people went their way, to eat and to drink, and to send portions, and to make great rejoicing,—because they had understood the words which were made known unto them.

§ 11. The Reading of the Second Day leads to a Revival of Dwelling in Booths, neglected since the days of Joshua.

13 And <on the second day> were gathered together—the ancestral heads of all the people, the priests and the Levites, unto Ezra the scribe,—even to give attention unto the words of the law. 14 And they found written in the law,—that Yahweh gave command through② Moses, that the sons of Israel should dwell in booths, during the festival of the seventh month; ③ and that they should publish and send along a proclamation throughout all their cities and throughout Jerusalem, saying,

Forth to the mountain, and bring in branches of olive, and branches of oleaster, and branches of myrtle, and branches of palms, and branches of thick trees,—to make booths, as it is written.

16 So the people went forth, and brought in, and made themselves booths, every one upon his roof, and in their courts, and in the courts of the house of God, and in the broad place of the water-gate, and in the broad place of the gate of Ephraim. ④ And all the convocation of them who had returned out of the captivity made booths, and dwelt in booths, for, since the days of Jeshua son of Nun, had not the sons of Israel done so, unto that day,—and there was very great rejoicing. ⑤ So he’ read in the book of the law of God, day by day, from the first day unto the last day, and they kept the festival seven days, and <on the eighth day> a closing feast, ⑥ according to the regulation.

§ 12. A Solemn Fast; a Public Prayer; leading to a Written Promise of Reform.

Chapter 9.

1 Now <on the twenty-fourth day of this month> were the sons of Israel gathered together, with fasting and with sackcloth, having earth upon them. ⑦ And the seed of Israel separated themselves from all the sons of the foreigner,— and stood and made confession over their own sins, and the iniquities of their fathers. ⑧ So they stood up in their place, and read in the book of the law of Yahweh their God, a fourth part of the day,—and  they were making confession and bowing themselves down, unto Yahweh their God. ⑨ Then stood up on the platform of the Levites, Jeshua and Bani, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, ⑩ Bunni, Sherebiah, Bani, ① Shemariah,—and made outcry, with a loud voice, unto Yahweh their God. ⑪ Then said the Levites— Jeshua and Kadmiel, Bani, Hashabneiah, Sherebiah, Hodiah, Shebaniah, ⑫ Pethahiah, Stand up, bless Yahweh your God, from age to age,—

Yea let them bless thy glorious Name, which is exalted above all blessing and praise.

⑬ ||Thou|| art Yahweh’ [thou alone], ||Thou|| didst make the heavens, the heavens of heavens, and all their host, the earth and all that is thereon, the seas and all that is therein, and ||thou|| holdest them all in life,—and ||the host of the heavens|| <unto thee> are bowing down.

⑭ ||Thou|| art Yahweh, God, who didst choose Abram, and broughtest him forth out of Ur of the Chaldees,—and madest his name Abraham; ⑮ and didst find his heart faithful⑯

before thee, and didst solemnize with him a covenant, to give the land of the Canaanite, the Hitite, the Amorite, and the Perizzite, and the Jebusite, and the Girgashite,—to give it unto his seed,—and didst confirm thy words, for [righteous] thou art.9

Yea thou sawest the affliction of our fathers, in Egypt, and <their outcry> thou hearest, by the Red Sea; and didst grant signs and wonders against Pharaoh, and against all his servants, and against all the people of his land, for thou hadst taken note, that they ruled proudly over them,—and so thou didst make thee a name, as at this day.

And <the sea> didst thou cleave asunder before them, and they passed through the midst of the sea, on dry ground,—whereas <their pursuers> thou didst cast into the depths like a stone, into the mighty waters.

And <in a pillar of cloud> didst thou lead them, by day,—and in a pillar of fire, by night, to light up for them the way wherein they should go.

And <upon Mount Sinai> camest thou down, and spakest with them out of the heavens,—and gavest them just regulations, and faithful laws, good statutes and commandments.

And <thy holy sabbath> didst thou make known to them,—and <commandments and statutes and a law> didst thou command them, through Moses thy servant.

And <bread out of the heavens> didst thou give them, for their hunger, and <waters out of the cliff> didst thou bring them, for their thirst,—and badest them go in to take possession of the land, which thou hadst lifted thy hand to give them.

But ||[they and our fathers]|| dealt proudly,—and hardened their neck, and hearkened not unto thy commandments; but refused to hearken, neither kept in mind thy wonders which thou hadst done with them, but they hardened their neck, and appointed a head that they might return to their servitude, in their perverseness.

But ||[thou]|| art a δικαιοσύνη of forgivenesses, γλυκά and full of compassion, slow to anger and abounding in lovingkindness, and didst not forsake them.

Yea <although they made them a molten calf, and said, ||[This]|| is thy God, that brought thee up out of Egypt,—and wrought great insults yet ||[thou]|| didst not forsake them in the desert,—||[the pillar of cloud]|| departed not from over them by day, to lead them in the way, nor the pillar of fire by night, to light up for them the way wherein they should go.

And <thy Good Spirit> thou gavest, to instruct them,—and <thy manna> thou withheldst not from their mouth, and <water> thou gavest them, for their thirst.

Yea <forty years> didst thou sustain them in the desert, they lacked nothing,—||[their mantles]|| waxed not old and ||[their feet]|| swelled not.

And thou gavest them kingdoms, and peoples, and allotted to each of them a corner,—and they took possession of the land of Sihon, and the land of the king of Heshbon, and the land of Og king of Bashan.

||<Their children also> didst thou multiply, like the stars of the heavens,—and didst bring them into the land which thou hadst promised their fathers they should enter to possess; so the children entered' and possessed the land, and thou subduedst before them the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, and deliveredst them into their hand,—with their kings, and the peoples of the land, to do with them according to their pleasure; and they captured fortified cities, and a fat soil, and took possession of houses full of every good thing, wells digged, vineyards and oliveyards and fruit-trees, in abundance,—so they did eat and were filled and became fat, and luxuriated in thy great goodness.

26 But they murmured and rebelled against thee, and cast thy law behind their back, and <thy prophets> they slew, who testified against them\(^a\) that they might turn them back unto thee,—and they wrought great insults.

27 Therefore didst thou deliver them into the hand of their adversaries, who distressed them,—and <in the time of their distress> they made outcry unto thee, and ||thou|| <out of the heavens> didst hear, and <according to\(^b\) thine abounding compassions> gavest them saviors, that they might save\(^c\) them out of the hand of their adversaries.

28 But <as soon as they had rest> they again’ wrought wickedness before thee,—and thou didst leave them in the hand of their enemies, who bare rule over them, yet <when they again’ made outcry unto thee> ||thou|| <from the heavens> didst hear and didst deliver them according to\(^b\) thy compassions, many times; 29 and didst testify against them, to bring them back unto thy law, yet ||they|| dealt proudly, and hearkened not unto thy commandments, and <against thy regulations> they sinned, the which—if any son of earth shall do—then shall he live by them,—and yielded a rebellious shoulder, and <their neck> they stiffened, and hearkened not.

30 And thou didst suffer many years to pass over them, and didst testify against them\(^d\) by thy Spirit through\(^b\) thy prophets, yet did they not give ear,—therefore didst thou deliver them into the hand of the peoples of the lands.

31 Yet <in thine abounding compassions> thou didst not make of them an end, neither didst thou forsake them,—for  thou art.

32 ||Now|| therefore, O our God—the GOD great, mighty, and fearful—keeping the covenant and the lovingkindness,\(^e\) let not all the trouble seem little before thee, which hath come upon us—on our kings, on our rulers, and\(^b\) on our priests, and on our prophets, and on our fathers, and on all thy people,—from the days of the kings of Assyria, until this day.

33 But ||thou|| art righteous, as to all that hath fallen upon us,—for <faithfulness> hast thou wrought, whereas ||we|| have been lawless; \(^34\) and, ||our kings, our rulers, our priests, and our fathers|| have not kept thy law,—nor given heed unto thy commandments, or unto thy testimonies, wherewith thou hast testified against them.

35 But ||they|| <in their kingdom, and in thine abundant goodness which thou gavest them, and in the broad and fat land which thou didst set before them> did not serve thee, neither turned they from their wicked doings.

36 Lo! ||we|| <to-day> are bondmen—<even upon the land which thou gavest our fathers to eat the fruit thereof and the good thereof> Lo! ||we|| are bondmen; 37 and ||the increase thereof|| aboundeth unto the kings whom thou hast set over us, for our sins,—and <over our bodies> are they bearing rule, and over our cattle, at their pleasure, and <in great distress> we are’.

38 <Seeing, therefore, all this> ||we|| are plighting our faith, and putting it in writing,—and <upon the sealed scroll> are our rulers, our Levites, our priests.

And the people bestowed a blessing on all the priests, the Levites, and the people, to bring it unto the house of our God, by our ancestral houses, at times arranged, year by year,—to burn upon the altar of Yahweh our God, as it is written in the law.

And that we would bring in the firstfruits of our ground, and the firstfruit of all fruit of all trees, year by year,—unto the house of Yahweh;
also that <the firstborn of our sons, and of our cattle, as it is written in the law,—and the firstlings of our herds and of our flocks> we would bring in unto the house of our God, unto the priests who should be in attendance in the house of our God;

And <the first part of our meal and our heave-offerings and the fruit of all trees, new wine and oil> would we bring in unto the priests, into the chambers of the house of our God, and the tithe of our ground unto the Levites,—[the Levites themselves] taking the tithes in all our cities of agriculture.

§ 14. A Record of those who dwelt in Jerusalem of the Chiefs of Judah and Benjamin, and of the Priests and Levites; also of the Villages in which men of Judah and Benjamin dwelt.

Chapter 11.

And the rulers of the people dwelt in Jerusalem,—and [the rest of the people] cast lots, to bring in one out of ten to dwell in Jerusalem, the holy city, and nine parts in [other] cities.

And the people bestowed a blessing on all the men, who willingly offered themselves to dwell in Jerusalem.

Now [these] are the chiefs of the province, who dwell in Jerusalem, but <in the cities of Judah> dwelt every man in his possession throughout their cities, Israel, the priests, and the Levites and the Nethinim, and the Sons of the Servants of Solomon. 4 And <in Jerusalem> dwelt certain of the sons of Judah and of the sons of Benjamin,—

<Of the sons of Judah> Athaiah son of Uzziah, son of Zechariah, son of Amariah, son of Shephatiah, son of Mahalalel, of the sons of Perez; 5 and Maaseiah son of Baruch, son of Col-hozeh, son of Hazaiah, son of Adaiah, son of Joiarib, son of Zechariah, son of the Shilonite. 6

||All the sons of Perez who were dwelling in Jerusalem|| four hundred and sixty-eight, men of ability.

7 And ||these|| are the sons of Benjamin,—Sallu son of Meshullam, son of Joed, son of Pedaiah, son of Kolai, son of Maseeiah, son of Ithiel, son of Jeshuaiah; 8 and ||after him|| Gabbai, Sallai,—nine hundred and twenty-eight. 9 And ||Joel son of Zichri|| was in charge over them,—and ||Judah son of Hassenuah|| was over the city, as second.

10 <Of the priests> Jediah son of Joiarib, Jachin; 11 Seraiah son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, son of Ahitub, chief ruler of the house of God;

12 and their brethren who were doing the work of the house, eight hundred and twenty-two,—and Adaiah son of Jeroham, son of Pelaliah, son of Amzi, son of Zechariah, son of Pashhur, son of Malchijah; 13 and his brethren, ancestral chiefs, two hundred and forty-two,—and Amashai son of Azarel, son of Ahzai, son of Meshillemoth, son of Immer; 14 and their brethren, strong men of ability, a hundred and twenty-eight,—and ||he who was in charge of them|| was Zabdiel, son of Haggodolim.a

15 And <of the Levites> Shemaiah son of Hasshub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah, son of Bunni; 16 and Shabbethai and Joab, over the outside business of the house of God, of the chiefs of the Levites; 17 and Mattaniah son of Mica, son of Zabdi, son of Asaph, leader of the praiseb who giveth thanks, c in prayer, and Bakbukiah the second among his brethren,—and Obadiahd son of Shemaiah, e son of Galal, son of Jeduthun. f 18 ||All the Levites in the holy city[|] were two hundred and eighty-four.

19 And ||the door-keepers—Akkub, Talmon, and their brethren who were keeping watch in the gates|| were a hundred and seventy-two.

20 But ||the residue of Israel, the priests, the Levites|| were in all the cities of Judah, every one in his inheritance.

21 Howbeit ||the Nethinim|| were dwelling in Ophel,—and ||Ziha and Gishpa|| were over the Nethinim.

22 And ||the overseer of the Levites in Jerusalem|| was Uzzi son of Bani, son of Hashabiah, son of Mattaniah, son of Mica,—of the sons of Asaph the singers, to take lead in the business of the house of God. 23 For ||the commandment of the king|| was upon them,—as to a fixed provision for the singers, the need of a day upon its day.

24 And ||Pethahiah son of Meshezabel, of the sons of Zerah, son of Judah|| was at the hand of the king, in every matter pertaining to the people.

25 And <as for the villages in their fields> [some of the sons of Judah] dwelt in Kiriath-arba, and the hamlets thereof, and in Dibon, and the hamlets thereof, and in Jekabzeel, and the villages thereof; 26 and in Jeshua, and in Moladah, and in Beth-pelet; 27 and in Hazar-shual, and in Beer-sheba, and the hamlets thereof; 28 and in Ziklag, and in Meconah, and in the hamlets thereof; 29 and in En-rimmon, and in Zorah, and in Jarmuth; 30 Zanoah, Adullam, and their villages, Lachish, and the fields thereof, Azekah, and the hamlets thereof,—so they encamped from Beer-sheba, unto the valley of Hinnom. 31 And ||the sons of Benjamin|| [dwelt] from Heb, to Michmasg and Aija, and Bethel, and the hamlets thereof:

32 Anathoth, Nob, Ananiah; 33 Hazor, Ramah, Gittaim; 34 Hadid, Zeboim, Neballat; 35 Lod, and Ono, the valley of craftsmen.h 36 Howbeit ||of the Levites|| [certain courses of Judah] pertained unto Benjamin.

And they sacrificed, on that day, great sacrifices, and rejoiced, for God had caused them to rejoice with great joy, moreover also [the women and children] rejoiced.—so that the rejoicing of Jerusalem was heard afar off.

And there were set in charge, on that day, certain men, over the chambers for the treasures, for the heave-offerings, for the firstfruits, and for the tithes, to gather into them, out of the fields of the cities, the portions appointed by the law, for the priests, and for the Levites,—for the joy of Judah] was over the priests and over the Levites, who were remaining.

So they kept the charge of their God, and the charge of the purification, and [so did] the singers and the doorkeepers,—according to the commandment of David and of Solomon his son.

For in the days of David and Asaph, of old] there were chiefs of the singers, and songs of praise and thanksgiving, unto God. Now [all Israel— in the days of Zerubbabel, and in the days of Nehemiah] used to give the portions of the singers and the doorkeepers, the need of a day upon its day,—and they hallowed them unto the Levites, and [the Levites] hallowed them unto the sons of Aaron.

§ 17. The Day of Dedication further distinguished by a Reading in the Law which led to the Expulsion of Tobiah the Ammonite out of the Temple Chambers.

Chapter 13.

1 <On that day> a portion was read in the book of Moses, in the ears of the people,—and it was found written therein, that the Ammonite and the Moabite should not enter into the convocation of God, unto times age-abiding; because they met not the sons of Israel, with bread and with water,—but hired against them Balaam, to curse them, although our God turned the curse into a blessing. So it came to pass, when they had heard the law,—that they separated all the mixed multitude from Israel. Now <before this> [Eliashib the priest, who was set over a chamber of the house of God]] was allied unto Tobiah; so he prepared him a large chamber, where aforetime they used to lay the meal-offering, the frankincense, and the utensils, and the tithe of the corn, the new wine and the oil, in charge of the Levites, and the singers, and the doorkeepers,—and the heave-offerings for the priests. But throughout all this [time] was I not in Jerusalem,—for in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes king of Babylon] I came unto the king, and at the end of certain days] obtained I leave of the king; and came to Jerusalem,—and had intelligence of the wickedness which Eliashib had committed for Tobiah, in preparing for him a chamber, in the courts of the house of God; and it grieved me exceedingly,—and I cast forth all the household utensils of Tobiah, outside of the chamber. Then commanded I, and they purified the chambers,—and I put back there, the utensils of the house of God, the meal-offering and the frankincense.

§ 18. Neglected Levites, recalled and provided for.

Then came I to know, that [the portions of the Levites] had not been given [them],—so that the Levites and the singers, who had been doing the work, [had fled every one to his field]. Therefore contended I with the deputies, and said, Written: “a chief”; read: “chiefs.” In some cod. (w. 6 ear. pr. edns., Vul.): “chiefs” (pl.) both written and read—G.n., G. Intro. 154.

Wherefore is the house of God [forsaken]? So I gathered them together, and set them in their place. Then [all Judah] brought in the tithe of corn, and new wine, and oil, unto the treasuries; and I made treasurers over the treasuries—Shelemiah the priest, and Zadok the scribe, and Pedaiah from among the Levites, and next unto them Hanan son of Zaccur, son of Mattaniah,—for faithful’ were they accounted, and it was [laid] upon them, to distribute unto their brethren.

Remember me, O my God, concerning this,—and do not wipe out my lovingkindnesses, which I have done for the house of my God, and for those keeping charge thereof.

<In those days> saw I in Judah—some treading winepresses on the sabbath, and bringing in sheaves and lading asses, moreover also wine, grapes, and figs, and every kind of burden, which they were bringing into Jerusalem on the sabbath day,—so I protested against it, as a day for them to sell provisions. And [men of Tyre] dwelt therein, who were bringing in fish—and every kind of ware for sale,—and were selling, on the sabbath, to the sons of Judah, and in Jerusalem; so I contended with the nobles of Judah,—and said unto them,

What is this wicked thing which [ye] are doing, and profaning the sabbath day?

Was it not [thus] your fathers did, and our God brought upon us all this calamity, and upon this city?—and [ye] would add indignation against Israel, by profaning the sabbath! And it came to pass when the gates of Jerusalem made a shadow before the sabbath> then gave I word, and they shut the doors, and I gave word, that they should not open them, until after the sabbath,—and some of my young men set I near the gates, so that no burden should be brought in, on the sabbath day. But the traders and sellers of all kinds of wares lodged outside Jerusalem, once or twice. Therefore I testified against them, and said unto them,

Wherefore are ye’ lodging against the wall? [if ye do it again] a hand will I thrust upon you,—

<From that time> they came not on the sabbath. And I gave word to the Levites, that they should be purifying themselves and coming in, as keepers of the gates, to hallow the sabbath day.

This also remember me, O my God, and have pity upon me, according to the abundance of thy lovingkindness.

§ 20. Mixed Marriages denounced and punished.

Moreover <in those days> saw I the Jews who had married women of Ashdod, of Ammon, of Moab; and [their children] were one-half speaking the language of Ashdod, and understood not’ how to speak the language of the Jews,—but after the tongue of both people.

So I contended with them, and laid a curse upon them, and I smote, from among them, certain men, and pulled out their hair,—and I put them on oath by God, Ye shall not give your daughters unto their sons, nor take of their daughters, for your sons nor for yourselves.

Was it not <over these things> that Solomon king of Israel sinned’—though <among many nations> there was no king such as he, and he was [beloved by his God] and so God gave him to be king over all Israel,—<even him> did foreign women [cause to sin].

Unto you, then, shall we hearken, to do all this great wickedness, to act unfaithfully with our God,—by marrying foreign wives?

And one of the sons of Joiada, son of Eliashib the high priest| was son-in-law to Sanballat the Horonite,—therefore I chased him from me.

Remember them, O my God,—on account of the Defilings of the Priesthood, and the Covenant of the Priesthood, and of the Levites.

So I purified them from everything foreign,—and appointed charges unto the priests and unto the Levites, every one in his work; also for the...
offering of wood, at times appointed, and for the firstfruits.

Remember me, O my God, for good!

§ 1. The Disobedience and Fall of Queen Vashti.

Chapter 1.

And it came to pass, in the days of Ahasuerus,—[the same] Ahasuerus that reigned from India even unto Ethiopia, a hundred and twenty-seven provinces: 2 in those days,—when King Ahasuerus was sitting on the throne of his kingdom, which was in Shusan the palace; 3 in the third year of his reign> he made a banquet unto all his rulers, and his servants,—the power of Persia and Media, the nobles and the rulers being before him; 4 when he showed the riches of the glory of his kingdom, and the splendour of his excellent majesty,—many days, a hundred and eighty days; that <when these days were fulfilled> the king made—for all the people that were present in Shusan the palace, both for great and small—a banquet, seven days,—in the court of the garden of the palace of the king: 6 white stuff, cotton and blue, being held fast with cords of fine linen and purple, upon rods of silver, and pillars of white marble,—the couches being of gold and silver, upon a pavement of alabaster and white marble, 7 and they gave them drink in vessels of gold, vessels from vessels] being diverse,—even the wine of the kingdom in abundance, by the bounty of the king. 8 And [the drinking] was according to the law, c no one compelling,—for [so] had the king appointed unto every chief of his household, that every man [should do according to his pleasure].

||Also Vashti the queen|| made a banquet for the women,—in the royal house which belonged to King Ahasuerus.

<On the seventh day> when merry was the heart of the king with wine he commanded Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, and Abagtha, Zethar and Carcas, the seven eunuchs who were waiting before King Ahasuerus,— 11 to bring in Vashti the queen, with the royal crown,—to show the peoples and the rulers her beauty, for <of pleasing appearance> was she.

But Queen Vashti refused' to come in at the command of the king, which was given through the eunuchs,—and the king was exceeding wroth, and [his anger] burned within him.

Then said the king unto the wise men having knowledge of the times,—<for [so] was the manner of the king before all having knowledge of law and judgment; and near unto him> were Carshena, Shether, Admatha, Tarshish, Meres, Marsena, Memucan,—the seven rulers of Persia and Media, who used to behold the face of the king, who sat first, in the kingdom>—

<According to law> what ought to be done, with Queen Vashti,—for that she hath not performed the command of King Ahasuerus, through the eunuchs?

Then said Memucan before the king and the rulers,

<Not against the king alone> hath Vashti the queen acted perversely,—but against all the rulers, and against all the peoples, who are in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus. 17 For the report of the queen [will go forth] unto all women, so putting contempt upon their lords, in their eyes,—when it is reported to them, ||King Ahasuerus|| commanded Vashti the queen to be brought in before him, but she came not.

And [this day] shall the ladies of Persia and Media, who have heard the report of the queen, tell it, unto all the lords of the king,—with enough of contempt and wrath.

<If [unto the king] it seem good> let there go forth a royal declaration from before him, and let it be written among the laws of Persia and Media, so that it shall not pass away,—That Vashti [is not to come in] before King Ahasuerus, and <her royal estate> let the king give unto her neighbour, who is better than she.

21 And the thing seemed good 'in the eyes of the king, and the rulers,—and the king did' according to the word of Memucan. 22 So he sent letters, into all the provinces of the king, into every province according to the writing thereof, and unto every people according to their tongue,—That every man should be ruler in his own house, and issue his commands, b according to the tongue of his people.

§ 2. The Selection of Esther, a Jewess, to be Queen instead of Vashti.

Chapter 2.

1 <After these things, when the wrath of King Ahasuerus was appeased> he remembered Vashti, and what she had done, and what was decreed against her. 2 Then said the young men of the king, who waited upon him,—

Let them seek out for the king young virgins, of pleasing appearance; 3 and let the king appoint officers throughout all the provinces of his kingdom, and let them gather together every young virgin of pleasing appearance unto Shusan the palace, unto the house of the women, into the custody of Hegai eunuch of the king, keeper of the women, and let there be given the things needed for their purification; 4 and <the maiden that is pleasing in the eyes of the king> let her be queen instead of Vashti. And the thing seemed good in the eyes of the king, and he did so. 5 ||A certain Jew|| there was, in Shusan the palace,—whose [name] was Mordecai, son of Jair, son of Shimei, son of Kish, a man of Benjamin; 6 who had been exiled from Jerusalem, with the exiles who were carried away with Jeconiah king of Judah,—whom ||Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon|| exiled. 7 And it came to pass, that he was bringing up Hadassah, ||the same|| was Esther, his uncle's daughter, for she had neither father nor mother,— and ||the maiden|| was of beautiful form and pleasing appearance, and when her father and mother died, Mordecai took her for his own daughter. 8 So it came to pass <when the king’s command and decree was heard, and there had been gathered together many maidens unto Shusan the palace, unto the custody of Hegai> that Esther was taken into the house of the king, unto the custody of Hegai, keeper of the women; 9 and the maiden was pleasing in his eyes, and she received lovingkindness before him, and he hardened to give her ||the things needed for her purification, and things apportioned her||, and to give her ||seven select maidens|| out of the house of the king,—and he removed her and her maids to the best place in the house of the women. 10 Esther had not told of her people, nor of her kindred,—for ||Mordecai|| had laid charge upon her, that she should not tell. 11 And [throughout every day|| Mordecai] used to walk to and fro, before the court of the house of the women,—to get to know the welfare of Esther, and what would be done with her.

12 Now <when the turn of each maiden came, to go in unto King Ahasuerus, after it had been done to her according to the law of the women for twelve months, for ||so|| were fulfilled the days of their purification,—six months with oil of myrrh, and six months with perfumes, and with things for the purification of the women> 13 ||then|| indeed, the maiden came in unto the king,—||whatsoever she might mention|| was given her, to go with her, out of the house of the women up to the house of the king; 14 <in the evening> she' went in, and <in the morning> she' returned—unto the second house of the women, unto the custody of Shaashgaz the king's eunuch, who kept the concubines,—she went not in again unto the king, except the king delighted in her, and she were called by name. 15 But <when the turn came for Esther daughter of Abihail the uncle of Mordecai—who had taken her as his own daughter—to go in unto the king> she requested nothing, save what Hegai the king's eunuch who kept the women might direct,—but so it was, that Esther obtained favour in the eyes of all who beheld her. 16 So then Esther was taken unto King Ahasuerus, into his royal house, in the tenth month, [the same] was the month Tebeth,—in the seventh year of his reign. 17 And the king loved Esther above all the women, and she obtained favour and lovingkindness before him, above all the virgins,—so that he set the royal crown upon her head, and made her queen, instead of Vashti. 18 Then the king made a great banquet, for all his rulers and his servants, the banquet of Esther,—and  for all the provinces> made he, and gave a present, according to the bounty of a king.

19 Now <when virgins were gathered together a second time> then [Mordecai] was sitting in the gate of the king. 20 Esther had not told of her kindred, nor her people, as [Mordecai] had laid charge upon her,—and <the command of Mordecai> Esther performed, like as when she was being brought up with him. 21 <In those days, when [Mordecai] was sitting in the gate of the king> Bigthan and Teresh, two of the eunuchs of the king who guarded the threshold, were wroth, and sought to thrust a hand upon King Ahasuerus; 22 but the thing became known to Mordecai, who told it unto Esther the queen,—and Esther told it unto the king, in the name of Mordecai. 23 And <when the thing was searched into and found [true]> then were they two hanged upon the gallows, and it was written, in the book of the chronicles, before the king.

§ 4. Haman made Chief Minister; but, Mordecai refusing to bow down to him, Haman plots to destroy the whole Jewish People.

Chapter 3.

1 <After these things> did King Ahasuerus promote to power Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, and exalted him,—and placed his seat above all the rulers who were with him. 2 And [[all the kings servants who were in the kings gate]] used to bend and bow themselves down unto Haman, for [[so]] had the king given command concerning him,—but [[Mordecai]] bent not nor bowed himself down. 3 Then said the king’s servants who were in the king’s gate, unto Mordecai,—

4 Wherefore’ art [[thou]] transgressing the command of the king?

And it came to pass <when they had spoken unto him day by day, and he had not hearkened unto them> that they told Haman, to see whether the account of Mordecai would stand, for he had told them, that [[he]] was a Jew. 5 And <when Haman saw that Mordecai did not bend nor bow down unto him> then was Haman filled with wrath; 6 but <it was contemptible in his’ eyes> to thrust forth a hand on Mordecai alone, for they had told him of the people of Mordecai,—and Haman sought to destroy all the Jews who were throughout all the kingdom of Ahasuerus, the people of Mordecai. 7 <In the first month—[[the same]] was the month Nisan, in the twelfth year of king Ahasuerus> was Pur cast—[[the same]] is the Lot, before Haman, from day to day, and from month to month,—and the lot fell on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, [[the same]] is the month Adar. 8 Then said Haman unto King Ahasuerus,

There is’ a certain people, scattered abroad and dispersed among the peoples, throughout all the provinces of thy kingdom,—[[whose laws]] are diverse from every people, and <the laws of the king> they observe not, <for the king> therefore, it is not fit, to suffer them.

9 <If[unto the king] it seem good> let it be written, to destroy them,—and <ten thousand talents of silver> will I weigh out upon the hands of them who are doing the business, to bring [it] into the treasuries of the king.

10 So then the king took his signet-ring from off his hand, and gave it unto Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, the adversary of the Jews; 11 and the king said unto Haman, [[The silver]] is granted thee,—and the people, to do with them, as may seem good in thine eyes.

12 Then were called the scribes of the king, in the first month, on the thirteenth day therein, and it was written according to all that Haman commanded unto the satraps of the king, and unto the pashas, who were over every province, and unto the rulers of every people, every province according to the writing thereof, and every people according to the tongue thereof,—<in the name of

1 When Mordecai came to know all that had been done, Mordecai rent his garments, and put on sackcloth, and ashes, and went forth into the midst of the city, and cried out with an outcry loud and bitter; and went in as far as before the gate of the king, for none might enter into the gate of the king, clothed with sackcloth. And throughout every province, whithersoever the king and his edict came, was great mourning to the Jews, and fasting and weeping, and lamentation, sackcloth and ashes were spread out for many.

4 So the maidens of Esther and her eunuchs went in and told her, and the queen writhed in great anguish, and sent garments to clothe Mordecai, and to remove his sackcloth from off him, but he accepted them not. Then called Esther for Hathach, one of the eunuchs of the king whom he had stationed before her, and charged him concerning Mordecai,—to get to know what was, and why this was. So Hathach went forth unto Mordecai, in the broadway of the city, which was before the gate of the king. And Mordecai told him all that had befallen him,—and an exact statement of the silver, that Haman had promised to weigh out unto the treasuries of the king, for the Jews, to destroy them. Also a copy of the writing, to be delivered as an edict throughout every province, was published to all the peoples, that they should be ready against this day. ||The runners went forth, urged on by the word of the king, and the edict was given in Shusan the palace, and ||the king and Haman|| sat down to drink, but ||the city of Shusan|| was perplexed.

§ 5. Mordecai and Esther defeat the Schemes of Haman, who is hung on the Gallows which he had prepared for Mordecai, the latter being honoured in his Adversary's Stead, and the Jews being permitted to stand for their Lives, and so are delivered.

Chapter 5.

1 And it came to pass, on the third day, that Esther put on her royal apparel, and stood in the inner court of the house of the king, over against the house of the king,—and [the king] was sitting upon his royal seat, in the royal house, over against the opening of the house. 2 And it came to pass <when the king saw Esther the queen standing in the court> that she obtained favour in his eyes,—and the king held out to Esther, the golden sceptre which was in his hand, so Esther drew near, and touched the top of the sceptre. 3 Then said the king unto her, What aileth thee, Queen Esther? and what is thy petition?—unto the half of the kingdom—that it may be performed?

Then said Esther, <If unto the king it seem good> let the king with Haman come in this day, unto the banquet which I have prepared for him. 4 And the king said, Hasten ye Haman, to perform the word of Esther. So the king with Haman came in, unto the banquet which Esther had prepared. 6 Then said the king unto Esther, during the banquet of wine, What is thy petition, that it may be granted thee?—and what is thy request—unto the half of the kingdom—that it may be performed?

Then answered Esther, and said,—<As touching my petition and my request> let the king with Haman come in unto the banquet which I will prepare for them, and [to-morrow] I will do, according to the word of the king.

Then went Haman forth on that day, joyful and of a merry heart,—but <when Haman saw Mordecai in the gate of the king, that he rose not up nor moved because of him> then was Haman filled with wrath’ against Mordecai.

Nevertheless Haman restrained himself, and came into his own house,—and sent and brought in his friends, and Zeresh his wife; 11 and Haman recounted unto them the glory of his riches, and the multitude of his children,—and all the things wherein the king had promoted him to power, and how he had advanced him, above the rulers and the servants of the king.

And Haman said,

Moreover Esther the queen did bring in no one with the king into the banquet which she had prepared, saving myself,—yea moreover <even for to-morrow> [I] am invited unto her, with the king.

Yet [all this] sufficeth me not,—so long as [I] see Mordecai the Jew, sitting in the gate of the king.

Then said Zeresh his wife and all his friends unto him, Let them make ready a gallows, of the height of fifty cubits, and <in the morning> speak thou unto the king, that they hang Mordecai thereon, then go with the king into the banquet joyfully.

And the thing seemed good before Haman, and he made ready the gallows.

Chapter 6.

<During that night> the sleep of the king fled,—and he commanded to bring in the book of remembrance, the chronicles, and they were read before the king. 2 And it was found written, how that Mordecai had told concerning Bigthana and Teresh, the two eunuchs of the king guarding the threshold,—who had sought to thrust forth a hand upon King Ahasuerus. 3 Then said the king, What honour and dignity hath been done unto Mordecai, for this?

Then said the king’s young men, who were ministering unto him, Nothing’ hath been done for him.

Then said the king, Who is in the court? Now [Haman] had come into the outer court of the kings house, to speak unto the king, to hang Mordecai, upon the gallows which he had prepared for him. 5 So the king’s young men said unto him, Lo! [Haman] standing in the court.

And the king said,

Let him come in.

So Haman came in, and the king said unto him, What shall be done unto the man in whose honour’ [the king] delighteth?

Then said Haman, in his own heart, Unto whom’ will the king delight to do honour, more than unto me?

So Haman said unto the king,—<As touching the man in whose honour [the king] delighteth> 8 let them bring in royal apparel wherewith the king’ hath clothed himself,—and the horse whereon the king’ hath ridden, and the royal crown which hath been set upon his own’ head; 9 and let the apparel and the horse be delivered unto the hand of one of the king’s rulers, one of the nobles, and so let them array the man, in whose honour [the king] delighteth,—and cause him to ride upon the horse through the broadway of the city, and let them proclaim before him, <Thus and thus> shall it be done unto the man in whose honour [the king] delighteth!

Then said the king unto Haman,
Haste, take the apparel and the horse, just as thou hast said, and do even so’ unto Mordecai the Jew, who is sitting in the kings gate,—do not let fail a thing, of all which thou hast spoken!

So Haman took the apparel and the horse, and arrayed Mordecai,—and caused him to ride through the broadway of the city, and proclaimed before him, <Thus and thus> shall it be done unto the man in whose honour [the king] delighteth!

Then Mordecai returned unto the gate of the king,—but [Haman] hurried unto his own house, mourning, and with covered head. 13 And Haman recounted unto Zeresh his wife, and unto all his friends, everything that had befallen him. Then said his wise men, and Zeresh his wife, unto him,

<If [of the seed of the Jews] is Mordecai before whom thou hast begun to fall> thou shalt not prevail against him, but shalt [utterly fall] before him.

<While yet’ they were speaking with him> [the eunuchs of the king] had come,—and they hastened to bring Haman, unto the banquet which Esther had prepared.

Chapter 7.

1 So the king and Haman came in, to banquet with Esther the queen. 2 Then said the king unto Esther, on the second day also, during the banquet of wine,

What is thy petition, Queen Esther, that it may be granted thee? and what is thy request—unto the half of the kingdom—that it may be performed?

3 Then answered Esther the queen, and said,

<If I have found favour in thine eyes, O king, and if [unto the king] it seem good> let my life be granted me, as my petition, and my people, as my request;

4 For we are sold, [I and my people], to be destroyed, to be slain and to be caused to perish.

<If indeed [for bondmen and for bondwomen] we had been sold> I had held my peace, although the adversary could not have made good the damage to the king.

5 Then spake King Ahasuerus, and said unto Esther the queen,—

Who’ is he now, and where’ is he, whose heart is set to act thus?

6 And Esther said,

A man who is an adversary and enemy, [this wicked Haman].

And [Haman] was terrified, before the king and the queen. 7 <Now [the king] arising in his wrath from the banquet of wine, and going into the palace garden> [Haman] stood to make request for his life from Esther the queen, for he saw that ruin [was determined against him] by the king. 8 <When [the king] returned out of the palace garden into the place of the banquet of wine> [Haman] was lying prostrate upon the couch whereon Esther was. Then said the king,

Will he [even dare to force the queen] while I am in the house?

<No sooner had the word gone forth out of the mouth of the king> than <the face of Haman> they had covered. 9 Then said Harbonah—one of the eunuchs before the king—

Yea lo! [the gallows that Haman made ready for Mordecai, who had spoken well for the king] is standing in Haman’s house, of a height of fifty cubits.

Then said the king,

Hang him thereon.

10 So they hanged Haman on the gallows which he had prepared for Mordecai,—and [the wrath of the king] was appeased.

Chapter 8.

1 <On that day> did King Ahasuerus give unto Esther the queen, the house of Haman, the adversary of the Jews,—and [Mordecai] came in before the king, for Esther had told, what he was to her. 2 And the king took off his signet-ring, which he had taken from Haman, and gave it unto Mordecai,—and Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman.

3 Yet again spake Esther before the king, and fell down at his feet,—and wept and made supplication unto him, to cause the mischief of Haman the Agagite to pass away, even the plot which he had plotted against the Jews. And the king held out unto Esther, the golden sceptre,—so Esther arose, and stood before the king; and said—

If unto the king it seem good, and if I have found favour before him, and the thing be approved before the king, and [if] myself be pleasing in his eyes, let it be written to reverse the letters plotted by Haman, son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, which he wrote to destroy the Jews, who are in all the provinces of the king.

For how can I endure to see the ruin that shall overtake my people? or how can I endure to see the destruction of my kindred?

7 Then said King Ahasuerus unto Esther the queen, and unto Mordecai the Jew,—Lo! have I given unto Esther, and have they hanged upon the gallows, because he thrust forth his hand against the Jews. Therefore, write concerning the Jews as may seem good in your own eyes, in the name of the king, and seal it with the kings signet-ring,—for a writing which hath been written in the kings name, and sealed with the kings signet-ring> none can reverse.

Then were called the kings scribes at that time—in the third month, the same is the month Siwan, on the twenty-third thereof, and it was written according to all that Mordecai commanded unto the Jews, and unto the satraps and pashas and rulers of the provinces, which are from India even unto Ethiopia, a hundred and twenty-seven provinces, every province according to the writing thereof, and every people according to their tongue,—and unto the Jews, according to their writing, and according to their tongue; and he wrote in the name of King Ahasuerus, and sealed it with the kings signet-ring,—and sent letters by the hand of runners on horses, riding the swift steeds used in the kings service, bred of the stud:

That the king had granted unto the Jews who were in every city, to gather themselves together, and to stand for their life,—to destroy, to slay and to cause to perish—all the force of the people and province who should distress them, their little ones and women,—and to take the spoil of them as a prey:—

Upon one day throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus,—upon the thirteenth of the twelfth month, the same is the month Adar: ||A copy of the writing to be given, as an edict, throughout every province,|| was published to all the peoples,—and that the Jews be ready against that day, to avenge themselves on their enemies. ||The runners that rode on the swift steeds used in the king’s service|| went forth, being urged forward and pressed on, by the word of the king,—and ||the edict|| was given in Shusan the palace.

And ||Mordecai|| went forth from the presence of the king, in royal apparel, of blue and white, with a large diadem of gold, and a mantle of fine linen and purple,—and ||the city Shusan|| was bright and joyful. To the Jews had come light, and joy,—and gladness and honour.

And in every province, and in every city, whithersoever the word of the king and his edict did reach> ||joy and gladness|| had the Jews,—a banquet and a happy day,—and ||many from among the peoples of the land|| were becoming Jews, for the dread of the Jews had fallen upon them.

Chapter 9.

And in the twelfth month, the same is the month Adar, on the thirteenth day thereof, when the word of the king and his edict arrived to be put in execution,—on the day when the enemies of the Jews hoped to have power over them, though it was changed so that the Jews themselves should have power over them who hated them> the Jews assembled themselves together in their cities, throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, to thrust forth a hand against them who were seeking their hurt, and no man stood before them, for the dread of them had fallen upon all the peoples. And ||all the rulers of the provinces||, and the satraps and the pashas, and the doers of business that pertained to the king were extolling the Jews,—for the dread of Mordecai, had fallen upon them; 4 since great was Mordecai, in the house of the king, and his fame was going forth throughout all the provinces,—for the man Mordecai went on waxing great. 5 So then the Jews smote all their enemies, with the smiting of the sword and slaughter, and destruction,—and they dealt with them who hated them according to their pleasure. 6 Yea <in Shusan the palace> did the Jews slay and destroy five hundred men. 7 And <Parshandatha and Aridatha; 9 and Dalphôn and Parmashta, and Aspatha; 8 and Arisai, and Poratha, and Aridai, and Adalia, and Vaizatha;—

10 the ten sons of Haman son of Hammedatha, the adversary of the Jews slew they,—but <on the spoil> thrust they not forth their hand.

11 <On that day> came in the number of the slain into Shusan the palace, before the king. 12 Then said the king unto Esther the queen, <In Shusan the palace> have the Jews slain and caused to perish five hundred men, and the ten sons of Haman,—<in the rest of the provinces of the king> what have they done? What, then, is thy petition, that it may be granted thee? and what is thy request further, that it may he performed?

13 Then said Esther, <If unto the king it seem good> let it be granted, to-morrow also, unto the Jews who are in Shusan, to do according to the edict of to-day,—and that [the ten sons of Haman] be hanged upon the gallows.

14 And the king commanded it to be done so, and there was given an edict in Shusan,—and <the ten sons of Haman> they hanged.

15 So the Jews who were in Shusan assembled themselves together, on the fourteenth day also, of the month Adar, and slew in Shusan three hundred men,—but <on the spoil> thrust they not forth their hand.

16 And [the remainder of the Jews who were in the provinces of the king] assembled themselves together and stood for their life, a and then had rest from b their enemies, having slain of them that hated them seventy-five thousand,—but <on the spoil> thrust they not forth their hand: 17 on the thirteenth day of the month Adar,—and then had rest on the fourteenth day thereof, and made it a day of banqueting and rejoicing. 18 But [the Jews who were in Shusan] assembled themselves together on the thirteenth day thereof, and on the fourteenth day thereof,—and then had rest on the fifteenth day thereof, and made it a day of banqueting and rejoicing. 19 <For this cause> [the country Jews, who dwelt in the country towns] were making the fourteenth day of the month Adar one of rejoicing and banqueting, and a day of happiness,—and of sending portions every one to his neighbour.

§ 6. The Feast of Purim is established to commemorate the Preservation of the Jewish People.

20 And Mordecai wrote these things,—and sent letters unto all the Jews who were in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, near, and far off; 21 to establish for them, that they should continue to observe the fourteenth day of the month Adar, and the fifteenth day thereof,—always year by year; 22 according to the days wherein the Jews found rest from their enemies, and the month which was turned for them, from sorrow to joy, and from mourning to a happy day,—that they should make them days of banqueting and rejoicing, and of sending portions, every one to his neighbour, and gifts, unto the needy. 23 And the Jews took upon them that which they had begun to do,—and that which Mordecai had written unto them; 24 because [Haman, son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, the adversary of all the Jews] had plotted against the Jews, to cause them to perish,—and had cast Pur, [the same] is the Lot, to terrify them, and to destroy them; 25 but <by [Esther’s] going in> before the king <he commanded by letter, that his wicked plot which he had plotted against the Jews, should return> upon his own head,—and that he and his sons should be hanged upon the gallows. 26 <For this cause> called they these days Purim, after the name Pur, <for this cause>—for all the words of this epistle,—and what they had seen concerning such a matter, and what had reached unto them. 27 The Jews established and took upon themselves—and upon their seed, and upon all who should join themselves unto them, that it might not pass away, that they would continue to keep these two days, according to the writing concerning them and at their set time,—always year by year. 28 And these days were to be remembered and to be kept, always from generation to generation, by every’ family, every’ province, and every’ city,—that these days of Purim should not pass away, out of the midst of the Jews, and the memorial of them not cease from their seed.

29 Then wrote Esther the queen daughter of Abihail and Mordecai the Jew, with all authority,—to confirm this second epistle concerning the Purim; and he sent letters unto all the Jews throughout the hundred and twenty-seven provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus,—words of peace and stability:

30 to establish these days of the Purim in their set times, according as Mordecai the Jew and Esther the queen had enjoined upon them, and according as they had enjoined upon their own soul, and upon their seed,—the story of the fastings and of their outcry. 32 And the command of Esther confirmed the story of these Purim,—and it was written in a book.

Chapter 10.

1 And King Ahasuerus laid tribute upon the land, and upon the shores of the sea. 2 But all the acts of his authority, and his might, and the clear story of the promotion of Mordecai, wherewith the king promoted him> are not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Media and Persia? 3 For Mordecai the Jew was next unto King Ahasuerus, and became great among the Jews, and accepted by the multitude of his brethren,—seeking happiness for his people, and speaking peace to all his seed.

THE BOOK OF JOB.

A Narrative Introduction to the Book of Job.

Chapter 1.

1 [A man] there was—in the land of Uz, [Job] his name,—and that man was blameless and upright, and one who revered God, and avoided evil. 2 And there were born unto him seven sons and three daughters. 3 And his substance was—seven thousand sheep, and three thousand camels, and five hundred yoke of oxen, and five hundred she-asses, and a body of servants exceeding large,—thus was that man the greatest of all the sons of the East.

4 Now his sons were wont to go, and make a banquet, at the house of each one upon his day,—and to send and call their three sisters, to eat and to drink with them. 5 And so it was, when the days of the banquet came round, that Job sent and hallowed them, and rising early in the morning offered ascending-sacrifices according to the number of them all; for Job said,

Peradventure my sons have sinned,

And have cursed God in their hearts. <Thus and thus> was Job wont to do all the days.

6 Now there came a certain day, when the sons of God entered in to present themselves unto Yahweh,—so the accuser also entered, in their midst. 7 And Yahweh said unto the accuser,

Whence comest thou? And the accuser answered Yahweh, and said,

From going to and fro in the earth, and wandering about therein.

8 And Yahweh said unto the accuser,

Hast thou applied thy heart unto my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a man blameless and upright, revering God and avoiding evil?

9 And the accuser answered Yahweh, and said,

Is it <for nought> that Job revereth God?

10 Hast not [thyself] made a hedge about him, and about his house, and about all that he hath, on every side? <The work of his hands> thou hast blessed, and [his substance] hath broken forth in the land.

11 But [in very deed] put forth, I pray thee, thy hand, and smite all that he hath,—verily <unto thy face> will he curse thee.

12 And Yahweh said unto the accuser,

Lo! [all that he hath] is in thy hand, only <against himself> do not put forth thy hand. So the accuser went forth from the presence of Yahweh.

13 And there came a certain day,—when his sons and his daughters were eating, and drinking wine, in the house of their eldest brother.

14 And [a messenger] came in unto Job, and said,— [The oxen] were plowing, and [the asses] feeding beside them; 15 when the Chaldeans swooped down, and took them, and <the young men> smote they with the edge of the sword,—and escaped’ am [only I alone] to tell thee.

16<Yet’ was this one speaking> when [another] came in and said,— [A fire of God] fell out of the heavens, and burned up the sheep and the young men, and consumed them; and escaped’ am [only I alone] to tell thee.

17<Yet’ was this one speaking> when [another] came in and said,

[The Chaldeans] appointed three chiefs, and spread out against the camels, and took them, and <the young men> smote they with the edge of the sword; and escaped’ am [only I alone] to tell thee.

18<Yet’ was this one speaking> when [another] came in and said,— [Thy sons and thy daughters] were eating, and drinking wine, in the house of their eldest brother; 19 when lo! ||[a great wind]|| came from over the desert, and smote the four corners of the house, and it fell upon the young men, and they died,—and escaped’ am ||[only I alone]|| to tell thee.

Then Job arose, and rent his robe, and shaved his head, and fell to the earth and worshipped; 21 and said—

Naked’ came I forth from the womb of my mother, And naked’ must I return thither, ||[Yahweh]|| gave, and ||[Yahweh]|| hath taken away,— The name of Yahweh be blessed!

22<In all this> Job sinned not,\(^a\) nor imputed folly unto God.

Chapter 2.

1 And there came a certain day when the sons of God entered in, to present themselves unto Yahweh,—so the accuser also’ entered in their midst, to present himself unto Yahweh. 2 And Yahweh said unto the accuser, Whence comest thou? And the accuser answered Yahweh, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from wandering about therein.

3 And Yahweh said unto the accuser, Hast thou applied thy heart unto my servant Job, that there is none’ like him in the earth, a man blameless and upright,\(^b\) one who revereth God, and avoideth evil; and still’ he is holding fast his integrity,\(^c\) although thou movest\(^d\) me against him, to swallow him up without cause.

4 Then the accuser answered Yahweh, and said, Skin for skin, and so <all that a man hath> will he give for his life.\(^e\)

Lo! I will wait yet a little while, looking out for my hope of deliverance!

5 ||In very deed|| put forth, I pray thee, thy hand, and smite unto his bone, and unto his flesh,— verily <unto thy face> will he curse\(^i\) thee.

6 And Yahweh said unto the accuser, Behold him! in thy hand,—only <his life> preserve thou!

7 So the accuser went forth from the presence of Yahweh,—and smote Job with a sore boil,\(^g\) from the sole of his foot, unto his crown.\(^i\) And he took him a potsherd, to scrape himself therewith; he being seated in the midst of ashes. 9 Then said his wife unto him,\(^h\)

Art thou still’ holding fast thine integrity? Curse\(^i\) God, and die!

10 And he said unto her, <As one of the base women speaketh> speakest thou? ||[Blessing]|| shall we accept from God, and ||[misfortune]|| shall we not accept?

<In all this> Job sinned not with his lips.

11 Now when the three friends of Job heard’ of all this misfortune which had befallen him,—they came, every man from his own place, Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite,—for they had by appointment met together to come to shew sympathy with him, and to comfort him. 12 And <when they lifted up their eyes afar off,> and knew him not> they lifted up their voice, and wept—and rent, every one his robe, and sprinkled dust upon their heads, toward the heavens. 13 And they sat with him upon the ground, seven days and seven nights,—and none was speaking unto him a word, for they saw that [exceeding great] was the stinging pain.

Job curses the Day on which he was Born.

Chapter 3.

1 |After this| opened Job his mouth, and cursed his day. 2 So then Job began,\(^j\) and said:—

when lo! thy memorial is cut off out of the earth, the sons and the daughters, the offspring of my womb and my pains, for whom I toiled vainly in distress; and [thou] <in the putridity of worms>* dost sit and tarry the night outside; and [||] am wandering and serving from place to place and from house to house; longing for such time as the sun shall go in, that I may rest from my wearying toil and from my pains which are wont to seize me now. 3 |Perish| the day' wherein I was born,
   And the night' it was said,
   Lo! a manchild!!
4 |That day| be it darkness,—
   Let not God enquire after it from above,
   May there shine upon it no clear beam:
5 Let darkness and death-shade buy it back, b
   May there settle down upon it a cloud,
   Let a day's dark eclipse cause it terror:
6 |That night| darkness take it,—
   May it not rejoice among the days of the year,
   |Into the number of months| let it not enter.
7 Lo! |that night| be it barren,
   Let no joyous shouting enter therein:
8 Let day-cursers denounce it,
||Those skilled in rousing the dragon of the sky|:
9 Darkened be the stars of its twilight,—
   Let it wait for light, and there be' none,
   Neither let it see the eyelashes of the dawn:—
10 Because it closed not the doors of the womb wherein I was,c—
   And so hid trouble from mine eyes.
11 Wherefore <in the womb>d did I not die?
   <From the womb> come forth and cease to breathe?
12 <For what reason> were there prepared for me—knees?
And why—breasts, that I might suck?
13 Surely <at once> had I lain down, and been quiet,
   I had fallen asleep, ||then|| had I been at rest:—
14 With kings, and counselors of the earth,
   Who had built them pyramids:e
15 Or with rulers possessing |gold|, —
   Who had filled their houses with silver:
16 Or that <like an untimely birth hidden away> I had not come into being,
   Like infants that never saw light:
17 There' ||the lawless|| cease from raging,
   And there' the toil'-worn are at rest:
18 At once' are prisoners at peace,
   They hear not the voice of a driver:
19 |Small and great| |there| they are',
   And ||the slave|| is free from his master,g
   Wherefore' give, to the wretched, ||light|?
Or |life|h to the embittered in soul?—
20 Who long for death, and it is' not,
   And have dug for it, beyond hid treasures:
21 Who rejoice unto exultation,
   Are glad, when they can find the grave:
22 To a man, whose way is concealed,
   And God hath straitly enclosed him?
23 For <in the face of my food| ||my sighing|| cometh in,
   And <poured out like the water> are my groans:
24 For  I dreaded, and it hath come upon me,
   And ||that from which I shrank|| hath overtaken me.
25 I was not careless, nor was I secure, nor had I settled down,—
   When there came—consternation!

Job's Three Friends, essaying to comfort him, assume his Guilt as the Cause of his Chastisement, and provoke bitter Replies from the Sufferer.

Chapter 4.

1 Then responded Eliphaz the Temanite, and said:—
2 <If one attempt a word unto thee> wilt thou be impatient?
   But <to restrain speech> who' can endure?
3 Lo! thou hast admonished many, And <slack hands> hast thou been wont to uphold:
4 <Him that was stumbling> have thy words raised up,
   And <sinking knees> hast thou strengthened.
5 But ||now|| it cometh upon thee,
   And thou despairest,
   It smiteth even thee,
   And thou art dismayed.
6 Is not ||thy reverence|| thy confidence?
   And is not |thy hope| ||the very integrity of thy ways||?i

Chapter 6.

1 Then responded Job, and said:—
2 Oh that [weighed] were my vexation,
And [my engulfing ruin—] into the balances
they would lift up all at once!

3 For [now] <beyond the sand of the seas> would it be heavy,
<On this account> [my words] have wandered.
4 For [the arrows of the Almighty] are in me,
<The heat whereof> my spirit is drinking up,
The [terror of God] array themselves against me.
5 Doth the wild ass’ bray over grass?
Or loweth the ox’ over his fodder?
6 Can that which hath no savour be eaten without salt?
Or is' there any taste in the white of an egg?
7 My soul hath refused to touch,
[Those things] are like disease in my food.
8 Oh that my request would come!
And <my hope> oh that [God] would grant!
9 That it would please [God] to crush me,
That he would set free his hand,
And I might exult in the anguish he would not spare,—
That I had not concealed the sayings of the Holy One.
10 What is my strength, that I should hope?
Or what mine end, that I should prolong my desire?
11 Is my strength [the strength of stones]?
Or is [my flesh] of bronze?
12 What is my strength, that I should hope?
Or what mine end, that I should prolong my desire?
13 Is there any help at all’ in me?
Is not [abiding success] driven from me?
14 [The despairing] [from his friend] should have lovingkindness,
Or <the reverence of the Almighty> he may forsake.
15 [Mine own brethren] have proved treacherous like a torrent,
Like a channel of torrents which disappear:
Which darken by reason of the cold,
<Over them> is a covering made by the snow:
17 <By the time they begin to thaw> they are dried up,
<As soon as it is warm> they have vanished out of their place.
Caravans turn aside by their course,
They go up into a waste, and are lost:

||The travelling companies of Sheba][ hoped for them:
They are ashamed that they had trusted,
They have come up to one of them, and are confounded.

Make me a gift,
Or [out of your abundance] offer a bribe on my behalf;
And deliver me from the hand of the adversary?
And [out of the hand of tyrants] ransom me?
Shew me, and [||] will hold my peace,
And [wherein I have erred] cause me to understand.

How pleasant are the sayings that are right! But what can a decision from you [decide]?
<To decide words> do ye intend,
When [to the wind] are spoken the sayings of one in despair?
Surely [the fatherless] ye would assail,
And make merchandise of your friend!
But [now] be pleased to turn to me,
That it may be [to your faces] if I speak falsehood.

Yea reply even yet, my vindication is in it!
Is’t there, in my tongue, perversity?
Or can [my sense] not discern [engulfing ruin]?

< Moment by moment > shouldst test him?
How long wilt thou not look away from me?
Wilt thou not let me alone, till I can swallow my spittle?
I have sinned,
What can I do for thee, thou watcher of men?
Wherefore hast thou set me as thine object of attack,
Or have I become, unto thee, a burden?
And why wilt thou not remove my transgression,
And take away mine iniquity?
For ||now|| in the dust should I lie down,
And thou shouldst seek me diligently, and I should not be.

Chapter 8.

1 Then responded Bildad the Shuhite, and said:—
2 How long wilt thou speak these things?
Or <as a mighty wind> shall be the sayings of thy mouth?
3 Should ||G D|| pervert justice?
Or ||the Almighty|| pervert righteousness?
4 <Though thy children> sinned against him,
And he delivered them into the hand of their transgression>
5 Yet <if thyself> wilt diligently seek unto GOD,—
And <unto the Almighty> wilt make supplication;
6 If <pure and upright> thyself shalt art
Surely ||now|| will he answer thy prayer,
And will prosper thy righteous' habitation:
7 So shall thy beginning appear small,—
When <thy latter end> he shall greatly increase!
8 For inquire, I pray thee, of a former generation,
And prepare thyself for the research of their fathers;—
9 For <of yesterday> are ||well||, and cannot know,
For  are our days upon earth:
10 Shall ||they|| not teach thee—tell thee,
And <out of their memory> bring forth words?
11 Can the paper-reed grow up, without a marsh?
Or the rush grow up, without water?
12 <Though while still [in its freshness] it be not plucked off>
Yet <before any kind of grass> it doth wither:
||So|| shall be the latter end of all who forget GOD,
And ||the hope of the impious|| shall perish:
Whose trust shall be contemptible,—
And  shall perish;
15 He leaneth upon his house, and it will not stand,
He holdeth it fast, and it will not remain erect.
16 Full of moisture he is', before the sun,
And <over his garden> his shoot goeth forth:
17 <Over a heap> his roots are entwined,
<A place of stones> he descrieth;
18 <If one destroy him out of his place>
Then will it disown him [saying]—
I have not seen thee.
19 Lo! ||that|| is the joy of his way,—
And <out of the dust> shall others spring up.
20 Lo! ||G D|| will not reject a blameless man,
Neither will he grasp the hand of evil-doers:
21 At length he shall fill with laughter thy mouth,
And thy lips, with a shout of triumph:
22 ||They who hate thee|| shall be clothed with shame,—
But ||the tent of the lawless|| shall not be!

Chapter 9.

<If he choose to contend with him>
He cannot answer him, one of a thousand:
Wise in heart, and alert in vigour
What man hath hardened himself against him, and prospered!
Who moveth mountains, unawares,
Who overturneth them in his anger;
Who shaketh the earth, out of its place,
And the pillars thereof shudder;
Who commandeth the sun, and it breaketh not forth,
And about the stars he putteth a seal;
Who spreadeth out the heavens, by himself alone!
And marcheth along, on the heights of the sea;
Who made the Bear, the Giant and the Cluster,
And the chambers of the south;
Who doeth great things, past finding out, And many number.
Lo! he cometh upon me, yet can I not see him,
yea he passeth on, yet can I not discern him.
Lo! he snatcheth away, who can bring it back?
Who shall say unto him, What wouldst thou do?
As for God if he withdraw not his anger
<Under him> will have submitted themselves—the proud helpers.
How much less that shall answer him, Should choose my words with him?
Whom though I were righteous yet would I not answer,
To be absolved I would make supplication.
Though I had called, and he had answered me
I could not believe, that he would lend an ear to my voice.
For would he fall upon me, And would multiply my wounds without need;
He would not suffer me to recover my breath,
For he would surfeit me with bitter things.
If it regardeth vigour bold is he!

<If justice> who could summon him?<sup>k</sup>
<If I should justify myself> mine own mouth would condemn me,—
<If I' blamless?> then had it shewn me perverse.
<If I' blamless?> I should not know my own soul,
I should despise my own life!
One thing there is', for which cause I have said it,
The blamless and the lawless he bringeth to an end.
If [a scourge] slay suddenly,
At the despair of innocent ones he mocketh.
The earth hath been given into the hand of a handless one,
The faces of her judges he covereth, If not then who is' it?
My days therefore, are swifter than a runner, They have fled, they have seen no good.
They have passed away, with boats of paper-reed,
Like a vulture [which] rusheth upon food.
If I say, I will forget my complaint, I will lay aside my sad countenance, and brighten up,
I am afraid of all my pains, I know, that thou wilt not pronounce me innocent.
Shall be held guilty,— Wherefore then should I toil?
Though I bathe myself in snow water, And cleanse, in cleanliness itself, my hands Then in a ditch wouldst thou plunge me, And mine own clothes' should abhor me:
For he is not a man like myself, whom I might answer,
Nor could we come together' into judgment:
There is' not, between us, a mediator, Who might lay his hand upon us both.
Let him take from off me his rod, And his terror let it not startle me:<sup>p</sup>

Chapter 10.

1 My soul doth loathe my life,—
I let loose my complaint,
I speak, in the bitterness of my soul.
2 I say unto God,
Do not hold me guilty,
Let me know, on what account’ thou contendest with me!
3 Is it seemly in thee, that thou shouldst oppress?
That thou shouldst despise’ the labour of thine own hand,
When <upon the counsel of the lawless> thou hast shone?
4 <Eyes of flesh> hast thou?
Or <as a mortal seeth> seest thou?
5 <As the days of a mortal> are thy days?
Or |[thy years]| as the days of a man?
6 That thou shouldst seek for mine iniquity,
And <for my sin> shouldst make search:
7 <Though it is |within thine own knowledge|>
that I would not be lawless,
And ||none| <out of thy hand> can deliver?
8 ||Thine own hands|| shaped me, and made me,
All in unison round about, and yet thou hast confounded me.
9 Remember, I pray thee, that <as clay> thou
didst make me,
And <unto dust> thou wilt cause me to return.
10 Didst thou not, <like milk> pour me forth?
And <as cheese> curdle me?
11 <With skin and flesh> clothe me?
And <with bones and sinews> interweave me?
12 <Life and lovingkindness> thou didst bestow upon me,—
And ||thy watchful care|| preserved my breath.\(^a\)
13 Yet <these things> thou didst hide in thy heart,
I know, that ||this|| hath been with thee!
14 <If I have sinned> then couldst thou watch me.\(^b\)
And <from mine iniquity> thou wouldst not acquit me:
15 <If I have been lawless> alas for me!

Or <if I am righteous> I will not lift up my head, <Surfeited with shame> look thou then on my humiliation.\(^c\)
16 <When it is lifted up> |like a howling lion| thou
dost hunt me,
Then again’ thou dost shew thyself marvellous against me.
17 Thou renewest thy witnesses before me,
And dost increase thy vexation with me,
||Relays—yea an army|| is with me.
18 Wherefore’ then <from the womb> didst thou bring me forth?
I might have breathed my last, and ||no eye||
have seen me.
19 <As though I had not been> should I have become,—
<From the womb to the grave> might I have been borne.\(^d\)
20 Are not my days |few|?—then forbear,\(^e\)
And set me aside, that I may brighten up for a little;
21 Before I go, and not return,
Unto a land of darkness and death-shade:
22 A land of obscurity, like thick darkness,
Of death-shade and disorder,
And which shineth like thick darkness.

Chapter 11.

1 Then responded Zophar the Naamathite, and said:—
2 Should ||the multitude of words|| not be

Or should ||a man full of talk|| be justified?
3 Shall ||thy pratings|| cause men to hold their peace?
<When thou hast mocked> shall there be none’

4 Since thou hast said,
Right’ is my doctrine,
And pure’ am I in his\(^g|\) eyes.
5 But <in very deed> oh that God would speak,
That he would open his lips with thee:
6 That he would declare to thee the secrets of wisdom,

For they are double to that which actually is,²—
Know then that God could bring into forgetfulness for thee, a portion of thine iniquity.
7 The hidden depth of God canst thou discover?
Or <unto the furthest limit of the Almighty> canst thou attain?³
8 <The heights of the heavens> what canst thou do?
<Depths deeper than hades> what canst thou know?
9 <Longer than the earth> is the measure thereof,
And broader than the sea.
10 <If he sweep on, or shut up, or call together> Who then shall hinder him?
11 For <he> knoweth men of falsity,
And seeth iniquity, and him that doth not diligently consider.
12 But <an empty person> will get sense,d
When  is born a man!e
13 <If thou> hast prepared thy heart,
And wilt spread forth, unto him, thy hands—
14 <If> iniquity be in thy hand>
Put it far away,
And let there not dwell in thy tentsf perversityg
15 Surely <then> shalt thou lift up thy face free from blemish,
And shalt be established, and not fear.
16 For <now> shall thou forget [sorrow],
<Like waters passed away> shalt thou remember it.
17 <Above high noon> shall rise life’s continuance,
||[Darkness] <like a morning> shall appear,
And thou shalt be confident, that there is’ hope,
And <when thou hast searched>b securely’ shalt thou lie down;
19 And shalt rest, with none’ to put thee in terror,—
And many shall entertain thy favour.
20 But ||[the eyes of the lawless] shall fail,—
And ||place of refuge] shall have vanished from them,
And ||their hope] be a breathing out of life.¹

1 Then responded Job, and said:—
2 <Of a truth> ||[ye] are the people,

3 ||[I also] have a mind like you,
||[I] fall not short of you,²
But who’ hath not’ such things as these?
4 <A laughing-stock to one’s neighbour> do I become,
One who hath called upon God and he hath answered him!
A laughing-stock—a righteous man without blame!
5 <For ruin> there is contempt, in the thought of the man at ease,—
Ready, for such as are of faltering foot!
6 At peace’ are the tents that belong to the spoilers,
And there is security to them who provoke God,
To him who bringeth a god in his hand.
7 But ||[in very deed] ask, I pray thee, the beasts,
And they will teach thee,
And the bird of the heavens, and it will tell thee;
Or address the earth, and it will teach thee,
And the fishes of the sea [will recount it to thee]:
Who’ knoweth not, among all these,
That ||[the hand of Yahweh]b hath done this?
10 In whose hand is the soul of every living thing,
And the spirit of all the flesh of men.
11 Doth not ||[the ear] try [words]?
Even as ||[the palate] tasteth for itself ||[food]?
12 <In the Ancient> is wisdom,
And <[in] Length of Days> understanding:

1 Lo! <all [this]> hath mine own eye seen,— Methought mine ear had heard and understood it:
2 <Just as ye know> I too know, ||[II]|| fall not short [of you],
3 [But indeed] ||[III]|| unto the Almighty would speak,

5 Oh that ye would ||altogether hold your peace||,

8 Even <for him> would ye be partial?
Or <for God> would ye [so] plead?
9 Would it be well, when he searched you out?

10 He will ||severely rebuke|| you,

11 Shall not [his majesty] overwhelm you?
And [the dread of him] fall upon you?
12 Are not your memorable sayings, proverbs of ashes?

Nevertheless <my ways—unto his face> will I show to be right:
16 ||Even he|| will be on my side—unto salvation,
For <not before his face> shall any impious person come.
17 Hear ye patiently my speech,
And be my declaration in your ears.
18 Lo! I pray you, I have set forth in order a plea,
I know that [III] shall be found right.
19 Who is it that shall contend with me?
For [now] <if I should hold my peace> why! I should breathe my last!
20 Only <two things> do thou not with me,κ
[[Then]] <from thy face> will I not hide me:—

1
||Man that is born of a woman||
Is of few days, and full of trouble:
2
<As a flower> he cometh forth—and fadeth,
He fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not.
3
<And yet upon such a one as this> hast thou opened thine eye? —G.n.
And <him> wouldst thou bring into judgment with thee?
4
Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean?
Not one!
5
<If determined> are his days> [the number of his months] is with thee,
<Fixed times> for him> thou hast appointed and he cannot go beyond.
6
Look away from him, that he may rest,
Till he shall pay off, as a hireling, his day.
7
<Though there is>—for a tree—hope,—
<If it should be cut down> that [again] it will grow,
And <[the tender branch thereof]> will not cease;
8
If its root should become old in the earth,
And <in the dust> its stock should die:
9
<Through the scent of water> it may break forth,
And produce branches like a sapling;
10
Yet ||man|| dieth, and is prostrate,

<My transgression and my sin> let me know!
Wherefore <thy face> shouldst thou hide?
Or count me, as an enemy to thee?
24
<A driven leaf> wilt thou cause to tremble?
Or <dry stubble> wilt thou pursue?
26
For thou writest, against me, bitter things,
And dost make me inherit the iniquities of my youth;
27
And thou dost put—in the stocks—my feet,
And observest all my paths,
<Against the roots of my feet> thou dost cut out a bound;
28
And ||[a man himself]] <as a rotten thing> weareth out,
As a garment which the moth' hath eaten.

And ||[a river] may waste and dry up;
12
So ||[a man] hath lain down, and shall not arise,—
Until there are no heavens> they shall not awake,
Nor be roused up out of their sleep.
13
Oh that <in hades> thou wouldst hide me!
That thou wouldst keep me secret, until the turn of thine anger,
That thou wouldst set for me a fixed time, and remember me:
14
<If a man die> can he live again?
<All the days of my warfare> would I wait,
Until my relief should come:—
15
Thou shouldst call, and ||[l] would answer thee,—
<For the work of thine own hand> thou shouldst long.
16
For ||[now]|| <my steps> thou countest,
Thou wilt not pass over' my sin:
17
<Sealed up in a bag> is my transgression,
And thou hast glued over mine iniquity.
18
But ||in very deed|| ||[a mountain falling]|| will lie prostrate,

And mine eye doth rest.

2 And appoint thee, be thou surety for me with thyself,
Who is there that, on my side, can pledge himself?

3 Therefore hath mine eye become dim from vexation,
And my members are like a shadow, all of them.

4 Upright men shall be astounded over this,
And against the impious shall rouse themselves.

5 That the righteous may hold on his way,
And the clean of hands increase in strength.

6 But indeed, as for them all will ye bethink yourselves and enter into it, I pray you?
Or shall I not find, among you, one who is wise?

7 My days are past, my purposes are broken off,
The possessions of my heart!

8 If I wait for hades as my house,
In darkness have spread out my couch;

9 To corruption have exclaimed, My father thou!
My mother! and My sister! to the worm!

10 Where then? would be my hope?
And as for my blessedness who should see it!

11 With me to hades would they go down,
If into the dust is the descent!

Chapter 18.

1 Then responded Bildad the Shuhite, and said:—

2 How long will ye make a perversion of words?
Ye should understand, and afterwards we could speak.

3 Wherefore are we accounted like beasts?
Or appear stupid, in thine eyes?

4 One tearing in pieces his own soul in his anger—
For thy sake shall the earth be forsaken?

5 Even the light of the lawless shall go out,—
Neither shall shine the flame of his fire;

6 The light hath darkened in his tent,
Yea his lamp above him goeth out;
The steppings of his strength are hemmed in,
And his own counsel casteth him down;

7 For he is thrust into a net by his own feet,
And upon a trap he marcheth;

8 There catcheth him—by the heel—a gin,
There holdeth him fast—a noose:

9 Concealed in the ground is a cord for him,—
And a snare for him, on the path.

10 Let his strength be famished,
And calamity be ready at his side;

11 Let it devour the members of his body,
Let the firstborn of death devour his members;

12 Uprooted, out of his tent, be his confidence,
And let it drive him down to the king of terrors;

13 There shall dwell in his tent, what is naught-of-his,
Let brimstone be strewed over his dwelling;

14 Beneath let his roots be dried up,
And above be cut off his branch;

15 His memorial have perished out of the land,
And let him have no name over the face of the open field;

16 Let them thrust him out of light into darkness,
Yea out of the world let them chase him;

17 Let him have neither scion nor seed among his people,
Neither any survivor in his place of sojourn:

18 If we do not know what we are saying?

19 Or: “Terror shall dwell in his tent so that it is no more his.”
And <them who are in advance> a shudder hath seized.

21 Surely [these] are the dwellings of him that is perverse,
And [this] is the place of him that knoweth not GOD.

Chapter 19.

1 Then responded Job, and said:—

2 How long' will ye grieve my soul?
Or crush me with words?
3 <These ten times> have ye reviled me,
Shameless, ye wrong me;
4 <And even if indeed I have erred>
With myself I lodgeth mine error.
5 <If indeed <against me> ye must needs magnify
And plead, against me, my reproach>
6 Know, then, that ||God|| hath overthrown me,
And <within his net> enclosed me.

7 Lo! I cry—out Violence! but receive no answer,
I cry aloud, but there is no vindication;
8 <My way> hath he walled up, that I cannot pass,
And <upon my paths> hath he made darkness rest;
9 <My glory—from off me> hath he stripped,
And hath removed the crown of my head;
10 He hath ruined me on every side, and I am gone,
And he hath taken away—like a tree—my hope;
11 Yea he hath kindled against me his anger,
And accounted me towards him like unto his adversaries;
12 <Together> enter his troops,
And have cast up, against me, their mound,
And have encamped all around my tent;
13 <My Brethren—from beside me> hath he moved far away,
And ||mine acquaintance|| are wholly estranged
from me;
14 <Failed me> have my near of kin,
And ||mine intimate acquaintance|| have forgotten me;
15 ||Ye guests of my house and my maidens||

^A stranger^ have ye accounted me,
^An alien^ have I become in their eyes;
^To mine own servant^ I called, and he would not answer,
^With mine own mouth^ I kept entreating him;
||My breath|| is strange to my wife,
And I am loathsome to the sons of my own mother;
||Even young children|| despise me,
I rise up, and they speak against me;
All the men of mine intimate circle abhor me,
And ||these whom I loved|| have turned against me;
Unto my skin and unto my flesh have my bones cleaved,
And I have escaped with the skin of my teeth.

21 Pity me! pity me! ||ye, my friends||
For ||the hand of God|| hath stricken me!
22 Wherefore should ye persecute me as GOD?
And <with my flesh> should not he satisfied?
23 Oh, then, that my words |could be written|,
Oh that <in a record> they could be inscribed:
That <with a stylus of iron and |with| lead>
<For all time—in the rock> they could be graven!

25 But ||I|| know that |my redeemer| liveth,
And <as the Last> over |my| dust will he arise;
And ||though after my skin is struck off this followeth| ≥
Yet <apart from my flesh> shall I see God:
Whom ||myself|| shall see, on my side,
And ||mine own eyes|| shall have looked upon,
and not [those of] a stranger.
Exhausted are my deepest desires in my bosom!

28 Surely ye should say—
Why should we persecute him?
Seeing ||the root of the matter|| is found in me;^j^ Be ye afraid—on your part—of the face of the sword,
Because ||wrath|| [bringeth] the punishments of the sword,
To the end ye may know the Almighty.\^k^
Chapter 20.

Then responded Zophar the Naamathite, and said:—

[Not so] do my thoughts answer me, And to this’ end, is my haste within me:

\(<\text{The correction meant to confound me}\> I must hear, But \([\text{the spirit—out of my understanding}]] \text{ will give me a reply}.\)

Chapter 21.

Then responded Job, and said:—

Did <unto man> make my complaint?
Wherefore, then, should my spirit not be impatient?
Turn round to me, and be astonished, And lay hand on mouth!
Wherefore do [lawless men] live, Advance in years, ||even wax mighty in power||?
||Their seed|| is established in their sight [along with them],
Yea their offspring, before their eyes;
||Their houses|| are at peace, without dread, Neither is ||the rod of G[od]|| upon them;
||His bull|| covereth, a and causeth not aversion, His cow safely calveth, and casteth not her young;
They send forth—like a flock—their young ones, And [their children] skip about for joy;
They rejoice aloud asb [with] timbrel and lyre, And make merry to the sound of the pipe;c
They complete, d in prosperity, their days, And <in a moment to hades> they sink down.
Yet they said unto GOD,
Depart from us, and <In the knowledge of thy ways> find we no pleasure.
What is the Almighty, that we should serve him?
Or what shall we profit, that we should urge him?
Lo! <not in their own hand> is their welfare,
||The counsel of lawless men|| is far from me!
||How oft|| [the lamp of the lawless] goeth out, And their calamity [cometh upon them],
<Sorrows> apportioneth he in his anger;
They become as straw before the wind, And as chaff, which the storm stealeth away.
Shall ||G[od]|| reserve [for his children] his sorrow? Let him recompense him’ so that he may know it;
||His own eyes|| shall see his misfortune, And <the wrath of the Almighty> shall he drink.

For what shall be his pleasure in his house after him,
When ||the number of his months|| is cut in twain?
Is it <to GOD> one can teach knowledge,
Seeing that [he] shall judge [them who are on high]?
||This|| man dieth, in the very perfection of his prosperity,
Wholly’ tranquil and secure;
||His veins|| are filled with nourishment,§
And ||the marrow of his bones|| is fresh;
Whereas [this other man] dieth, in bitterness of soul,
And hath never tasted good fortune:
||Together|| [in the dust] they lie down, And [the worm] spreadeth a covering over them.
Lo! I know your plans,
And the devices, wherewith ye would do me violence!
For ye say,
Where is the house of the noble-minded?
And where the dwelling—tent of the lawless?
Have ye not asked’ the passers-by in the way?
And <their signs> can ye not recognise?
That <to the day of calamity> is the wicked reserved,
<To the day of indignant visitation> are they led.
Who can declare—to his face—his way?
And <what ||he|| hath done> who shall recompense to him?
Yet ||the graves|| is borne,
And <over the tomb> one keepeth watch;
Pleasant to him are the mounds b of the torrent-bed,—
And <after him> doth every man march, As <before him> there were, without’ number.
How then should ye comfort me with vanity, Since <as for your replies> there lurketh [in them] treachery?

Chapter 22.

1 Then responded Eliphaz the Temanite, and said:—

2 <Unto GOD> can a man act as friend?
   Surely a discreet man befriendedeth himself!

3 Is it a pleasure to the Almighty, that thou shouldest be righteous?
   Or any profit, that thou shouldest be blameless in thy ways?

4 Is it <for thy reverence> that he will accuse thee?
   will enter with thee into judgment?

5 Is not thy wickedness great?
   And <without end> are not thine iniquities?

6 Surely then hast been wont to put thy brother in pledge [for nothing],
   And <the garments of the ill-clad> hast thou stripped off:

7 <No water>—to the weary hast thou given to drink,
   And <from the hungry> thou hast withheld bread:

8 <A man of might> || to him pertaineth the land,
   And |the favourite| dwelleth therein:

9 <Widows> thou hast sent away empty,
   And |the arms of the fatherless| thou dost crush.

10 <For this cause> || round about thee| are snares,
   And a dread startleth thee suddenly;

11 Or darkness—thou canst not see,
   And |a flood of waters| covereth thee.

12 Is not |God| in the height of the heavens?
   Behold, then, the head of the stars, that they are high.

13 Wilt thou say then,
   What doth GOD know?

14 ||Dark clouds|| are a veil to him, and he cannot see,
   Or <the vault of the heavens> doth he walk?

15 <The path of the ancient time> wilt thou mark,
   Which the men of iniquity trod?

16 Who were snatched away before the time,

And ||a stream|| washed away their foundation?

Who had been saying unto GOD,
   Depart from us! and—

What can the Almighty do for himself?

Yet ||he|| had filled their houses with good!
   ||The counsel of the lawless|| then is far from me:

The righteous shall see and rejoice,
   And <the innocent> shall laugh them to scorn:

If our assailants' do not vanish
   Then <their abundance> a fire consumeth!

Shew thyself to be one with him—I pray thee—and prosper, <Thereby> shall there come on thee blessing.

Accept, I beseech thee, from his mouth—instruction,—
   And lay up his sayings in thy heart.

If thou return unto the Almighty and submit thyself:
   If thou far remove perversity from thy tent,

Then lay up, in the dust, precious ore,
   And <among the stones of the torrent-beds> fine gold:

So shall [the Almighty] become [thy precious ores]
   Yea glittering silver unto thee!

For ||then|| <in the Almighty> shalt thou take exquisite delight,
   And shalt lift up—unto God—thy face;

Thou shalt make entreaty unto him, and he will hear thee,
   And <thy vows> shalt thou pay;

And thou shalt decree a purpose, and it shall be fulfilled unto thee,
   And <upon thy ways> shall have shone a light;

When men cast themselves down then thou shalt say Up!
   And <him that is of downcast eyes> shall he save;

He shall deliver the innocent,
   And thou shalt escape by the pureness of thy hands.

Chapter 23.

1 Then responded Job, and said:—

2 <Even to-day> is my complaint’ rebellion?
   ||[His hand]|| is heavier than my groaning.

3 Oh that I knew where I might find him!
   I would come even unto his dwelling-place;

4 I would set out, before him, a plea,
   And <my mouth> would I fill with arguments;

5 I would note the words wherewith he would respond to me,
   And would mark’ what he would say to me.

6 Would he <with fulness of might> contend with me?
   Nay, surely [he] would give heed to me!

7 ||There’ an upright man|| might reason with him,
   So should I deliver myself completely from my judge.

8 Behold! <eastward> I go, but he is not there,
   And <westward> but I perceive him not;

9 <On the north, where he worketh> but I get no vision,
   He hideth himself on the south’ that I cannot see him.

10 But [he] knoweth the way that I choose, e
   <Having tried me> [as gold] I shall come forth.

11 <Of his steps> my foot’ taketh hold,
   <His way> have I kept, and not swerved;

12 <The command of his lips> and would not go back,
   And [in my bosom]d have I treasured the words of his lips.

13 But [he] is one, e and who can turn him?
   <What his soul desired> he hath done.

14 Surely he will accomplish what is decreed for me,
   And <many such things> hath he in store.f

15 ||For this cause|| <from his presence> am I driven in fear,
   I diligently consider’ and am kept back from him
   in dread:

16 Yea [[GOD]] hath made timidb my heart,
   And [[the Almighty]] hath put me in terror.
   Because I was not cut off before the darkness,
   Nor <before my face> did the gloomth form a shroud.

Chapter 24.

1 Wherefore <since from the Almighty times’ are not hid>
   Have [his knowing ones][l] no vision of his days?

2 <Boundaries> men move back;f

3 <Flocks> they seize and consume;

4 <The ass of the fatherless> they drive off,
   They take in pledge the ox of the widow;

5 They turn aside the needy out of the way,
   [At once] are the humbledk of the land made to hide themselves.

6 ![as] wild asses in the wilderness> they go forth withi their work,
   Eager seekers for prey,
   ||The waste plain|| yieldeth them food for their young;

7 <In the field—a man’s fodder> they cut down,
   And <the vineyard of the lawless> they strip of its late berries;m

8 <Ill-clad> they are left to lodge without clothing,
   And have no’ covering in the cold;

9 <With the sweeping rain of the mountains> are they wet,
   And <through having no shelter> they embrace a rock.

10 Men tear, from the breast, the fatherless,
   And <over the poor> they take a pledge;

11 <Naked> they go about without clothing,
   And <famished> they carry the sheaves;

12 <Between their walls> are they exposed to the sun.n

13 <Wine-presses> they tread, and yet are thirsty;

14 <Out of the city—out of the houses>o they make outcry,
   And ||the soul of the wounded|| calleth for help,
   And ||[God]|| doth not regard it as foolish.

1 Then responded Bildad the Shuhite, and said:—

||They|| have become rebels against the light,—
They are not acquainted with the ways thereof,
Neither abide they in the paths thereof.

<With the light> riseth the murderer,
He slayeth the poor and needy,
And <in the night> he becometh like a thief.
And ||the eye of the adulterer|| watcheth for the evening twilight,
Saying Not an eye will see me!
<A covering for the face> he putteth on;
He breaketh, in the dark, into houses,—
<By day> they lock themselves in,
They know not the light;
For <in the case of all such> morning to them is the death-shade,
For <to be recognised> is a death-shade terror.

Swift' is he on the face of the waters,
Speedily vanishedb their share in the land,
He turneth not to the way of the vineyards.

And <to the widow> he doeth not good;
Yea he draggeth along the mighty by his strength,
He riseth up, and none hath assurance of life;

They hang down, <away from men> sway to and fro;

||As for the earth|| <out of it> cometh forth bread,

And <under it> is upturned, as it were fire;

<The place of sapphires> are the stones thereof,

And it hath ||nuggets of gold||:—

A path, the vulture’ hath not discerned,
Nor hath the eye of the hawk’ scanned it;

Ravenous beasts² have not made a track thereof,
Neither² hath the lion’ marched thereon:

<Upon the flint> hath he thrust forth his hand,
He hath turned up mountains by the roots;

<Among the rocks> hath he cut open streams,
And <every precious thing> hath his eye seen:

<From trickling> he restraineth |rivers|,
And <some hidden thing> is he bringing out to light>.

Yet where can ||Wisdom|| be found?
And where is’ the place of understanding?
Mortal knoweth not the way³ thereof,
Neither can it be found in the land of the living;

||The resounding deep|| hath said, It’ is |not in me|!
And [the sea]| has said, It is not’ with me!
Pure gold cannot be given in its stead,
Neither can silver’ be weighed as the value’ thereof;

It cannot be put into the scales against the gold of Ophir,
With costly onyx, or sapphire;

Neither gold nor crystal can compare with it,
Nor can ||the exchange thereof|| be a vessel⁵ of pure gold,

||Coral or crystal|| cannot be mentioned,
Yea  is wisdom, above red coral;⁶

The topaz of Ethiopia cannot compare with it, <Against purest gold> can it not be weighed.

Whence then cometh ||wisdom||?
And where is’ the place of understanding?

Seeing it hath been hid from the eyes of every living thing,
And <from the bird of the heavens> hath it been concealed?

||Destruction and death|| have said,
<With our ears> have we heard the report thereof!

||God|| understandeth the way thereof,
And [he] discerneth the place thereof;
For [he] <unto the ends of the earth> directeth his look,

<Under all the heavens> he seeth;
Making <for the wind> a weight,
And <the waters> he proved by measure,

<When he made <for the rain> a decree,
And a way’ for the lightning of thunders>²

||Then|| saw he it, and declared it,
He settled² it, yea also he searched it out;

And said to the son of earth,
Lo! <the reverence of the Lord>⁹ |that is wisdom,
And ||to avoid evil|| is understanding.

Chapter 29.

And Job again took up his measure, and said:—

Oh that it were with me as in the months of old,
As in the days when ||God|| used to watch over me;

When his lamp shone over my head,
<By whose light> I could go through darkness;
As I was, in the days of my prime,¹
When ||the intimacy of God|| was over my tent;

While yet’ the Almighty was with me,
<Round about me> were my young men;

When my steps were bathed in milk,
And ||the rock|| poured out beside me, rivulets of oil:

<When I went out to the gate unto the city,
|In the open place| made ready my seat>³
Young men saw me, and hid themselves,
And ||the aged|| arose—they stood;

||Rulers|| restrained speech,

¹ Or. “counsel”—Cp. T.G.
And a hand laid they on their mouth;
The voice of nobles was hushed, And their tongue did cleave;
When the ear heard, then it pronounced me happy,
When the eye saw then it bare me witness;
Because I used to deliver the oppressed who was crying out for aid.
The fatherless also, and him that had no helper;
The blessing of him that was ready to perish upon me was wont to descend,
And the heart of the widow caused I to sing for joy;
Righteousness I put on, and it clothed me,
Like a robe and turban was my justice;
Eyes became I to the blind, And feet to the lame was I
A father was to the needy, And as for the cause which I knew not I used to search it out;
And I shivered the fangs of the perverse,— And out of his teeth I tare the prey.
Then said I,
Shall I grow old,
My root is laid open to the waters, And my boughs shall lodge for the night in my boughs;
Mine honour shall be young again with me, And my bow in my hand be renewed.
Men hearkened, and waited, And kept silence for my counsel;
They spake not again, And they waited as for rain for me,
And their mouths they opened wide for the spring-rain;
I laughed at them—they lost confidence, And the light of my countenance they suffered not to fail;
I chose out their way, and sat chief,—
And abode, as king, in an army,
As one who, to mourners, giveth comfort.

Chapter 30.

But they are of fewer days than I, have poured derision upon me;
Whose fathers I refused—
To set with the dogs of my flock.
Even the strength of their hands werefore' was it mine?
Upon them vigour was lost;
In want and hunger they were lean,—
Who used to gnaw the dry ground,
A dark night of desolation!

Who used to pluck off the mallow by the bushes,
With the root of the broom for their food;
Out of the midst were they driven,
Men shouted after them, as after a thief;
In the fissures of the ravines had they to dwell,
In holes of dust and crags;
Among the bushes used they to shriek,
Under the bramble were they huddled together:
Sons of the base, yea sons of the nameless
They were scourged out of the land.
But

Therefore the bridle—in my presence cast they off;
On my right hand the young brood rose up,—
My feet they thrust aside, And cast up against me their earthworks of destruction;
They brake up my path,
<My engulfing ruin> they helped forward [unaided];
14 As through a wide breach> came they on,
<With a crashing noise> they rolled themselves along.
15 There are turned upon me terrors,—
|Chased away as with a wind| is mine abundance,
And <as a cloud> hath passed away my prosperity.
16 ||Now|| therefore <over myself> my soul poureth itself out,
There seize me days of affliction:
17 ||Night|| boreth [my bones] all over me,—
And ||[my sinews]|| find no rest;
18 <Most effectually> is my skin’ disfigured,²—
<Like the collar³ of my tunic>c it girdeth me about:
19 He hath cast me into the mire,
And I have become like dust and ashes.
20 I cry out for help unto thee, and thou dost not answer,e
I stand still, and thou dost gaze at me;
21 Thou art turned to become a cruel one unto me,
<With the might of thy hand> thou assaiest me;
22 Thou liftest up me to the wind, thou carriest me away,
And the storm maketh me faint;f
23 For I know that <unto death> thou wilt bring me back,g
Even unto the housea of meeting for every one living.
24 Only <against a heap of ruins> will one not thrust a hand!
Surely <when one is in calamity—for that very reason> is there an outcry for help.
25 Verily I wept, for him whose lot was hard,
Grieved was my soul, for the needy.
26 Surely <for good> I looked, but there came in evil,
And I waited for light, but there came in darkness;
27 I boiled within me, and rested not,
There confronted me—days of affliction;
28 <In gloom> I walked along, without sun,
I arose—<in the convocation> I cried out for help;
29 <A brother> became I to the brutes that howl,
And a companion’ to the birds that screech:
30 ||My skin|| turned black, and peeled off me,
And ||[my bones]|| burned with heat:
Thus is attuned to mourning—my lyre,
And my flute, to the noise of them who weep.

Chapter 31.

1 <A covenant> I solemnised for my eyes,—
How then could I gaze upon a virgin?
Or what would have been my portion of God from above?
Or what inheritance of the Almighty from on high?
3 Is there not calamity, for the perverse?
And misfortune, for the workers of iniquity?
4 Would [he] not see my ways?

Chapter 32.

So these three men ceased to respond to Job, because [he] was righteous in their eyes. Then was kindled the anger of Elihu, son of Barachel the Buzite of the family of Ram,—<against Job> was kindled his anger, because he justified his own soul rather than God; and <against his three friends> was kindled his anger,—because that they found not a response, and condemned God. But ||Elihu|| had waited for Job with words, because the others were older than he. <when Elihu saw that there was no response, and condemned God.> So then Elihu, son of Barachel, the Buzite, responded and said:—

|Young| am I|, whereas ||ye| are aged, <For this cause> I faltered, and feared—To shew my knowledge unto you:

I said, ||Days|| should speak,—And ||the multitude of years|| should make known wisdom.

||Yet surely|| there is a spirit in men, And ||the inspiration of the Almighty|| giveth them understanding;

||Great men|| may not’ be wise’, Nor ||elders|| understand justice.

Therefore|| I said, Hearken unto me, I will shew my knowledge—||even I||.

Lo! I waited for your words, I kept giving ear for your reasons, Until ye should search out what to say; Yea <unto you> gave I diligent heed,— But lo! there was, for Job, nothing to convince, Nor could one of you answer his speeches.

Lest ye should say, We have found out wisdom.

Chapter 33.

But <in very deed> hear, I pray thee, Job, my discourse, And <to all my words> give thou ear. Lo! I pray thee, I have opened my mouth, My tongue, with my palate, hath spoken, Mine utterances come straight from mine own heart, And <what I know> my lips have truly spoken; ||The spirit of God|| hath made me, And ||the inspiration of the Almighty|| giveth me life.

<If thou art able to answer me> Set in order before me—take thy stand! Lo! I’ am like thyself* toward GOD, <From clay> have I been nipped off||<even I>||! Lo! ||my terror|| will not startle thee,* Nor ||my hand|| upon thee be heavy.

But thou hast spoken in mine ears, And <the sound of words> I heard:— Pure’ am ||I||, without transgression,— *a “As the Sep. rightly has it”—G. Intro. 361.

b The Massorete reading, “Job,” was substituted by the Sopherim for the original reading, “God,” because this “was considered blasphemous.” “The context shows that the original reading is preferable”—G. Intro. 361. [Cp. also chap. xxxiv. 5].

f So it shd be (w. Sep.)—G.n.
Clean' am ||l||, and have no iniquity;
Lo! <occasions of hostility> would he find against' me,
He counteth a me an enemy to him;
He putteth—in the stocks—my feet,
He watcheth all my paths.
Lo! <in this> thou hast not been right—let me answer thee,
For [God] is greater than [man].
Wherefore <against him> hast thou contended?
For <with none of his reasons> will he respond.
For <in one way> God' may speak,—
And <in a second way> one may not heed it:—
In a dream a vision of the night,
When a deep sleep falleth upon men,
In slumberings upon the bed>
||Then|| uncovereth he the ear of men,
And <on their correction> affixeth a seal;
To turn a son of earth from his deed,
While yet <pride> from man he concealeth:
He keepeth back his soul from the pit,
And his life' from passing away by a weapon.
Or he is chastised with pain, upon his bed,
And [the strife of his bones] is unceasing!
So that his life maketh loathsome [his] food,
And his soul', dainty meat;
His flesh wasteth away out of sight,
And bared are the bones once unseen;
So doth his soul' draw near to the pit,
And his life' to the inflictors of death:
If there hath been near him a messenger who could interpret—
One of a thousand,
To declare to the son of earth His uprightness>
Then hath he shewed him favour, and said,
Set him free from going down to the pit,
I have found a price of redemption!
His flesh hath been made fresher than a child's,
He hath returned to the days of his youth;
He made supplication unto God, who hath accepted him,
And he hath beheld his face with a shout of triumph,
Thus hath he given back to man his righteousness.
He sang before men, and said,
I sinned, and <uprightness> I perverted,
Yet he required me not;
He hath ransomed my soul from passing away into the pit,—
And my life <in the light> shall have vision.
Lo! <all these things> doth God work,
Two ways, three, with a man;
To bring back his soul from the pit,
To enlighten with the light of the living.
Mark well, O Job, and hearken to me,
Be silent, and ||l|| will speak:
If there is anything to say—reply to me,
Speak, for I desire to justify thee;
If not do ||thou|| hearken unto me,
Be silent, that I may teach thee wisdom.

Chapter 34.

Furthermore Elihu responded, and said:—
Hear, ye wise men, my words,
And ||ye who know|| give ear unto me;
For ||the ear|| trieth words,
As ||the palate|| tasteth in eating.
What is right let us choose for ourselves,
Let us know, among ourselves, what is good;
For Job hath said—
I am righteous,
But ||God|| hath turned away my right;
Concerning mine own right shall I tell a falsehood?
Incurable' is my disease—not for any transgression.
What man is like Job?
He drinketh in scoffing like water;

And is on the way to keep company, with the workers of iniquity, And to walk with lawless men. For he hath said, It profiteth not a man, When ||his good pleasure|| is with God. Wherefore, ye men of mind,4 hearken unto me,— Far be it, that ||GOD|| should be lawless, Or ||the Almighty|| be perverse! For <what any son of earth doeth> he repayeth him, And <according to every man’s course> he causeth him to find. ||Nay, verily|| |GOD| will not condemn unjustly,— Nor ||the Almighty|| pervert justice. Who’ set him in charge of the earth?9 Or who’ appointed [him] the whole world? ≤If he should set against him his heart, <His spirit and his inspiration> [unto himself] he should withdraw≥ All flesh together’ [would cease to breathe], And [the earth-born] unto dust would return. c <If then [thou hast] understanding> hear this, Give thou ear to the teaching of my words:— Shall ||the very hater of right|| control? Or <the just—the mighty one> wilt thou condemn? Doth one say to a king, Abandoned one! e Or Lawless one! unto nobles? For he hath shewn no respect of persons unto princes, Neither hath he recognised the rich rather than the poor? For <the work of his hands> are they all. <In a moment> they die, even in the middle of the night,— A people are convulsed when they pass away, A mighty one is removed ||without hand||; For ||his eyes|| are on the ways of a man, And <all his footsteps> he beholdeth,— No’ darkness, and no’ death-shade, Where the workers of iniquity’ may hide. For <unto no man> doth he appoint a repetition,—

In going unto GOD, in judgment; He shattereth mighty ones unsearchably, And setteth up others in their stead; [Therefore] he observeth their works,— And overturneth [them] in a night, and they are crushed; <In the place of lawless men> hath he chastised them, In presence of beholders. ||Forasmuch|| as they turned from following him, And <none of his ways> did they teach; Causing to reach him the outcry of the poor, Yea <the outcry of the oppressed> he heareth. <When ||he|| giveth quiet> who then shall condemn? And <when he hideth [his] face> who then shall sing of him? Whether unto a nation or unto mankind altogether, That impious men may not reign, Nor be ensnarers of the people. For <unto GOD> hath one [ever] said— I have borne punishment, I will not be perverse; <What I see not> do ||thou|| shew me, <If ||perverseness|| I have wrought> I will do it no more? <According to thy mind> must he requite it, that thou hast refused? For ||thou|| must choose, and not ||I||, <What then thou knowest> speak! ||The men of mind|| will say to me, Yea any wise man hearkening unto me:— ||Job|| <without knowledge> doth speak, And ||his words|| are not with discretion. Would that Job might be tested to the uttermost; For replying’ with the men of iniquity; For he addeth—unto his sin—[rebellion], In our midst he clappeth his hands, And multiplieth his sayings against GOD.

Chapter 35.

Moreover Elihu responded, and said:—

1 And Elihu added and said:—

Restrain thyself for me a little, and I will shew thee,

That <yet—for God> there is justification.

2 I will bring my knowledge from afar,

And <to my Maker> will I attribute righteousness.

3 For <of a truth—not false> are my words,

||One of competent knowledge|| is with thee.

4 Lo! ||God|| is mighty, yet will he not despise,

Mighty’ in vigour of mind;

5 He will not keep alive one who is lawless,

But <the right of oppressed ones> will he grant;

6 He will not withdraw—from a righteous one—

7 But <if, bound in fetters>, behave themselves proudly;

9 Thus hath he uncovered their ear to a warning,

||He would deliver the humbled in his humiliation,||

10 And said—that they should turn from iniquity.

11 They should complete their days,

in prosperity,

12 And breathe their last without knowledge.

13 An||d said—that they should store up anger.\[h||

They should not cry for help, when he bound them.

14 Their soul should die in youth,

And their life, among the unclean.\[i||

15 He would deliver the humbled in his humiliation,

16 Yea he might even have allured thee—

<Without knowledge> he multiplieth words.

He giveth food in abundance:

< Upon both hands > he putteth a covering of lightning,
And layeth command upon it against an assailant:

His rolling thunder telleth concerning him,—
The cattle, even, concerning him that is coming up.

Chapter 37.

1 Yea < at this > my heart quaketh,
And starteth up out of its place.

2 Hear! oh hear! the raging of his voice,
|| A growling sound also || < out of his mouth > goeth forth;

3 < Under the whole heavens > he letteth it loose,
|| His lightning also || unto the wings of the earth;

4 < After it > roareth a voice,
He thundereth with his voice of majesty,
Nor will he hold them back, when his voice is heard.

5 GOD thundereth with his voice, wonderfully,
Doing great things, which we cannot know;

6 For < to the snow > he saith, Fall earthwards,—
Also to the downpour of rain, yea the downpour of his mighty rains.

7 < On the hand of every man > he setteth a seal,
That all men may take note of his doing.

8 So then the wild-beast hath gone into covert,
And < in its lairs > doth it remain.

9 < Out of a chamber cometh a storm-wind,
And < out of the north > cold.

10 < By the breath of GOD > is given—frost,
And || the breadth of waters || is congealed;

11 Also < with moisture > burdeneth he the thick cloud,
He disperseth his lightning—cloud;

12 Yea || the same || < in circles > turneth itself to and fro,
By his steering them to their work,
Whithersoever he commandeth them, over the face of the world, towards the earth.

13 Whether < as a rod, or for his earth,
Or in lovingkindness > he causeth it to come.

14 Give thou ear unto this, O Job,

Stay, and consider well the wonders of God:—

15 Canst thou get to know of God’s giving charge over them, Or of the causing of the lightning of his cloud to shine forth?

16 Canst thou get to know concerning the poisings of the thick cloud, The wonders of one who is perfect in knowledge?

17 That thy garments should be hot when he quieteth the earth from the south?

18 Didst thou spread out, with him, the skies, Strong as a molten mirror?

19 Let us know what we shall say to him, We cannot set in order, by reason of darkness.

20 Shall it be declared to him—that I would speak? <Were any man to say aught> he might be destroyed?

21 Yet [now] men see not the light, Bright’ though it is’ in the skies, When [[a wind]] hath passed over, and cleansed them.

22 <Out of the north> a golden light cometh, <Upon God> is fearful splendour:

23 ||The Almighty, whom we have not fully found out, is great in vigour,— Neither <justice nor abounding righteousness> will he weaken.

24 ||Therefore|| do men revere him, He will not regard any who are wise in heart.

A Divine Voice Interposes.

Chapter 38.

1 Then Yahweh responded to Job, out of a storm, and said:—

2 Who’ is’ it that darkeneth counsel, By words, without knowledge?

3 Gird, I pray thee—like a strong man—thy loins, That I may ask thee, h and inform thou me:

4 Where wast thou, when I founded the earth?

Tell, if thou knowest understanding!

5 Who’ set the measurements thereof, if thou knowest?

Or who’ stretched out over it a line?

6 Whereon’ were the pedestals thereof sunk?

Or who laid the corner stone thereof;—

7 When the morning stars sang together, And all the sons of God shouted for joy?

8 Or [who] shut in, with double doors, j the sea, When, bursting out of the womb, it came forth;

9 When I put a cloud as the garment thereof, And a thick cloud as the swaddling-band thereof;

10 And brake off for it my boundary, k And fixed a bar and double doors;

11 And said—

<hither> shalt thou come, and no further,— And <here> shalt thou set a limit to the majesty of thy waves?

12 <Since thy days [began] hast thou commanded the morning?
Or caused the dawn to know its place;

13 That it might lay hold of the wings of the earth, And the lawless be shaken out of it?

14 It transformeth itself like the clay of a seal, So that things stand forth, like one arrayed; That their light may be withdrawn from the lawless, And [[the lofty arm]] be shivered.

16 Hast thou entered as far as the springs of the sea? Or <through the secret recesses of the resounding deep> hast thou wandered?

17 Have the gates of death been disclosed to thee? And <the gates of the death-shade> couldst thou descry?

18 Hast thou well considered, even the breadths of the earth? Tell—if thou knowest it all!

19 Where then is the way, the light shall abide? n And <the darkness> where then is its place?

20 That thou mayest conduct it unto the bound thereof,

Chapter 42.

1 Then Job responded to Yahweh, and said:

2 I know that <all things> thou canst do,
And that no purpose can be withholden from thee.

3 Who is it that hideth counsel without knowledge?
[Therefore] have I declared, but not understood,

But ||now|| mine own eye] hath seen thee.

6 <For this cause> I tremble and repent,
On dust and ashes.

A Divine Adjustment between Job and his Three Friends.

7 And it came to pass <after Yahweh had spoken these words unto Job> that Yahweh said unto Eliphaz the Temanite,
Kindled is mine anger against thee and against thy two friends, for ye have not spoken concerning me the thing that is right, like my servant Job.

8 ||Now|| therefore, take unto you seven bullocks and seven rams, and go unto my servant Job, and ye shall offer up an ascending-sacrifice in your own behalf, and ||Job my servant|| shall pray over you,—for <him> will I accept, that I may not deal out to you disgrace, because ye have not spoken concerning me the thing that is right, like my servant Job.

9 So Eliphaz the Temanite and Bildad the Shuhite [and] Zophar the Naamathite went, and did' according to that which Yahweh had spoken unto them,—and Yahweh accepted Job.

10 And [[Yahweh himself]] turned the captivity of Job, when he prayed in behalf of his friends,—and Yahweh increased all that Job had possessed, unto twice as much.

11 Then came unto him all his brethren and all his sisters, and all his former acquaintances, and they did eat bread with him in his house,—and shewed sympathy with him and comforted him, over all the calamity which Yahweh had brought upon him,—and they gave him, every one a weight\textsuperscript{a} of money, and every one, a ring of gold.

12 And [[Yahweh]] blessed the latter end of Job, more than his beginning,—and so he came to have fourteen thousand sheep, and six thousand camels, and a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she-asses. 13 And he came to have seven sons, and three daughters;

14 and he called the name of the first Jemima, and the name of the second Kezia,—and the name of the third, Keren-happuch.

15 And there were found no women so fair as the daughters of Job, in all the land,—and their father gave them an inheritance, in the midst of their brethren. 16 And Job lived, after this, a hundred and forty years,\textsuperscript{b}—and saw his sons and his sons’ sons, four generations.

17 So Job died, old and satisfied with days.

THE PSALMS.

BOOK THE FIRST.

PSALM 1.

1 How happy the man who hath not walked in the counsel of the lawless,—
And <in the way of sinners> hath not stood,
And <in the seat of scoffers> hath not sat;
2 But <in the law> of Yahweh is his delight,—
And <in his law> doth he talk with himself day and night.

3 So doth he become like a tree planted by streams of waters,—
That yieldeth its fruit in its season,
Whose leaf also doth not wither.
And whatsoever he doeth prospereth.

4 Not so the lawless,—
But as chaff which is driven about by the wind:

5 For this cause shall the lawless not stand in the judgment,—
Nor sinners in the assembly of the righteous.

6 For Yahweh doth acknowledge the way of the righteous;
But the way of the lawless shall vanish.

PSALM 2.

1 Wherefore have nations assembled in tumult?
Or should ||peoples|| mutter an empty thing?
2 The kings of earth take their station
And ||grave men|| have met by appointment to together,—
Against Yahweh
And against his Anointed One [saying]:

3 Let us break asunder their bonds,—
And cast from us their cords!

4 ||He that sitteth in the heavens|| will laugh,—
||My Lord|| will mock at them:
||Then|| will he speak unto them in his anger,
And <in his wrath> confound them:
6 Yet ||I|| have installed my king,—
On Zion my holy mountain.

7 Let me tell of a decree,—
||Yahweh|| hath said unto me,
<My son> thou art,
||I|| <to-day> have begotten thee:
8 Ask of me, and let me give Nations’ as thine inheritance,
And <as thy possession> the ends of the earth:

9 Thou shalt shepherd them with a sceptre of iron,—
<As a potter’s vessel> shalt thou dash them in pieces.

10||Now|| therefore, ye kings, shew your prudence,
Be admonished, ye judges of earth:

11 Serve Yahweh with reverence,
And exult with trembling:
12Kiss the son, lest he be angry and ye perish by the way,
For soon might be kindled his anger,—
How happy are all who seek refuge in him!

PSALM 3.

A Melody of David, when he fled from before Absolom his son.

||Multitudes|| are rising against me;
2 ||Multitudes|| are saying of my soul,—
No’ salvation for him in God.

PSALM 4.

To the Chief Musician: c with stringed instruments. A Melody of David.

1 When I cry answer me, O mine own righteous’ God, d

In a strait place thou hast made room for me, Shew me favour, and hear my prayer.

2 Ye sons of the great! how long turning my glory to contempt, Will ye love emptiness, will ye seek falsehood?

3 Know ye then that Yahweh hath set apart the man of lovingkindness for himself: ||Yahweh|| will hear, when I cry to him.

4 Be deeply moved but do not sin,— Ponder in your own heart upon your bed, and be silent.

5 Sacrifice the sacrifices of righteousness; And put your trust in Yahweh.

6 ||Multitudes|| are saying, Who will shew us prosperity? Lift thou upon us the light of thy countenance, O Yahweh.

7 Thou hast put gladness in my heart,— Beyond the season when ||their corn and their new wine|| have increased.

8 <In peace> will I lay me down and at once sleep; For ||thou, Yahweh alone|| wilt cause me <in security> to dwell.

PSALM 5.

To the Chief Musician. For the Flutes. f A Melody of David.

1 <To my words> give ear, O Yahweh, Understand thou my softly murmured prayer:

2 Attend to the voice of my cry, my King and my God, For <unto thee> do I pray.

3 O Yahweh! <in the morning> shalt thou hear my voice,

4 For <not a GOD finding pleasure in lawlessness> art thou, And wrong’ can be no guest of thine:

5 ||Boasters|| shall not station themselves before thine eyes,— Thou hatest all workers of iniquity:

6 Thou wilt destroy’ them who speak falsehood,— <The man of bloodshed and of deceit> Yahweh abhorreth.

7 But ||I|| <in the abounding of thy lovingkindness> will enter thy house, I will bow down towards thy holy temple, in reverence of thee:

8 O Yahweh! lead me in thy righteousness, because of mine adversaries, Make even before me thy way:

9 For in his mouth is nothing worthy of trust, g

PSALM 6.

To the Chief Musician, with stringed Instruments upon the eighth. A Melody of David.

1 O Yahweh! do not <in thine anger> correct me, Nor <in thy wrath> chastise me.

2 Shew me favour, O Yahweh, for languishing’ am I;
Heal me, O Yahweh,—for dismayed are my bones:

3 Yea [my soul] is dismayed greatly, ||Thou, then, O Yahweh||—how long?

4 Return, O Yahweh, deliver my soul, Save me, for the sake of thy lovingkindness;

5 For <in death> is no’ remembrance of thee,— <In hades> who shall give thanks unto thee?

6 I am weary with my sighing I flood, through the whole night, my couch,— <With my tears> I cause [my bed] to dissolve:

7 My face is all sunken with sorrow, e— It hath aged, because of all mine adversaries.

8 Depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity, For Yahweh hath heard’ the voice of my weeping:

9 Yahweh, hath heard’ my supplication, ||Yahweh|| will receive [my prayer].

10 Let all my foes’ turn pale and be greatly dismayed, Again’ let them turn pale in a moment.

PSALM 7.

An Ode of David: which he sang unto Yahweh, on account of the words of Cush the Benjamite.

1 O Yahweh my God, <in thee> have I sought refuge,— Save me from all my pursuers, and deliver me:

2 Lest one tear, as a lion, my soul,— And there be no deliverer to rescue.

3 O Yahweh my God

If I have done this, If there hath been perversity in my hands:

4 If I have requited my friend with wrong,— Or have oppressed mine adversary without need>

5 Let an enemy pursue my soul, and overtake it, That he may tread down, to the earth, my life,— And <mine honour—in the dust> he may cause to dwell.

[Selah.

6 Rise! Yahweh! in thine anger, Lift thyself up, because of the haughty outbursts of mine adversaries, Stir up for me the justice thou hast commanded:

7 <When ||the assembly of peoples|| gather round thee>
Then <above it—on high> do thou return!

8 ||Yahweh|| will judge the peoples,— Do me justice, O Yahweh, According to my righteousness, And according to mine integrity upon me,

9 Let the wrong of the lawless, I pray thee, come to an end, And establish thou him that is righteous,— For [a trier of hearts and reins] is God the righteous one.

10 ||My shield|| is held by God, k
Who is ready to save the upright in heart:

a Mi: “inward part.”

k Mi: “is on God,” i.e., hangeth on him. “God holds my shield”—P.B.
11 A God to vindicate the righteous,—
And yet a God to be indignant throughout every day.
12 ||If he turn not| <his sword> will he whet,—
| <His bow> hath he bent, and made ready:
13 But | <for himself> hath he made ready the
| weapons so deadly,
| <His arrows> he so fiery would make:
14 Lo! he gendereth trouble,
And conceiveth mischief,
But giveth birth to a disappointment:
15 | <A pit> he cut out, and digged it,
And then fell into the ditch he had made:
16 His mischief [turneth back] on his own head,—
And <on his own crown> ||his violence||
descendeth.
17 I will praise Yahweh according to his righteousness,—
And will praise in song the Name of Yahweh Most High.

PSALM 8.
To the Chief Musician On “the Gittith.”a A Melody of David.

1 O Yahweh, our Lord!
How majesticc is thy Name, in all the earth,
Who hast setb thy splendour upon the heavens.
2 <Out of the mouth of children and sucklings> hast thou laid a foundation of strength,—
Because of thine adversaries,
To make foe and avenger be still.
3 <When I view thy heavens, the work of thy fingers,
Moon and stars, which thou hast established>
What was weak man, that thou shouldest make mention of him?
4 Or the son of the earthborn, that thou shouldest set him in charge?
5 That thou shouldest make him little less than d messengers of God,c
6 <With glory and honour> shouldest crown him?
6 Shouldst give him dominion over the works of thy hands,—
8 <All things> shouldest have put under his feet:
Sheep and oxen, [all of them],—
Yea even the beasts of the field;
The bird of the heavens, and the fishes of the sea,—
The passer-by on the paths of the seas?
9 O Yahweh, our Lord!
How majesticc is thy Name, in all the earth.

PSALM 9.
To the Chief Musician. On “Muthlabben.”a A Melody of David.

1 I will praise Yahweh with all my heart,
I will recount all thy wonderful doings:
2 I will rejoice and exult in thee,
I will praise in song, thy Name, O most High.
3 <When mine enemies turned back>
They stumbled and perished from before thee;
4 For thou hast executed my right and my cause,
Thou hast sat on the throne, judging righteously:
5 Thou hast rebuked the nations,
Thou hast destroyed the lawless one,
<Their name> hast thou wiped out, to times age-abiding and beyond.

PSALM 10.

1 Wherefore, O Yahweh, shouldst thou stand afar off?
2 [Wherefore] hide thyself, in times of destitution?
3 For the lawless one hath boasted’ over the longing of his soul,
4 [The lawless one] <in the loftiness of his countenance> will not enquire,
5 His ways< are firm at all times,
6 He hath said in his heart,
7 The lawless one hath boasted’ over the longing of his soul,
8 His ways< are thy righteous regulations
9 He abideth in the lurking-place of villages,
10 As for all his adversaries he puffeth at them:
11 That I may recount all thy praises,
12 Sing ye praise to Yahweh, who is seated in Zion,
13 Shew me favour, O Yahweh!
14 That I may recount all thy praises,
15 Lift me on high out of the gates of death;
16 He lieth in wait to catch the humbled,
17 His eyes< are trouble and mischief,
18 And his feet< are on the watch:
19 Rise! Yahweh! let man not [prevail],
20 Appoint, O Yahweh, a terror< for them,—

<Even cities> hast thou uprooted;<
The memory of [them][ hath perished.
7 But [Yahweh] <unto times age-abiding> will sit,< <Ready for judgment> is his throne;
8 And [he] will judge the world in righteousness,
He will minister judgment to peoples, in uprightness.
9 Thus be Yahweh a refuge for the crushed one.
A refuge for times of destitution:<
10 Thus let them who know thy Name [put confidence in thee],
That thou hast not forsaken the searchers for thee,
O Yahweh.
11 Sing ye praise to Yahweh, who is seated in Zion,
Tell among the peoples his doings.
12 <When he was making inquisition for blood>
[Of them] had he remembrance,
He forgot not the outcry of the oppressed.<
13 Shew me favour, O Yahweh!
Behold my humiliation due to them who hate me,
Lift me on high out of the gates of death;
14 That I may recount all thy praises,
<In the gates of the daughter of Zion> may exult in thy salvation.
15 The nations [have sunk] in the pit they had made,
<In the net which they had hidden> is caught their own foot.

A Precious Psalm of David.

1 Preserve me, O God,
For I have sought refuge in thee.

2 Thou hast said unto Yahweh,
<My Lord> art thou!
||My goodness|| mounteth not unto thee.

3 It belongeth unto the holy ones,
Whom <in his own land> Yahweh ennableth,
In whom is all his delight.

4 They multiply their idols,—<another> have they purchased!
I will not pour out their drink-offerings of blood,
Nor will I take up their names’ on my lips.

5 ||Yahweh|| is mine allotted portion and my cup,

7 I will bless Yahweh, who hath counselled me,—
Surely <by night> shall mine impulses<admonish> me.

8 I have set Yahweh before me continually,
<Because he is on my right hand> I shall not be shaken!

9 ||Therefore|| hath my heart’ rejoiced,
And mine honour’ exulted,
Yea ||my flesh|| shall settle down securely;

10 For thou wilt not abandon<my soul to hades>,
Neither wilt thou suffer thy man<lovingkindness> to see corruption:

11 Thou wilt cause me to know, the path of life,—
||Fullness of joys before thee,
Pleasures at thy right hand evermore||.

PSALM 17.
A Prayer of David.

1 Hear, O Yahweh, the right,
Attend to my loud cry,
Give ear unto my prayer,
On lips that would not deceive:

2 <From before thee> let my sentence come forth,
||Thine eyes|| behold with equity.

3 Thou hast tested my heart,
Hast made inspection by night,
Hast refined me until thou couldst find nothing,
<Had I devised evil> my mouth’ should not have transgressed:

4 <As for the workings of men>
<By the word of thy lips> have ||I|| taken heed of the paths of the violent one.

5 Thou hast held fast my goings on to thy ways,<
My footsteps have not been shaken:

6 ||I|| have called upon thee, for thou wilt answer me, O God,— Incline thine ear unto me,
Hear thou my speech:

7 Let thy lovingkindness be distinguished,< thou Saviour of such as seek refuge
From them who lift themselves up against thy right hand.

8 Guard me, as the pupil of the eye,<—
<Under the shadow of thy wings> wilt thou hide
me:

9 From the face of lawless ones who have treated me with violence,
The foes of my soul, who come round against me:

10 <Their own fat heart> have they shut up,—
<With their mouth> have they spoken proudly.

11 <As for our own goings> ||now|| have they surrounded us,<—
<Their eyes> they fix, bending to the earth:

PSALM 18.

To the chief Musician. Of the servant of Yahweh, of David,—who spake unto Yahweh the words of this song,—in the day when Yahweh had rescued him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of Saul; and he said:—

1 I will love thee, O Yahweh my strength!
2 ||[Yahweh]|| was my mountain crag and my stronghold, and my deliverer:c
||[My GOD]|| was my rock,
I sought refuge in him,
My shield, and my horn of salvation, my high tower.
3 <As one worthy to be praised> called I on Yahweh,—
And <from my foes> was I saved.
4 The meshes of death encompassed me,
||[The torrents of perdition]||d made me afraid;
The meshes of hades [had surrounded me],
The snares of death [had confronted me],
5 <In my distress> called I on Yahweh,
And <unto my God> made outcry for help,
He heard, out of his temple, my voice,
And my outcry for help came before him—
ettered into his ears!
7 Then did the earth shake and quake,d

Even ||[the foundations of the mountains]|| were deeply moved,
Yea they did shake, because he was angry.
8 There went up smoke in his nostrils,
And ||[a fire out of his mouth]|| devoured,
||[Live coals]|| were kindled from it:
9 Then he stretched out the heaven, and came down,—
And ||[thick gloom]|| was under his feet;
10 Then he rode on a cherub, and flew,
And darted on the wings of the wind;
11 Made darkness his hiding-place,
Round about him—his pavilion,
Darkness of waters, clouds of vapours.
12 <Out of the brightness before him> his clouds rolled along,
Hail,f and live coals of fire.
13 Then did Yahweh thunder in the heavens,
And the Highest uttered his voice,—
Hail, and live coals of fire.
14 And he sent forth his arrows and scattered them,
Yea <lightnings> he shot out, and confused them.
15 Then appeared' the channels of waters,1
Were uncovered' the foundations of the world,—
At thy rebuke, O Yahweh,
At the blast of the breath of thy nostrils.
16 He sent from on high, he took me,—
He drew me out of many waters.
17 He rescued me from my foe, in his might,
And from them who hated me, because they were too strong for me:
18 They confronted me, in the day of my necessity,
Then became Yahweh my stay:
19 And brought me out, into a large place,
He delivered me, because he delighted in me.
20 Yahweh rewarded me according to my righteousness,
<According to the cleanness of my hands> he repaid me;
21 For I had kept the ways of Yahweh,
And not broken away from my God;
22 For ||[all his regulations]|| were before me,
And <his statutes> did I not put from me:
23 So became I blameless with him,
And kept myself from mine iniquity.

b Or: “by an appearance of thee,” “by thine appearing.”

f Gt.: “and there were kindled,” etc. Cp. 2 S. xxii. 13.
h Refer ver. 12, n.
i Some cod.: “the sea.” Cp. 2 S. xxii. 16—G.n.
Yahweh therefore repaid me according to my righteousness,
According to the pureness of my hands, before his eyes.

<With the loving> thou didst shew thyself loving,—
<With the blameless man> thou didst shew thyself blameless;
<With the pure> thou didst shew thyself pure,
But <with the perverse> thou didst shew thyself ready to contend.

For <as for thee> <an oppressed people> thou didst save,
But <looks that were lofty> layedst thou low;
For <thou> didst light up my lamp,
[[Yahweh my God]] enlightened my darkness;
For <by thee> I ran through a troop, b
And <by my God> I leapt over a wall.

As for God blameless' is his way,
[[The speech of Yahweh]] hath been proved,
<A shield> he is' to all who seek refuge in him.

For who is a God, save Yahweh?
And who is a Rock, save our God?
The God who girded me with strength,
And set forth, as blameless, my way:
Planting my feet like hinds' [feet],
Yea <on myd high places> he caused me to stand:
Teaching my hands to war,—
So that a bow of bronze was bent by mine arms.
Thus didst thou grant me, as a shield, thy salvation,—
And [[thy right hand]] sustained me,
And [[thy condescension]] made me great.
Thou didst widen my stepping-places under me,
So that [[mine ankles]] faltered not.
I pursued my foes, and overtook them,
And returned not, till they were consumed:
I crushed them, and they were unable to rise,
They fell under my feet.
Thus didst thou gird me with strength, for the battle,
Thou subduedst mine assailantse under me.

And <as for them who hated me> I destroyed them.
They cried out,
But there was none to save,
Unto Yahweh,
But he answered them not.
Then did I beat them in pieces, like dust on the face of the wind. f
Like the mire in the lanes did I scatterg them.
Thus didst thou rescue me from the contentions of a people,—
Didst appoint me to be the head of nations,
||A people I had not known|| served me:
||The sons of the foreigner|| came cringing unto me:
||The sons of the foreigner|| lost heart,
And came quaking out of their fortresses.
Yahweh liveth' and ||blessed|| be my Rock,
Yea ||exalted|| be the God of my salvation:
The God, who hath avenged me, h—
And subduedg peoples under me:
Who hath delivered me from my foes,—
Yea <from mine assailants> hast thou set me on high,
<From the man of violence> hast thou rescued me.
||For this cause|| will I praise thee among the nations, O Yahweh,
And <to thy Name> will I sweep the strings:—
Who hath made great the victories of his King,—
And shewn lovingkindness to his Anointed One,
To David and to his Seed,
Unto times age-abiding.

And to the end of the world their sayings,—

For he set up a tent therein;

And is like a bridegroom coming out of his chamber,

He rejoiceth as a hero to run a race:

6 <From one end of the heavens> is his going forth,

And ||[his circuit] to the other end thereof,—

And nothing is hid from his glowing heat.

7 The law of Yahweh is complete,

Bringing back the soul,

The testimony of Yahweh is confirmed,

Making wise the simple;

8 The precepts of Yahweh are right,

Rejoicing the heart,

The commandment of Yahweh is pure,

Enlightening the eyes;

9 The reverence of Yahweh is clean,

Enduring evermore,—

The decisions of Yahweh are faithful,

They are righteous ||altogether|:

10|| More desirable than gold,

Yea than much fine gold,

||Sweeter also than honey,

Or than droppings from the comb.

11|| Even thine own servant taketh warning by them,

<In the keeping of them> great is the reward.

12<Mistakes> who perceiveth?

<From things that are hidden> acquit me:

13<Even from the presumptuous> keep back thy servant,

May they not have dominion over me,

||Then shall I be blameless,

And shall be acquitted from great transgression:

14The words of my mouth,

And the soft utterance of my heart,

Shall come with acceptance ||before thee|,

O Yahweh, my Rock and my Redeemer!

PSALM 20.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 Yahweh answer’ thee, in the day of distress,

The Name of the God of Jacob’ give thee safety’;

2 Send thy help out of the sanctuary,

And <out of Zion> sustain thee;

3 Remember every present of thine,

And <thine ascending-sacrifice> esteem.

[Selah.

4 Give thee according to thy heart,

And <all thy purposes> fulfil.

5 We will shout aloud in thy salvation,

And <in the Name of our God> shall we become great,

Yahweh fulfil all thy petitions.

6 ||Now|| do I know’ that Yahweh hath saved his Anointed One,—

He answereth him out of his holy heavens,

By the mighty saving deeds of his own right hand.

7 ||These|| by chariots,

And ||[those] by horses,

But ||[we] by the Name of Yahweh our God Will prevail.

8 ||They|| have bowed down and fallen,

But ||[we] have arisen, and stand upright.

9 ||Yahweh|| hath saved the king.

Answer us, then, on the day when we call.

PSALM 21.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 O Yahweh, <in thy strength> will the king rejoice,

And <in thy salvation> how greatly will he exult!

2 <The longing of his heart> hast thou given him,

And <the request of his lips> hast thou not withheld.

[Selah.

PSALM 22.

1 My God, my God, why' hast thou forsaken me?
Far from saving me,
The words of my loud lamentation?
2 My God! I keep crying—
By day and thou dost not answer, and
By night and there is no rest for me.

3 But [[thou]] art holy,
Who inhabitest' the praises' of Israel.
4 <In thee> trusted our fathers,
They trusted, and thou didst deliver them;
5 <Unto thee> made they outcry, and escaped,
In thee they trusted, and had not turned pale.
6 But [[]] am a worm and no one,
A reproach of men, and despised of a people;
7 ||All that see me] laugh at me,—
They open wide the mouth,'
They shake the head:—
8 He should trust in Yahweh—let him deliver him,—
Let him rescue him, seeing he delighteth in him.
9 For [thou] art he that severed me from the womb,
He that caused me to trust, upon the breasts of my mother;
10 <Upon thee> was I cast from the time I was born,
<From the womb of my mother> <my GOD> hast thou been.
11 Be not far from me, for [distress] is near,
For there is none' to help.
12 Many bulls have surrounded me,
||Strong oxen of Bashan]| have enclosed me;
13 They have opened wide against me their mouth,
||A lion rending and roaring||.

    <From the power of the dog> my solitary self;b
21 Save me from the mouth of the lion,—
    Yea <from the horns of wild beasts>c hast thou

22 I will declare thy Name unto my brethren,—
    <In the midst of the convocation> will I praise thee.
23 ||Ye that revere Yahweh|| praise him, ||All ye the seed of Jacob|| glorify him, And ||stand in awe of him||, all ye seed of Israel.

PSALM 25.

David's. [An Alphabatical Psalm.]

1 <Unto thee> O Yahweh, <my soul> would I lift:
2 O my God, <in thee> have I put my trust, Let me not be put to shame, Let not my foe exult over me:
3 Yea let [none who wait for thee] be put to shame, Let them be put to shame who act covertly without cause!
4 <Thy ways> O Yahweh, let me know, <Thy paths> teach thou me:

Guide me into thy truth and teach me, For [thou] art my delivering' God, <For thee> have I waited all the day:
6 Remember thy compassions, O Yahweh, and thy lovingkindnesses, For <from age-past times> have they been.
7 <The sins of my youth, and my transgressions> do not thou call to mind,—<According to thine own lovingkindness> remember [thou] me, For the sake of thine own goodness, O Yahweh.
8 <Good and upright> is Yahweh, <For this cause> will he direct sinners into the way.
9 May he guide patient wronged-ones to be righted, And teach such oppressed-ones his way.
10 [All the paths of Yahweh] are lovingkindness and faithfulness, To such as keep his covenant, and his testimonies.
11 <For the sake of thy Name> O Yahweh, Therefore wilt thou pardon mine iniquity, For great it is'.
12 Who then is the man that revereth Yahweh? Let him direct him into the way he should choose.
13 [His soul] <with prosperity> shall tarry, And [his seed] shall possess the land.
14 <Intimacy with Yahweh> have they who revere him, <His covenant also> he letteth them know.
15 [Mine eyes] are continually unto Yahweh,— For [he] bringeth out of the net, my feet. Turn thou unto me, and shew me favour, For <alone and oppressed> I am'.
16 <The distresses of my heart> hath he relieved,— And <out of my straits> brought me forth.
Behold my humiliation and my pain,
And take away all my sins.

Behold my foes, for they abound,—
And <with the hatred of violence> do they hate me.

Oh keep my soul, and rescue me,
Let me not be put to shame, for I have sought refuge in thee.

Let <blamelessness and uprightness> watch over me,
Because I have waited for thee.

Redeem Israel, O God,—
Out of all his distresses.

Do me justice, O Yahweh,
For ||in my blamelessness|| have walked,
And ||in Yahweh|| have I trusted,
I will not waver.

Try me, O Yahweh, and prove me,
Test my reins and my heart. —
For ||thy lovingkindness|| hath been before mine eyes,
And I have walked to and fro in thy faithfulness;
I have not sat with men of deceit,
Nor <with dissemblers> would I enter;
I have hated the convocation of evil-doers,
And <with lawless men> would I not sit;
I will bathe in pureness,
So will I go in procession around thine altar, O Yahweh;
To sound aloud a song,
And to recount all thy wonderful doings.

O Yahweh, I have loved the asylum of thy house,
Even the place of the habitation of thy glory!
Do not remove, with sinners, my soul,
Nor, with men of bloodshed, my life;
In whose hands is a plot,
And ||their right hand|| is filled with a bribe.
But ||in my blamelessness|| will walk,
Redeem me and shew me favour.

My foot standeth in a level place,
<In the convocations> will I bless Yahweh.

||Yahweh|| is my light and my salvation,
Of whom shall I be afraid?
||Yahweh|| is the refuge of my life,
Of whom shall I be in dread?
When there drew near against me evil-doers to devour my flesh,
||Mine adversaries, and mine enemies—mine!—they|| stumbled and fell! —
Though there pitch against me—a camp
My heart shall not fear,—
Though there come up against me—a battle
||Still|| I am confident.

One thing have I asked of Yahweh,
<That> will I seek to secure, —
That I may dwell in the house of Yahweh, all the days of my life,
To view the delightfulness of Yahweh,
And to contemplate in his temple.
For he will hide me in his pavilion, in the day of calamity,—
He will conceal me in the secrecy of his tent,
<Within a rock> will he set me on high.

Hear, O Yahweh, <With my voice> do I cry,
Oh then shew me favour and answer me.
<Say me heart>—
[When thou saidst] Seek ye my face—<Thy face> O Yahweh, will I seek!

Do not hide thy face from me,
Do not repulse, in thine anger, thine own servant,—
<My help> thou hast been,
Do not send me away nor forsake me,
O my saving’ God!

10 When ||my own father and mother|| had forsaken me,
Then ||Yahweh|| took me up!

11 Point out to me, O Yahweh, thy way,—
And guide me in a level path,
Because of mine adversaries.

12 Do not give me up unto the desireb of mine adversaries,
For there have risen up against me
Witnesses that are false,
And he that fanneth up violence.

13 I believe that I shall see—c
The goodness of Yahweh in the land of the living.d

14 Wait thou for Yahweh,—
Be strong, and let thy heart be bold,
Wait, then, for Yahweh!

PSALM 28.
David’s.

1 <Unto thee, O Yahweh> do I cry,
O my Rock! do not turn in silence from me,?—
Lest <if thou turn from me in silence>
I be like them who go down into the pit.

2 Hear the voice of my supplication,
When I cry to thee for help,
When I lift up my hands toward thy holy’ shrine.

3 Do not drag me away—
With the lawless,
Or with the workers of iniquity,—
Who speak peaceably with their neighbours,
But ||wrong|| is in their heart.

4 Give them
According to their deed, and
According to the wrong of their practices,— <According to the work’ of their own hands> give thou unto them,
Bring back their own dealing to themselves.

5 <Because they heed not
The Deeds of Yahweh,
Or the Workg of his hands>
He will pull them down, and not build them.

6 Blessed’ be Yahweh,
Because he hath heard the voice of my supplication.

7 ||Yahweh|| is my strength and my shield, <In him> hath trusted my heart, and I have found help,—
Therefore hath my heart danced for joy,
And <with my song> do I praise him.

8 ||Yahweh|| is strength to his people,ʰ—
And <the all-saving’ refuge of his Anointed One> is he!

9 Oh save thy people,
And bless thine inheritance,
Tend them also, and carry them,
Unto times age-abiding.

PSALM 29.
A Melody of David.

1 I will extol thee, O Yahweh, For thou hast drawn me up,— And not suffered my foes to rejoice over me.
2 O Yahweh, my God, I cried for help unto thee, And thou hast healed me.
3 O Yahweh! thou hast lifted out of hades, my soul, Thou hast brought me back to life, from among those who were going down to the pit.
4 Sweep the strings to Yahweh, Ye his men of lovingkindness, And give ye praise at the mention of his holiness. For there is [a Moment] in his anger, [a Life-time] in his good-pleasure, <In the evening> cometh Weeping’ to lodge, But [by the morning] ‘tis a Shout of Triumph!
5 But [I] said, in my tranquility, I shall not be shaken to times age-abiding!
6 O Yahweh! <In thy good-pleasure> hadst thou caused my mountain to stand [strong],—
7 ||The voice of Yahweh|| is cleaving out flames of fire;
8 ||The voice of Yahweh|| bringeth birth-pains upon the wilderness; Yahweh bringeth birth-pains upon the wilderness of Kadesh!
9 ||The voice of Yahweh|| causeth the gazelles to bring forth, And hath stript forests; And <in his own temple> ||every one there|| is saying Glory!
10||Yahweh|| [at the Flood] was seated, And Yahweh hath taken his seat, as king, unto times age-abiding.
11||Yahweh|| will give [strength to his people],— ||Yahweh|| will bless his people with prosperity.

Thou didst hide thy face—I was dismayed!
<Unto thee, O Yahweh> do I cry,— And <unto My Lord> do I make supplication:
What profit in my blood? In my going down into the pit? Can dust praise thee?
Can it declare thy faithfulness?
Hear, O Yahweh, and shew me favour, O Yahweh! become thou a helper unto me.
Thou hast turned my lamentation, into a dance for me,— Thou hast torn off my sackcloth, And girded me with gladness:
To the end that mine honour should make melody unto thee, and not be silent.
O Yahweh, my God! <Unto times age-abiding> will I praise thee.

PSALM 31.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 <In thee> O Yahweh, have I sought refuge, Let me not be ashamed, to times age-abiding, <In thy righteousness> deliver me:

 For saving me.
3 <Because [my mountain crag and my stronghold] thou art> Therefore <for the sake of thine own Name> wilt thou lead me and guide me?
4 Will thou bring me forth, out of the net which they have hidden for me? For [thou] art my refuge.

2 How happy the son of earth

11||[The counsel of Yahweh]|| <to times age-abiding> shall stand,
||[The devices of his heart]|| from generation to generation.

12How happy the nation whose God’ is ||[Yahweh]],
The people he hath chosen as his own’
inheritance!

13<Out of the heavens> hath Yahweh looked,
He hath seen all the sons of men:

14<Out of his settled place of abode> hath he fixed his gaze
On all the inhabitants of the earth:

15Who fashioneth their heart all together,
Who understandeth all their doings.

16||[Not a king]|| can be saved by greatness of force,
Nor ||[hero]|| deliver himself’ by greatness of strength:

17<A deception> is the horse, for victory,
And <by his great strength> shall he not deliver.

18Lo! [the eye] of Yahweh| is toward them who revere him,
Unto such as are waiting for his lovingkindness:

19To rescue, from death, their soul,
And to keep them alive in famine.

20||[Our own soul]|| hath waited for Yahweh,
||[Our help and our shield]|| is he!

PSALM 34.

David’s. When he disguised his sanity before Abimelech,—who dismissed him, and he departed. [An Alphabetical Psalm.]

1 Let me bless Yahweh at all times,
Continually’ be his praise in my mouth.
2 In Yahweh> boasteth my soul,
The patient oppressed-ones shall hear and be glad.
3 Ascribe ye greatness unto Yahweh with me,
And let us exalt his Name together.
4 I enquired of Yahweh, and he hath answered me,
And <out of all their straits> hath he rescued me.
5 They looked unto him and were radiant,
And< as for their> faces> let them not be abashed.
6 ||This|| oppressed one cried, and ||Yahweh|| heard,—
And <out of all his distresses> saved him.
7 The messenger of Yahweh encampeth’ around them who revere him,
Thus hath he delivered them.
8 Oh taste and see, that good’ is Yahweh,—
How happy the man who seeketh refuge in him!
9 Revere Yahweh, ye his holy ones,
For there is no want’ to them who revere him.
10 ||Young lions|| have come short, and suffered hunger,
But ||they who seek Yahweh|| shall not lack any good thing.
11 Come, ye children! hearken unto me,
||The reverence of Yahweh|| will I teach you.
12 Who is the man that desireth life,
Loving days, that he may see good?
13 Keep thy tongue from wickedness,
And thy lips from speaking deceit:
14 Depart from wickedness and do good,
Aim’ at well-being, and pursue’ it.
15 ||The eyes of Yahweh|| are towards the righteous,
And ||his ears||, towards their cry for help:
16 ||The face of Yahweh|| is against such as do wickedness,
To cut off’, from the earth, their memory.
17 They made outcry, and Yahweh heard,
And <out of all their straits> hath he rescued them.
18 Near’ is Yahweh, to the broken in heart,
And <the crushed in spirit> will he save.
19 Many’ are the misfortunes of the righteous,
But <out of them all> doth Yahweh rescue him.
20 Keeping all his bones,
Not ||one from among them|| is broken.
21 Misfortune shall be the death of the lawless one,
And ||the haters of the righteous man|| shall be held guilty.
22 Yahweh ransometh’ the soul of his servants,
And none shall be held guilty, who seek refuge in him.

PSALM 35.

David’s.

1 Contend, O Yahweh, with them who contend with me,
Make war upon them who make war upon me.
2 Grasp buckler and shield,
And arise in’ my help;
3 Then draw the spear, and close up’ against my pursuers,
Say to my soul ||Thy salvation|| I am’!
4 Let them’ be ashamed and confounded,
Who are seeking my life;
Let them’ turn back and be put to the blush,
Who are devising my hurt:
5 Let them be’ as chaff before the wind,
With ||the messenger of Yahweh|| pressing them’ on:
6 Let their way become dark and slippery,
With ||[the messenger of Yahweh|| pursuing them.
7 For ||[without cause] have they hid for me, in a ditch, their net,—
    ||[Without cause] have they digged [a pit] for my life."
8 There shall reach him a ruin he could not know,—
    Yea ||[his own net which he hath hidden] shall capture him,
    ||[Into that ruin] shall he fall!
9 But ||[my soul] shall exult in Yahweh,— shall be glad in his salvation.
10 ||[All my bones] shall say—
    O Yahweh, who is like unto thee?
    Rescuing the oppressed from one stronger than he,
    Yea the oppressed and the needy, from their spoiler.
11 There rise up witnesses helping forward violence and wrong.
    ||[What I know not] they demand of me:
12 They repay me evil for good,
    Bereaving my soul.
13 But ||[as for me] ||[when they were sick] my clothing was sackcloth,
    I humbled, with fasting, my soul,
    Though ||[my prayer] ||[unto mine own bosom] might return:
14 ||[Like as for a friend, like as for a brother of mine own]—
    I walked to and fro,
    ||[As though mourning for a mother] I gloomily bowed myself down.d
15 But ||[in mine overthrow] have they rejoiced,
    And gathered themselves together,—
    There gathered themselves together against me foolish men.e
    And I knew it not,
    They have torn in pieces,
    and not been silent;
16 ||[Amidst profane praters of perversion]—
    Have they gnashed upon me with their teeth.

17 My Lord! how long wilt thou look on?
Bring back my soul out of their raging,
    ||[From among lions] my solitary self.
18 I will thank thee, in the midst of a great convocation,—
    ||[In the midst of a mighty people] will I praise thee.
19 Let not them who are falsely my foes rejoice over me,
    ||[As for them who hate me without cause] let them not wink the eye!
20 For ||[no salutation] will they utter,—
    But ||[against the quiet of the land] ||[deceitful things] do they devise;
21 Yea they have opened wide against me their mouth,
    They have said,
    Aha! Aha! our own eye [hath seen]!
22 Thou hast seen, O Yahweh, do not keep silence!
    O My Lord! be not far from me:
23 Bestir thyself and wake up, to my vindication,
    O my God and My Lord!—to my plea:
24 Vindicate me according to thy righteousness, O Yahweh, my God!
    And let them not rejoice over me:
25 Let them not say in their heart,
    Aha! to our mind!
    Let them not say,
    We have swallowed him up!
26 Let them' turn pale, and then at once' blush,
    Who are rejoicing at my misfortune,—
    Let them' be clothed with shame and confusion,
    Who are magnifying themselves against me.
27 Let them' shout in triumph and rejoice,
    Who are desiring my justification;
    And let them say continually,
    Yahweh be magnified,
    Who hath taken pleasure in the prosperity of his servant.
28 ||[Mine own tongue also] shall softly utter thy righteousness,—

PSALM 36.

To the Chief Musician. Of the Servant of Yahweh—of David.

1 Declareth’ the transgression of the lawless one, within my heart,a
   There is ||no‘ dread of God|| before his eyes;
2 For he flattereth himself [too much] in his own eyes,
   To find his iniquity—to hate [it].
3 ||The words of his mouth|| are iniquity and deceit,
   He hath left off to shew discretion by doing well:
4 <Iniquity> deviseth he upon his bed,—
   He taketh his stand in a way [not good]b
5 O Yahweh! <in the heavens> is thy lovingkindness,
   Thy faithfulness as far as the fleecy clouds:
6 Thy righteousness is like mighty mountains,c
   And thy just decrees are a great resounding deep,— 7 How precious’ thy lovingkindness, O God,—
   Therefore ||the sons of men|| <under the shadow of thy wings> seek refuge:
8 They abundantly relish the fatness of thy house,—
   And <out of the full streamd] of thine own pleasures> thou givest them to drink.
9 For <with thee> is the fountain of life,
   <In thy light> we see light.
10Prolong thy lovingkindness unto them who know thee,—
   And thy righteousness, to the upright in heart.
11Let not the foot of pride reach’ me,
   Nor ||the hand of the lawless|| scare me away.
12There’ did the workers of iniquity fall,—
   Thrust down, and not able to rise!

PSALM 37.

David’s. [An Alphabetical Psalm].

1 Burn not with vexationg because of evil-doers,
   Be notb envious of the workers of perversity;
2 For <like grass> soon’ shall they wither,
   And <like green herbage> shall they fade.
3 Trust in Yahweh, and do good,
   Dwell in the land, and feed on fidelity;
4 Yea, rest thy delight on Yahweh,
   That he may give thee the requests of thy heart.
5 Roll on Yahweh thy way,
   Trust also in him, and ||he|| will effectually work:
6 So will he bring forth, as the light, thy righteousness,
   And thy vindicationi as the noonday.
7 Be resigned to Yahweh, yea wait with longing for him;
   Burn not with vexation—At the man who prospereth in his way,—
   At the man who doeth wickedness.
8 Cease from anger, and forsake wrath,
   Burn not with vexation—[it would be] only to do evil;
9 For ||evil doers|| shall be cut off, But <as for them who wait for Yahweh> ||they|| shall inherit the earth.1
10<Yet a little> therefore, And the lawless’ one shall not be’, Yea thou shalt look about, over his place— And he shall have vanished!
11But ||the patient oppressed-ones|| shall inherit the earth,k And shall delight’ themselves over the abundance of prosperity.

PSALM 38.

A Melody of David. To bring to Remembrance.

1 O Yahweh, do not <in thine anger> correct me, Nor <in thy wrath> chastise me;
2 For [thine arrows] have sunk down into me, And thy hand [presseth heavily upon me].
3 There is no' soundness in my flesh, By reason of thine indignation, There is no' peace in my bones, By reason of my sin;
4 For [mine iniquities] have passed over my head, <Like a heavy burden> they are too heavy for me:
5 My wounds are of bad odour—they have festered, By reason of my folly:
6 I am bent, I am bowed down very low, <All the day> have I gloomily' walked;
7 For [my loins] are filled with inflammation, And there is no' soundness in my flesh:
8 I am benumbed and crushed exceedingly,— I have cried aloud because of the groaning of my heart.
9 O My Lord! <before thee> is all my longing, And [my sighing] <from thee> hath not been hid:

10||My heart|| fluttereth, my strength hath forsaken me, And <as for the light of mine eyes>⁸ ||even they|| are not with me:
11||My lovers, and my friends|| <from before my stroke> stand aloof,— And ||my near ones|| <far away> do stand:
12Yea they who are seeking my life [have laid snares], And ||they who are asking my harm|| have threatened engulfing ruin, And <deceitful things—all day long> do they mutter.
13But ||as one deaf> will not hear,— And as one dumb, who will not open his mouth:
14Thus have I become as a man who cannot hear, In whose mouth are no arguments:
15Because <for thee> O Yahweh, have I waited, ||Thou|| wilt answer, O Adonay, b my God!
16For I said Lest they rejoice over me! <When my feet were tottering> ||against me|| have they magnified themselves:
17For [||] <to hate> am ready, And ||my pain|| is before me continually;
18For <mine iniquity> will I declare, I shall be anxious because of my sin;
19And <my foes> are alive”—have become strong,— And multiplied’ are they who hate me for false cause:
20||Even they who are repaying evil for good|| accuse me because I pursue the good.
21Do not forsake me, O Yahweh! My God! be not far from me:
22Make haste to help me, My Lord, my deliverance!

I will take heed to my ways,
That I sin not with my tongue,—
I will put* on my mouth a muzzle,
So long as the lawless is before me.

2 I was dumb with silence,
I held my peace, afar from happiness, a
But ||[my pain]] had been stirred:

3 Hot* was my heart within me,
<While I was musing> there was kindled a fire,
I spake with my tongue!

4 Let me know, O Yahweh, mine end,
And the measure of my days,—what it is,
I would know how short-lived I am'.

5 Lo! <as hand-breadths> hast thou granted my days,
And ||[my life-time]] is as nothing before thee,—

13 Look away from me, that I may brighten up,
Ere yet I depart and am no more.

PSALM 40.

To the Chief Musician. David’s. A Melody.b

1 I ||[waited patiently]] for Yahweh,—
And he inclined unto Yahweh,—
Who hath not turned unto the haughty,
Nor gone aside unto falsehood.

2 So he brought me up
Out of the destroying’ pit,
Out of the swampy’ mire,—
And set, upon a cliff, my feet,
Making firm my steps:

3 Then put he, into my mouth, a new song,
Praise to our God,—
Many shall see and revere,
And shall trust in Yahweh.

4 How happy the man
Who hath made Yahweh his confidence,
Who hath not turned unto the haughty,
Nor gone aside unto falsehood.

5 <Mighty things> hast thou done—
||[Thou, Yahweh my God]],
<Thy wonderful doings and thy purposes towards us>
There is no’ setting them in order unto thee—
I would tell, and would speak!—
They are too great to rehearse.j

To the Chief Musician. An Instructive Psalm for the Sons of Korah.

1 <As ||the hart|| cometh panting up to the channels of water>
||So my soul|| panteth for thee, O God.
2 My soul thirsteth for God, for a GOD who liveth,—
When shall I enter in, and see the face of God?
3 My tears have been my food day and night,
While it hath been said unto me all the day,
Where is thy God?
4 <These things> I keep calling to mind and pouring out over me, For I used to cross over with a crowd,
Lead them in procession up to the house of God,
||With the voice of shouting and praise,—a throng keeping festival||.
5 Why shouldst thou be cast down, O my soul?
And [why]| shouldst thou moan over me?
Wait thou for God, for yet' shall I praise him,
As the triumph of my presence.
6 My God! <over myself> my soul is cast down,—
<For this cause> will I remember thee from the land of Jordan,
And the Hermons, from the hill Mizar.

7 <Roaring deep unto roaring deep> is calling, at the voice of thy cataracts.
||All thy breakers and thy rolling waves|| <over me> have passed.
8 <By day> will Yahweh command his lovingkindness,
And <in the night> shall His song be with me,
My prayer be to the GOD of my life.
9 I will say onto GOD,—my rock,
Wherefore’ hast thou forgotten me?
Wherefore’ in gloom should I go, because of oppression by the enemy?
10 <With a crushing of my bones> have my adversaries reproached me,— While they keep saying unto me all the day,
Where’ is thy God?

11 Why shouldst thou be sat down, O my soul?
And why shouldst thou moan over me?
Wait thou for God, for yet' shall I praise him,
As the triumph of my presence and my God.

PSALM 43.1

1 Vindicate me, O God, and plead my cause,
Against a nation [without lovingkindness],
<From the man of deceit and perversity> wilt thou deliver me?

1 ML.: “From the age even unto the age.”
2 So it shd be—G. Intro. 458. So it is in some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn., Aram., Syr.)—G.n.
3 In some cod. (w. Sep., Syr., Vul.): “why” is repeated. Cp. ver. 11 and Ps. xliii. 5—G.n.
5 So that where I come I conquer: my “presence” wins friends and subdues foes. Less probable rendering: “the salvation of my face (person)” — So O.G. In some cod. (w. Sep., Syr. and Vul.) the word “God” is brought back from next ver., thus: “The victory of my presence and my God. Over,” etc. Cp. ver. 11 and Ps. xliii. 5—G.n.
6 ML.: “my plea.”
PSALM 44.

To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. An Instructive Psalm.

1 O God! <with our own ears> have we heard, ||Our fathers|| have recounted to us,—
The work thou didst work
In their days,
In the days of aforetime:
2 ||Thou thyself, with thine own hand||—
Didst disposses ||nations||,
And didst plant themSigned
And didst break peoples in pieces,
And didst spread them out:
3 For <not by their own sword> gat they possession of the land,
Nor did ||their own arm|| win victory for them,—
But thine own right hand, and thine own arm, and the light of thy face,
Because thou hast accepted them.
4 ||Thou thyself|| art my king, O God,
Command thou the victories of Jacob.
5 <By thee> will we thrust at ||our adversaries||,
In thy Name will we tread down our assailants;
6 For <not in my bow> will I trust,
Nor shall ||my sword|| give me victory;
7 For thou hast saved us from our adversaries,
And <them who hated us> hast thou put to shame.
8 <In God> have we boasted all the day,
And <thy Name—unto times age-abiding> will we praise.

[Selah.

9 But nay<
thou hast rejected, and confounded us,
And wilt not go forth with our hosts;
10 Thou sufferest us to turn back from the adversary,
And ||they who hate us|| have plundered at will;e
11 Thou dost give us up like sheep to be devoured,
And <amongst the nations> hast thou scattered us.
12 Thou dost sell thy people for [no-value],
And hast not made increase by their price.
13 Thou dost make us
A reproach to our neighbours,
A mockery and a derision' to them who are round about us:
14 Thou dust make us
A by-word among the nations,—
A shaking of the head' among the peoples.
15 <All the day> is my confusion before me,
And ||the shame of my face|| hath covered me:
16 At the voice of him who reproacheth and revileth,
At the face of the foe and avenger.
17 ||[All this]] hath come upon us,
Yet had we not forgotten thee,
Neither had we dealt falsely' with thy covenant;
18 Our heart had not drawn back,
Nor had our goings swerved from thy path;
19 That thou shouldst have crushed us down’ in the place of wild dogs,
And covered us over with a deadly shadow.
20 <If we had forgotten the Name of our God,
And had spread forth our hands unto the God of the foreigner>
21 Would not ||God|| have searched into this,
Seeing that ||he|| knoweth the secrets of the heart?
22 Surely <for thy sake> have we been slain all the day,
We have been accounted as sheep for slaughter.f
23 Awake thou! wherefore’ shouldst thou sleep, O Lord;h

a Mi.: “the God of my refuge.”
† Some cod. (w. Syr.) add: “us”—G.n.

f So in many MSS. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn., Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.); but in some cod. (w. 9 ear. pr. edns.): “going” (sing.)—G.n.

PSALM 45.

To the Chief Musician. On Shoshannim. For the Sons of Korah. A Psalm of Instruction. A Song of Love.

1 Overflowed hath my heart, with an excellent theme,
I will recite my poem concerning the king,
Be [my tongue] [like] the pen of a scribe who is skilled.

2 Most beautiful thou art, beyond the sons of men,
Graciousness hath been poured forth by thy lips,
[For this cause] hath God blessed thee, to times age-abiding.

3 Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, O mighty one,
[Thine arrows] are sharp—
[Peoples] fall!
In the heart of the foes of the king.

4 And [thy majesty] be successful! ride forth!
On behalf of faithfulness, and humility—
righteousness,
And let thine own right hand shew thee wonderful things.

5 [Thine arrows] are sharp—
[Peoples] fall!
In the heart of the foes of the king.

6 [Thy throne, O God] is to times age-abiding and beyond,
[A sceptre of equity] is the sceptre of thy kingdom.

7 Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated lawlessness,—
[For this cause] hath God, thine own God, anointed thee
With the oil of gladness, beyond thy partners.

8 [Myrrh and aloes, cassias] all thy garments,—
[Out of the palaces of ivory] [the tones of strings] have rejoiced thee.

9 [Daughters of kings] are among thine honourable women.
Stationed’ is the bride at thy right hand, in gold of Ophir.

10 Hearken, O daughter, and observe,
Incline also thine ear,
Forget, then, thine own people,
And the house of thy father;

11 When the king shall desire thy beauty,
Surely [he] is thy lord, then bow down to him.

12 Also [the daughter of Tyre] [cometh in] with a present!
[Thy face] shall the rich of the people appease.

13 [All glorious]—the daughter of a king [sitteth] within,
<Brocades, wrought with gold] [are] her clothing!

14 [In embroidered raiment] shall she be brought unto the king,—
[The virgins that follow her, her companions] are to be conducted unto thee:

15 They shall be brought, with rejoicings and exultation,—
They shall enter into the palace of the king!

16 [Instead of thy fathers] be thy sons,
Thou shalt make them rulers in all the earth.

17 I will keep in remembrance thy Name, through each succeeding generation,
[For this cause] [peoples] shall praise thee, to times age-abiding and beyond.

PSALM 46.
To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah, on Alamoth. A Song.

1 |God—for us]| is a refuge and strength,
A help in distresses, soon found.\(^b\)
2 <For this cause> will we not fear,
Though the earth\(^c\) sheweth change,
Or the mountains\(^d\) slip into the heart of the seas:
3 The waters thereof roar and foam,
The mountains tremble with the swelling thereof.\(^e\)

[Selah.]

4 A river! || whose channels|| shall gladden the city of God,
The Most High hath hallowed his habitation\(^f\).
5 || God|| is in the midst of her, she shall not be shaken,
God will help her, by the turnings of the morning.
6 Nations have roared,
Kingdoms have tottered,
He hath uttered his voice, Earth melteth.
7 ||Yahweh of hosts|| is with us,
<A high tower for us> is the God of Jacob.

[Selah.]

8 Come! view the doings of Yahweh,—
Who hath set desolations in the earth;
9 Causing wars to cease unto the end of the earth,—
The bow he shivereth,
And breaketh in pieces the spear,
<War-chariots> burneth he up with fire.

10 Let be! and know that ||I|| am God,
I will be exalted among the nations,
I will be exalted in the earth.
11 ||Yahweh of hosts|| is with us,
<A high tower for us> is the God of Jacob.

PSALM 47.
To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. A Melody.

1 All ye peoples, clap your hands,
Shout unto God, with the voice of triumph;
2 For ||Yahweh—as Most High|| is to be revered,
A great king, over all the earth,
3 He will subjugate
Peoples under us, and
Tribes of men\(^g\) beneath our feet.
4 He chooseth for us our inheritance,
The excellence of Jacob, which\(^h\) he hath loved.

[Selah.]

5 God hath ascended with a shout,
Yahweh, with the sound of a horn.
6 Sing praises unto God,|| sing praises,
Sing praises to our King, sing praises;
7 For God is ||king of all the earth||,
Sing praises with understanding.\(^k\)
8 God hath become king|| over the nations,
|| God|| hath taken his seat upon his holy' throne.
9 || The willing-hearted \(^i\) of the peoples|| have gathered themselves together,
The people of the God of Abraham;
For <to God> belong the shields\(^m\) of the earth,
Greatly' is he exalted.

PSALM 48.
A Melodious Song. For the Sons of Korah.

1 Great' is Yahweh, and worthy to be mightily' praised,
In the city of our God, His holy mountain.
2 <Beautiful in elevation, the joy of all the land>\(^n\)
Is Mount Zion, in the joy of all the land,\(^n\)—
The city of a great king.

PSALM 49.

To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. A Melody.

1 Hear ye this, all ye peoples, Give ear, all ye inhabitants of this passing world;
2 Both sons of the low And sons of the high,— Together’ both rich and needy:—
3 ||My mouth|| shall speak forth Wisdom, And the soft utterance of my heart be Understanding:
4 I will bend, to a by-word, mine ear, I will open, on the lyre, mine enigma.
5 Wherefore’ should I fear in the days of calamity, Though the iniquity of them who lie in wait for me should enclose me?
6 As for them who are trusting in their wealth,— And [in the abundance of their riches] do boast themselves≥
7 ||A brother|| can none of them ||redeem||, He cannot give unto God a ransom for himself:
8 ||So costly|| is the redemption of their soul, That it faileth unto times age-abiding;
9 That he should [yet] live on [continually], Should not see corruption.
10 For it is seen that [the wise] die, <Together with the dullard, and the brutish> do they perish, And leave, to others, their wealth:
11 Their ||inward thought|| is that their houses are for times age-biding, Their habitations, for generation after generation,— They give their own names unto lands!
12 But ||a son of earth, though wealthy|| cannot tarry, He hath made himself a by-word—<Beasts> they resemble!
13 ||This, their way||, is a folly to them,

3 [||God|| <in her palaces> is to be known as a high tower.]
4 For lo! ||Kings||—
   Met as appointed,
   Passed by together;
5 ||They themselves|| saw,
   ||So|| were they amazed,
   Dismayed—they hurried way!
6 ||Trembling|| seized them [there], ||Pangs|| like hers who is in travail.
7 <With an east wind> wilt thou shatter the ships of Tarshish.
8 <Just as we have heard> ||So|| have we seen,
   In the city of Yahweh of hosts,
   In the city of our God,
   ||God himself|| will establish her, unto times age-abiding.
   [Selah.]
9 We have thought, O God, upon thy lovingkindness,
   In the midst of thy temple:
10 <According to thy Name, O God>
   ||So|| be thy praise, unto the ends of the earth,
   <With righteousness> is [thy right hand] filled.
11 Let Mount Zion rejoice
   Let the daughters of Judah exult,
   Because of thy judgments.
12 Go round Zion, and compass her about,
   Reckon up her towers;
13 Apply your mind to her rampart,
   Pass between her palaces,
   That ye may recount them to an after generation;
14 For ||this God|| is our God, to times age-abiding and beyond,
   ||He himself|| will conduct us till death.

a U.: “heart”; but often=“mind.”
b Ml.: “the rampart”; which, however, O.G. 298* takes as=“her rampart.” In some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns., Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.) it is: “her rampart”—G.n.
c Or: “such a God”—O.G.
d In some cod. (w. 5 ear. pr. edns., Aram., Sep., Vul.): “for ever” (ml. “unto times age-abiding”); but the Massorites, by a correction which divides one word into two, make it=“unto death”—G.n. But see O.G. 761 (”tr. prob. to xlix. 1”=a title “Concerning Death”).
e Or: “this age.”

f Or: “riddle.”
g Some cod.: “Surely” instead of “A brother”—G.n. In which case render:— “Surely no man can at all redeem, Nor give unto God his ransom.”
h Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn.): “Nor can he”—G.n.
i Or: “the pit.”
j Some cod. (w. Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.): “their grave is” (or, “their graves are” [“their houses,” etc.]): Gt.: “their grave”—G.n. Cp. O.G. 868.
And yet ||their followers|| <with their mouth> approve.

Selah.

14<Like sheep—into hades> are they driven, ||Death] shall shepherd them,— And the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning.
||Even their form|| is to decay, ||Hades|| is all that remaineth of a habitation for him.

15But ||God|| will redeem my soul, c out of the hand of hades, For he will take me.

Selah.

16Do not fear When a man becometh rich, When the glory of his house increaseth;
17For <when he dieth> he shall take ||nothing||, His glory’ shall not descend after him;
18For <though <his own self> while he lived> he used to bless, And they will praise thee, when thou dost well to thyself.
19He shall enter as far as the circle of his fathers, ||Nevermore> shall they see the light.

20||A son of earth though wealthy, who discerneth not|| Hath made himself a by-word, <Beasts> they resemble!

PSALM 50.

A Melody of Asaph.

1 ||El, Elohim, Yahweh|| hath spoken, and called the earth, From the rising of the sun, unto the going in thereof:
2 <Out of Zion the perfection of beauty> ||God|| hath shone forth.

Selah.

3 Let our God come, and let him not keep silence! ||A fire—before him|| shall devour, And <around him> hath it become exceeding tempestuous:

4 He calleth Unto the heavens above, And unto the earth, That he may judge his people.

5 Gather yourselves unto me—ye my men of lovingkindness, Who have solemnised my covenant over sacrifice.

6 Now have the heavens declared his righteousness, Because ||God|| is ||about to judge||. Selah.

7 Hear, O my people, and I will speak, O Israel, and I will adjure thee, <God, thine own God> I am’—

8 Not <for thy sacrifices> will I reprove thee, Nor for thine ascending-offerings, before me continually:
9 I will not take out of thy house—a bullock, Nor out of thy folds—he-goats;
10<For <mine> is every wild-beast of the forest, The cattle on the mountains, b in their thousands;
11I know every bird of the mountains, And ||the moving things of the plain|| are with me:
12<If I were hungry> I would not tell thee, For <mine> is the world, and the fulness thereof.
13Will I eat the flesh of mighty oxen? Or <the blood of he-goats> will I drink?

14Sacrifice to God a thankoffering,1 And pay to the Most High thy vows;
15Call upon me, then, in the day of distress, I will deliver thee, that thou mayest glorify me.
16But <to the lawless one> God saith, What hast ||thou|| to do, to recount my statutes? Or that thou hast taken up my covenant upon thy mouth?

17Seeing that ||thou|| hast hated correction,

a Gt.: “Let them then descend smoothly to the grave”—G.n. b So, in effect, Fuerst, p. 383. According to the Massoretic pointing, however, the rendering shd rather be: “Even their form is for Hades to consume away out of his abode [lofty house].” Cp. O.G. 115, w. 259.
c Or: “life.”
d U.; “soul.”
e The result of two various readings in this line, found in some cod. (w. Sep., Syr., Vul.), would be this: “So that he would praise thee when thou didst well to him”—Cp. G.n.

f So it shd be (w. Sep., Vul.)—G.n.
h “Unto the end (a long duration) they shall not see the light”—O.G. 664, 3.
ī Or: “for.”
j Or, simply: “To judge his people.”
k Some read: “on the mountains of God,” as in Ps. xxxvi. 6—O.G. 40.
l Or, simply: “thanksgiving.”
And hast cast my words behind thee;

And <in sin> did my mother conceive me.

6 Lo! <faithfulness> hast thou desired in the inward parts,

Yea <in the hidden part> wilt thou cause me to know [wisdom].

7 Wilt thou cleanse me from sin with hyssop,

That I may be pure?

Wilt thou wash me,

That I may be whiter [than snow]?

8 Wilt thou cause me to hear joy and gladness?

The bones thou hast crushed would exult.

9 Hide thy face from my sins,—

And <all mine iniquities> blot out;

10 <A pure heart> create for me, O God,

And  renew within me.

11 Do not cast me away from thy presence,

And <thy Holy Spirit> do not take from me:

12 Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation,

And <with a willing spirit> wilt thou uphold me:—

13 I would teach transgressors thy ways,

And <sinners> <unto thee> should return.

14 Rescue me from shed-blood, O God, the God of my salvation,

My tongue should shout’ thy righteousness;

15 O My Lord! <my lips> wilt thou open,

And <my mouth> shall declare thy praise.

16 For thou wilt not desire sacrifice—that I should give it,

||The sacrifices of God|| will not please:

17 ||The sacrifices of God|| are a spirit that is broken,—

<A heart—broken and crushed> O God, thou wilt not despise.

18 Do good, in thy good-pleasure, unto Zion,

Wilt thou build the walls of Jerusalem!

19 ||Then|| shalt thou desire the sacrifices of righteousness,

Ascending-sacrifice and whole burnt-offering,

||Then|| shall ascend upon thine altar, young bulls.

PSALM 51.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.
When Nathan the Prophet had come to him, after he had gone in unto Bath-sheba.

1 Be favourable unto me, O God, according to thy lovingkindness,

And <in thy word> wilt thou satisfy me with.

2 Thoroughly wash me from mine iniquity,

And <in thy words> (pl.)—G.n.

3 For <my transgressions> do ||[I]|| acknowledge,

And ||my sin|| is before me continually:

4 <Against thee>—against thee alone have I sinned,

And <wickedness>—in thine eyes have I done,—

That thou mayest

Be justified when thou speakest,—

5 Lo! <in iniquity> was I brought forth,

Be clear when thou judgest.

PSALM 52.

To the Chief Musician. A Psalm of Instruction, of David. When Doeg the Edomite went, and told Saul; and said to him,—David hath entered the house of Ahimelech.

1 Why dost thou boast thyself of wickedness, O mighty man? ||The lovingkindness of God|| [lasteth] all the day.

2 <Engulfing ruin> doth thy tongue devise, Like a whetted razor, working deceit;

3 Thou lovest Evil more than good, Falsehood, more than speaking righteousness.

Selah.

4 Thou lovest all devouring words, O deceitful tongue!

5 ||GOD also|| will break thee down utterly,— He will snatch thee up and tear thee away tentless, And uproot thee, out of the land of the living.

Selah.

6 The righteous shall both see and fear, And <over him> shall laugh:

7 Lo! the man who made not Godʹs his refuge,— But trusted in the abundance of his riches, Emboldened himself in his wealth!a

8 But ||I|| am like a flourishingʹ olive-tree, in the house of God, I have put confidence in the lovingkindness of God, for times age-abiding and beyond.

9 I will praise thee to times age-abiding, Because thou didst effectually work,— And I will wait onb thy Name, Because it is good, In the presence of thy men of lovingkindness.

PSALM 53.

To the Chief Musician. On “Maḥalath."rd A Psalm of Instruction, of David.

1 The impious hath said in his heart, There is no’ God! They have acted corruptly, They have wrought abominable perversity, There is none’ that doeth good:—

2 ||GOD|| <out of the heavens> looked down upon the sons of men,— To see whether there was one’ that shewed wisdom, Enquiring after God.

3 ||They all|| have turned back, Together’ have they become tainted,— There is none’ that doeth good, Not’ so much as [one]!!

4 Are the workers’ of iniquity [without knowledge]? Devouring my people, [as] they devour food? <Upon God>ƒ have they not called.

5 There’ have they been in great dread where no dread was, Because ||GOD|| hath scattered the bones of thy besieger,— Thou hast put [him] to shame, Because ||GOD|| had [rejected] them.h

6 Oh that <out of Zion> were granted the salvationsi of Israel! <When God>Œ bringeth back the captivesk of his people> Jacob’ [shall exult], Israel’ [shall be glad].

i In some cod. (w. Sep. and Syr.): “salvation” (sing.). Cp. Ps. xiv. 7—G.n.

k ML.: “captivity.”

In some MSS. is found the verse:—

“The purpose of the poor ye would put to shame, Because Yahweh is his refuge.” —Cp. Ps. xiv. 6—G.n.

In some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns. [1 Rabb.], Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.): “Are all the workers.” Cp. Ps. xiv. 4—G.n.

ML.: “dreaded a dread.”
PSALM 54.
To the Chief Musician: with Stringed Instruments. A Psalm of Instruction, of David. When the Ziphites came and said unto Saul, Is not ||[David] hiding himself [with us]?
1 O God! <by thine own Name> save me, And <by thine own strength> wilt thou vindicate me?
2 O God! Hear my prayer, Give ear to the sayings of my mouth;
3 For ||[aliens]| have risen up against me, And ||[men of violence]| have sought my life, They have not set God before them.
4 Lo! ||[God]| is bringing me help, ||[My Lord]| is with the upholders of my life;
5 Let him turn back the mischief ||[mischief]| upon mine adversaries, <In thy faithfulness> destroy them!
6 <With a freewill-offerings>  will I sacrifice unto thee, I will praise thy Name, O Yahweh, for it is good;
7 For <out of all distress> hath he rescued me,— And <upon my foes> hath [mine own eye] looked.

PSALM 55.
To the Chief Musician: with stringed Instruments. A Psalm of Instruction, of David.
1 Give ear, O God, to my prayer, And do not hide thyself from my supplication:
2 Attend unto me, and answer me, I may ramble in my complaining, And be driven to and fro—
3 Because of the noise of the enemy, By reason of the oppression ||[of the lawless one], For they would let trouble drop upon me, And <in anger> would they entrap me.
4 ||[My heart]| would writhe within me, And ||[the terrors of Death]| have fallen upon me:
5 ||[Fear and trembling]| would enter me, And there would have overwhelmed me—a horror!
6 Then I said— Oh that there were given me a pinion, like a dove, I would fly away and be at rest.
7 Lo! I would take a distant flight, I would tarry in the wilderness.
8 I would hasten mine escape, From rushing wind, from storm.
9 Confuse, O My Lord, divide their speech, For I have seen violence and contention in the city;
10 <Day and night> they go round her, upon her walls, And ||[trouble and misery]| are in her midst;
11 ||[Engulfing ruin]| is in her midst, And there depart not from her broadway, oppression and deceit.
12 For it is <not an enemy> that reproacheth me, Or I could bear it,— Not one that hath hated me, who <against me> hath magnified himself, Or I might hide myself from him;
13 But it is ||[thou]|, a man esteemed as mine equal, Mine associate, and mine acquaintance;
14 So that together have we been wont to find sweetness in counsel, <In the house of God> used we to walk in the throng.
15 Desolations on them! Let them go down into hades alive, For ||[wicked doings]| are at home within them.
16 ||[I]| <unto God> will cry,— And ||[Yahweh]| will save me.

To the Chief Musician. Upon “The Dove of God from the distant Sea.” A precious Psalm. When the Philistines seized him in Gath.

Shew me favour, O God,
For weak man hath panted for me,

PSALM 57.

To the Chief Musician. “Do not destroy.” A precious Psalm of David. When he fled from the face of Saul into the Cave.

Shew me favour, O God,
For in thee hast my soul sought refuge,—

2

<At evening and morning and high noon> have I been wont to lament and complain, And he hath heard my voice!

17

He hath completely redeemed my soul out of the attack upon me, For [in multitudes] were they [in conflict] with me.

18

God will hear, Yea He’ will humble them they aforetime sat enthroned.

[Selah.

With whom are no changings, Neither have they revered God.

20

He hath thrust forth his hands, against them’ he was wont to salute, He hath violated his covenant;

21

<Smothered by the words of> [the words of] his mouth, But [war] was [in] his heart,— Softer’ his words than oil’, Yet [they] were drawn swords!

22

Cast upon Yahweh thy lot, and [he] will sustain thee: He will not suffer, to times age-abiding, the righteous one to be shaken.

23

But [thou], O God, wilt bring them down to the pit of destruction, [Men of bloodshed and deceit] shall not live out half their days; But [will] I will trust in thee.

24

<All the day] a fighter oppresseth me:
Mine adversaries have panted all the day, For [many] are fighting with me [loftily].

All the day I am afraid, || I will praise unto thee’ will direct my confidence.

What can flesh do unto me?

In God I will praise his cause, —
In God have I trusted, I will not fear, What can a son of earth do unto me?

All the day they wrest [my words], Against me all their devices are for mischief; They stir up strife—they lie hid, [They] mark my steps’, — Seeing they have waited for my life. Because of iniquity recompense thou them,[ —
In anger bring thou down [the peoples] O God.

My wandering] hast [thou] recorded,— Put thou my tears in thy bottle, Are they not in thy record?

Then] shall my foes turn back, in the day I cry, [This] I know, for God is mine!

10

In God will I praise with good cause: In Yahweh will I praise with good cause: In God have I trusted, I will not fear, What can a son of earth do unto me?

11

Upon me O God, are thy vows, I will pay back praises unto thee.
For thou hast rescued my soul from death, Wilt thou not [rescue] my feet from stumbling? That I may walk to and fro, before God, In the light of life.

PSALM 58.

To the Chief Musician. “Do not destroy.” A precious Psalm [of David].

1 Are ye [indeed] silent [when] <righteousness> ye should speak?
When <with equity> ye should judge, O ye sons of men?

2 Aye! ye all do work [perversity],—
<Throughout the land> [your hands] weigh out [violence].

3 Lawless men have been estranged’ from birth,
They have gone astray’ from their nativity,
speaking falsehood;

4 [Their poison] is like unto the poison of a serpent,
Like the deaf adder, that stoppeth his ear;
That will not hearken to the voice of whisperers, Though the wise one try to bind him with spells.

6 O God! break away their teeth in their mouth,
<The biters of the young lions> knock thou out, O Yahweh!

7 Let such men flow away like waters that disperse themselves:
He prepareth his arrow,
Like [grass] let them be cut down:

8 Like a snail, which melteth away as it goeth,
A timly birth of a woman, which hath not seen the sun:

9 <Before your kettles can perceive the [kindled] bramble>
<Be he green or be he withered> he shall be swept away.

10 The righteous man will rejoice’ when he hath seen an avenging.
<His feet> will he bathe in the blood of the lawless one:—

11 So that a son of earth may say—
Surely’ there is fruit for the righteous man!
Surely’ there are’ gods who judge in the earth!

b Written: “arrow”; read: “arrows.” In some cod. (w. 6 ear. pr. edns., Aram. and Syr.): “arrows,” written and read; but in others (w. Sep. and Vul.): “arrow,” written and read—G.n.

Cp. O.G. 456.

i Cp. T.G. 802; but Fuerst, 1334, prefers: “Like a festering sore which dissolves.”

k Thus rendered in the plural, because the Hebrew for “who judge,” is exceptionally plural. Men brought up in idolatry may very naturally speak thus, even of the true God. Cp. 1 S. iv. 8. See, however, G. Intro. 153.
PSALM 59.

To the Chief Musician. “Do not Destroy.” A precious Psalm of David. When Saul sent, and they watched the house, to kill him.

1 Rescue me from my foes, O my God, <From them who lift themselves up against me> wilt thou set me on high:
2 Rescue me, from the workers of iniquity, And <from, the men of bloodshed> save me.
3 For lo! they have lain in wait for my life, Mighty’ ones stir up strife against me, Without transgression of mine, and without sin of mine, O Yahweh;
4 <For no iniquity> do they run that they may take their stand, Rouse thyself to meet me, and see.
5 ||Thou, therefore, O Yahweh, God of hosts, God of Israel|| Awake, to visit all the nations, Do not shew favour to any iniquitous traitors.

[Selah.]

6 They return at evening, They growl like a dog, And go round the city.
7 Lo! they belch forth with their mouth, ||Swords|| are in their lips, For [say they] Who doth hear?
8 ||Thou, therefore, O Yahweh|| wilt laugh at them, Thou wilt mock at all nations.:
9 ||O my Strength|| <unto thee> will I make melody, For ||God|| is my high tower.
10||My God of lovingkindness|| will come to meet me, ||God|| will let me look on mine adversaries.
11Do not slay them, lest my people’ forget,

Cause them to wander by thy strength, and prostrate them,§ [Thou] our shield, O Lord!b

12 The sin of their mouth, The word of their lips≥ Let them then be captured in their pride, Both for the oath and for the deception they record.
13Bring to a full end in wrath, Bring to a full end, that they be no’ more,— That men may know that ||God|| is ruling in Jacob, Unto the ends of the earth.

[Selah.]

14Let them return, then, at evening, Let them growl like a dog, And go round the city.
15||They|| may prowl about for food,— And <if they are not satisfied> then let them whine!!
16But ||I|| will sing thy power, And will shout aloud, in the morning, thy lovingkindness,— For thou has become a refuge for me, And a place to flee to in the day of my distress.
17O my Strength, <unto thee> will I make melody, For ||God|| is my high tower, my God of lovingkindness.

PSALM 60.

THE PSALMS – PSALM 61.

PSALM 61.
To the Chief Musician. Upon a Stringed Instrument.\(^5\) David’s.

1 hear, O God, my loud cry,
Attend’ unto my prayer:
2 <From the end of the earth>\(^1\) unto thee\(^*\) do I cry,
When my heart fainteth away,
3 <Unto a rock that is higher than I>\(^m\) wilt thou lead me.

3 For thou hast been
A Refuge to me.
A Tower of Strength, from the face of the foe.
4 I would be a guest in thy tent to the ages,
I would seek refuge in the concealment\(^e\) of thy wings.

[Selah.]

5 For ||[thou, O God||] hast hearkened to my vows,
Thou hast granted a possession,\(^o\) unto them who revere thy Name.
6 <Days—unto the days of the king> wilt thou add.
<His years> as of generation after generation:
7 Let him retain his seat\(^e\) age-abidingly\(^h\) before God,
Appoint that ||[lovingkindness and faithfulness]|| may watch over him!

8 ||[So|| wilt I sing thy Name unto futurity,
Pay my vows, day by day.

2 Surely [[he]] is my rock and my salvation, ||My high tower||—I shall not be greatly' shaken!

3 How long will ye shout at a man? Ye shall be crushed' all' of you,— Like a wall that bulgeth,—a fence pushed in!

4 Surely <from his elevation> they have taken counsel to thrust him down, They accept falsehood,— <With his mouth> they each of them bless, But <inwardly> they revile.

[Selah.]

5 Surely <towards God> be thou silent, my soul, For <from him> is mine expectation:

6 Surely [[he]] is my rock, and my salvation, ||My high tower||—I shall not be shaken!

7 <Upon God> [depend] my salvation and mine honour, ||My rock of strength, my refuge] are in God.

8 Trust ye in him all ye assembly of the people,² Pour out, before him, your heart, ||God]] is a refuge for us.

[Selah.]

9 Surely <vanity> are men of low degree, <Deception> men of high degree,— <In the balances> they go up, ||They]] are [made] of vanity [altogether].

10 Do not trust in extortion, Nor <with robbery> become vain,— ||As for wealth]] <when it beareth fruit> Do not set [thereon your] heart.

11 <One thing> hath God spoken, <Two things> [there are] which I have heard,³ That ||power]] belongeth unto God;

And <hine>, O My Lord, is lovingkindness,— For [[thou]] wilt pay back unto every man— according to his deed.

12 My soul thirsteth for thee, My flesh fainteth for thee, In² a land—dry, and weary for want of water,—

2 <In like manner’ as [in the sanctuary] I have had vision of thee>
To behold thy power and thy glory.

3 <Because better’ is thy lovingkindness than life> ||[My lips]] aloud shall praise thee!

4 ||[Thus]] will I bless thee while I live, <In thy Name> will I lift up mine outspread hands:

5 <As with fatness and richness> shall my soul be satisfied, And <with joyfully shouting lips> shall my mouth utter praise.

6 <Should I call thee to mind upon my couch> <In the watches of the night> would I breathe soft speech of thee.

7 For thou hast become a help unto me,— And <in the shadow of thy wings> will I shout for joy.⁵

8 My soul hath run clinging to thee, <On me> hath thy right hand laid hold.

9 <When [[they]]] to crush it would seek my life> They shall go into the lower parts of the earth:

10 Every one shall be given up into the power of the sword, <The portion of jackals> shall they become.

11 But [[the king]] shall rejoice in God,— Every one shall glory’ who sweareth by him, For the mouth of them who speak falsehood [shall be stopped].

PSALM 64.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 Hear, O God, my voice when I complain, <From dread peril by the foe> wilt thou guard my life.

2 Wilt thou hide me From the conclave of evil-doers, From the crowd of workers of iniquity.

3 Who have sharpened, like a sword, their tongue, Have made ready their arrow—a bitter' word;

4 To shoot, in secret places, at the blameless one, Suddenly’ they shoot at him, and fear not.

² So Ben-Asher, many MSS., and 7 ear. pr. edns.; but Ben-Naphtali, w. 2 ear. pr. edns., has: “Ye would all crush.” [The Massoretic cautions vary]—G.n.
³ Cp. O.G. 262, a.
⁴ Some cod. (w. Syr.): “Like”—G.n.
⁵ Gt.: “will I tarry”—G.n.
⁶ U.: “soul.”
They strengthen for them a wicked’ word,
They talk of hiding snares,
They have said, Who can see them?
They devise perverse things,
They have completed the device well devised,  ||Both the intent of each one, and the mind|| are unsearchable.

Once let God have shot at them an arrow
Suddenly have appeared their own wounds!
Therefore have all men feared,
—And have told the doing of God,  <And his work> have considered.

The righteous man shall rejoice in Yahweh
and seek refuge in him,
Then’ shall glory’—all who are upright in heart.

PSALM 65.
To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David—a Song.

1 ||Thine|| are silence [and] praise,
O God, in Zion,—
And <to thee> shall be paid the vow.

2 Thou hearer of prayer!
<Unto thee> shall all flesh come.

3 ||Iniquitous things|| have been too strong for me,
<As for our transgressions> wilt ||thou|| by propitiation remove them.

4 How happy the man thou shalt choose and bring near!
He shall abide in thy courts,—
We shall be satisfied with
The blessing of thy house,
The holiness of thy temple.

5 <By things reverend in righteousness> wilt thou answer us,
O God of our salvation,
The confidence of all the ends of the earth,
And of the sea far away;
Who setteth fast the mountains by his strength,

Being girded with might;

7 Who stilleth
The noise of the seas,
The noise of their rolling waves, and
The tumult of races of men?
Yea the dwellers in the uttermost parts have feared at thy tokens,
<The goings forth of morning and evening> thy causest to shout for joy.

9 Thou hast visited the earth, and made it abound,
<Abundantly> dost thou enrich it—
||[The channel of God]|| is full of waters,
Thou preparest their corn,
Yea ||thus|| dost thou prepare it:

10 <The ridges thereof> drenching,
Settling the furrows thereof,
<With myriad drops> dost thou soften it,
<The sprouting thereof> doth thou bless.

11 Thou hast set a crown upon thy year of bounty,
And ||thy tracks|| drop fatness;

12 Fruitful’ are the pastures of the wilderness,
And <with exultation> the hills’ do gird themselves.

13 Clothed’ are the pastures with flocks,
||[The valleys also]|| cover themselves with corn,
They shout for joy, yea’ they sing.

PSALM 66.
To the Chief Musician. A Melodious Song.

1 Make a joyful noise unto God, all the earth;
2 Praise ye in song the glory of his Name,
Celebrate the glory of his praise:

3 Say unto God—
How fearful in thy doings,
<Through the abounding of thy power> shall thy foes come cringing unto thee;

4 ||All the earth|| shall bow themselves down to thee,
And sing praises unto thee,
Shall praise in song thy Name.
[Selah.

PSALM 67.

To the Chief Musician. With stringed Instruments. A Melody, f a Song.
1 ||God|| be favourable to us and bless us,
    Cause his face to shine upon us.
    [Selah.
2 That thy way’ may be known throughout the earth,
    <Throughout all nations> thy saving help! g
3 Peoples will praise thee, O God,
    Peoples will ||all of them|| praise thee;
4 Races of men’ [will be glad and shout for joy],
    Because thou wilt judge peoples with equity,
    And ||races of men throughout the earth|| thou wilt lead.
    [Selah.
5 Peoples will praise thee, O God,—
    Peoples will ||all of them|| praise thee.
6 ||Earth|| will have given her increase,
    God, our own’ God, [will bless us]:
    7 God [will bless us],
    That all the ends of the earth [may revere him].

PSALM 68.

To the Chief Musician. David’s. A Melody, a Song.
1 Let God arise’, let his enemies be scattered’,
    Yea let them that hate him flee’ before him,: h
2 <As smoke is driven about>
    Let them be driven about, i—
    <As wax is melted before a fire>
    Let the lawless perish’ before God.
3 But let ||the righteous|| be glad, let them’ exult before God,
    Yea let them rejoice with gladness.
4 Sing ye to God,
    Make music of his Name,—
Lift up (a song),\(^a\) to him that rideth through the waste plains,— <Since Yah is his name> exult ye before him.
5 <The father of the fatherless,

The progress of my GOD, my king into the sanctuary:

In front\(^b\) are the singers,
Behind\(^c\) are the harpers,
In the midst of damsels playing on timbrels:

In the congregations> bless ye God,
My Lord, from among the called\(^d\) of Israel:

There, is Benjamin, the Diminutive—ruling them,
The princes of Judah—thine throng,
The princes of Zebulun,
The princes of Naphthali.

Thy God hath commanded\(^e\) thy strength,—
The strength O God, which\(^f\) thou hast wrought for us.

Because of thy temple above Jerusalem>

PSALM 69.

To the Chief Musician. On “The Lilies.”
David’s.

Save me, O God,
For waters have entered as far as the life;\(^p\)

I have sunk in deep swamp,
Where there is no place to stand,
I have come into abysses of waters,
Where a flood hath overflowed me;

I am weary with mine outcry,
Parched’ is my throat,—
Mine eyes have become dim, through waiting for my God.

<More than the hairs of my head>
Are they who hate me without cause,—
<Firmer than my bones>\(^q\)
Are they who are my foes for false’ cause,—
<What I had not plundered> ||then||\(^r\) had I to restore.

O God, ||thou|| hast known my folly,
And ||my wrong-doings|| <from thee> have not been hid.

Let them’ not be ashamed, through me,
Who have waited for thee, O My Lord, Yahweh of hosts,'—
Let them’ not be confounded, through me,
Who are seeking thee, O God of Israel!
Because <for thy sake> have I borne reproach,
Confusion hath covered my face;
<One estranged> have I become, to my own brethren,
Yea <an alien> to the sons of my own mother;

Because ||zeal for thy house|| hath eaten me up,

Or: “hastening.”

So if it shd be <in prayer, or with gifts.>

My Lord”; occasionally: “the Lord.”

Ml.: “the heavens of heavens of aforetime.”

\(^h\) Cp. Jer. xlvi. 20, 21.
And let the reproaches of them who have reproached thee fall upon me.

10<When I have humbled my soul with fasting> then have it turned to my reproach;
Then have I served them for a by-word;
12They who sit in the gate talk against me,—And [against me are] the songs of them who imbibe strong drink.
13But <as for me> my prayer shall be unto thee, O Yahweh, in a time of acceptance, O God <in the abounding of thy lovingkindness> answer me with thy saving' faithfulness.
14Rescue me out of the mire, lest I sink, Let me be rescued From my haters, and From abysses of waters:
15Let not a flood of waters overflow me, And let not the depth swallow me up, Neither let the well close over me, her mouth.
16Answer me, O Yahweh, for good' is thy lovingkindness, <According to the abounding of thy compassion> turn thou towards me:
17Then do not hide thy face from thy servant, <Because I am in distress> haste thou—answer me!
18Oh draw near unto my soul—redeem it, <Because of mine enemies> ransom me.
19||Thou knowest my reproach, and my shame, and my confusion, <Before thee> are all mine adversaries.
20Reproach hath broken my heart, and I am weak,—<Though I waited for one to pity me>d yet there was none', <And for comforters> yet I found not any.
But they put in my food—poison! And <for my thirst> they gave for my drink—vaccine!
22Let their table, before them, become a snare, And unto their friends, a lure;
23Let their eyes become too dim to see, And <their loins> continually' cause thou to shake;

24Pour out over them thine indignation, And let <the glow of thine anger> overtake them:
25Let their encampment become desolate, <In their tents> be there none to dwell:
26For <whom thou thyself> hadst smitten> they pursued, And <unto the pain of thy wounded ones> they must needs add.
27Lay the punishment on their iniquity, And let them not enter into thy righteousness;
28Let them be blotted out of the book of life, And <with the righteous> let them not be enrolled.
29||I then, am humbled and in pain, <Thy salvation, O God> may it set me on high.
30I will praise the Name of God with a song, And will magnify him with thanksgiving;
31So shall it be more pleasing to Yahweh than a bullock of the herd g Shewing horn [and] divided hoof.
32The humbled have seen—they rejoice! Ye seekers of God, let your heart, then, revive';
33For  is Yahweh, And <his prisoners> hath he not despised.
34Let the heavens and the earth [praise him], The seas, and everything that creepeth therein.
35For ||God|| will save Zion, And build the cities of Judah, So shall men dwell there, and possess it:
36Yea ||the seed of his servants|| shall inherit it, And ||the lovers of his Name|| shall settle down therein.

PSALM 70.

To the Chief Musician. David's. To call to Remembrance.1

1 [Be pleased] b O God, to rescue me, O Yahweh, to help me—make haste.

   Who are lovers of thy salvation.
5 But being humbled and needy
   O God, haste to me,—
   <My help and my deliverer> art thou',
   O Yahweh c do not tarry.

PSALM 71. d

1 In thee, O Yahweh have I sought refuge,
   May I not be ashamed unto times age-abiding:
2 In thy righteousness wilt thou rescue me and deliver me,
   Incline unto me thine ear, and save me:
3 Be thou unto me a Rock to dwell in,
   a Place of Security, f
   To save me,
   For <my mountain crag and my stronghold> thou art'.
4 Oh my God, deliver me
   From the hand of the lawless one,
   From the clutch of the perverse and ruthless one;
5 For art my hope,
   My Lord, Yahweh. g
   My confidence from my youthful days:
6 Upon thee have I stayed myself from birth,
   Thou' art he that severed me ||from the body of my mother;||
   Of thee shall be my praise—continually.
7 A very wonder have I been unto many,
   Seeing that thou hast been my strong refuge.
   My mouth shall be filled with thy praise,
   All the day with thy splendour. j
9 Do not cast me off in the time of old age,

<When my vigour faileth> do not forsake me;
10 For mine enemies have spoken of me,
   And ||they who watch for my life|| have taken counsel together;
11 Saying ||God|| hath forsaken him,
   Pursue and take him,
   For there is none to rescue.
12 O God, be not far from me,
   O my God, <to help me> make haste!
13 Let them' be ashamed—be consumed
   Who are assailing my life,—
   Let them' be covered with reproach and confusion
   Who are seeking my hurt.
14 But |||| continually' will hope,
   And will add' to all thy praise;
15 ||My mouth|| shall relate thy righteousness,
   <All the day> thy deliverance,
   For I know not the numbers.
16 I will enter into the mighty doings of My Lord—
   Yahweh,
   I will make mention of thy righteousness—||thine alone||.
17 O God, thou hast taught me from my youthful days,
   And <hitherto> have I been wont to tell of thy wonders;
18 <Even now, therefore, that I am old and grayheaded>
   O God, do not forsake me,—
   Until I tell of thine arm unto a [new] generation,
   Unto every one that is to come thy might;
19 And as for thy righteousness, O God, up on high,
   Wherein thou hast wrought great things
   O God! who is like unto thee?
20 Thou who hast let us see many distresses and misfortunes||
   Wilt again' bring us to life,

PSALM 73.
A Melody of Asaph.

1 [Nothing but good] is God
   Unto Israel,
   Unto the pure in heart.
2 But <as for me>—
   My feet' had [almost stumbled];
   My steps' had [well-nigh slipped];
3 For I was envious of the boasters,
   <At the prosperity of the lawless> used I to look.
4 For they have no' pangs in their death,
   And vigorous' is their body;
5 <Of the toil of weak mortals> have they none',
   Nor <with the sons of earth> are they hard smitten.
6 <For this cause> doth arrogance' deck them as a neck-chain,
   And a garment of wrong is their attire;
7 Their iniquity' hath proceeded from fatness]
   They have surpassed the imaginations of the heart;
8 They mock, and wickedly command oppression,
   <From on high> they command;
9 They have set, in the heavens, their mouth,
   And [their tongue] marcheth through the earth.
10 Therefore' must his people return' thither,
   And [the waters of abundance] are drained
   by them;
11 And they say—
   How doth God know'?
   And is' there knowledge in the Most High?

Lo! [these] are the lawless,
Who are secure for an age,
They have attained unto wealth.

<Altogether in vain>
Have I cleansed my heart,
And bathed in pureness, my hands;
And yet been smitten all the day,
And been rebuked morning by morning!

If I had thought I will relate it thus:
Lo! <the circle of thy sons> had I betrayed.

When I reasoned, that I might understand this>
[A vexation] it was in mine eyes:

Until I could enter the holy places of God,—
Could give heed to their hereafter:

Surely <in slippery places> dost thou set them,—
Thou hast suffered them to fall into places of danger.

How have they become desolate, as in a moment!
They have ceased—come to an end, by reason of calamities.

As the dream of him that waketh>
O my Lord! <when rousing thyself up> <their shadowy being> wilt thou despise.

But my heart had grown embittered,
And <in my reins> had I received wounds;
But [Ill] was brutish, and could not perceive,
Like the beasts had I become before thee.

PSALM 74.
An Instructive Psalm. Asaph’s.
1 Wherefore’, O God, hast thou cast off utterly?
Shall thine anger smoke against the flock of thine own pasturing?
2 Remember thine own assembly thou didst acquire aforetime,
Thou didst redeem the tribe of thine own
inheritance,
Mount Zion, d wherein thou didst take up thy habitation.e
3 Lift up thy steps unto the places utterly unsafe,f
All the mischief!—the foe in the sanctuary!
4 Thine adversaries have roared’ in the midst of thine appointed meeting,g
They have set their ensigns as tokens’h
5 One used to be known’ according as he carried up high—
Into the thicket of trees—the axes;
6 But ||now|| <the doors' thereof all together> |with axes and hammers| they batter down.
7 They have cast, into the fire, thy sanctuary,i

<To the ground> have they profaned the habitation of thy Name.
8 They have said in their heart,
Let us suppress them altogether,k
They have burned up all the meeting-places of God in the land.
9 <Our own signs> have we not seen,—
There is no longer a prophet,— Neither is there with us, one who knoweth—How long!
10 How long, O God, shall the adversary’ [reproach]?
Shall the enemy revile’ thy Name perpetually?
11 Wherefore’ shouldst thou withdraw thy hand—thy right’ hand?
[Bring it] out of the midst of thy bosom! [Selah.]
12 But ||God|| hath been my king from aforetime,
Working Deliverances in the midst of the earth.
13 ||Thou|| didst cleave asunder, in thy might, the sea,
Thou didst break in pieces the heads of the Crocodiles, [til they floated] on the waters;
14 ||Thou|| didst crush the heads of the Sea-Monster.
Thou didst give him to be food, for the people of the deserts;
15 ||Thou|| didst cleave open fountain and torrent,
||Thou|| didst dry up rivers of steady flow:
16 <Thine> is the day, Yea <thine> the night,
||Thou|| didst establish moonm and sun;
17 ||Thou|| didst set up all the bounds of the earth,
<As for summer and winter> ||thou|| didst form
them!
18 Remember this,
||An enemy|| hath reproached Yahweh,
Yea [an impious people] have reviled thy Name.
19 Do not deliver up, to a wild beast, the life of thy turtle-dove, forget perpetually.

PSALM 77.

To the Chief Musician. On “Jeduthun.”\(^b\)

Asaph’s,\(^c\) a Melody.

1 >With my voice—unto God> will I make outcry,\(^d\)

With my voice unto God, and he will give ear unto me;

2 >In the day of my distress—unto My Lord> will I seek,

||My hand|| <by night> hath been outstretched,

and never once became slack,

My soul’ [hath refused to be consoled];

3 I remember God and I murmur,

I muse, and my spirit swooneth’.

[Selah.]

4 Thou hast held, watching, mine eyes,

I was driven to and fro, and could not speak;

5 I reasoned Of the days of aforetime,

Of the years of by-gone ages;

6 I remember my song\(^e\) in the night,—

<With my own heart> I commune,

And my spirit\(^f\) [maketh search];—

7 <For ages> will My Lord’ reject?

And [not again] grant acceptance [any more]?

8 Hath his lovingkindness’ [come to a perpetual end]?

Hath his word failed to generation after generation?

9 Hath God’ [forgotten to shew favour]? Or hath he shut up, in anger, his compassions?

[Selah.]

10Then said I—

<An affliction to me> it is’,

 The changing of the right hand of the Most High.

I will remember the doings of Yah,

Surely I will remember, out of aforetime, thy wonderful way;\(^f\)

And will talk to myself of all thy work,\(^g\)

And <of thy doings> will I muse:—

O God, <in the sanctuary>\(^h\) is thy way,—

Who is a great God like Elohim?\(^i\)

||Thou art GOD, doing wonderfully,\(^j\)|—

Thou didst redeem, with thine arm—

Thy people,

Thy sons of Jacob and Joseph.

<To a later' generation> recounting the praises of Yahweh,
Even his might and his wonders which he wrought;
5 When he set up a testimony in Jacob, And  appointed in Israel,— Which he commanded our fathers, That they might make them known to their children;
6 To the end A later' generation [might come to know], Children who should be born, Who should arise, and recount [them] to their children;
7 That they might set in Elohim, their confidence,— And not forget the doings of El, But <his commandments> might observe; a
8 And not become, like their fathers, a generation stubborn and rebellious, b A generation that fixed not their heart, Neither was their spirit [faithful with] GOD. [The sons of Ephraim—armed bowmen] g
9 Turned in the day of battle;
10 They kept not the covenant of God, And <in his law> refused to walk;
11 And forgat His doings, And his wonders which he had shewed them:
12 <In presence of their fathers> wrought he wondrously]. e—
In the land of Egypt—the field of Zoan:
13 He clave the sea, and caused them to pass through, And reared up the waters like a mound;
14 And led them, by a cloud, in the daytime, And all the night, by a light of fire;
15 He used to cleave rocks in the desert, And let them drink as out of mighty deeps;
16 And he brought forth streams out of the cliff, And caused waters to flow down, like rivers.
17 But again’, once more’ sinned they against him, Resisting the Most High in a land of drought:
18 They put GOD to the proof in their heart, By asking food to their mind:  g
19 Yea they spake against Elohim,—

They said,
Can’ GOD prepare a table in the desert?
20 Lo! he hath smitten a rock, And waters [have gushed out],
Yea [torrents] have rushed along,— <Food also> can he give? Or provide flesh’ for his people?
21 [Therefore] Yahweh hearkened, and became wroth,— And [a fire] was kindled against Jacob, Moreover also [anger] mounted against Israel;
22 Because They believed not in God, Nor trusted in his salvation;
23 Though he had commanded the skies above, And <the doors of the heavens> had opened;
24 And had rained on them manna to eat, And <the corn of the heavens> had given to them:
25 <The food of the mighty> each’ one did eat, <Nourishment> sent he them to the full;
26 He let loose an east wind in the heavens, Then guided he, in his might, a south wind;
27 And rained upon them flesh’ as the dust, And <like the sand of the seas> birds of wing;
28 And let them fall in the midst of their camp,— Round about their habitations.
29 So they did eat and were abundantly filled, When <what they longed for> he had brought them:—
30 They had not turned away from what they had longed for, Yet’ was their food in their mouth≥
31 When [the anger of GOD] mounted against them, And he slew of their vigorous youths, And <the choice young men of Israel> caused he to bow down in death.
32 <For all this> sinned they still, And believed not in his wonders;
33 So he ended, in a breath, their days, And their years, in a sudden terror!
34 <If he slew [of] them> then they sought him, Yea they turned, and did earnestly seek GOD;
35 And remembered that [ Elohim ] was their rock, Yea [ El Most High] their Redeemer:
36 So they spake him fair with their mouth,

i Or: “In” (or “amid”).
And <with their tongue> did promise him falsely;
37But |their heart| was not fixed with him,
Nor were they trusty' in his covenant:
38Yet ||he| <full of compassion> would put a propitiatory-covering over iniquity, and not destroy,—
Yea <many a time> turned he back his anger,
And would not stir up all his wrath.
39So then he remembered
That <Flesh> they were', a
A Wind departing, that returneth not.
40How often they  Resisted him in the desert,
Vexed him, in the waste:
41Yea they again put GOD to the test,
And <to the Holy One of Israel> caused they sorrow:b
42They remembered not his hand—The day
When he ransomed them from the adversary;
43When he set, in Egypt, his signs,
And his wonders, in the plain of Zoan;
44When he turned, into blood, their Nile-streams,
And <their own rivers> could they not drink;
45He sent among them
The gad-fly, and it devoured them,
And the frog, and it despoiled them;
46When he gave to the corn-locust< their produce,
And their toil, to the swarming locust;
47He killed, with hail, their vine,
And their sycomores, with frost:
48When he gave up, to hail-storms, their beasts,
And their cattle, to pestilent fevers;
49He sent among them the heat of his anger,
Wrath and indignation and distress,—
A mission of messengers of misfortune:
50He leveled a path for his anger,—
Withheld not, from death, their soul,
But <their life>—to the pestilence> he delivered:
51So he smote
Every first-born in Egypt,
The beginning of their strength, d in the tents of Ham;
52And he set forth, like sheep, his people,
And guided them, like a flock in the desert;e
53Yea he led them securely, and they dreaded not,
And <their enemies> the sea did cover.
54Then brought he them within his own holy bounds,
The mountain-range, which< his right hand made his own:
55So he drave out, before them, [whole] nations,
And allotted them, by line, an inheritance,
And caused to dwell, in their own homes, the tribes of Israel.
56But they tested and resisted God Most High,
And <his testimonies> did not observe;
57But drew back and dealt treacherously, like their fathers,
They turned aside, like deceitful’ bowmen;
58And provoked him to anger with their high places,
And <with their images>b used to move him to jealousy.
59God heard' and was wroth,
And greatly abhorred' Israel;
60So he gave up the habitation of Shiloh,
The tent he had set up among Men;
61Yea he gave up, into captivity, his strength,
And his beauty' into the hand of an adversary;
62And delivered up, to the sword, his people,
And <with his own inheritance> was he wroth;
63||His young men|| were devoured by fire,
And ||his virgins|| were not praised in song;
64||His priests|| by the sword| did fall,
And ||his widows|| were not able to bewail.
65Then awoke, as one that had slept, Adonay,
As a warrior exulting with wine!
66So he smote his adversaries in the rear,
<Reproach age-abiding> laid he upon them.
67Howbeit he rejected the tent of Joseph,
And <the tribe of Ephraim> did not choose:
68But made choice of the tribe of Judah,
The mountain of Zion, which he loved;
69And built, like the heights, his sanctuary,

PSALM 79.
A Melody of Asaph.

1 O God, nations
Have entered thine inheritance,
Have profaned thy holy temple,—
Have laid Jerusalem in heaps:
2 They have given
The dead bodies of thy servants,
As food for the birds of the heavens,
The flesh of thy men of lovingkindness,
Unto the wild beast of the earth:
3 They have poured out their blood like water
Round about Jerusalem,
With none’ to bury.
4 We have become
A reproach to our neighbours,—
A mockery and a derision, to them who are round about us.
5 How long, O Yahweh, wilt thou be angry utterly?
Shall thy jealousy burn like fire?
6 Pour out thy wrath
Upon the nations that have not known thee, d — and Upon the kingdoms that <on thy Name> have not called.

7 For he hath’ devoured Jacob,—
And <his dwelling-place> have they laid waste.
8 Do not remember against us former’ iniquities,—

Haste thee, let thy compassions [come to meet us],
For we have been brought very low!
9 Help us, O God of our salvation,
On account of the glory of thy Name,—
Rescue us then, and put a propitiatory-covering over our sins,
For the sake of thy Name.
10 Wherefore’ should the nations’ say—
Where is their God?
Let him be known among the nations before our eyes!
[Yea! by] the avenging of the blood of thy servants which hath been shed!
11 Let the groaning of the prisoner [come in before thee],—
<According to the greatness of thine arm>
Set free f them who are appointed to death. g
12 Return, therefore, unto our neighbours—
Sevenfold, into their own bosom,
The reproach wherewith they have reproached thee, O Adonay! h
13 So [we, thy people, and the sheep of thy pasture]| will give thanks unto thee, to times age-abiding,—
<To generation after generation> will we recount thy praise.

PSALM 82.
A Melody of Asaph.
1 God hath taken his place in the august assembly,
In the midst of the gods will he judge.
2 How long will ye judge perversely
And the countenances of the lawless uplift?
3 Vindicate the weak and the fatherless,
In darkness they wander,
All the foundations of the earth do shake
4 I said, Ye are sons of the Highest;
Yea sons of the Highest are ye all;
5 But indeed, like the earth-born shall ye die!
And like one of the princes shall ye fall!
6 Arise! O God, judge thou the earth,
For thou wilt inherit all the nations.

PSALM 83.
A Song, a Melody of Asaph.
1 O God, Do not keep quiet,
Do not hold thy peace,
Neither be thou still, O God!
2 For lo! ||thine enemies|| are tumultuous,
And ||they who hate thee|| have lifted up the head;

3 Against thy people they craftily devise a secret plot,
And conspire against thy treasured ones.
4 They have said—
Come, and let us wipe them out from being a nation,
That the name of Israel may be remembered no more.
5 For they have taken counsel with one heart,
Would they solemnize—
6 The tents of Edom, and the Ishmaelites,
Of Moab and the Hagarines;
7 Gebal and Ammon, and Amalek,
The Philistines, with the dwellers in Tyre;
8 [Even Assyria] hath joined herself with them,
They have become an arm to the sons of Lot.

9 Make them like Midian,
Like Sisera, like Jabin, by the torrent of Kishon;
10 They perished at En-dor,
They become manure for the soil!
11 Make them—their nobles—like Oreb and like Zeeb,
And like Zebah and like Zalmunna all their princes:
12 Who said—
Let us take a possession for ourselves,
The pastures of God!
13 O my God, make them
As whirling [dust],
As chaff before a wind;
14 As a fire burneth a forest,—
And as a flame setth mountains ablaze
15 wilt thou pursue them with thy tempest,—
With thy storm-wind wilt terrify them:
16 Fill thou their faces with dishonour,
That men may seek thy Name, O Yahweh;
17 Let them turn pale and be terrified to futurity,
Yea let them blush and perish:
18 That men may know that thou
Whose Name alone is Yahweh
Art Most High over all the earth.

To the Chief Musician. On “the Gittith.” For the Sons of Korah. A Melody.

   ||My heart and my flesh|| shout aloud for a Living God.
3 ||Even the sparrow|| hath found a home,

5 How happy the men whose strength is in thee,
   Festive processions are in their heart.
6 ||Passing through the balsam-vale||

   Yea <with blessings> is it covered by the early rain.
7 They go from strength to strength, Each one appeareth before God in Zion.
8 O Yahweh, God of hosts, hear thou my prayer,—
   Give hear, thou God of Jacob.
   [Selah.
9 <Our Shield> behold thou, O God,
   And look upon the face of thine Anointed One.
10 For better’ is a day in thy courts, than a thousand,
   I choose rather to stand at the threshold, in the house of my God,
   Than to dwell in the tents of lawlessness.

   [Selah.
3 Thou hast withdrawn all thine indignation,
   Thou hast ceased from the glow of thing anger.
4 Restore us, O God of our salvation,
   And take away thy vexation towards us.
5 <To times age-abiding> wilt thou be angry with us?
   Wilt thou prolong thine anger, from generation to generation?
6 Wilt not ||thou thyself|| again’ give us life,
   That ||thy people|| may rejoice in thee.
7 Shew us, O Yahweh, thy lovingkindness,
   And <thy salvation> wilt thou grant us.
8 I will hear, what God—Yahweh—will speak,—
   For he will bespeak prosperity to his people
   And to his men of lovingkindness,
   And to them who return with their heart unto him.
9 Surely <near unto them who revere him> is his salvation,
   That the Glory may settle down in our land.
10 ||Lovingkindness and faithfulness|| have met together,
   ||Righteousness and prosperity|| have kissed each other;
11 ||Faithfulness|| <out of the earth> doth spring forth,
   And ||righteousness|| <out of the heavens> hath looked down.
12 ||Yahweh himself too|| will give us the blessing,
   And ||our land|| shall yield her increase.

PSALM 86.
A Prayer. David’s.

1 Bow down, O Yahweh, thine ear—answer me, For ||oppressed|| and needy> am I;
2 O guard my life, b For  am I,—
   Save thy servant, ||O thou’ my God||,
   [Thy servant] who trusteth in thee;
3 Shew me favour, O my Lord, For <unto thee> do I cry, all the day;
4 Rejoice the soul of thy servant, For <unto thee> O My Lord <my soul> do I lift.
5 For thou art good and forgiving, And abundant in lovingkindness to all who call upon thee.
6 Give ear, O Yahweh, unto my prayer, And attend unto the voice of my supplications.
7 In the day of my distress will I call upon thee, For thou wilt answer me.
8 There is none like unto thee, among the gods, O My Lord,
   And nothing like thy works.
9 ||All nations whom thou hast made|| Shall come in and bow down before thee, O My Lord,
   That they may glorify thy Name.f
10 For great thou art, and dost wondrous things, ||Thou, O God, of thyself alone||.
11 Point out to me, O Yahweh, thy way, I will walk steadfastly in thy truth,
   My heart will rejoice to revere thy Name.
12 I will give thee thanks, Adonay, my God, with all my heart,
   And will glorify thy Name unto times age-abiding.
13 For thy lovingkindness is great towards me, And thou hast rescued my soul from Hades beneath.h
14 O God, ||the insolent|| have arisen against me, And ||the assembly of tyrants|| have sought my life,1
   And have not set thee before them.

15 But ||thou, O My Lord|| art
   A God of compassion and favour, Slow to anger, and abundant in lovingkindness and faithfulness.3
16 Turn thou unto me, and shew me favour,— Give thy strength to thy servant,
   And save the son of thy handmaid.
17 Perform with me a token for good,— That they who hate me may see’ and be ashamed,
   In that ||thou, Yahweh|| hast helped me and comforted me.

For the Sons of Korah. A Melody, a Song.

PSALM 88.

A Song, a Melody. For the Sons of Korah. To the Chief Musician. On “Mahalath.”

1 O Yahweh, God of my salvation,
   <By day> have I made outcry,
   <In the night> [also] before thee.
2 Let my prayer come into thy presence,
   Bow down thine ear to my loud cry.
3 For my soul is sated with misfortunes,
   And <my life—unto Hades> hath drawn near;
4 I am counted with them who descend into the pit,
   I have become as a man that is without help;
5 <Among the dead> is my couch,—
   Like the slain that lie in the grave,
   Where thou rememberest them no more,
   Yea ||they|| <from thy hand> are cut off;
6 Thou hast laid me in the lowest pit,
   In dark places,
   In the deeps:
7 <Upon me> hath rested thine indignation,
   And <with all thy breakers> hast thou caused affliction.
   [Selah.]
8 Thou hast far removed mine acquaintances from me,—
   Thou hast made me an abomination unto them,
   <Shut up> and I cannot go forth!
9 ||Mine eye|| hath dimmed through affliction;
   I have called upon thee, O Yahweh, all day long,
   I have spread out, unto thee, my hands.
10 <For the dead> wilt thou perform a wonder?
   Or shall ||the shades|| arising, give thee thanks?
   [Selah.]
11 Shall Thy lovingkindness be recounted’ in the grave?
   Thy faithfulness, in destruction?
12 Shall any wonder of thine [be known in the dark]?

13 But ||l|| <unto thee, O Yahweh> have cried for help,
   And <in the morning> my prayer will confront thee!
14 Wherefore, O Yahweh, shouldst thou reject my soul?
   shouldst thou hide thy face from me?
15 Afflicted’ have I been, and dying, from youth,
   I have borne the terror of thee—I shall be distracted!]
16 <Over me> have passed thy bursts of burning anger,
   The alarms of thee have put an end to me;
17 They have surrounded me like waters, all the day,
   They have come circling against me together:
18 Thou hast far removed from me, lover and friend,
   ||Mine acquaintances|| are in darkness.]

PSALM 89.

An Instructive Psalm, by Ethan the Ezrahite.

1 <The lovingkindnesses of Yahweh> age-abidingly will I sing,
   <To generation after generation> will I make known thy faithfulness with my mouth.
2 For I said, <To times age-abiding> shall lovingkindness be built up,
   <As for the heavens> thou wilt establish thy faithfulness therein.
3 I have solemnised a covenant, for my chosen one,
   I have sworn unto David my servant:
4 <Unto times age-abiding> will I establish thy seed,
   And will build up, unto generation after generation, thy throne. [Selah.

Thou hast been wroth with thine Anointed One!
Thou hast cast down the covenant of thy Servant,
Thou hast profaned, to the earth, his crown;
Thou hast broken down all his defences,
Thou hast laid his fortresses in ruins;
All the passers by the way [have plundered him],
He hath become a reproach to his neighbours;
Thou hast raised the right hand of his adversaries,
Thou hast gladdened all his enemies;
Yea thou hast turned the edge of his sword,

Thou hast shortened the days of his youths,\(\text{c}\)—
Thou hast covered him with shame.

Wilt thou hide thyself utterly?
Shall thine indignation burn like fire?

Wherefore <in vain> hast thou created all the sons of Adam?
Who is the man that shall live, and not see death?
That can deliver his soul from the hand of hades.

Thou didst swear unto David, in thy faithfulness!
Remember, O My Lord, the reproach of thy servants,\(\text{e}\)
I have carried in my bosom the insult\(\text{f}\) of the peoples:
In that thy foes have reproached, O Yahweh,
In that they have reproached the footsteps\(\text{g}\) of thine Anointed One!

<In the morning> [they are] like grass that shooteth up.
6 <In the morning> it sprouteth and shooteth up.
<By the evening> it is cut down and withered.
7 For we are consumed in thine anger,
And <in thy wrath> are we dismayed;
8 Thou hast set
Our iniquities before thee,
Our secret* near the luminary of thy face.
9 For ||all our days|| decline in thy wrath,—
We end our years like a sigh.
10||The days of our years|| have, in them, three score years and ten,
And <if by reason of strength> they have fourscore years>

12||How to number our days> so' grant us to know,
That we may win us a heart that hath wisdom.
13Return, Yahweh, oh how long?
And have compassion upon thy servants;
14Satisfy us, in the morning, with thy lovingkindness,

Throughout all our days.
15Make us glad, according to

8 Save only' <with thine own eyes> shalt thou discern,
And <the recompense of the lawless> shalt thou see.
9<<Because ||thou|| [hast made] Yahweh, my refuge,*—
<The Most High> thou hast made thy dwelling-place>
10There shall not be sent unto thee misfortune,
Nor shall ||plague|| come near into thy tent;*
11For <his messengers> will he charge concerning thee,

12||On hands|| will they bear thee up,
Lest thou strike, against a stone, thy foot;
13||On the lion' and adder> shalt thou tread,
Shalt trample on young lion and crocodile,*
14<<Because ||on me|| he hath set firm his love>
Therefore will I deliver him,
I will set him on high,
Because he hath known my Name;
15He shall call me, and I will answer him,

PSALM 92.
A Melody, a Song. For the Sabbath-day.

1 It is good to give thanks to Yahweh,
And to sing praises unto thy Name,
O Most High;
2 To declare, in the morning, thy lovingkindness,
And thy faithfulness’ at night;
3 Upon an instrument of ten strings, and upon a harp,
With resounding music on the lyre.
4 For thou hast made me glad, O Yahweh, in thy doing,
5 How great have grown thy works, Yahweh,
[How] very deep are laid thy plans!
6 ||A man that is brutish|| cannot know,
And ||a dullard|| cannot discern this:—
7 <When the lawless do thrive like grass,
And all the workers of iniquity have blossomed>
It is that they may be destroyed for ever.f
8 But [t]hou shalt be on high age-abidingly, O Yahweh.
9 For lo! ||thine enemies||, Yahweh,
For lo! ||thine enemies| shall perish,
They shall be scattered—all the workers of iniquity;
10 But thou wilt exalt, as [those of] the buffalo, my horn,
I have been anointed, with fresh oil.
11 So hath mine eye descried’ them who were lying in wait for me,—
<Of my wicked assailants> mine ears’ [shall hear].
12||The righteous|| <like the palm-tree> shall thrive,
<Like the cedar in Lebanon> shall he grow;
13||They who are planted in the house of Yahweh||

13That thou mayest give him rest from the days of misfortune,
Until there be digged—for the lawless one—a pit.

For Yahweh [will not abandon] his people,
And <his inheritance> will he not forsake;

15For <unto righteousness> shall the judicial sentenceb return,
Then shall follow it—all the upright in heart.

16Who' will rise up for me, against the evil-doers?
Who' will make a stand for me, against the workers of iniquity?

17 ||If ||Yahweh|| had not been a help to me>

||Thy consolations|| delight my soul.

20Shall the throne that inflecteth ruinc [have fellowship with thee],
That frameth oppression [by statute]?
21They make an attack on the lifed of the righteous one,—
And <innocent blood> they condemn.

22But Yahweh, hath become for me a high tower,
And my God, my rock of refuge.
23Thus hath he brought back on them their iniquity,
And <by their own wickedness> will he destroy them,
||Destroy them|| will Yahweh our God.

PSALM 95.

1 Come, let us make a joyful noise to Yahweh,
Let us shout in triumph, to the rock of our salvation!

2 O let us come before his face with thanksgiving,
<With the sounds of strings> let us shout aloud to him.

3 For  is Yahweh,
And a great king, above all gods.
4 ||In whose hand|| are the hidden recessesc of the earth,
And <the peaks of the mountains> are his;

5 ||Whose|| is the sea, for ||he|| made it,
And <the dry land> ||his hands|| did form.

6 Enter! let us bow down, and bend low,
Let us kneel, before Yahweh our maker;

7 For ||he|| is our God,
And ||we|| are the people of his pasture, and the flock of his hand.f

8 ||To-day|| ||if ||to his voice ye will hearken>
Do not harden your heart as at Meribah,g
As on the day of Massah, in the desert;

9 When your fathers [tested me],
They proved me, yea' they also saw what I could do.

10 ||Forty years|| loathed I that' generation,
So I said—
<A people going astray in heart> they are',
||Even they|| have not known my ways!
11 And I swear in mine anger,—

PSALM 98.

1 ||Yahweh|| hath become king,
   Let the earth exult,
   Let the multitude of coastlands rejoice. —
2 ||Clouds and thick darkness|| are round about him,
||Righteousness and justice|| are the establishing of his throne.
3 ||Fire|| <before him> proceedeth,
    That it may consume, round about, his adversaries.
4 His lightnings have illumined] the world,
   The earth hath seen, and hath trembled;
5 ||The mountains|| <like wax> have melted,
   At the presence of Yahweh,
   At the presence, of the Lord of all the earth.
6 The heavens have declared] his righteousness,—
   And all the peoples have seen] his glory.
7 Let all who serve an image be ashamed,
   They who boast themselves in things of nought, —
   Bow down unto him, all ye gods.
8 Zion hath heard and rejoiced,
   And the daughters of Judah have exulted,
   Because of thy righteous decisions, —
9 For thou, Yahweh, art Most High over all the earth,
   Greatly hast thou exalted thyself above all gods. —
10 Ye lovers of Yahweh! be haters of wrong,—
   He preserveth the lives of his men of lovingkindness,
   <From the hand of the lawless> will he rescue them.
11 ||Light|| is sown for the righteous one,
    And <for the upright in heart> rejoicing:
12 Rejoice, ye righteous, in Yahweh,
    And give ye thanks, at the mention of his holiness.

PSALM 97.

1 ||Yahweh|| hath become king,
   Let the earth exult,
   Let the multitude of coastlands rejoice. —
2 ||Clouds and thick darkness|| are round about him,
||Righteousness and justice|| are the establishing of his throne.
3 ||Fire|| <before him> proceedeth,
    That it may consume, round about, his adversaries.
4 His lightnings have illumined] the world,
All the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God.

4 Shout aloud to Yahweh, all the earth,
Break forth and make a joyful noise and sweep the strings;
5 Sweep the strings to Yahweh
With the lyre,
With the lyre, and the voice of melody;
6 Shout aloud, before the king—Yahweh.

7 Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof,
The world, and they who dwell therein;
8 Let [the floods] clap their hands,
||Together|| let [the mountains] make a joyful noise

9 Before Yahweh, for he is coming—to judge the earth,—
He will judge the world, in righteousness,
And the peoples, with equity.

PSALM 99.

1 ||Yahweh|| hath become king,
Let the peoples tremble,
He is enthroned on the cherubim,
Let the earth shake.
2 ||Yahweh|| in Zion is great,
And [high] is he over all the peoples.
3 Let them thank his Name—great and reverend,
|Holy| is he!

4 Yea <with the strength of a king—justice> he loveth,—
||Thou|| hast established equity,
<Justice and righteousness in Jacob> ||thou|| hast wrought.
5 Exalt Yahweh our God,
And bow down at his footstool,
|Holy| is he!

6 ||Moses and Aaron|| [were] among his priests,
And ||Samuel|| [was] among them who were calling upon his Name,
Who were calling upon Yahweh, and ||he|| used to answer them:

7 <In the pillar of cloud> used he to speak unto them,
They kept his testimonies, and the statute he gave them.
8 O Yahweh our God! ||thou|| answeredst them,—
<A pardoning GOD> thou becamest to them,
Yet one bringing vengeance on their deeds.⁷

9 Exalt Yahweh our God,
And bow down towards his holy mountain,
For |holy| is Yahweh our God.

PSALM 100.

A Melody for Thanksgiving.

1 Make a joyful noise to Yahweh, all the earth:
2 Serve Yahweh with rejoicing,
Enter before him, with shouts of triumph.
3 Know that ||Yahweh|| [he] is God,—
||He|| made us, and not [we ourselves].ć
His people, and the flock of his pasture.
4 Enter ye his gates, with thanksgiving,
his courts, with praise,
Give ye thanks to him, bless ye his Name;
5 For good’ is Yahweh,
Age-abiding’ is his lovingkindness,
And <unto generation after generation> his faithfulness.

PSALM 101.

David’s. A Melody.

1 <Of lovingkindness and of justice> will I sing!
<Unto thee, O Yahweh> will I touch the strings!
2 I will behave myself wisely⁴ in a blameless way,
When wilt thou come in unto me?

I will walk to and fro in the blamelessness of my heart,—in the midst of my house:
3 I will not set before mine eyes, a vile thing,⁶—
<The doing of them who fall away> I hate,
It shall not cleave unto me;
4 ||A perverse heart|| shall depart from me,

⁴ Some cod. (w. Aram.): “I will impart wisdom concerning thee”—G.n.
<A maker of mischief> will I not acknowledge;
5 <He that uttereth slander in secret against his friend>
[[Him]] will I root out;
6 ||Mine eyes|| shall be upon the faithful of the land,
That they may dwell with me,—
7 <He that walketh in a blameless way>
[[He]] shall attend me.
There shall not dwell in the midst of my house,
One who worketh deceit,—
8 <Morning by morning> will I uproot
All the lawless ones of the land,
That I may cut off, out of the city of Yahweh—
All the workers of iniquity.

PSALM 102.
A Prayer for the Humbled One\(^a\) when he is about to faint, and <before Yahweh> poureth out his grief.

1 O Yahweh, hear thou my prayer,
And let [my cry for help] <unto thee> enter in.
2 Do not hide thy face from me,
In the day when I am in distress,—
Bend down unto me thine ear,
<In the day when I call> speedily answer me.
3 For <consumed in smoke>\(^b\) are my days,
And ||my bones|| <like a burning mass> are scorched through;
4 <Smitten like herbage> so is my heart dried up,
For I have forgotten to eat my food.
5 <At the noise of my groaning> my bone\(^c\) [hath cleaved] to my flesh:\(^d\)
I am like the pelican of the desert,
I have become as an owl among ruins.
7 I have watched and am become\(^e\)
Like a bird sitting alone\(^f\) upon a house-top.
8 <All the day> have mine enemies [reproached me],
And ||they who are mad against me|| [by me] have sworn.\(^g\)
9 For <ashes—like\(^h\) bread> have I eaten,
And <my drink—>with my tears> have I mingled;
10 Because of thine indignation and thy wrath,
For thou hast lifted me up, and cast me down.
11 ||My days|| are like a shadow extended,
And ||I|| <as green herbage> do wither.
12 But ||thou, O Yahweh|| age-abidingly’ wilt remain,\(^i\)
And the memorial of thee,\(^b\) to generation after generation.
13 ||[Thou]] wilt arise, wilt have compassion upon Zion,
Surely it is time to favour her,
Surely the time appointed’ [hath come];
14 Seeing that thy servants [take pleasure] in her stones,
And <her dust> they favour:
15 That the nations may revere thy Name, O Yahweh,
And all the kings of the earth, thy glory.
16 ≤When Yahweh [hath built up] Zion,
Hath appeared in his glory;
17 Hath turned towards the prayer of the destitute,\(^i\)
And not despised their prayer≥
18 This [shall be written] for a later’ generation,
And ||[a people to be created]] will give praise unto Yah:—
19 That he looked down, out of his holy’ height, ||[Yahweh]] <from the heavens unto the earth> directed his gaze;—
20 To hear the groaning of the prisoner,
To set free, them who were appointed to death.\(^j\)
21 To the end the Name of Yahweh [might be celebrated in Zion]
And his praise in Jerusalem:
22 When the peoples [gather themselves together],
And the kingdoms, to serve Yahweh.
23 He hath prostrated, in the way, my\(^k\) strength,—
He hath shortened my days.
24 I said,

\(^a\) Or: “oppressed one.”
\(^c\) Gt.: “and complained.” Cp. Ps. lv. 17.
\(^d\) Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn. [Rabb.]): “moving to and fro”—G.n.
\(^e\) “He who swears by one in misfortune says, ‘May I bear the like if I break my faith’”—T.G. 802.
\(^f\) Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn.): “with”—G.n.
\(^g\) Or: “reign,” “sit (enthroned).”
\(^h\) Some cod.: “thy throne”—G.n.
\(^i\) Mt.: “the sons of death.”
\(^j\) Written: “his”; read: “my.” In some cod. (w. Sep. and Vul.): “his,” both written and read; in others (w. 2 ear. pr. edns., Aram., Syr.): “my,” both written and read—G.n.
O my God, do not remove me in the midst of my days,
Throughout the generation of generations are thy years;
Of old—the earth thou didst found, And the work of thy hands are the heavens;

[1] Who forgiveth all thine iniquity, Who satisfieth with good thine age,
Thy youth' reneweth itself like an eagle.
[6] Yahweh is one who executeth righteousness, Yea vindication' for all the oppressed.

Who redeemeth from destruction thy life, Who crowneth thee, with lovingkindness and compassion:
Who satisfieth with good thine age, Thy youth' reneweth itself like an eagle.
Yahweh is one who executeth righteousness, Yea vindication' for all the oppressed.

[8] Compassionate and gracious is Yahweh,— Slow to anger and abundant in lovingkindness.e
[9] Not perpetually will he contend, Nor age-abidingly retain anger;
[10] Not according to our sins hath he dealt with us, Nor according to our iniquities hath he treated us.

[11] For as the heavens are exalted over the earth> His lovingkindness hath prevailed' over them who revere him;
[12] As far' as East from West> Hath he put far' from us, our transgressions;
[13] Like the compassion of a father for his children> Is the compassion of Yahweh' for them who revere him;
[14] For knoweth how we are formed, He is mindful' that dust we are'.
[15] As for man' are his days, Like the blossom of the field doth he blossom;
[16] For hath passed ever it, and it is gone', And its own place is acquainted with it no more.

But the lovingkindness of Yahweh' is from one age even to another
Upon them who revere him, And his righteousness, to children's children:—
To such as keep his covenant, And remember his precepts, to do them.

[18] Yahweh' hath established his throne, And his kingdom' hath established his dominion.

Bless Yahweh, ye' messengers of his,— Heroes of vigour, doing his word, To hearken [again] to the voice of his word;
Bless Yahweh, all ye his hosts, Attendants of his, doing his pleasure;
Bless Yahweh, all ye his works, In all places of his dominion, Bless, O my soul, Yahweh.

PSALM 103.
1 Bless, O my soul, Yahweh,— And all that is within me, his holy' Name;
2 Bless, O my soul, Yahweh, And forget not all his dealings:—
3 Who forgiveth all thine iniquity, Who healeth all thy diseases;
4 Who redeemeth from destruction thy life, Who crowneth thee, with lovingkindness and compassion:
5 Who satisfieth with good thine age, Thy youth' reneweth itself like an eagle.
6 Yahweh is one who executeth righteousness, Yea vindication' for all the oppressed.
7 Who made known his ways unto Moses, Unto the sons of Israel his doings.

COMPASSIONATE AND GRACIOUS is Yahweh,— SLOW TO ANGER AND ABUNDANT IN LOVINGKINDNESS.

Not perpetually will he contend, Nor age-abidingly retain anger;
Not according to our sins hath he dealt with us, Nor according to our iniquities hath he treated us.

a Or (ml.): “do not take me up.”
b The rhythm of this line is intended to facilitate the accenting of the Divine Name on the second syllable—See Intro., Chapter IV., II., B., 3., ante.
c “Dealings” is not only more exact than “benefits,” but is here the more expressive word; since, in the enthusiasm of his gratitude, the Psalmist may have felt that all the divine “dealings” formed a fitting subject for praise.
d Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn. [Rabb.], Sep. and Vul.): “iniquities” (pl.)—G.n. e Cp. Exo. xxxiv. 6, 7.
f Gt.: “is exalted.”
g Ml.: “our formation.”
h “He bethinketh him”—Cheyne. “The pass. ptcp. (here used) appears in some cases to express a state which is the result of the subject’s own action”—Dav. Heb. Syn. p. 137. Or render boldly: “He is put in mind.”
i Cp. Ps. lxv. 39.
Stretching out the heavens, as a curtain;
3 Building, in the waters, his upper chambers,—
Who maketh clouds his chariot,
Who passeth along on the wings of the wind;
4 Making His messengers, winds,
His attendants, a flaming fire;
5 He hath fixed the earth on its foundations,
It is not to be shaken, to times age-abiding and beyond.
6 With the resounding deep—as a garment hast thou covered it,
Above the mountains stand the waters;
7 At thy rebuke they flee,
At the voice of thy thunder they hurry away;
8 Mountains rise, Valleys sink
Unto the place which thou hast fixed for them;
9 Bounds hast thou set, which they are not to pass over,
They are not to return to cover the earth.
10 Who hast sent forth springs, through the torrent-beds,
Between the mountains they flow along;
11 They give drink, to every wild beast of the field,
The wild asses do break their thirst.
12 Over them the bird of the heavens setteth down,
From amidst the foliage they utter a voice.
13 Who watereth the mountains out of his upper chambers,
Out of the fruit of thy works thou satisfiest the earth.
14 Who causeth the grass to shoot forth for the cattle,
And the herb, for the service of man,
That he may bring forth food out of the earth;
15 And wine may rejoice the heart of man,
Making radiant his well-nourished face,—
And food may <the heart of man> sustain.
16 Satisfied’ are
The trees of Yahweh,
The cedars of Lebanon, which he hath planted;
17 Where the birds build their nests,
The stork <in the fir-trees> hath her house;
18 The high mountains are for the chamois,
19 The crags are a refuge for the conies.
20 He hath made the moon’ for seasons,
And the sun knoweth his place for entering in.
21 Thou causest darkness, and it becometh night,
Therein creepeth forth
Every wild beast of the forest;
22 The young lions roaring for prey,
And seeking, from God, their food.
23 The sun ariseth, they withdraw themselves,
And lay them down.
24 Man’ goeth forth to his work,
And to his labour, until evening.
25 How thy works abound, O Yahweh!
All of them—in wisdom hast thou made,
The earth is full’ of thy possession;—
This sea here is great and broad on both hands,—
Wherein are creeping things, even without number,
Living things, small with great;
26 There| ships| sail along,
This sea-monster, thou hast formed’ to sport therein;
27 All of them| do wait,
That thou mayest give them their food in its season;
28 Thou givest unto them they gather,
Thou openest thy hand, they are satisfied with good.
29 Thou hidest thy face, they are dismayed,
Thou withdrawest their spirit,
They cease to breathe,
And unto their own dust do they return:
30 Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created,
And thou renewest the face of the ground.
31 Be thy glory, O Yahweh, to times age-abiding,
Let Yahweh rejoice in his own works;
32 Who looketh at the earth, and it trembleth,
He toucheth the mountains, and they smoke.
33 I will sing to Yahweh, as long as I live!
Yea I will touch the strings to my God, while I continue;
34 Pleasing unto him be my meditation,

PSALM 105.

1 Give ye thanks to Yahweh, Call upon his Name,
Make known, among the peoples, his doings;
2 Sing ye to him, Make ye music to him,
Speak ye of all his wonders.
3 Make your boast in his holy’ Name,
Joyful be the heart of them who are seeking Yahweh.
4 Search out Yahweh and his strength,
Seek diligently his face at all times; b
5 Remember his wonders which he hath done,
His portents, and the just decisions’ of his mouth.
6 O ye Seed of Abraham—his servants, c
   Sons of Jacob—his chosen ones:
7 ||[Yahweh himself]] is our God,
<Through all the land>s are his just decisions.
8 He hath remembered, unto times age-abiding, his covenant,
The word he commanded, to a thousand generations;
9 Which he solemnised with Abraham,
And his oath, to Isaac;
10 And confirmed it unto Jacob for a statute,
To Israel, as a covenant age-abiding;
11Saying, <To thee> will I give the land of Canaan,
As your inherited’ portion;
12While as yet’ they# were men easily counted,—
A very few, and sojourners therein;
13And they wandered from nation to nation,
From a kingdom, to another people.

* Or, as one word: “Halleluyah”; and so the Massoretic text. But Ginsburg concludes: “There can hardly be any doubt that this” [resolution of the phrase into two words, translated as three] “exhibits the primitive reading.” He further expresses the confident conclusion that the phrase was originally the public reader’s invitation to the worshippers to join in the public responses—G. In the chambers of their kings!
31 He spake, and there came in the gad-fly,
Gnats, in all their bounds;
32 He made their showers—hail,
A fire flaming throughout their land;
33 And he smote their vines, and their fig-trees,
And brake in pieces the trees of their bounds;
34 He spake—then came the swarming locust,—
The devouring locust, and that without number;
35 And devoured all the herbage in their land,
And devoured the fruit of their ground.
36 Then smote he every firstborn in their land,
The beginning of all their strength;
37 Thus brought he them forth, with silver and gold,
Nor was there throughout his tribes one that faltered;
38 Egypt rejoiced when they went out,
For the dread of them had fallen upon them.
39 He spread out a cloud as a covering,
And fire to give light by night.
40 They asked and he brought in the quail,—
And <with the bread of the heavens> he satisfied them;
41 He opened the rock and there gushed forth waters,
They flowed along, through parched places, as a river.
42 For he remembered his holy word,
With Abraham his servant.
43 Thus brought he forth his people with gladness,—
<With shouts of triumph> his chosen ones;
44 And gave them the lands of the nations,
And <of the toil of the peoples> took they possession:
45 In order that they might observe his statutes,
And <over his laws> might keep watch,
Praise ye Yah.

PSALM 106.

1 Praise ye Yah,
Give ye thanks to Yahweh—
For he is good,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
2 Who can relate the mighty deeds of Yahweh?
Can cause to be heard, all his praise?
3 How happy! They who observe justice,
He that executeth' righteousness at all times.
4 Remember me, O Yahweh, when thou acceptest thy people,
Visit me, with thy salvation;
5 That I may look upon the welfare of thy chosen ones,
That I may rejoice in the joy of thy nation,
That I may glory, with thine inheritance.
6 We have sinned—with our fathers,
We have acted perversely, we have committed lawlessness;
7 Our fathers, ||in Egypt|| understood not thy wonders,
They remembered not the abounding of thy lovingkindnesses,
But rebelled by the sea—at the Red Sea.
8 Yet he saved them for the sake of his Name,
To make known his mighty power;
9 So he rebuked the Red Sea, and it dried up,
And he led them through deeps, as pasture-land;
10 And saved them from the hand of one full of hatred,
And redeemed them out of the hand of the foe;
11 So the waters covered their adversaries,
||Not one from among them|| was left.
12 They believed therefore in his words,
They sang his praise.
13 Soon forgat they his works,—

They waited not for his counsel;
14But lusted a lust in the desert,
And tested GOD in the waste,
15So he gave them their request,
But sent leanness into their soul.
16And they became jealous
Of Moses, in the camp,—
Of Aaron, the holy one of Yahweh;
17The earth opened’ and engulfed Dathan,
And covered up the assembly of Abiram;
18Then was kindled a fire in their assembly,—
||A flame|| consumed the lawless ones.
19They made a calf in Horeb,—
And bowed down to a molten image;
20Thus changed they my glory,
For the similitude of an ox that eateth grass.
21They forgot GOD their saviour,
Who had done great things in Egypt:
22Wonders in the land of Ham,
Terrible things by the Red Sea.
23Then would he have bidden to destroy them,—
Had not Moses his chosen, stood in the breach before him,
To turn back his wrath from destroying.
24And they refused the delightful’ land,
They believed not his word;
25But murmured in their tents,—
They hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh.
26So he lifted up his hand unto them,
That he would let them fall in the desert;
27And would disperse their seed among the nations,
And would scatter them throughout the lands.
28Yet they let themselves be bound to Baalpeor,—
And did eat sacrifices to the dead:
29So they provoked8 to anger by their doings,
And a plague [made a breach among them].
30Then stood up Phinehas, and interposed,
And stayed9 was the plague:
31So it was counted unto him, for righteousness,
To generation after generation, unto times age-abiding.
32And they provoked by the waters of Meribah,—
And it fared ill with Moses, for their sakes;
33For they embittered his spirit.9
And he spake rashly with his lips.
34They destroyed not the peoples of which Yahweh had spoken to them;
35But had fellowship with the nations,
And learned their doings;
36Yea they served their idols,
And they10 became to them a snare:
37Yea they sacrificed their sons and their daughters to mischievous demons;11
38And poured out innocent’ blood,
The blood of their sons and their daughters,
Whom they sacrificed to the idols of Canaan,
And the land was polluted with blood-shed;
39And they became unclean by their works,
And became unchaste in their doings.
40Then was kindled the anger of Yahweh with his people,
And he abhorred his own inheritance.
41So he delivered them up into the hand of the nations,
And they who hated them [had dominion over them];
42And their enemies oppressed them,
And they were bowed down under their hand.
43||Many times|| did he rescue them,—
But ||they|| rebelled by their counsel,
And sank low in their iniquity.
44Then looked he on the distress which befell
them,—
When he heard their loud cry;
45Then remembered he, for them, his covenant,
And was moved to pity, according to the abounding of his lovingkindnesses,12 46And granted them compassion’ before all their captors.
47Save us, O Yahweh our God,
And gather us from among the nations,—
That we may give thanks unto thy holy' Name,
That we may triumph aloud in thy praise.
Blessed be Yahweh, God of Israel, from one age even unto another,
25 And he speaketh, and there ariseth a tempestuous wind, Which lifteth on high its rolling waves;
26 They mount the heavens. They descend the roaring deeps,
27 They reel and stagger, like a drunken man, And all their wisdom is engulfed>
28 Then make they outcry to Yahweh, in their peril, And <out of their distresses> he bringeth them forth.

29 He calmeth the storm to a whisper, And silent are their rolling waves:
30 Then are they glad, because they are hushed, And he guideth them unto their desired haven.

31 Let them give thanks to Yahweh for his lovingkindness, and for his wonderful dealings with the sons of men!
32 Yea let them extol him in the convocation of the people, And <in the seated company of elders> let them praise him.

33 He turneth Rivers into a desert, and Springs of Water, into thirsty ground, A Land of Fruit, into a waste of salt, For the wickedness of them who dwell therein.
34 He turneth A Desert, into a pool of water, and A Parched Land into springs of water; And hath caused the famished to dwell there, And they have built them a city to dwell in; And have sown fields, and planted vineyards, And made them fruits of increase:
35 Thus hath he blessed them, and they have multiplied greatly, And <their cattle> he maketh not few.

36 He poureth contempt upon nobles, And causeth them to wander in a pathless’ waste;
38 So have they become few and been brought low, By oppression, misfortune, and sorrow;
39 But he hath set the needy on high from affliction, And made families [like a flock]:—
40 The upright seeth' and is glad, And all perverseness hath closed her mouth.
41 Who is wise? then let him observe these things! And diligently consider the lovingkindness of Yahweh.

PSALM 108.
A Song, a Melody: David’s.

1 [Fixed] is my heart, O God;[e] I will sing and touch the strings, even mine honour.[f]
2 Awake, O harp[g] and lyre, I will awaken the dawn!
3 I will thank thee among the peoples, O Yahweh, And will sing praise unto thee, among the tribes of men.
4 For <great, above the heavens> is thy lovingkindness, And <as far as the skies> thy faithfulness.
5 Be thou exalted above the heavens, O God, And <above all the earth> be thy glory.
6 <To the end thy beloved ones may be delivered> Oh save thou with thy right hand and answer me!

7 ||God|| hath spoken in his holiness, I will exult!
8 I will apportion Shechem! And <the Vale of Succoth> will I measure out;
9 <Mine> is Gilead—<mine>’ Manasseh, But [Ephraim] is the defence of my head, [Judah] is my commander’s staff;
10 ||Moab|| is my wash-bowl, <Upon Edom> will I throw my shoe;[i] <Over Philistia> raise a shout of triumph.
11 Who will conduct me to a fortified’ city?

Who will lead me as far as Edom?
11 Hast not thou, O God, rejected us?
And wilt not go forth, O God, with our hosts?
12 Grant us help out of distress,
For is the deliverance of man:
13 In God shall we do valiantly,
[[He himself]] therefore, shall tread down our adversaries.

PSALM 109.
To the Chief Musician. David's. A Melody.

1 O God of my praise, do not be silent;
2 For the mouth of the lawless one and the mouth of the deceiver are open,
They have spoken to me with false tongue;
And have made war upon me without cause:
4 For my love they have been accusing me,
While was at prayer:
5 Yea they have returned unto me—
Evil for good; and
Hatred for my love.
6 Set in charge over him, one who is lawless,
And let [[an accuser]] stand at his right hand;
7 When he is judged, let him go out condemned,
And let [[his own petition]] become a sin;
8 Let his days become few,
His overseership let another take;
9 Let his children become fatherless,
And his wife a widow;
Let them be driven out of their ruins;
Let strangers prey on the fruit of his toil;
Let him have no one to continue lovingkindness,
And there be none to favour his fatherless children;
Let his posterity be for cutting off,
Let their name be wiped out;
Reminded be the iniquity of his fathers against Yahweh.

And the sin of his mother let it not be wiped out;
Let them be before Yahweh continually,
And let the memory of them be cut off out of the earth.
Because that he remembered not to shew lovingkindness,
But pursued the man that was oppressed and needy,
That he might slay.
Because he loved cursing
May it have come upon him,
Because he delighted not in blessing
May it have kept far from him;
Because he clothed himself in cursing as his outer garment
Therefore may it have entered like water into his inward part,
And like oil into his bones;
Be it his, as a garment he shall wrap round him,
And for a girdle he shall, at all times, gird on:
This be the reward of mine accusers, from Yahweh,
Even of them who are speaking wrongfully against my life.
But [[thou]] Yahweh, Adonay, deal effectually with me, for the sake of thy Name,
Since good is thy lovingkindness O rescue me;
For I am',
And [[my heart]] is wounded within me.
As a shadow when it stretcheth out I am gone,
I am shaken off like the locust;
My knees tremble from fasting,
And [[my flesh]] failth of fatness:
So [[]] am become a reproach for them,
They see me, they shake their head.
Help me! O Yahweh my God,
Save me, according to thy lovingkindness:
That they may know that Thine own hand this is',
[[Thou, Yahweh]] hast done it.
They may curse if [[thou]] wilt bless,—

PSALM 111.

1 Praise ye Yah!
I will give thanks unto Yahweh, with a whole heart,
In the circle of the upright and the assembly.

2 Great’ are the works of Yahweh,
Sought out,\(^g\) by all who find pleasure therein.

3 <Honourable and majestic> is his doing,
And ||his righteousness|| standeth for aye.

4 <A memorial> hath he made by his wonders,
<Gracious and compassionate> is Yahweh.\(^h\)

5 <Food>\(^i\) hath he given to them who revere him,
He will remember, age-abidingly, his covenant.

6 <The might> of his works> hath he declared to his people,
That he may give them the inheritance of the nations.\(^k\)

7 ||The works\(^l\) of his hands|| are faithful and just,\(^m\)
   Firm’ are all his precepts;

PSALM 113.

1 Praise ye Yah!
Praise, O ye servants of Yahweh,
Praise the Name of Yahweh;
2 Be the Name of Yahweh blessed,
Henceforth, even to times age-abiding;
3 <From the rising of the sun unto the going in thereof>
[Worthy to be praised] is the Name of Yahweh:
4 <High above all nations> is Yahweh,
<Above the heavens> his glory.
5 Who’s is like Yahweh our God?
That goeth on high to dwell,
6 That cometh down low to look,
Through the heavens and through the earth;
7 That raiseth, out of the dust, the poor,
<From the dunghill> uplifteth the needy;
8 To give a seat with nobles,
||With the nobles of his people||!
9 Causing the barren woman to dwell in a household,
A mother of sons in her joy!

PSALM 114.

The house of Jacob’ from among a people of strange tongue>;
2 Judah’ became his sanctuary,
Israel’ his realm:
3 ||The sea|| beheld, and fled,
||The Jordan|| turned back;
4 ||The mountains|| started like rams,
The hills’ like the young of the flock?
5 What aileth thee,
O sea, that thou fleest?
O Jordan, that thou turnest back?
6 Ye mountains, that ye start like rams?
Ye hills, like the young of the flock?
7 <Before the Lord> be in anguish, O earth,
Before the God of Jacob:
8 Who turneth The Rock into a pool of water,
The Flint into springs of water.

PSALM 115.

1 <Not unto us> O Yahweh, <not unto us>,—
But <unto thine own Name> give glory, concerning thy lovingkindness,
concerning thy faithfulness.
2 Wherefore should the nations’ say,
Pray where is their God?
3 When [our God] is in the heavens,
<Whatsoever he pleased> hath he done.
4 ||Their idols|| are silver and gold,
The work of the hands of men,—

PSALM 116.

1 I love Yahweh—because he heareth'
My voice, my supplications;

2 <Because he hath bowed down his ear unto me>
Therefore <throughout my days> will I call.

3 The meshes of death encompassed’ me,
||And the distresses of hades|| came upon me,
<Peril and sorrow> I found;

4 But <on the Name of Yahweh> I called—
I beseech thee, Yahweh, deliver my soul.

5 Gracious' is Yahweh and righteous,
And ||our God|| is full of compassion.f

6 Yahweh [preserveth the simple],

I was brought low, when <to me> he granted salvation.

7 Return, O my soul, to thy rest,
For ||Yahweh|| hath dealt bountifully with thee.

8 For thou hast rescued my soul from death,— mine eyes from tears,
my feet from stumbling.

9 I will walk to and fro before Yahweh, in the lands of life.

10 I believed' that I should speak,
||[l]|| was greatly depressed.

11 ||[l]|| said in mine alarm,g
||All men|| are false!

12 How shall I give back to Yahweh,

And <on the Name of Yahweh> will I call:

14 <My vows—to Yahweh> will I pay,
Might it be in presence of all his people!

15 <Costly' in the eyes of Yahweh>
Is ||death|| for his men of lovingkindness.

16 I beseech thee, O Yahweh—
For ||[l]|| am thy servant,—
||[l]|| am thy servant, the son of thy handmaid,
Thou hast loosened my bonds.

17 <To thee> will I sacrifice a sacrifice of thanksgiving,
And <on the Name of Yahweh> will I call:

18 <My vows—to Yahweh> will I pay,
Might it be in presence of all his people;—

19 In the courts of the house of Yahweh,
In the midst of thee, O Jerusalem.
Praise ye Yah!h

PSALM 117.

77Let thy compassions reach me, that I may live,
For [thy law] is my dear delight.

78Let insolent men [be ashamed], because <by means of falsehood> they have dealt with me perversely,
[ll] will meditate in thy precepts.
79Let them who revere thee [turn unto],
Even they who knowd thy testimonies.
80Let my heart be thorough in thy statutes,
That I may not be ashamed.

KAPH.
81My soul [hath languished for thy salvation], <For thy word> have I hoped.
82Mine eyes have failed’ for thy word,f Saying, When wilt thou comfort me?
83<Though I have been like a wine-skin in the smoke>
<Thy statutes> have I not forgotten.
84How few are the days of thy servant!
When wilt thou execute sentence’ on my persecutors?
85Insolent men digged for me pits,
Men who areg not according to thy law.
86[[All thy commandments]] are faithful,
<With falsehood> have they persecuted me,
O help me!
87<A little more> and they had consumed me in the earth,
But [ll] forsake not thy precepts.
88<According to thy lovingkindness> give thou me life,
So will I keep the testimonies of thy mouth.

LAMED.
89<Age-abidingly> O Yahweh, Hath thy word been set up in the heavens.
90<To generation after generation> is thy faithfulness,
Thou hast established the earth, and it standeth.
91<By thy regulations> do they stand to-day,
For [[all]] are thy servants.
92<Had not thy law been my dear delight>
[ll] had I perished in mine affliction.

The freewill offerings of my mouth accept,
I pray thee, O Yahweh,
And thy regulations teach thou me.

My life is in my hand continually,
Yet thy law have I not forgotten.
The lawless have set a snare for me,
Yet from thy precepts have I not strayed.
As an inheritance have I taken thy testimonies unto times age-abiding,
For the joy of my heart they are.'
I have inclined my heart to perform thy statutes,
Age-abidingly, to the end.

Oh how I love thy law!
All the day is it my meditation.
Beyond mine enemies will thy commandment make me wise,
For age-abidingly shall it be mine'.

All the day is it my meditation,
For thou precepts have I observed.
From every way of wickedness have I withheld my feet,
That I might keep thy word.

From thy regulations have I not turned aside,
For hast directed me.
How smooth to my palate is thy speech,

Out of thy precepts will I get understanding,
For this cause do I hate every false' way.

A lamp to my feet is thy word,
And a light to my path.
I swear, and have fulfilled,
To keep thy righteous' regulations.
I have been afflicted exceedingly,—
O Yahweh, give me life according to thy word.

PSALM 121.
A Song of Ascents.
1 I will lift up mine eyes unto the mountains, From whence cometh my help!
2 My help is from Yahweh, Who made heavens and earth.
3 May he not suffer thy foot to slip, May thy keeper not slumber!
4 Lo! neither will slumber nor sleep The keeper of Israel.
5 Yahweh is thy keeper, Yahweh is thy shade on thy right hand:
6 By day the sun shall not smite, Nor the moon by night.
7 Yahweh will keep thee from all harm, He will keep thy life.
8 Yahweh will keep thy going out and thy coming in, From henceforth, even unto times age-abiding.

PSALM 122.
A Song of Ascents. David’s.
1 I was glad when they were saying unto me, Unto the house of Yahweh let us go!
2 Standing are our feet, Within thy gates, O Jerusalem!
3 Jerusalem! that hath been builded, A true city, all joined together as one:
4 Whither have come up the tribes, The tribes of Yah, A testimony to Israel, To give thanks unto the Name of Yahweh:
5 For there are set— Thrones for justice, Thrones for the house of David.
6 Ask ye for the peace of Jerusalem, [They shall prosper] who love thee!

PSALM 123.
A Song of Ascents.
1 Unto thee have I lifted up mine eyes, O thou who art enthroned in the heavens.
2 Lo! as the eyes of men-servants are unto the hand of their masters, As the eyes of a maid-servant, unto the hand of her mistress
3 Shew us favour, O Yahweh, shew us favour, For exceedingly are we sated with contempt:
4 <Exceeding sated therewith> is our soul,— The scorn of the careless, The contempt of the proud.£

PSALM 124.
A Song of Ascents. David’s.$
1 If it had not been Yahweh who was on our side Oh might Israel say:
2 If it had not been Yahweh who was on our side, When men rose up against us
3 Then had they swallowed us up, In the glow of their anger against us;
4 Then had gone over our soul The waters so proud!
5 Then had gone over our soul The waters so proud!
6 [Blessed] be Yahweh, Who gave us not as prey to their teeth.
7 [Our soul] as a bird hath escaped from the snare of the fowlers, [The snare] is broken, and ||we|| are escaped:

PSALM 125.
A Song of Ascents.

1 They who trust in Yahweh
Are like Mount Zion
Which shall not be shaken,
Age-abidingly shall it remain.
2 Jerusalem! mountains are round about her;
And Yahweh is round about his people,
From henceforth even unto times age-abiding.
3 For the sceptre of lawlessness shall not remain over the allotment of the righteous,—
Lest the righteous put forth—unto perversity—
Their hands.
4 Do good, O Yahweh, unto such as are good,
Even unto such as are upright in their hearts.
5 As for them who turn aside unto their crooked ways
Yahweh will lead them forth with the workers of iniquity, Prosperity on Israel!

PSALM 126.
A Song of Ascents.

1 When Yahweh brought back’ the captives of Zion>
We were like them who dream:
2 Then was our mouth’ filled with laughter,
And our tongue’ with a shout of triumph,—
3 Yahweh hath done great things with these!
Yahweh hath done great things with us,
We are full of joy!
4 Bring thou back, O Yahweh, our captives,
Like channels in the South.
5 Who are sowing with tears
With shouting shall reap:
6 He that [doth indeed go forth] and weep,
Bearing seed enough to trail along] with shouting,
Bringing his sheaves.

PSALM 127.
A Song of Ascents. Solomon’s.

1 If Yahweh build not the house
In vain have the builders of it toiled’ thereon,
2 If Yahweh watch not the city>
The watchman kept awake:
3 Vain—
To be early in rising,
To be late in lying down,
To be eating the bread of wearisome toil,
4 As arrows in the hand of a warrior>,
5 How happy the man who hath filled his quiver with them!
They will not be ashamed,
But will speak with enemies in the gate.

PSALM 128.
A Song of Ascents.

1 How happy’ is every one that revereth Yahweh,
Who walketh in his ways!
2 The labour of thine own hands> surely thou shalt eat.
How happy’ thou, and well’ for thine!
3 Thy wife like a fruitful vine
Within the recesses of thy house,—
Thy children like plantings of olive-trees,
Round about thy table.
4 Lo! thus shall be blessed the man
Who revereth Yahweh.
5 Yahweh will bless thee, out of Zion,—
And behold thou' the welfare of Jerusalem,
All the days of thy life!
6 And behold thou thy children’s children,— Prosperity on Israel!
PSALM 129.
A Song of Ascents.
1 Many a time have they harassed me from my youth,
    Well may Israel say:—
2 Many a time have they harassed me from youth,
    Yet’ have they not prevailed against me.
3 Upon my back have ploughmen ploughed,
    They have lengthened their furrow!
4 ||Yahweh|| is righteous,
    He hath cut asunder the cords of the lawless.
5 Let all who hate Zion be ashamed and shrink back:
6 Let them become like the grass of housetops,
    Which before it is pulled up hath withered;
7 Wherewith no reaper hath filled his hand,
Nor binder [his bosom]:
8 Neither have the passers-by ever said,
||The blessing of Yahweh|| be unto you,—
We have blessed you in the Name of Yahweh.

PSALM 130.
A Song of Ascents.
1 Out of the depths have I cried unto thee, O Yahweh.
2 O My Lord! hearken thou unto my voice,—
    Let thine ears be attentive to the voice of my supplications
3 If <iniquities> thou shouldest mark, O Yah\> O My Lord, who could stand?
4 But <with thee> is forgiveness,
That thou mayest be revered.
5 I have waited for Yahweh
My soul hath waited for his word;
6 I have hoped, O my soul, for My Lord,
More than they Who watch for the morning,
Who [[watch for the morning]].
7 Wait, O Israel, for Yahweh,—
For <with Yahweh> is lovingkindness,
And there aboundeth with him—redemption.
8 ||He|| therefore, will redeem Israel’ From all his iniquities.

PSALM 131.
A Song of Ascents. David’s.
1 O Yahweh, my heart [is not haughty],
    Nor are mine eyes [lofty],
Neither have I moved among great matters,
Or among affairs too wonderful for me.º
2 Surely I have soothed and silenced my soul,—
    Like a weaned child, concerning his mother,
    Like a weaned child, concerning myself—mine own soul.
3 Wait, O Israel, for Yahweh,
From this time forth, even to times age-abiding.

PSALM 132.
A Song of Ascents.
1 Remember, O Yahweh, unto David,
    All his humiliations!
2 What he Swore to Yahweh,—
    Vowed to the Mighty One of Jacob:
3 Surely I will not enter the home of my own house,
    Nor ascend my curtained couch;
4 I will not give sleep to mine eyes,
    Nor <to mine eye-lashes> slumber:
5 Until I find A place’ for Yahweh,
    Habitations’ for the Mighty One of Jacob.
6 Lo! we heard of it at Ephrathah,
    We found it in the fields of the wood.
7 We would enter his habitations,
    We would bow down at his footstool.
8 Arise! O Yahweh, unto thy place of rest,
||Thou,|| and the ark of thy strength]].
9 Thy priests shall be clothed with righteousness,
Thy men of lovingkindness shall shout for joy!

10 For the sake of David thy servant
Do not turn away the face of thine Anointed One.

11 Yahweh hath sworn unto David,
In faithfulness will he not turn from it,—
Of the fruit of thy body will I seat on thy throne.

12 If thy sons keep my covenant And my testimony which I will teach them
Even their sons unto futurity Shall sit on thy throne.

13 For Yahweh hath chosen Zion,— He hath desired it as a dwelling for himself:
This is my place of rest unto futurity, Here will I dwell for I have desired it;

14 For Yahweh hath chosen Zion,— He hath desired it as a dwelling for himself:
This is my place of rest unto futurity, Here will I dwell for I have desired it;

15 Her provision will I abundantly bless, Her needy ones will I satisfy with bread;
And her priests will I clothe with salvation, And her men of lovingkindness shall shout aloud for joy;

16 If thy priests keep my covenant, And my testimony which I will teach them
Shall sit on thy throne.

17 For the sake of David thy servant
Do not turn away the face of thine Anointed One.

18 His enemies will I clothe with shame, But upon himself shall his crown be resplendent.

PSALM 133.
A Song of Ascents. David’s.

1 Lo! how good and how delightful to dwell together even as one.
2 Like the precious oil upon the head, Descending upon the beard, The beard of Aaron,— Which descended unto the opening of his robe:
3 Like the dew of Hermon, which descended upon the mountains of Zion,— For there did Yahweh command the blessing, Life unto times age-abiding.

PSALM 134.
A Song of Ascents.

1 Lo! bless Yahweh all ye servants of Yahweh, Who stand in the house of Yahweh [by night]:
2 Lift up your hand in holiness, And bless Yahweh.

3 May Yahweh bless thee out of Zion, Even he that made heaven and earth.

PSALM 135.

1 Praise ye Yah, Praise ye the Name of Yahweh, Praise O ye servants of Yahweh; Who stand in the house of Yahweh, In the courts of the house of our God.

2 Who stand in the house of Yahweh, In the courts of the house of our God.

3 Praise ye Yah, For good is Yahweh, Sing praises to his Name, For it is full of delight;
4 For Jacob hath Yah chosen for himself, Israel, for his own treasure.

5 For know that great is Yahweh, Yea our Lord is beyond all gods.
6 Whateuer Yahweh hath pleased he hath done,— In the heavens and on the earth, In the seas, and all resounding deeps:

7 Causing vapours to ascend from the end of the earth,— Lightnings for the rain hath he made, Bringing forth wind out of his treasuries.

8 Who smote the firstborn of Egypt, Both of man, and of beast;

9 Sent signs and wonders into thy midst, O Egypt, Upon Pharaoh, and upon all his servants.

10 Who smote great nations, And slew mighty kings:

11 Sihon, king of the Amorites, And Og, king of Bashan, And all the kingdoms of Canaan;

12 And gave their land as an inheritance,
An inheritance to Israel his people.

13 O Yahweh! ||thy Name|| is age-abiding,—
   O Yahweh! ||thy memorial|| is to generation
   aftera generation.

14 For Yahweh will vindicate’ his people,—
   And <on his servants> have compassion.b

15 ||The idols of the nations|| are silver and gold,c
   The workd of the hands of men:

16 <A mouth> have they, but they speak not,
   <Eyes> have they, but they see not;

17 <Ears> have they, but they hear not,
   <Nose>—there is no’ breath in their mouth.

18 <Like unto them> shall be they who make them,
   Every one who trusteth in them.

19 O house of Israel! bless Yahweh,
   O house of Aaron! bless Yahweh;
20 O house of Levi! bless Yahweh,
   Ye that revere Yahweh! bless Yahweh.
21 Blessed be Yahweh out of Zion,
   Who inhabiteth Jerusalem,
   Praise ye Yah!e

PSALM 136.

1 Give ye thanks to Yahweh
   For he is good,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.f

2 Give ye thanks to the God of gods,g
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

3 Give ye thanks to the Lord of lords,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

4 To him that doeth great wonders [by himself alone],
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

5 To him that made the heavens with understanding,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

6 To him that stretched out the earth above the waters,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

7 To him that made great lights,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

8 The sun to rule the day,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

9 The moon and stars to rule the night,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

10 To him that smote Egypt in their firstborn,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

11 And brought forth Israel out of their midst,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

12 With a firm hand, and a stretched-out arm,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

13 To him that divided the Red Sea into division,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

14 And caused Israel to pass through the midst thereof,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

15 And shook off Pharaoh and his army in the Red Sea,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

16 To him that led his people through the desert,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

17 To him that smote great kings,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

18 And slew majestic kings,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

19 Even Sihon, king of the Amorites,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

20 Also Og, king of Bashan,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

21 And gave their land for an inheritance,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

22 An inheritance to Israel his servant,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

23 Who <in our low estate> remembered us,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

24 And freed us with force from our adversaries,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

25 Who giveth food to all flesh,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

26 Give ye thanks unto the GOD of the heavens,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

PSALM 140.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 Rescue me, O Yahweh, from the men of mischief,
   From the men of violence wilt thou preserve me:

2 Who have devised mischiefs in [their] heart,
   Every day do they stir up wars:

3 They have sharpened their tongue like a serpent,—
   [The poison of the asp] is under their lips.
   [Selah.

4 Keep me, O Yahweh, from the hands of the lawless one,
   From the man of violence wilt thou preserve me,—
   Who have devised to thrust at my steps:

5 The proud have hidden a snare for me,
   And <cords> have they spread as a net beside the track,
   <Snares> have they set for me.
   [Selah.

6 I have said unto Yahweh, [My GOD] thou art!
   Give ear, O Yahweh, unto the voice of my supplications.

7 O Yahweh, My Lord, my saving strength,
   Thou hast screened my head in the day of battle.

8 Do not grant, O Yahweh, the desires of the lawless one,
   <His device> do not promote,
   They would exalt themselves.
   [Selah.

9 <As for the head of them who surround me>
   Let the mischief of their lips cover them:

10 May there be dropped on them live coals,—
   Into the fire may they be let fall,—
   Into watery pits [from which] they shall not rise.

11 <As for the slanderer> let him not be established in the earth,—
   <As for the man of wrongful violence> let misfortune hunt him with thrust upon thrust.

<So’ is the darkness> as’ the light!
13 For [[thou]] didst possess thyself of my reins,
   Thou didst weave me together in the womb of my mother.
14 I thank thee, in that fearfully’ was my being distinguished,a Wonderful’ are thy works,
   And [[mine own soul]] is observing [them] intently!
15 My substanceb was not hid’ from thee,—
   When I was made in secret,
   When I was skilfully figured in the lower parts of the earth.
16 <Mine unfinished substance> thine eyes beheld,
   And <in thy book> all the parts thereof were written,—
   The days they should be fashioned!
   While yet there was not one among them.
17 <To me> then, how precious have thy desires become, O God!
   How numerous, the heads of them!
18 I would recount them!
   <Beyond the sands> they multiply,
   I rouse myself—
   And <in thy book> all the parts thereof were written,—
   The days they should be fashioned!

PSALM 141.
A Melody of David.
1 O Yahweh, I have cried unto thee,
   Make thou haste to me,
   Give ear unto my voice, when I cry to thee.
2 Let my prayer be set in order like incense before thee,—
   The lifting up of my hands, a as the evening gift.
3 Set thou, O Yahweh, a watch at my mouth,
   Keep thou guard over the door of my lips.
4 Let not my heart incline to a matter of wrong
   That I should busy myself with practices in lawlessness, with men working iniquity,
   And let me not eat of their dainties.
5 Let a righteous man smite’ me—
   <A lovingkindness> that he should correct me
   An oil for the head [which] let not my head refuse!
   For ||yet|| [even my prayer] shall be in their calamities.
6 Their judges have been hurled down by a crag], b
   Now have men heard my sayings, for they have become sweet.
7 <As when one plougheth and furroweth the earth>
   |Scattered about| are our bones at the mouth of hades!
8 Surely <unto thee, O Yahweh, My Lord> are mine eyes,
   <In thee> have I sought refuge,
   Do not pour out my life.
9 Keep me out of
   The clutches of the trap they have set for me,
   and
   The snares of the workers of iniquity.
10 They who are lawless [shall fall into the nooses

   While |I|, at the same time| pass on.

PSALM 142.
An Instructive Psalm of David. When he was in the Cave. A Prayer.
1 <With my voice—to Yahweh> make I outcry,
   <With my voice—to Yahweh> make I supplication:
2 I pour out before him my complaint,
   <My distress—before him> I tell.
3 <When my spirit fainted concerning myself>
   Then ||thou|| didst take note of my path,—
   <In the course which’ I was about to take>
   They had hidden a snare for me.
4 Look to the right hand and see,
   That there is none that <for me> hath regard,—
   Escape is lost’ to me,
   There is no’ one to care for my life.
5 I have made outcry unto thee, O Yahweh,—
   I have said,
   ||Thou|| art my refuge,
   My portion, in the land of the living.d
6 Attend thou unto my loud cry,
   For I am brought very low,—
   Rescue me from my pursuers,
   For they are stronger than I.
7 O bring forth, out of prison, my soul,
   That I may give thanks unto thy Name,—
   <About me> let the righteous gather round,
   For thou wilt deal bountifully with me.

PSALM 143.
A Melody of David.
1 O Yahweh, hear my prayer,
   Give ear to my supplications,
   <In thy faithfulness> answer me, [in thy righteousness].
2 Do not then enter into judgment with thy servant,
   For no one living [can appear just before thee].

   Hath made me dwell in dark places, like the

PSALM 144.

David’s.

1 Blessed’ be Yahweh, my Rock,
Who teacheth my hands to war,
my fingers to fight:

2 My lovingkindness and my stronghold,
My high tower and my deliverer—[mine]!!
My buckler, and he in whom I have sought refuge,—
He that subdueth my people under me. i

3 O Yahweh! what is the earthborn,
And yet thou hast acknowledged him,—
The son of a mortal,
And yet thou hast taken account of him: k

4 ||The earthborn|| resembleth |a vapour|,
||His days|| are like a passing’ shadow.

5 O Yahweh! bow thy heavens and come down,
Touch the mountains, that they smoke:
6 Flash forth lightning, that thou mayest scatter
them,
Send out thine arrows, that thou mayest confound
them:

7 Put forth thy handsm from on high:—
Snatch me away and rescue me
Out of mighty waters,
Out of the hand of the sons of the alien,

8 |Whose mouth| hath spoken deceit,
And |whose right hand| is a right hand of falsehood.

9 O God!  will I sing unto thee,— <On a harp of ten strings> will I make musico to
thee:

10 Who giveth victory unto kings,—
Who snatcheth away David his servant, from the calamitous’ sword.

11 Snatch me away and rescue me
Out of the hand of the sons of the alien,—
Whose mouth hath spoken deceit,
And |whose right hand| is a right hand of
falsehood:—

12 That |our sons|| may be like plants well grown while yet young,—

PSALM 145.
A Psalm of Praise. David’s.

I will exalt thee, my God, O King,
And will bless thy Name, to times age-abiding and beyond:

<Every day> will I bless thee,
And praise thy Name, to times age-abiding and beyond.b

Great’ is Yahweh—and worthy to be heartily praised,
And ||his greatness|| is unsearchable.c

<Generation unto generation> shall celebrate thy works,
And <thy mighty deeds> shall they tell:

<The splendour of the glory of thy majesty> shall they speak,
And <thy wonders> will I utter.d

And <the might of thy terrible acts> shall men speak,
And <as for thy greatness>e I will recount it.

<The memory of thy great goodness> shall men pour forth,
And <thy righteousness> shall they shout aloud.

8 [Gracious and compassionate] is Yahweh,—
8 Slow to anger, and of great lovingkindness.f

Good’ is Yahweh to all,
And ||his tender compassions|| are over all his works.

All thy works, O Yahweh, | will give thanks unto thee,|—
And ||thy men of lovingkindness|| will bless thee:

11 <The glory of thy kingdom> will they tell,—
And <thy power> will they speak.

12 To make known to the sons of men, his mighty deeds,
And the splendid glory of his kingdom.

13 ||Thy kingdom|| is a kingdom of all ages,—
And ||thy dominion|| is over generation after generation.g

Yahweh is ready to uphold all who are falling,
And to raise all who are laid prostrate.

15 ||The eyes of all|| <for thee> do wait,
And ||thou|| givest them their food in its season.

16 ||Thou||h openest thy hand, i
And fillest every living thing with gladness.

17 Righteous’ is Yahweh in all his ways,
And kind in all his works.

18 Near’ is Yahweh to all who call upon him,—
||To all them who call upon him in faithfulness||.

19 <The desire of them who revere him> will he fulfill,
And <their cry> will he hear, and will save them.

20 Yahweh preserveth’ all who love him,
But <all the lawless> will he destroy.

   <Not> in the legs of a man hath he pleasure:
11 Yahweh [hath pleasure] in them who revere him,
   In them who wait for his lovingkindness.
12 Laud thou, O Jerusalem, Yahweh,
   Praise thy God, O Zion:
13 For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates,
   He hath blessed thy children in thy midst:
14 Who maketh thy boundaries to be peace,
   <With the marrow of wheat> doth he satisfy thee:
15 Who sendeth his utterance to the earth,

SPECIAL NOTE
ON
THE PSALMS.

THE exigencies of space in relation to the varying forms in which this Bible is issued afford a welcome opportunity for inserting here a Special Note on the Psalms, rather than reserve such note for the Old Testament Appendix. It will be necessary to restrict this further outgrowth from the original design of THE EMPHASISED BIBLE to subjects which are in some measure peculiar to the work, leaving the student to seek elsewhere for further information on related topics. It will be convenient to treat, first, of some external features which are observable in the foregoing presentation of the Psalms; and, secondly, to touch upon some more essential characteristics of those precious compositions, especially in regard to certain grave questions of interpretation.

I. EXTERNAL FEATURES.

1.—The division of the Psalms into Books, having now been familiarised by means of the Revised Version, claims no further notice here than merely to say that the ancient issue of the Psalms in successive and enlarging collections, relieves us from all embarrassment and impulse to prejudgment, when we first find it stated at the end of the Second Book (Psalm lixii.) that the prayers of David the son of Jesse are “ended,” and yet discover others, later on, attributed to the same author. Just as, in the Book of Proverbs, the first collection (x. to xxiv.) is supplemented by another which, at a later date, “Hezekiah and his men copied out” (xxv. 1), so later editions of the Psalms may very well contain compositions from David’s own pen which at an earlier time had not been brought to light, or had not been suitably edited for insertion among the hymns employed in the Temple service.

2.—The titles of the Psalms need cause us no anxiety. That they are very ancient is evident from their appearance as translated in the Septuagint Version, but further than this we need not go; and if any Psalms, by the application of sound principles of exegesis, remonstrate against the occasion ascribed to them, we need do no more than pay respectful regard to a venerable tradition, and pass on in quest of more conclusive evidence. In particular it should be understood that the preposition generally rendered “of” in the phrase “Psalms of David,” may easily and naturally be rendered “to,” “for” “of,” or “by”—and so may be taken as the “to” of dedication, the “for” of desired use, the “of” of subject-matter, or finally the “by” of authorship—which last can itself scarcely preclude editorial preparation for liturgical use, to say nothing of perils of transcription and transmission, to guard us from which the labours of the textual critic are of such priceless worth. A Psalm “of” Asaph may have been “for” Asaph’s use, or one composed “by” him. We should scarcely think of a Psalm composed “by” the Sons of Korah: much rather “for” their use. And yet one and the same preposition serves in these several applications. An effort has been made in the foregoing version to keep the reader in the enjoyment of his legitimate freedom.

3.—The word Selah has long been proof against all endeavours to resolve it. That it literally means “to lift up” has been generally admitted. But “lift up” what?—instruments or voices? And why and how lift up? And so despair has relinquished the inquiry: it was some musical note or sign—precise nature unknown. Others settled down in the conclusion that it simply or chiefly meant “Pause.” And “pause” was nearly successful; save that, to say “pause” at the end of a Psalm, seemed needless. To the Oxford Gesenius belongs the merit of suggesting a more adequate explanation, the substance of which is cited in footnote to Ps. iii., 2, ante. As a call upon the people to lift up their voices in praise of Yahweh, a pleasing pause for a practical purpose would be thereby constituted, and one which would suit equally the close of a strophe or the end of a Psalm; and at the same time not be wholly out of place even when it was used to mark a movement of musical rhetoric—interrupting a sentence—a movement akin to the pause for effect familiar in oratory. If the latter part of this explanation be borne in mine, the otherwise unwelcome letting in of a little extra space in connection with some of the occurrences of “Selah” in the foregoing pages, will be explained.

4.—We are thus prepared for the more graphic setting of the word Hallelujah (=Hallelu Yah=“Praise ye Yah”) than was previously familiar to us; and for which we are indebted to Dr. Ginsburg. Hallelu Yah becomes the more general invitation to the people to join: Selah the more precise intimation of the points at which the loud acclaim should come in. That the two words are seldom or never found in company, may merely show that, after all, we have only glimpses of the ancient temple worship. At first it may seem a little amusing that by the simple process of resolving the word “hallelujah” into its elements and then translating it in harmony with its force and intent we actually get rid of the word (as one compound word) altogether! That is so; but consider the gain. We not only catch a fresh sight of the ancient worship as a living thing, but we gain an accession to the instances in which the thrice holy Divine Name (in its abbreviated form of “Jah”=“Yah”) occurs in the Old Testament; and, to condescend upon the minor matter of pronunciation, it seems peculiarly becoming that the same translation that ventures upon the spelling “Yahweh” should set free from its almost meaningless combination (often flippantly ejaculated, and sometimes lightly used as a badge) the august syllable Yah. The relation of “Yah” to “Yahweh” is so generally admitted, that to accept the obvious pronunciation of the former and refuse the proposed pronunciation of the latter, would appear to be rather inconsistent.

5.—The Alphabetical Psalms claim notice, if only because—the fact that there are such Psalms has in this Bible been forced into prominence by the exhibit in the margin of the Hebrew letters which form this characteristic. It will be readily understood that in some cases these letters have been placed in the right-hand margin merely for convenience, and that they still refer to the first Hebrew word in the line. There are seven such Alphabetical Psalms—namely, xxv., xxxiv., xxxvii., cxi., cxii., cxix., and cxl. To these, some scholars add Psalms ix. and x., which were perhaps originally one Psalm, and in which fragments of the alphabetical arrangement are still discernible. The 119th is the most conspicuous of these singular compositions, both owing to the number of verses headed by each Hebrew letter in succession (eight to each), and to the circumstance that the names of the Hebrew letters are preserved as paragraph headings by the Bibles in common use. The device under consideration may be described as an abecedarian acrostic. Eight verses in succession begin (in the original) with words commencing with aleph; then eight verses start with words beginning with beth; and so on to the end of the alphabet of 22 letters, making 176 verses in all. In the other alphabetical Psalms the arrangement is less formidable; a stanza only, or a distich, or even a single line being headed by each Hebrew letter as the initial of the original word employed. This initialling device makes a singularly striking and beautiful re-appearance in the Book of Lamentations, in which book of five chapters four are alphabetical: Chapters i. and ii. having each a single alphabet, hence twenty-two verses each; Chapter iii., a triple alphabet—three alephs, three beths, etc.—hence sixty-six verses in all; Chapter iv., a single alphabet and twenty-two verses; Chapter v., still twenty-two verses, but, strange to say, no alphabet. In settling the rendering of Chapter iii., it was found easily possible to conform some four or five triplets to the same style, so far as to begin three verses in succession with the same English letter. Ordinarily, as might be anticipated, the imitation has to be given up; but this small measure of success impressed the present translator’s mind with the conviction that here we have to do with something more than a literary curiosity. There must have been patient devising on the part of the author; and there must have resulted an aid to memory so effective as scarcely to have been outside the original composer’s intention. Truly, a fruitful consideration, bearing on the advantages even now of memorising Holy Scripture, and on the debt of gratitude we owe to paraphrasts and hymn-writers who, by alliteration, rhythm, and rhyme, render aid to the memories of the illiterate, the sick, the blind, and the bookless—aid which tends to keep Divine truth alive in the hearts of men when they most need its influence. Incidentally, the Alphabetical Psalms may yield a valuable lesson in textual criticism. Whoever the author of any of these Psalms may have been, the intuition comes to us with unanswerable force that if the initial alphabet is nearly unbroken, it must have been originally intended to make it perfect. Hence, when an expert like Dr. Ginsburg says, on Psalm xxv. 2, that he thinks that instead of “O my God, in thee,” it should rather be “In thee, O my God,” it needs only that we notice that whereas the former in Hebrew is Elohay, bekâ, the latter is Bekâ, Elohay, thus perfecting the sequence of the initials by bringing the letter beth next after aleph, to feel almost certain that he is right. In like manner, when we observe that, while the nineteenth letter (koph) is absent, the twentieth letter (resh) starts two verses in succession, we cannot avoid the conclusion that a disturbance has at some time or other crept in, even though we cannot now set the matter right; and perhaps just here it may be of no practical consequence, as some nearly synonymous word to that rendered “Behold” in verse 18, but beginning with a k, may have originally commenced that sentence. Where, however, the alphabet is complete, we rest content in the assurance that copyists have had a double safeguard against error.

6.—Something has been done in this translation to resolve the individual Psalms into groups of lines, commonly called strophes, thereby marking sub-divisions likely to be of practical service, both as indicating changes of tone, topic, speaker, and drift, and as letting in glimpses of that mighty afflatus by which the psalmists were suddenly or gradually carried away into realms of thought and feeling wholly beyond their actual circumstances. It is probable that more might have been done in this direction, even by one individual, had unlimited time and space been at command; but it may in the end be better that studious readers should help themselves by grafting personal labour upon that which here and elsewhere has been prepared to their hand. Where the interjection of “Selah” has occasioned a division which cannot be justified even by a musical imagination, let some small “closing-up” sign be inserted by the student’s own hand in the margin. Where, on the other hand, smaller strophes are seen to group themselves into larger divisions, let extra space, at the larger divisions, be in like manner suggested by some appropriate token.

II.—ESSENTIAL CHARACTERISTICS.

It is impossible here to treat of many of the most obvious of these:—the adaptation of the Psalms, by reason of their direct address to Deity, to lift up man’s spirit to his Maker; their powerful hold on men’s deepest sympathies, in that they are sensitively in touch with a wide range of human sin and sorrow; their prevailing tendency to carry the reader onward out of darkness into light, so that although many of them commence in deepest depths of despair, their ending is mostly on the mountain top of exuberant joy; and, not to go further, the happy blending of personal interests with national and world-wide affairs, so that the piety that begins at home in the privacy of the closet and, it may be, the agonies of a broken heart, is speedily borne on eagle wings to survey the glorious majesty of the Divine Kingdom. On these and other grounds, here left untouched, the lasting popularity of the Psalms securely rests.

A few points, however, not overmuch observed, claim brief remark.

1.—The dramatic structure of a good many Psalms makes special demand on interpretive inquiry. Take the Second Psalm as an example. In reading this we listen to no fewer than four distinct voices. There is first (and last) the voice of the Psalmist himself, speaking in his own person, however truly he was led of the Spirit in what he uttered; secondly, the language attributed to the lawless conspirators against Yahweh and his Anointed One; thirdly, the counter declaration of the Most High; fourthly, the record of the Son of God, who in turn cites the terms in which he had been addressed by the Divine Father, counselling him (the Son) to ask for and obtain world-wide dominion; the whole being then concluded, as named above, by the resuming voice of the Psalmist, as timely adviser, counselling the kings and rulers of the earth to act with prudence. It is little to say that the Psalm cannot be expounded in the absence of dramatic feeling and insight: it cannot even be read with fitting expression. Perhaps the most difficult of all the dramatic Psalms is the sixty-eighth, which severely taxes, not the expositor alone, but the translator, who has to determine how to render his descriptive tenses, whether as applying to past, present, or future; and, to decide this, he seems bound to apprehend, as best he may, what is the ideal key-note of the whole of this magnificent composition. The ground-thought being almost certainly the bringing up of the ark to Jerusalem, yet how manifestly this concept shrinks into a mere point of departure for a flight into Messiah’s coming kingdom, for which the Ascension of the Anointed One into heavenly glory is a stepping-stone—unless indeed our own beloved Apostle Paul is wholly at fault in Ephesians Four.
2.—This feature of dramatic structure naturally leads forward to a deeper question—that of inspirational prophetic flight into the future. Were Psalmists and Prophets divinely gifted seers into futurity, or were they not? Were they—as the Apostle Peter affirms they were—a—taken hold of and borne along or carried away out of the present into the future? It may be conceded that to be sent back to the historical starting-points of the prophetic word is well; but to get set fast there is ill indeed. The eagle of prophecy had its nest on the rock of accomplished fact; but to that rock it was not chained. It had a pinion strong enough to bear it up towards the sun, to an elevation from which it could descry things then distant, yea, and things yet to come.

3.—This step emboldens us to take another, landing us in the midst of the problem of dispensation. What spirit are we of?—what dispensation are we in? For instance, can we, may we, dare we CURSE as the old Hebrews cursed—as (we might almost say) they were trained to curse? Take Psalm cix. as an example, if you wish to see how whole-heartedly and with what poetry and passion they could execrate their foes. Can we curse like that? or are we in duty bound and in spirit empowered to abstain? We know well we must not curse at all. But how is that? It is because we have heard a Voice saying, “Bless and curse not”; because we have seen an Example which would put us to shame if we, even on the strongest provocation, dared to “breathe out threatenings and slaughter”; and, finally, because we can never think the command to abstain from cursing arbitrary so long as we realise that we are at present only followers of the Messiah in his humiliation. In this the whole question of dispensation is involved. But the sword of truth is two-edged. The Church—the called-out assembly—of the Messiah cannot curse; but there is another thing she cannot do—at least if rightly guided. She cannot confound herself with the manifested, world-dominating Kingdom of God. The life of the kingdom is in her by faith—that is all; she sees the kingdom at present only from afar. By faith she brings it nigh, it is true; and that is precisely the angle of vision from which she can say and sing the songs of the kingdom which she finds in the Book of Psalms. She leaps over the intervening “strange work” of overthrowing and breaking in pieces. That belongs not to her—least of all at present. That commission is safe in immortal and unerring hands. If we are ever to join in its execution, it can only be when we have “overcome”; and we cannot overcome if we fail meantime to let patience have her perfect work. If it might be said without presumption: When Biblical Criticism knows how to make the reasonable distinction—that what is impossible now may be possible hereafter—it may cease torturing humble souls by seeming to say that there are no Predictions of a Personal Messiah in the Old Testament. In any case, it may safely be said: That in proportion as Christians can see their way to judge simply and clearly as to what in the Psalms they may legitimately decline as inapplicable to them; and what in the Psalms they may simply defer, as unfulfilled at present; and so cease to stretch and strain the Word in order to make it suit our intermediate dispensation, to which in the main it does not belong;—so in proportion will they enjoy these admirable lyrics with a refined delight which, probably, they have not hitherto known.

THE PROVERBS.

General Introduction, in Praise of Wisdom, as the Source whence Proverbs are derived.

(Chapters I. to IX.).

Chapter 1.

1 The proverbs of Solomon, son of David, King of Israel:

2 For the knowledge of wisdom and correction,
   For discerning the sayings of intelligence;

3 For receiving the correction of prudence,
   Righteousness and justice, and equity;

4 For giving To the simple shrewdness,
   To the young man knowledge and discretion.

5 A wise man will hear
   And will increase learning,
   And a discreet man will acquire,

6 By gaining discernment of proverb and satire,
   The words of the wise and their dark sayings.

7 The reverence of Yahweh is the beginning of knowledge,
   Wisdom and correction the foolish have despised.

8 Hear, my son, the correction of thy father,
   And do not reject the instruction of thy mother;

9 For a wreath of beauty shall they be to thy head,
   And chains of ornament to thy neck.

10 My son, if sinners entice thee do not consent.

11 If they say—
   Come with us,—
   Let us lie in wait for blood,
   Let us watch in secret for him who is needlessly innocent;

12 Let us engulf them, like hades, alive,
   While in health like them who are going down to the pit;

13 All costly substance shall we find,
   We shall fill our houses with spoil;

14 Thy lot shall thou cast into our midst,

15 My son, do not walk in the way with them,
   Withhold thy foot from their path.

16 For their feet do run,
   And haste to the shedding of blood.

17 Surely in vain is spread the net,
   In the sight of aught that hath wings!

18 Yet they <for their own blood> lie in wait,
   They watch in secret for their own life.

19 Such are the ways of every one that grasps with greed,
   The life of the owners thereof it taketh away!

20 [Wisdom] <in the open place> soundeth forth,
   She raiseth her voice;

21 At the head of bustling streets she crieth aloud,—
   At the openings of the gates in the city—her sayings she doth utter:—

22 How long ye simple ones will ye love simplicity?
   And scoffers delight them?
   And dullards hate knowledge?

23 Will ye turn at my reproof?
   Lo! I will pour out to you my spirit,
   I will make known my words to you.

24 Because I called, and ye refused,
   I stretched out my hand, and no one regarded;
   But ye dismissed all my counsel,
   And <to my rebuke> would not yield>

26 [I also] <at your calamity> will laugh,
   I will mock, when cometh your dread;
   When cometh as a crashing your dread,
   And <your calamity> as a storm-wind overtaketh,
   When there come upon you, distress and anguish.

28 Then will they call me, but I will not answer,
   They will seek me diligently, but shall not find me.

29 Because they hated knowledge,

---

a Or: “prudence.”
b Or: “sentences.”
c Or: “who is innocent in vain.”
e Ml.: “any owner (baal) of a wing.” Some cod. (w. Sep., Vul.): “owners” (pl.)—G.n.
f U.: “soul.”
And the reverence of Yahweh did not choose;
30  Consented not to my counsel,
Disdained all my rebuke;
31  Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way,
And the carelessness of dullards will destroy them.
32  For the turning away of the simple will slay them,—
And the carelessness of dullards will destroy them.
33  Whereas the he that hearkeneth unto me shall dwell safely,
And be at rest, without dread of misfortune.

Chapter 2.

1  My son, if thou wilt receive my sayings,
And my commandments wilt treasure up by thee;
2  So that thou direct, unto wisdom, thine ear,
Bend thy heart, unto understanding;
3  Yea if thou cry aloud,
<For knowledge> utter thy voice;
4  If thou seek her as silver,
And <like hid treasure> thou search for her;
5  <Then> shalt thou understand the reverence of Yahweh,
And the knowledge of God shalt thou find.
6  For Yahweh giveth wisdom,
<Out of his mouth> knowledge and understanding;
7  Yea he treasureth, for the upright, safety,
A shield [is he] to them who walk in integrity.
8  To him that observeth the paths of justice,
Yea <the way of his men> of lovingkindness he doth guard.
9  <Then> shalt thou understand righteousness and justice,
And equity—every noble course.
10  When wisdom entereth thy heart,
And <knowledge> to thy soul is sweet;
11  <Discretion> shall watch over thee,
<Understanding> shall preserve thee:

12  To rescue thee from the way of the wrongful,
From the man that speaketh perverse things;
13  From them who forsake the paths of rectitude,
To walk in the ways of darkness;
14  Who rejoice to do wrong,
Exult in the perversities of the wrongful;
15  Whose paths are twisted,
And they are tortuous in their tracks:
16  To rescue thee, from the woman that is a stranger,
From the female unknown, who with her speeches seduceth;
17  Who forsaketh the friend of her youth,
And <the covenant of her God> hath forgotten;
18  For she hath appointed, unto death, her house,
And unto the shades, her courses;
19  None who go in unto her can come back,
Neither attain they unto the paths of life;
20  To the end that thou walk in the way of good men,
And <the paths of the righteous> that thou observe.
21  For the upright shall abide on the earth,—
And the men of integrity shall remain therein;
22  But the lawless out of the earth shall he cut off,
And traitors shall they tear away therefrom.

Chapter 3.

1  My son, <mine instruction> do not thou forget,
And <my commandment> let thy heart observe;
2  For <length of days and years of life,
And blessedness> shall they add to thee.
3  <Lovingkindness and faithfulness> let them not forsake thee,—
Bind them, upon thy neck,
Write them upon the tablet of thy heart;
4  So find thou favour and good repute,
In the eyes of God and man.
5  Trust thou in Yahweh, with all thy heart,
And unto thine own understanding do not lean:
6  In all thy ways acknowledge him,
And ||he|| will make straight thy paths.
7  Do not become wise in thine own eyes,

---G.n.
Revere Yahweh, and avoid evil;
8 °Healing° shall it be to thy body,
And refreshing, to thy bones.
9 Honour thou Yahweh, with thy substance,
And with the firstfruit of all thine increase;
10 So shall thy storehouses be filled* with plenty,
And <with new wine> shall thy vats overflow.
11 The <chastening of Yahweh> my son, do not reject,
Nor loathe his rebuke;
12 For <whom Yahweh loveth> he correcteth,
He causeth pain to the son in whom he delighteth.
13 How happy the man who hath found wisdom,
And the man who draweth forth understanding,
14 For better is her merchandise, than the merchandise of silver,
Yea <than gold> her increase;
15 More precious is she, than corals,
Yea [none of thy delightful things] doth equal her:
16 ||Length of days|| is in her right hand,
<In her left> are riches and honour;
17 ||Her ways|| are ways of pleasantness,
And ||all her paths|| are peace;
18 <A tree of life> is she, to them who secure her,—
And ||they who hold her fast|| are every one to be pronounced happy.
19 ||Yahweh|| <in wisdom> founded the earth,
Establishing the heavens* with understanding;
20 <By his knowledge> the resounding deeps were burst open,
And ||the skies|| drop down dew.
21 My son, let them not depart from thine eyes,
Guard thou counsel, and purpose:
22 So shall they become life to thy soul,
And an adorning to thy neck;
23 ||Then|| shall thou walk securely in thy way,
And ||thy foot|| shall not stumble;
24 <When thou sittest down> thou shalt have no dread,
Yea thou shalt lie down, and sweet* shall be thy sleep.
25 Be not thou afraid of sudden* dread,
Nor of the desolation of the lawless, when it cometh.
26 For ||Yahweh|| will be in all thy ways,
And will keep thy foot from the snare.
27 Withhold not good from them who ask it,*
When it is in power of thy hand to do it:
28 Do not say to thy neighbour,*
Go and come again,
And to-morrow* I will give,
When thou hast it by thee.
29 Devise not against thy neighbour an injury,
Seeing that ||he|| dwelleth securely by thee.
30 Contend not with a man without cause,
If he hath dealt thee no wrong.
31 Do not thou envy the man of violence,
Neither choose thou any of his ways;
32 For <an abomination to Yahweh> is the tortuous man,
But <with the upright> he is intimate.
33 ||The curse of Yahweh|| is in the house of the lawless one,
But <the home of the righteous> he blesseth.
34 <Though* at scoffers he scoffeth>
Yet <to the humbled*> he granteth favour.
35 <Honour> shall the wise inherit,—
But <as for dullards> shame shall carry them away.

Chapter 4.

And attend, that ye may know understanding.

2 For good teaching have I given you,
Mine instruction do not ye forsake.

3 For a son became I to my father,
Tender and most precious in the sight of my mother.\(^a\)

4 So he taught me, and said to me—
Let thy heart [lay hold of my words],
Keep my commandments and live!

5 Acquire wisdom, acquire understanding,
Do not forget, neither decline thou from the sayings of my mouth.

6 Do not forsake her, and she will guard thee,—
Love her and she will keep thee.

7 [The principal thing] is wisdom, acquire thou wisdom,\(^b\)
With all thine acquisition acquire thou understanding.

8 Exalt her, and she will set thee on high,\(^c\)
She will bring thee to honour, when thou dost embrace her:

9 She will give for thy head, a wreath of beauty,
<A crown of adorning> will she bestow upon thee.

10 Hear, my son, and receive my sayings,
And they will multiply to thee the years of life.

11 In the way of wisdom have I taught thee,
I have guided thee in tracks of uprightness.

12 When thou wakest thy step shall not be hemmed in,
And if thou runnest thou shalt not stumble.

13 Take fast hold of correction, let her not go,—
Keep her, for [she] is thy life.

14 Upon the path of the lawless do not thou enter,
And do not advance in the way of the wicked:

15 Avoid it, do not pass thereon—
Turn from it, and depart.

16 For they sleep not, unless they can do mischief,—

They rob themselves of their sleep, if they cannot cause someone to stumble.\(^d\)

17 For they consume bread gotten by lawlessness,
And wine obtained by violence they drink.

18 But the path of the righteous is as the light of dawn,\(^e\)

Going on and brightening, unto meridian day.\(^f\)

19 [The way of the lawless] is like darkness,
They know not, at what they stumble.

20 My son to my words attend,
To my sayings incline thou thine ear;

21 Let them not depart from thine eyes,
Keep them in the midst of thy heart;

22 For they are', to them who find them,—
And to every part of one's flesh they bring healing.

23 Above all that must be guarded keep thou thy heart,
For the issues of life.

24 Remove from thee perverseness of mouth,
And craftiness of lips put far from thee.

25 Let thine eyes look,—
And thine eyelashes point straight before thee.

26 Make level the track of thy foot,\(^k\)
That all thy ways may be directed aright:

27 Decline not, to the right hand or to the left,— Turn away thy foot from wickedness.\(^k\)

\(\text{Chapter 5.}\)

1 My son, to my wisdom attend,
And to mine understanding incline thou thine ear:

2 That thou mayest preserve discretion,—
And as for knowledge that thy lips may guard it.

3 For with sweet droppings drip the lips of her that is a stranger,
And smoother than oil is her mouth;\(^i\)

4 But [the latter end of her] is bitter as wormwood, Sharp, as a two-edged sword!
5 ||Her feet|| are going down to death,—
   <On hades> will her steps take firm hold.
6 <Lest ||the path of life|| she should ponder>
   Her tracks have wandered she knoweth not [whither].
7 ||Now|| therefore, ye sons, hearken unto me,
   And do not turn away from the sayings of my mouth.
8 Keep far from her a thy way,
   And do not go near the opening of her house:
9 Lest thou give, to other men, thy vigour,
   And thy years, to him that is cruel:
10 Lest strange men [be well fed] by thy strength,
   And ||thy toils|| be in the house of the alien.
11 So shalt thou grieve b in thy latter end,
   In the failing of thy flesh and of thy healthy condition;
12 And thou shalt say—
   How I hated correction!
   And <reproof> my heart disdained;
13 Neither hearkened I to the voice of my teachers,
   Nor <to my instructors> inclined I mine ear:
14 Soon was I in all evil,
   ||In the midst of convocation and assembly||.
15 Drink thou water out of thine own cistern,
   And flowing streams out of the midst of thine own well.
16 Let not thy fountains ||flow over|| abroad
   In the streets, divisions of waters:
17 Let them be for thyself [alone],—
   And not’ for strangers with’ thee.
18 Let thy well-spring be blessed,—
   And get thy joy from the wife of thy youth:—
19 A loving hind! a graceful doe!
   Let [her bosom] content thee at all times,
   And <in her love> mayst thou stray evermore.
20 Wherefore, then, shouldst thou stray, my son,
   with a strange woman?

Or embrace the bosom of a woman unknown?
21 For <before the eyes of Yahweh> are the ways of a man,—
   And <all his tracks> doth he consider: f
22 ||His own iniquities|| shall entrap him with the lawless,
   And <by the cords of his own sin> shall he be seized.
23 ||He|| shall die, for lack of discipline,
   And <by the abounding of his perversity> shall he be lost.

Chapter 6.

1 My son ≤if thou have become surety for thy neighbour,— have struck for a stranger thy hands≥
2 Thou hast been snared by the sayings of thy mouth,—
   Thou hast been caught’ by the sayings of thy mouth.
3 Do this then, my son, and deliver thyself,
   When thou hast come into the hand of thy neighbour,
   Go, haste thee, and urge thy neighbour; h
4 Do not give Sleep to thine eyes, or Slumber to thine eyelashes;
5 Deliver thyself, as a gazelle out of the hand,
   And as a bird, out of the hand of the fowler.
6 Go to the ant, thou sluggard,
   Observe her ways, and be wise;
7 Which, <having no harvest, i scribe, or ruler>
   Prepareth in the summer her food,
   Hath collected in the harvest her sustenance; k
8 How long, O sluggard, wilt thou lie?
   How long ere thou rise from thy sleep?
9 A little sleep, a little slumber,
   A little folding of the hands to rest:—
10 So shall come in, as a highwayman, thy poverty,
   And not thy strength.

   “Or go to the bee.
   And learn ||how abundantly busy|| she is,
   How precious’ she maketh her work—
So that <the product of her toil> is procured by kings and peasants for healing.*
   It is coveted by all, and highly esteemed;
   Lo! then <feeble in strength> though she is,
   Yet hath she done honour to wisdom and thus is extolled.”

* Cp. chap. xvi. 24.
And ||thy want|| as one armed with a shield.\textsuperscript{a}

<An abandoned man, a man of iniquity> [is he] who—
Goeth on in perversity of mouth;
\textsuperscript{b}Winketh with his eyes,\textsuperscript{c}
Speaketh\textsuperscript{d} with his foot,\textsuperscript{d}
Pointeth with his fingers;
[Hath] perverse things in his heart,
Deviseth mischief on every occasion,
\textsuperscript{e} he sendeth forth.

<For this cause> suddenly\textsuperscript{f} cometh his doom,
\textsuperscript{f}In a moment> shall he be torn in pieces and there be no' mending.

<These six things> doth Yahweh hate,
\textsuperscript{g}Yea ||seven|| are the abomination of his soul:—
\textsuperscript{h}Eyes\textsuperscript{i} that are lofty,
A tongue\textsuperscript{j} that is false,
And hands\textsuperscript{k} shedding innocent blood;
A heart\textsuperscript{l} contriving iniquitous devices,
Feet\textsuperscript{m} hasting to run into mischief;
One that uttereth lies—a false witness,
And one sending forth strifes between brethren.

Observe thou, my son, the commandment of thy father,
And do not decline from the instruction of thy mother:
Bind them upon thy heart continually,
Fasten them upon thy neck;
\textsuperscript{b}When thou walkest abroad> it shall guide thee,
\textsuperscript{b}When thou sleepest> it shall watch over thee,
\textsuperscript{b}When thou wakest> it shall speak to thee:
For ||a lamp> is the commandment,
\textsuperscript{b}the instruction||\textsuperscript{b} a light,
And ||the way of life> are the reproofs of correction:
To keep thee from the wicked woman,
From the flattery of the tongue of her that is a stranger.
Do not covet her beauty, in thy heart,
Neither let her take thee, by her eyelashes;
Because ||for the sake of an impure woman> [a man may be brought] even to a cake of bread,—

And ||a man's wife||
\textsuperscript{i} ||for a precious soul> may hunt!
\textsuperscript{b}Can a man snatch up fire in his bosom,
And ||his clothes|| not be burned?
\textsuperscript{b}Or can a man walk upon hot coals,
And ||his feet|| not be burned?
\textsuperscript{b}||So|| he that goeth in unto his neighbour's wife,
\textsuperscript{b}No man shall be guiltless' who toucheth her!
\textsuperscript{b}Men despise not a thief, when he stealtheth,
To satisfy his appetite,\textsuperscript{f} because he is famished;
Yet ||if found|| he must pay back sevenfold,
\textsuperscript{f}All the substance of his house> must he give:
\textsuperscript{f}||He that committeth adultery with a woman|| lacketh sense,\textsuperscript{g}
A destroyer of his own life\textsuperscript{b} is he' that doeth it;
\textsuperscript{b}Smiting and shame> shall he find,
And ||his reproach|| shall not be wiped out;
For ||jealousy|| is the rage of a man,
\textsuperscript{b}Nor will he spare, in the day of avenging;
\textsuperscript{b}He will not look, at any ransom,
Neither will he consent, though thou increase the bribe.

Chapter 7.

1 My son, keep my sayings,
And ||my commandments|| treasure by thee;\textsuperscript{i}
2 Keep my commandments and live,
And mine instruction, as the pupil of thine eye;
3 Bind them upon thy fingers,
Write them, on the tablet of thy heart;
4 Say unto wisdom, \textit{<My sister> thou!}
And ||an acquaintance> call thou [understanding]:
5 That thou mayest be kept, from the woman that is a stranger,
From the female unknown, who [with her speeches] doth flatter.
6 For ||in the window of my house, Through my lattice> I looked out;
7 And saw among the simple ones,
Discerned among the youths,

\textsuperscript{b} U.: "soul."
\textsuperscript{i} Sep. adds:—
"My son, honour thou Yahweh, and be bold,
And ||apart from him|| be afraid of no other." —G.n.
\textsuperscript{j} Mi.: "little man."
\textsuperscript{k} "Kinsman"—O.G.
A young man lacking sense;
8 Passing through the street, near her corner,
And <on the way to her house> he sauntered along;
9 In the twilight, in the evening of the day,
In the midst of the night, and the gloom;
10 And lo! ||a woman|| came to meet him,
Attired as one unchaste, of a wily heart.
11 <Boisterous> is she, and rebellious,
<In her house> abide not her feet;
12 Now<outside> now<in the broadways,
And <near every corner> she lieth in wait:
13 So she caught him, and kissed him,
And <emboldening her face> she said to him:
14 ||Peace'-offerings|| are by<me>,
<To-day> have I paid my vows;
15 <For this cause> came I forth to meet thee,
To seek diligently thy face, and I have found thee:
16 <Coverlets> have I spread on my couch of pleasure,
Dark-hued stuffs, of the yarn of Egypt;
17 I have sprinkled my bed,
With myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon:
18 Come! let us take our fill of endearments, until morning,
Let us delight ourselves with caresses;
19 For the husband is not<in his house,
He hath gone on a journey afar;
20 <A bag of silver> hath he taken in his hand,
<On the day of the full moon> will he enter his house.
21 She turneth him aside, with her great persuasiveness,—
<With the flattery of her lips> she compelleth him:
22 <Going after her instantly>
<As an ox, to the slaughter> he entereth,
And, as in fetters, unto the correction of a fool.
23 Until an arrow cleaveth his liver,
As a bird hasteth<into a snare,
And knoweth not, that <for his life> it is!
24 ||Now, therefore|| ye sons, hearken unto me,
And attend, to the sayings of my mouth;
25 Let not thy heart [turn aside to her ways],
Do not go astray, in her paths.
26<For many, wounded> hath she caused to fall,—
Yea strong men, slain wholly by her:
27 ||Ways to hades|| are in her house,
Descending into the chambers of death.

Chapter 8.

1 Doth not ||wisdom|| cry aloud?
And ||understanding|| send forth her voice?
2 <At the top of the high places above the way,
At the place where paths meet> she taketh her stand:
3 <Beside the gates, at the entrance of the city,—
At the going in of the openings> she shouteth:—
4 <Unto you, O men> I call,
And <my voice> is unto the sons of men;
5 Understand, ye simple ones, shrewdness,
And [ye dullards] understand sense;
6 Hear, for <princely things> will I speak,
And the opening of my lips shall be of equity;
7 For <faithfulness> shall my mouth softly utter,
But <the abomination of my lips> shall be lawlessness;
8 <In righteousness> shall be all the sayings of my mouth,
||Nothing therein|| shall be crafty or perverse;
9 ||All of them|| shall be plain, to them who would understand,
And just, to such as would gain knowledge.
10 Receive my correction, and not silver,
And knowledge, rather than choicest gold.
11 For better<is wisdom, than ornaments of coral,
And ||no delightful things|| can equal her.
12 ||Wisdom|| inhabit shrewdness,—
And <the knowledge of sagacious things> I gain.
13 ||The reverence of Yahweh|| is to hate wickedness:
||Pride, arrogance, and the way of wickedness;
And a mouth of perverse things|| do I hate.
14 ||Mine|| are counsel, and effective working,
||Il|| am understanding, ||mine|| is valour:
15 <By me> kings reign,
And dignitaries decree righteousness;
16 <By me> rulers govern,
And nobles—all the righteous’ judges;

Chapter 9.

1 ||Wisdom|| hath builded her house,
    hath hewn out her seven pillars;
    hath slaughtered her beasts,\(^b\)
    hath mingled her wine,
    hath even set in order her table;
    hath sent forth her maidens,
    She crieth aloud
    Upon the tops of the heights of the city:
2    Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither,
    \(<\text{As for him that lacketh sense}>\) she saith to him—
3    Come, feed on my food,
    And drink of the wine I have mingled;
4    Forsake the simple ones, and live,
    And advance in the way of understanding.
5    ||He that rebuketh a scoffer|| getteth to himself contempt,
    And ||he that reproveth a lawless man|| [getteth to himself] his shame.\(^b\)
6    Do not reprove a scoffer, lest he hate thee,
    Reprove a wise man, and he will\(^l\) love thee.
7    Give to a wise man, and he will\(^m\) be wiser still,
    Inform a righteous man, and he will\(^n\) increase learning.
8    \(<\text{The beginning of wisdom}>\) is the reverence of Yahweh,

Yea ||my fulness of delight|| was with the sons of men.\(^g\)

9 ||Now, therefore|| ye sons, hearken to me,
    For how happy are they who <to my ways> pay regard!
10 Hear ye correction, and be wise,
    And do not neglect.
11 How happy the man that doth hearken to me,—
    Keeping guard at my doors, day by day,
    Watching at the posts of my gates;
12 For ||he that findeth me|| findeth life,
    And hath obtained favour from Yahweh;
13 But ||he that misseth me|| wrongeth his own soul,
    ||All who hate me|| love death.

13 ||The woman Stupidity|| is boisterous,
So simple’ that she knoweth not what she would do;
14 So she sitteth at the entrance of her house,
Upon a seat, in the heights of the city;
15 To invite them who pass by in their paths:
16 ||Whoso is simple|| let him turn aside hither,
And ||as for him that lacketh sense>|| she saith to him:
17 ||Stolen waters|| will be sweet,—
||And a secret meal|| will be pleasant;
18 But he knoweth not, that the shades are there;
||In the depths of hades|| are her guests.

(Chapters X. to XXIV.).

Chapter 10.

1 The Proverbs of Solomon:
||A wise son|| maketh a glad father,
But ||a foolish son|| is the grief of his mother.
2 The treasures of lawlessness [do not profit],
But ||righteousness|| delivereth from death.
3 Yahweh ||suffereth not to famish|| the soul of the righteous,
But ||the desire of the lawless|| he thrusteth away.
4 He’ becometh poor, who dealeth with a slack hand,
But ||the hand of the diligent|| maketh rich.
5 ||He that gathereth in summer|| is a prudent son,
||He that sleepeth long in harvest|| is a son causing shame.
6 ||Blessings|| are for the head of the righteous man,
But ||the mouth of the lawless|| covereth up wrong.
7 ||The memory of the righteous|| yieldeth blessing,
But ||the name of the lawless|| dieth out.
8 ||The wise in heart|| will accept commandments,
But ||he that is foolish with his lips|| shall be thrust away.
9 ||He that walketh uprightly|| may walk securely,
But ||he that maketh crooked his ways|| shall be found out.
10 ||He that winketh with the eye|| causeth sorrow,
And ||he that is foolish with his lips|| shall be thrust aside.
11 ||A well-spring of life|| is the mouth of the righteous,
But ||the mouth of the lawless|| covereth wrong.
12 ||Hatred|| stirreth up strifes,
But <over all transgressions> love’ throweth a covering.
13 ||In the lips of the intelligent|| is found wisdom,
But ||a rod|| is for the back of him that lacketh sense.
14 ||Wise men|| treasure up knowledge,
For so shalt thou pass by strange waters;
Refrain thou from strange waters,
And <from a strange fountain> do not drink,
That thou mayest multiply thy days,
And there be added to thee the years of life” —G.n.
8 Or: “stupid.”
b Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn.): “the treacherous.” Cp. chap. xi. 6—G.n.
i Sep. here adds:—
“A son trained by discipline becometh wise,
But <on a dullard> one may labour.”
i Or: “decayeth.”
k Instead of this line Sep. and Syr. read:—
“But ||he that reproveth to the face|| maketh peace” —G.n.
But ||the mouth of the foolish|| is a terror\(^a\) near at hand.

15||The substance of the rich|| is his strong city, ||The terror\(^b\) of the poor|| is their poverty.

16||The labour of the righteous|| [leadeth] to life, ||The increase of the lawless|| to sin.

17<On the way to life> is he that heedeth correction, But ||he that hateth\(^c\) reproof|| is going\(^d\) astray.

18||He that concealeth hatred|| hath false lips, <And he that sendeth forth slander> ||the same|| is a dullard.

19<In the multitude of words> there wanteth not transgression, But ||he that restraineth his lips|| sheweth prudence.

20<Choice silver> is the tongue of the righteous, But ||the sense\(^e\) of the lawless|| is very small.

21||The lips of the righteous|| feed\(^f\) multitudes, But ||the foolish|| ||for lack of sense\(^g\)|| shall die.

22||The blessing of Yahweh|| itself\(^h\) maketh rich, And he addeth no grievance therewith.

23It is <mere sport to a stupid man> to commit lewdness, But <wisdom> pertaineth to a man of understanding.

24<The dread of the lawless one> ||the same|| shall overtake him, But ||the desire of the righteous|| shall he granted.\(^i\)

25<Like the passing away of a tempest> so the lawless\(^j\) one is not, But ||the righteous|| [hath] an age-abiding foundation.

26<As vinegar to the teeth, and as smoke to the eyes> ||So|| is the sluggard\(^k\) to them who send him.

27||The reverence of Yahweh|| addeth days, But ||the years of the lawless|| shall be shortened.

28||The hope of the righteous|| shall be gladness, But ||the expectation of the lawless|| shall vanish.

29<A refuge for the blameless> is the path of Yahweh, But ||destruction|| [awaiteth] the workers of iniquity.

30||The righteous|| <to times age-abiding> shall remain unshaken, But ||the lawless|| shall not inhabit the earth.

31||The mouth of the righteous|| beareth the fruit of wisdom, But ||a perverse tongue|| shall be cut off.

32||The lips of the righteous|| know what is pleasing, But ||the mouth of the lawless|| [speaketh] perversities.

Chapter 11.

1||A deceptive balance|| is an abomination to Yahweh, But ||a full weight|| is his delight.

2<When pride cometh> then cometh contempt, But <with the modest> is wisdom.

3||The integrity of the upright|| shall guide them, But ||the crookedness of the treacherous|| shall be their ruin.

4Wealth ||shall not profit|| in the day of wrath, But ||righteousness|| shall deliver from death.

5||The righteousness of the blameless|| shall smooth his way, But <by his own lawlessness> shall the lawless one ||fall||.

6||The righteousness of the upright|| shall deliver them, But <by their own craving> shall the treacherous be captured.

7<When the lawless man dieth> his expectation [perisheth], And ||the hope of strong men|| hath vanished.

8||The righteous man|| ||out of distress|| is delivered, Then cometh a lawless man into his place.

9<With the mouth> a profane man destroyeth his neighbour,

\(^a\) “Ruin”—O.G.
\(^b\) See ver. 14, n.
\(^c\) So “the clause ought to be rendered”—G. Intro. 863.
\(^d\) Or: “leadeth.”
\(^e\) See ver. 13, n.
\(^f\) Or: “shepherd.”
\(^g\) See ver. 13, n.
\(^h\) So it shd be (w. Aram. and Syr.); or: “favoured” (w. Sep.)—G.n. [M.C.T.: “let him give.”]
\(^i\) “Ruin”—O.G.
But through knowledge shall righteous men be delivered.

10 When it is well with the righteous the city exulteth, When the lawless perish there is a shout of triumph.

11 When the upright are blessed exalted is the city, But by the mouth of the lawless it is overthrown.

12 He that sheweth contempt for his neighbour lacketh sense, But he that is faithful in spirit concealeth a matter.

13 With no guidance a people will fall, But safety lieth in the greatness of the counsellor.

14 He that becometh surety for a stranger goeth to utter ruin, But he that hateth striking hands is secure.

15 A gracious wife obtaineth honour, But she that diligent seeketh good obtaineth wealth.

16 The man of lovingkindness dealeth well with his own soul, But the cruel man troubleth his own flesh.

17 The lawless man earneth the wages of falsehood, But he that soweth righteousness hath the reward of fidelity.

18 A righteous son [turneth] to life, But he that pursueth wickedness to his own death.

19 The abomination of Yahweh are they of perverse heart, But his delight are the men of blameless life.

20 Hand to hand the wicked man shall not be held innocent, But the seed of the righteous hath been delivered.

21 As a ring of gold in the snout of a swine is a woman of beauty who hath abandoned discretion.

22 The desire of the righteous is only good, The expectation of the lawless is wrath.

23 There is who scattereth, and increaseth yet more, And who withholdeth of what is due, only to come to want.

24 The liberal soul shall be enriched, And he that refresheth shall himself also be refreshed.

25 He that keepeth back corn the populace will curse him, But there is a blessing for the head of him that selleth.

26 He that diligently seeketh good aimeth at favour, But he that studieth mischief it shall come on himself.

27 He that trusteth in his riches the same shall fall, But like the leaf shall the righteous break forth.

28 He that troubleth his own house shall inherit the wind, But a servant shall the foolish be, to the wise in heart.

29 The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life, And he that rescueth souls is wise.

30 Lo! the righteous in the earth shall be recompensed, How much more the lawless and the sinner.

Chapter 12.

1 He that loveth correction loveth knowledge, But he that hateth reproof is brutish.
2 [[A good man]] obtaineth favour from Yahweh,
But [[a man of wicked devices]] will he condemn.

3 A son of earth [shall not be established] by lawlessness,
But [[the root of the righteous]] shall not be disturbed.

4 [[A virtuous woman]] is the crown of her husband, b
But [[a veritable decay in his bones]] is she that causeth shame.

5 [[The plans of the righteous]] are just,
But [[the counsels]] of the lawless] are deceitful.

6 [[The words of the lawless]] are—of lying in wait for blood,
But [[the mouth of the upright]] shall deliver them.

7 Overthrown’ are the lawless and they are’ not,
But [[the house of the righteous]] shall stand.

8 <In proportion to his prudence> is a man [to be praised],
But [[the perverse in heart]] shall be an object of contempt.

9 Better’ slighted, and have a servant,
Than to honour oneself, and come short of bread.

10 [[A righteous man]] regardeth the desire d of his beast,
But [[the compassions of the lawless]] are cruel.

11 [[He that tilleth his land]] shall be filled with food,
But [[the one that runneth after worthless men]] lacketh sense. e f

12 A lawless man craveth’ the prey g of the wicked,
But [[the root of the righteous]] is enduring. h

13 <By the transgression of the lips> is the wicked’
man [ensnared],
But the righteous’ [cometh out of distress]. i

14 <Of the fruit of a man’s mouth> shall he be satisfied with good,
And [[the dealing of the hands of a son of earth]]
shall be paid back to him.

15 [[The way of the foolish]] is right in his own eyes,
But [[he that hearkeneth to counsel]] is wise.

16 [[A foolish man]] <on the [same] day> letteth his vexation be known,
But [[he that concealeth an affront]] is prudent.

17 [[He that whispereth faithfulness]] declareth
righteousness,
But [[a false witness]] is a fraud.

18 There is’ who babbleth, as with thrusts of a sword,
But [[the tongue of the wise]] hath healing.

19 [[A lip that is faithful]] shall be firm to futurity,
But <only for a twinkling> k is the tongue that is false.

20 [[Deceit]] is in the heart of contrivers of mischief,
But <to the counsellors of peace> shall be joy.

21 <Unseemly> to the righteous is any trouble,
But [[the lawless]] are full of misfortune.

22 An abomination to Yahweh are lips that are false,
But [[he that dealeth faithfully]] is th his delight.

23 [[A prudent man]] concealeth knowledge,
But [[the heart of dullards]] proclaimeth folly.

24 [[The hand of the diligent]] shall bear rule,
But [[the indolent]] shall come under tribute.

25 <When anxiety is in the heart of a man> one may bow him down,
But [[a good word]] maketh him glad.

26 The righteous man guideth his neighbour, o
But [[the way of the lawless]] leadeth them astray.

27 Indolence [roasteth not] his own game, p
But [[the substance of a man]] is precious [when he is diligent].

But [[he that assaileth in the gates]] woundeth souls” —G.n.

b Or: “owner” (Heb. bâ’âl).
c Or: “directions” (“steerings”).
d U.: “soul.”
f Sep. adds:—
“[[He that delighteth himself in the drinking of wine]] shall leave his own stronghold a disgrace.”
g Or: “gain”; ml.: “net.”
h So it shd be (w. Sep.)—G.n.
i Sep. adds:—
“[[He that observeth equity]] shall find compassion,

b Or: “at once”—G.n.
c Ml.: “while I wink.”
d So it shd be (w. Sep., Syr.)—G.n.
e Some cod. (w. Sep.): “he who dealeth f. is” (sing.)—G.n. So the clause ought to be rendered”—G. Intro. 863.
f “Agreeable”—O.G.
g Or: “A righteous man searcheth out his own pasture.” Cp. Job xxxix. 8—G.n.
h “Slackness doth not start its game”—O.G. 355.
28<In the way of righteousness> is life,
And <in the path thereof> immortality.a

Chapter 13.
1 [[A wise son]] [cometh of] a father’s correction,
But [[a scoffer]] heareth not a rebuke.
2 <Of the fruit of his mouth> shall a man eatb what is good,
But [[the soul of the treacherous]] [shall be sated with] violence.
3 [[He that watcheth his mouth]] guardeth his soul,
<He that openeth wide his lips> [it shall be] his ruin.
4 The sluggard [[desireth]] but his sould hath [nothing].
But [[the soul of the diligent]] shall be enriched.e
5 <A word of falsehood> the righteous man [hateth],
But [[the lawless]] causeth shame and disgrace.
6 [[Righteousness]] guardeth the man of blameless way,
But [[lawlessness]] overthroweth the sinner.f
7 There is’ Who feigneth himself rich, yet hath nothing at all,
Who pleadeth poverty, yet hath great substance.
8 [[The ransom of a man’s life]]g is his wealth,
But [[the poor]] heareth not rebuke.
9 [[The light of the righteous]] rejoiceth,h
But [[the lamp of the lawless]] goeth out.
10<Only by pride> doth one cause contention,
But <with the well-advised> is wisdom.
11[[Wealth gotten by greed]] diminisheth,

But [[[he that gathereth by little]]i increaseth.j
12[[Hope deferred]] sickeneth the heart,—
But [[[a tree of life]]] is desire fulfilled.
13[[He that despiseth a matter]] shall get pledged thereto,
But [[[he that revereth a commandment]] the same shall be recompensed.m
14[[The instruction of the wise]] is a well-spring of life,
By departing from the snares of death.
15[[Sound discretion]] yieldeth favour,n
But [[the way of the treacherous]] is rugged.o
16[[Every prudent man]] maketh use of knowledge,
But [[a dullard]] spreadeth folly.
17[[A lawless messenger]] falleth into mischief,
But [[a faithful herald]] bringeth healing.
18[[Poverty and contempt]] are for him that neglecteth correction,
But [[[he that regardeth reproof]] shall be honoured.
19[[A desire fulfilled]] is sweet to the soul,
But it is [[an abomination to the lawless]]p to depart from evil.
20[[He that walketh with the wise]] becometh wise,
But [[the friend of dullards]] becometh foolish.q
21Evil pursueth [[sinners]],
But <unto the righteous> shall good’ be recompensed.
22[[A good man]] leaveth an inheritance to children’s children,
But <laid up for the righteous> is the wealth of the sinner.
23[[Much food]] is in’ the fallow ground of the poor, a So O.G. 39a, 677a. But Gt. that instead of “the path thereof” shd be read: “an abominable way”; in which case we must needs adopt his next v.r. (’êl for ’alf) and complete the line thus: “But an abominable way [leadeth] to death”—G.n.

c Or: “life.”
d Or: “appetite.”
e Or: “be made fat.”
f ML: “sin.”
g U.: “soul.”
h Gt.: “ariseth.”
i Gt.: “with the modest.” Cp. chap. xi. 2—G.n.
j So it shd be (w. Sep., Vul.). Cp. chap. xx. 21—G.n.
k ML: “on the hand.”
l Sep. and Syr. add:—
“[[A righteous man]] sheweth favour and lendeth;
Better’ is he that sustaineth the heart at the beginning,
Than he that inspireth confidence and deferreth hope.”
m Sep. and Syr. add:—
“[[A crafty son]] hath nothing good,
But <as for a wise servant> his doings prosper, and his way is directed aright”
—G.n.

a Sep. adds:
“And [[the knowledge of the law]] is [good understanding],
But,” etc. [as in text].

p So the clause ought to be rendered (w. Sep. and Syr.)—G. Intro. 863.
q Or: “wicked;” or “worse.”
r Or: “yieldeth the f. g. (w. Y.’s blessing)”—O.G. 644a.
But there is’ that is swept away, for want of justice.

24||He that withholdeth his rod| hateth his son,—
But |he that loveth him| carefully correcteth him.a

25||The righteous| eateth to satisfy his appetite, b
But |the belly of the lawless| shall want.

Chapter 14.

1 Every |wise woman| buildeth up her house,
But |a foolish one| <with her own hands> would break it down.

2 ||He that walketh in his uprightness| is one who revereth Yahweh,
But |he that is crooked in his way| is one who despiseth him.

3 <In the mouth of the foolish> is a haughty’ rod,
But <as for the lips of the wise> thou shalt give heed to them!

4 <Without cattle> the crib is clean,
But |much increase| is in the strength of the ox.

5 ||A faithful witness| will not deceive,
But |a false witness| uttereth deceitful things||.

6 A scoffer seeketh’ wisdom, and there is’ none,
But |knowledge| <to the discerning> is easy.

7 Get thee from the presence of a man that is a dullard,
When thou perceivest not the lips of knowledge.ć

8 ||The wisdom of the prudent| is to understand his way,
But |the folly of dullards| is a fraud.

9 ||The foolish| scoff at guilt,
But <between the upright> is good pleasure.

10||The heart| knoweth its own bitterness, d
And <in its joy> no stranger shareth.

11||The house of the lawless| shall be destroyed,
But |the tent of the upright| shall flourish.ė

12 There is’ a way that enticeth a man, f
But <at the latter end thereof> are the ways of death!

13<Even |in laughter> the heart’ may be in pain,
And |the latter end of gladness| be grief. ĝ

14<With his own ways> shall be filled the backslider in heart,
And <from himself|> shall a good man [be satisfied]. ĥ

15||The simple| believeth every word,
But |the prudent| looketh well to his going.

16||A wise man| feareth, and avoideth evil,
But |a dullard| is haughty and confident.

17||The impatient| worketh folly,
And |a man of wicked devices| is hated.

18 The simple inherit’ folly,
But |the shrewd| crowneth himself’ with knowledge.

19 Abased are the wicked, before the good,
And |the lawless|, at the gates of the righteous.

20<Even by his neighbour> is a poor man hated,
But |the lovers of the rich man| are many.

21||He that sheweth contempt for his neighbour| sinneth,
But <he that sheweth favour to the afflicted> how happy is he!

22 Shal they not [become vagrants], who devise evil?
But |lovingkindness and faithfulness| [be to] them who devise good.

23<By all labour> there will be abundance,
But |the talk of the lips| tendeth only’ to want.

24||The crown of the wise| is their wealth,
But |the folly of dullards| is ||folly||.

25<A deliverer of souls| is a faithful’ witness,
But |he that uttereth falsehoods| is a fraud.

26<In the reverence of Yahweh> is strong security,
And |his children| shall have a place of refuge.

THE PROVERBS – Chapter 15.

But <in the ceasing of population> is the ruin of the prince.

29 ||One slow to anger|| hath great understanding, But ||the hasty in spirit|| exalteth folly.

30 <The life of the whole body> is a tranquil mind, But  is jealousy.

31 ||The oppressor of the poor|| hath reproached his Maker, But he that sheweth favour to the needy, is one who [holdeth Him in honour].

32 ||By his own wickedness|| shall the lawless man ||be thrust down||, But the righteous ||seeketh refuge in his integrity||.

33 ||In the heart of the intelligent|| reposeth wisdom, But <in the midst of dullards> it maketh itself known.

34 ||Righteousness|| exalteth a nation, But  is sin’.

35 ||The good-pleasure of a king|| is due to a servant who is discreet, But ||his indignation|| shall be against him that bringeth shame.

Chapter 15.

1 ||A soft answer|| turneth away wrath, But a cutting word raiseth anger.

2 ||The tongue of the wise|| adorneth knowledge,— But ||the mouth of dullards|| belcheth out folly.

3 <In every place> are the eyes of Yahweh, Observing the evil and the good.

4 ||Gentleness of the tongue|| is a tree of life, But ||crookedness therein|| a grievous wound in the spirit.

5 ||A foolish [son]|| spurneth the correction of his father, But ||he that heedeth a reproof|| sheweth prudence. d

6 ||The household of the righteous man|| is a great treasure, But <in the increase of the lawless> is disturbance.

7 ||The lips of the wise|| scatter abroad knowledge, But ||the heart of dullards|| is not right. e

8 ||The sacrifice of lawless men|| is an abomination to Yahweh, But ||the prayer of the upright|| is his delight.

9 ||An abomination to Yahweh|| is the way of the lawless, But <the pursuer of righteousness> he loveth.

10 There is ||grievous correction|| for him that forsaketh the right path, ||He that hateth rebuke|| shall die.

11 ||Hades and destruction|| are before Yahweh, How much more’ then, the hearts of the sons of men. f

12 A scoffer ||loveth not|| one who reproveth him, <Unto the wise> doth he not go.

13 ||A joyful heart|| maketh a pleasing countenance,— But <in sorrow of heart> is a stricken spirit.

14 ||The heart of the intelligent|| seeketh knowledge, But ||the mouth of dullards|| feedeth on folly.

15 ||All the days of the afflicted|| are sorrowful, But ||a cheerful heart|| is a continual banquet.

16 Better’ is a little, with the reverence of Yahweh, Than great treasure, and disquietude therewith.

17 Better’ is an allowance of herbs, and love [there], Than a fatted ox, and hatred therewith.

18 ||A wrathful man|| stirreth up strife, But ||the that is slow to anger|| calmeth contention. i

19 ||The way of the sluggard|| is like a thorn hedge, But ||the path of the upright|| is a raised road.

20 ||A wise son|| maketh a glad father,—

Chapter 16.

1 <To man> belong the preparations of the heart,
   But <from Yahweh> cometh the answer of the tongue.

2 ||All the ways of a man|| [may be] pure in his own eyes,
   But ||the testeth spirits|| is Yahweh.

3 Roll, upon Yahweh, thy doings,
   That thy plans [may be established].

4 <Everything> hath Yahweh made for its own purpose,
   Yea ||even the lawless one|| for the day of calamity.

5 <An abomination to Yahweh> is every one who is haughty in heart,
   <Hand to hand> he shall not be held innocent.\(^1\)

6 <By lovingkindness and fidelity> shall iniquity be covered,\(^k\)
   And <in the revering of Yahweh> is a turning away from wrong.

7 <When ||acceptable to Yahweh|| are the ways of a man>.
   <Even his enemies> doth he cause to make peace with him.

8 Better* a little with righteousness,
   Than large revenues, without justice.

9 ||A man’s heart|| deviseth his way,
   But ||Yahweh|| directeth his steps.

10 ||An oracle|| is on the lips of a king,
   <In giving sentence> his mouth must not be unfaithful.

11 ||The balance and scales of justice|| belong to Yahweh,
   And <his handiwork> are all the weights of the bag.

   "At the very beginning of a way> it is good to do righteousness,
   And more pleasing before God, than to offer sacrifices,
   ||He that seeketh Yahweh|| shall find knowledge and righteousness,
   Yea they who seek him uprightly shall find peace.
   ||All the doings of Yahweh|| are in righteousness,
   But the lawless one is kept for the day of calamity" —G.n.

And <he that trusteth in Yahweh> how happy is he!
21||The wise in heart|| shall be called intelligent,

22||A well-spring of life|| is discretion to its owner,

23||The heart of the wise|| giveth discretion to his mouth,

THE PROVERBS – Chapter 19.

4 <Deep waters> are the words of a man’s mouth,—
<A bubbling brook> the well-spring of wisdom.

5 [[To prefer a lawless man]] is not good, thrusting away the righteous, in judgment.

6 [[The lips of a dullard]] enter into contention, And [[his mouth]] for blows crieth out.

7 [[The mouth of a dullard]] is his ruin, And [[his lips]] are a snare to his soul.

8 [[The words of a tattler]] are dainties, a[[They]] therefore go down into the chambers of the inner man.

9 <Surely he that is slothful in his work>
[[Brother]] is he’ to a master at laying waste.

10 <A tower of strength> is the Name of Yahweh, <Thereinto> runneth the righteous, and is safe.

11 [[The substance of a rich man]] is his strong city, And like a high wall, in his imagination.

12 <Before grievous injury> a man’s heart is haughty, And <before honour> is humility. c

13 [[He that answereth before he heareth]]
<A folly> it is’ to him, and [a reproach].

14 [[The spirit of a man]] sustaineth his sickness, But  who can bear it?

15 [[The heart of the intelligent]] acquireth knowledge, Yea [[the ear of the wise]] seeketh knowledge.

16 [[The gift of a man]] maketh room for him, And <before great men> setteth him down.

17 Righteous’ is he that is first in his own cause, Then cometh d his neighbour, and thoroughly searcheth him.

18 The lot causeth [[contentions]] to cease, And <the mighty> it parteth.

19 [[A brother estranged]] f is worse than a strong city,—
And [[contentions]] are as the bar of a citadel.

20 <Of the fruit of a man’s mouth> shall his inmost mind b be satisfied, <With the product of his lips> shall he be satisfied.

21 [[Death and life]] are in the power of the tongue, And [[its friends]] shall eat its fruits.

22 [[Who hath found a wife]] f hath found a blessing, And hath obtained favour from Yahweh. b

23 <Supplications> doth the poor’ man utter, But [[the rich]] answereth fiercely.

24 [[A man’ having [many]] friends]] shall come to ruin, But there is’ a loving one, who sticketh closer than a brother.

Chapter 19.

1 Better’ is a poor man, walking in his integrity, Than one of perverse lips, a and [[he]] a dullard.

2 Surely <for the soul to be [without knowledge]> is not good, And [[he that hasteth with his feet]] strayeth.

3 [[The folly of a man]] subverteth his way, And <against Yahweh> his heart is angry.

4 [[Wealth]] addeth many friends, But [[the poor man]] <from his own friend> is parted.

5 [[A false witness]] shall not be held innocent, And [[he that uttereth lies]] shall not escape.

6 [[Many]] will entreat the favour k of a noble, And [[every one]] is a friend to a man abounding in gifts.

7 [[All the brethren of a poor man]] hate him.

---G.n.

Sp. v.r. (sevir), which in some cod. (w. Aram. and Syr.) is both written and read—G.n. Following this v.r. and preferringrua’ as the root at the end of the line, we might render thus—
“There are’ friends, who can shout for joy, But there is’ a loving one, who sticketh closer than a brother.”
That is—Many will shout with us in prosperity, for one who will stick close to us in adversity.

Ml.: “appease (make sweet or pleasant) the face.”
How much more have || his friends || gone far from him, a
He may hunt up promises—there are’ none. b
|| He that acquireth sense ||’ loveth his own soul,
|| He that guardeth understanding || shall find blessing.
|| A false’ witness || shall not be held innocent,
And || he that uttereth lies || shall perish.
10<Unseemly for a dullard> is delicate living,
How much more for || a servant || to bear rule over princes.
11|| The discretion of a man || deferreth his anger,
And || his adorning || is to pass over transgression.
12<The growl as of a young lion> is the rage of a king,
But <like dew upon the grass> is his good pleasure.
13<Engulfing ruin to his father> is a son that is a dullard,—
And  are the contentions of a wife.
14|| House and substance || are an inheritance from one’s fathers,
But <from Yahweh> cometh a wife who is prudent.
15|| Sloth || falleth into a deep sleep,

16|| One who guardeth the commandment || guardeth his life,d
|| He that is reckless in his ways || shall die.e
17<A lender to Yahweh> is one who sheweth favour to the poor,
And <his good deed> He will pay him back.
18Correct thy son, because there is’ hope,

19|| A man in a rage || taketh away the penalty,—
Nevertheless <if thou let him go free> the more [stripes] must thou add.
20Hear counsel, receive correction, that thou mayest be wise in thine after-life.
21Many’ are the devices in a man’s heart,
But <the counsel of Yahweh> || that || shall stand.
22|| The charm of a man || is his lovingkindness,—
And better’ a poor man, than one who deceiveth.
23|| The reverence of Yahweh || leadeth to life,
Satisfied’ then, let a man remain—let him not be visited by calamity.
24A sluggard burieth his hand in the dish,
<Even unto his own mouth> will he not bring it back.
25<The scoffer> thou shalt smite, and || the simple || will beware,
But correctf a man of intelligence—he will understand teaching.g
26<He that ruineth his father, and chaseth away his mother>
Is a son causing shame and reproach.
27Cease, my son, to hear instruction that would cause thee to wander from the sayings of knowledge.

13 | Saith the sluggard, A lion outside! <Amidst the broadways> shall I be slain.

14 | A deep chasm is the mouth of strange women, <He with whom Yahweh is indignant> falleth there.ι

15 | Foolishness is bound up in the heart of a youth, <The rod of correction> shall drive it far from him.

16 | He that oppresseth the poor, to make increase for himself; Giving to the rich* shall surely come to want.

17 | Incline thine ear and hear the words of wise men, Then <thy heart> wilt thou apply to my teaching;”m

18 | For sweet shall they be, when thou shalt keep them in thine inmost mind, They shall fit well together, upon thy lips.

19 | That in Yahweh’ may be thy trust> I have made them known to thee to-day *<even to thee>>.

20 | Have I not written for thee noble things, With counsels and knowledge:

21 | To cause thee to know the meaning of faithful sayings, That thou mayest give back faithful sayings to them who ask thee.

22 | Do not rob the poor, because he is’ poor, Neither crush thou the oppressed in the gate;

23 | For [Yahweh] will plead their cause, And will despoil their despoilers of life.

THE PROVERBS – Chapter 24.

1 Be not thou envious of wicked men, Neither crave to be with them;
2 For <violence> their heart muttereth, And <mischief> their lips do speak.
3 <In wisdom> is a house builded, And <in understanding> is it established;
4 And <in knowledge> chambers are filled, ||<With all acquisitions, costly and fair>||.
5 ||<A wise man>|| is mighty, f

And |||| becometh alert in vigour. g

6 Surely |<with concerted measures>| shalt thou make for thyself war,
And ||<success>|| lieth in the greatness of the counsellor.
7 <Unattainable> to a foolish man> are the dictates of wisdom,
<In the gate> he openeth not his mouth.
8 <He that deviseth to do mischief>
||<Him>|| shall men call ||.
9 ||<The purpose of folly>|| is sin,
And <an abomination to mankind> is a buffoon. l

10 Thou hast been slothful in the day of strictness,
||<Strait>|| is thy strength.
11 Deliver thou such as are being led forth to death,
And <them who are tottering to slaughter> oh that thou wouldst hold back!
12 <Though thou say,
Lo! we knew not this>
Shall not ||<he that proveth hearts, himself>||, discern?
And ||<he that formeth thy soul, himself>|| know?
And bring back to a son of earth according to his deed?
13 My son, eat thou honey, because it is good,—
And droppings from the comb [because they are] sweet to thy palate:
14 ||<Thus>|| take knowledge of wisdom, for thine own soul;
<If thou find it> then there is’ a future,
And ||<thine expectation>|| shall not be cut off. k

15 Do not lie in wait, thou lawless man, against the home of the righteous,— Neither destroy thou his place of rest; m
16 For <seven times> may the righteous fall and yet arise,
But ||<lawless men>|| shall stumble into calamity.

c Or: “pasture.”

d Lit.: “its eye.” The eye of wine is the bubbling when it sparkles as poured out”—T.G.

17<When thine enemy a falleth> do not thou rejoice,
And <when he stumb leth> let not thy heart exult:
18Lest Yahweh see it, and it be wicked in his eyes,
And he turn away from him his anger.
19Burn not with vexation against evildoers,b Be not envious of lawless men;
20For there shall be no future for the wicked,d ||The lamp of the lawless|| shall go out.e
21Revere thou Yahweh, my son, and the king,
And <with the fickle> have thou no fellowship;
22For <suddenly> shall arise their calamity;
And <the misfortune of their years> who knoweth? f
23||These things also|| concern the wise,
<To take note of faces in judgment> is not good.
24<He that saith to the lawless man,
|Righteous|| thou art t>
Peoples shall denounce’ him,
Populations shall curse’ him;
25But <to reprovers> one should be pleasant,
And <upon them> should come an excellent blessing:
26<Lips> should one kiss
With one who answereth in right g words.
27Prepare <in the open> thy work,
And make ready <in the field> for thyself,
<Afterwards> shalt thou build thy house.
28Do not become a needless t witness against thy neighbour,
So mightest thou open too wide thy lips:
29Do not say—
<According to what he hath done to me>
||So|| will I do to him,
I will repay every one according to his work.
30<By the field of the sluggard> I passed,
And by the vineyard of a man lacking sense, h
31And lo! There had come up all over it—thorns,
There had covered the face thereof—thistles,
And ||the stone fence thereof|| had been thrown down.
32So I observed it ||for myself||,
I applied my heart,
I looked—I accepted correction:
33A little sleep,
A little slumber,
A little folding of the hands to rest:
34So shall come in, as a highwayman, thy poverty,
And ||thy want|| as one armed with a shield.

A Supplementary Collection of Proverbs.
(Chapters XXV. to XXIX.).

Chapter 25.

1 ||These also|| are proverbs of Solomon,—which the men of Hezekiah king of Judah transcribed.
2 ||The glory of God|| is to conceal a thing,
But ||the glory of kings|| is to search out a thing.
3 <The heavens for height, and the earth for depth> But ||the heart of kings|| cannot’ be searched.
4 <Remove the dross from the silver> And there cometh forth, to the refiner, a vessel:
5 <Remove a lawless man from before the king> That his throne’ [may be established in righteousness].
6 Do not honour thyself before a king,
Nor <in the place of great men> do thou stand;
7 For better’ it be said to thee, Come up hither,—
Than that thou be put lower down before a noble,
Whom thine own eyes’ [have beheld].
8 Do not go forth to strive in haste,—
Lest [thou know not] what to do in the latter end thereof,
||Nothing false|| <from the mouth of a king> should be uttered,
And ||nothing false|| <from his tongue> should go forth;
<A sword> is the tongue of a king, and not one of flesh,
And ||he that is delivered up|| shall be slain;
For <if his anger be kindled> with vigour will he destroy men,
And <bones of men> will he break,
And consume like an unquenchable flame,
So that he shall not become food for young eagles” —G.n.

b Cp. Ps. xxxvii. 1, 7, 8.
c Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns., Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.): “Neither be thou”—G.n.
d Cp. ver. 14; and chap. xxiii. 18.
e Or: “be extinguished.”
f Sep. here adds:—
|||A son who watcheth a matter outside|| shall belong to the place of destruction,
It will surely ||receive|| him.

When thy neighbour’ [hath put thee to shame].

10 <Thy contention> urge thou with thy neighbour,
And <the secret of another> do not reveal:

11 <Golden fruit in figured silver baskets> Is a word spoken on fitting occasion.

12 <A ring of gold, and a vessel of precious metal> Is a wise reprover, on a hearing ear.

13 <As the cold of snow in the day of harvest> Is a faithful messenger to them who send him,—
When <the life> of his masters he restoreth.

14 <Clouds and wind, when rain there is none> Is the man who boasteth himself of a pretended gift.\(^a\)

15 <By long patience> is a judge persuaded,\(^d\)
And ||a soft tongue|| breaketh the bone.

16 <Honey having found> eat to suffice thee,
Lest thou loathe it, and vomit it forth.

17 <Withhold thy foot from the house of thy neighbour,—
Lest he be weary of thee, and hate thee.

18 <A hammer and a sword, and a sharpened arrow> Is a man becoming a false witness against his neighbour.

19 <A broken tooth and a faltering foot> Is confidence in the treacherous, in the day of danger.

20 <As splendour of dress on a cold day—vile vinegar upon nitre> So is a singer with songs, unto a sad heart.

21 <If he that hateth thee hunger> give him bread to eat,
And <if he be thirsty> give him water to drink;

22 <For burning coals> shalt thou be heaping upon his head,—
And ||Yahweh|| will repay thee.

\(^a\) Sep. here adds:—
“<But thou shalt be, on thy part, like death:
<Favour and love> will he freely give,
<The same> shalt thou keep to thyself,
Lest thou become a reproach;
But guard thou thy ways with uprightness.”

---

23 ||A north wind|| bringeth forth rain>
And ||a face stirred with indignation|| a secretive tongue.

24 <Better to dwell on the corner of the roof> Than a quarrelsome wife, and a house in common.\(^g\)

25 <As cold water to a thirsty soul> So is a good report from a far country.

26 <A fountain fouled, a spring spoiled> Is a righteous man tottering before one who is lawless.

27 <To eat honey in abundance> is not good,
Nor is ||searching out their own honour|| an honourable thing.

28 <A city broken down without’ a wall> Is a man who hath no’ control over his own spirit.

Chapter 26.

1 <As snow in summer, and as rain in harvest> ||So|| unbecoming to a dullard is honour.

2 <As a sparrow in wandering, as a swallow in flying> ||So|| ||a causeless curse|| shall not\(^b\) alight.

3 <A whip for the horse, a bridle’ for the ass> And a rod for the back of dullards.

4 Do not answer a dullard, according to his folly,
Lest ||even thou thyself|| become like’ him;

5 Answer a dullard, according to his folly,
Lest he become wise in his own eyes.

6 ||One who cutteth off feet, one who drinketh down wrong||,
Is he who sendeth a message\(^i\) by the hand of a dullard.

7 <Useless’ are\(^k\) the legs of the lame> And a proverb, in the mouth of a dullard.

8 <Like tying a stone to a sling> ||So|| is he that giveth honour [to a dullard].
A brier cometh into the hand of a drunken-man,
And a proverb into the mouth of a dullard.

[As] an archer who woundeth every thing,
[So] one who hireth a dullard, and a drunkard crossing the sea.

<As ||a dog|| returneth onto his own vomit>
||A dullard|| repeateth his folly.

Thou hast seen a man wise in his own eyes,—
More hope of a dullard, than of him!

Saith the sluggard,
A roaring lion in the road!
A tearing lion in the midst of the broadways.

The sluggard burieth his hand in the dish,
He is too lazy to bring it back to his mouth.

Wiser is the sluggard in his own eyes,
Than ||seven persons|| who can answer with judgment.

<As he who layeth hold of the ears of a dog>
Is a passer-by, who giveth vent to his wrath over a quarrel [not his].

<As a madman throwing firebrands, arrows and death>
||So|| is a man who deceiveth his neighbour,
And saith, Was not ||I|| in sport?

<Without wood' a fire' is quenched>
And <where there is no'atter|| strife is hushed.

<Black coal to burning blocks, and wood to fire>
So is a contentious man, for kindling strife.

||The words of a tattler|| are dainties,
||They|| therefore go down into the chambers of the inner man.

<Dross silver overlaid upon earthenware>
So are burning lips, with a mischievous heart:

<With his lips> the hater dissembleth,
But <within himself> he layeth up deceit:

<Though he make gracious his voice> do not trust him,
For ||seven abominations|| are in his heart:

Hatred may clothe itself with guile,
His wickedness shall be disclosed in the convocation.

||He that diggeth a pit|| <thereinto> shall fall,
And ||he that rolleth a stone|| <upon himself> shall it return.

||A false tongue|| hateth them who are crushed by it,
And ||a flattering mouth|| worketh occasion of stumbling.

Chapter 27.

1 Do not boast thyself of to-morrow,
For thou knowest not what a day' may bring forth.

2 Let another praise thee, and not thine own mouth,
||A stranger|| and not thine own lips.

3 Heavy' is a stone, and weighty' is sand,—
But ||the vexation of a fool|| is heavier than both.

4 The cruelty of rage, and the overflow of anger!
But who' can stand' before ||jealousy||?

5 Better is a rebuke that is open,
Than love carefully concealed.

6 Faithful' are the wounds of a friend,
But lavished' are the kisses of an enemy.

7 ||The surfeited soul|| trampleth upon droppings from the comb,
But <to the hungry soul> ||every bitter thing|| is sweet.

8 <As a bird' wandering from her nest>
||So|| is a man' wandering from his place.

9 ||Oil and perfume|| rejoice the heart,
||The sweetness of one's friend|| more than fragrant wood.

a This rendering of a difficult verse (see A.V. and R.V.) is in part based on a correction by Dr. Ginsburg. He says that the letters shd be re-grouped, the letter sin also being changed to shin, so as to read nešhikkór 'orer yám; and so Aram. and Syr.—G.n.

b Sep. here adds:—
"There is' a shame which bringeth sin,
And there is' a shame which is honourable and pleasing"—G.n.

c Gt.: the division of the verse shd be shifted thus:—
"As one who layeth hold on the ears of a passing dog>
Is he who giveth vent to his wrath over a quarrel not his”—G.n.

e So read; but written: "lip" (sing.) Some cod. (w. 6 ear. pr. edns.) both write and read: "lips" (pl.)—G.n.

f So T.G., Fu., Davies. “Hearty counsel”—O.G.
10<Thine own friend and thy father’s friend> do not thou forsake;
But <the house of thy brother> do not enter, in thy day of calamity,
Better a neighbour near, than a brother far off.

11Be wise, my son, and rejoice my heart,
That I may answer him that reproacheth me in a matter.

12||A prudent man|| seeth calamity—he hideth himself,
||The simple|| pass on—they suffer.

13Take a man’s garment when he hath become pledge for a stranger,
Then <for a female unknown> accept him as surety.

14<He that blesseth his friend, with a loud voice, in the morning early>
||A reproach|| shall it be reckoned to him.

15||A continuous dripping on a day of downpour,
And a contentious wife|| are alike:

16||He that hideth her|| hideth the wind,
And <perfume> his right hand may proclaim.

17Let ||iron|| become sharp,
And let ||a man|| sharpen the face of his friend.

18||He that guardeth the fig-tree|| shall eat the fruit thereof,
And ||he that watcheth over his master|| shall be honoured.

19<As in water, face’ [answereth] to face’>
||So|| the heart of man’ to man’.

20||Hades and destruction|| are not satisfied,
And ||the eyes of a man|| are not satisfied.

21<Fining pot for silver, and crucible for gold>
And [a man] [is to be tried] by what he praiseth,

22<Though thou pound a fool in a mortar, amidst grain, with a pestle>
His folly’ [will not depart from him].

23||Note well|| the appearance of thy flock,
Apply thy mind’ to thy herds;

24For <not age-abiding> are riches,
Nor is the diadem, from generation to generation:—

25The grass [is taken away], and the young shoot |showeth itself|,
And the herbage of the mountains [is gathered];

26There are ||lamb|| for thy clothing,
And <for the price of thy field> there are |he-goats|;

27With ||enough goats-milk|| for thy food—for the food of thy household,
And ||a maintenance|| for thy maidens.

Chapter 28.

1||The lawless|| fleeth when no’ man pursueth,
But ||the righteous|| <like a lion> are confident.

2<For the transgressions of a land> many are the rulers thereof,
But <under an intelligent and discerning man> stability is prolonged.

3<A poor man, who oppresseth the helpless>
[Is like] a rain beating down, leaving no’ food.

4||They who forsake instruction|| praise one who is lawless,
While ||they who keep instruction|| are at strife with them.

5||Wicked men|| consider not justice,
But ||they who seek Yahweh|| consider everything.

6Better’ a poor man walking in his integrity,
Than one who is crooked—turning two ways, though ||he|| be rich.

7||He that keepeth instruction|| is a son with discernment,
But ||a companion of squanderers|| bringeth shame to his father.

They also who lack knowledge, yet restrain not their tongue.”

—G.n.

8Mi.: “by his praise.” Gt.: “by his doings”—G.n.

9Sep., Syr. and Vul. here add—
”||The heart of the lawless|| seeketh out wickedness,
But ||the heart of the upright|| seeketh out knowledge”

—G.n.

10Mi.: “heart.” Cp. vi. 32, n.
Or: “blamelessness.”
8 ||He that increaseth his substance by interest and profit,||
<For one ready to favour the poor> doth gather it.
9 ||He that turneth away his ear from hearing instruction>||
||Even his prayer|| is an abomination.
10 ||He that misguideth the upright into a hurtful way>||
<Into his own pit> ||he himself|| shall fall,
But ||men of integrity|| shall inherit good.
11 ||Wise in his own eyes> is the man that is rich,
But ||a poor man of discernment> searcheth him out.
12 ||In the exulting of the righteous> there is great glorying,
But <when the lawless arise> a man must be sought' for.
13 ||He that covereth his transgressions|| shall not prosper,
But ||he that confesseth and forsaketh|| shall find compassion.
14 How happy the man who is ever circumspect,\(^a\)
Whereas ||he that hardeneth his heart|| shall fall into calamity.
15 ||A growling lion, and a ranging bear>||
Is a lawless ruler, over a poor people.
16 ||A leader|| may lack intelligence, yet abound in oppressions,
||The hater\(^d\) of greed|| shall lengthen out days.
17 ||A man oppressed with a person's blood>||
<Unto a pit> shall flee, let them not hold him back.\(^f\)
18 ||He that walketh with integrity|| shall be saved,
But ||he that is crooked, turning two ways|| shall fall in one.\(^g\)
19 ||He that tilleth his ground|| shall have plenty of bread,
But ||he that pursueth empty-heads|| shall have plenty of poverty.
20 ||A man of fidelity|| aboundeth in blessings,
But ||one hasting to be rich|| shall not be held innocent.
21 ||To take note of faces [in judgment]> is not good,\(^b\)
And <for a bit of bread> a man will transgress.
22 A man ||hasting to be rich|| hath an evil eye,
And knoweth not when want' may overtake him.
23 ||He that reproveth a man|| shall Afterwards find more [favour],
Than he that useth a flattering tongue.
24 ||He that robbeth his father or his mother, and saith,||
It is no transgression>||
||Companion|| is he' to one who wasteth.
25 ||The ambitious in soul|| stirreth up strife,
But ||he that trusteth in Yahweh|| shall be enriched.
26 ||He that trusteth his own heart|| ||the same|| is a dullard,
But <he that walketh wisely> ||the same|| shall be delivered.
27 ||One who giveth to the poor|| shall have no' want,
But ||he that hideth his eyes|| shall receive many a curse.
28 ||When lawless men rise> a common man will hide' himself,
But <when they perish> righteous men multiply'.

Chapter 29.
1 ||He that being often reproved' stiffeneth his neck>||
Suddenly' shall be hurt, and there be no' healing.
2 ||When the righteous become great||\(^k\) the people rejoice,
But <when a lawless man beareth rule>\(^l\) a people sigh.

THE PROVERBS – Chapter 30.
Chapter 31.

1 The words of Lemuel the king,—
The strainb which was taught him by his mother:—

2 What, my son?
And what, the son of my womb?
Aye what, the son of my vows?

3 Do not give, to women, thy strength,
Nor thy ways, to them who ruin kings.

4 It is not for kings, O Lemuel,
It is not for kings to drink wine,
Nor ||for dignitaries|| to desire strong drink.d

5 Lest he drink, and forget that which is decreed,
And alter the plea of any who are sorely oppressed.e

6 Give strong drink, to him that is perishing,
And wine, to such as are embittered in soul:

7 Let him drink, and forget his poverty,
And <his wearying toil> let him remember no more.

8 Open thy mouth for the dumb,
For the cause of all the children of the departed.f

9 Open thy mouth—judge righteously,—
And administer justice for the poor and the needy.

An Alphabeticalg Poem in Praise of the Worthy Woman.

10A virtuousb woman who can find?
For <far beyond corals> is her worth.

11The heart of her husband [trusteth her],
And <gain>i he shall not lack:

12She doeth him good and not evil,
All the days of her life:

13She seeketh wool and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands:

14She is like the ships of the merchant,<From afar> she bringeth in her food;
And she riseth, while yet it is night,
And giveth food to her household,
And a task to her maidens:

16She considereth a field, and procureth it,<Out of the fruit of her hands> she planteth a vineyard:

17She girdeth, with strength her loins,
And putteth vigour into her arms:

18She tasteth, whether <good> be her merchandise,\k
And her lamp [goeth not out by night]:

19Her hands, she putteth forth to the distaff, and, \d her palms, lay hold of the spindle:

20<Her palm> she spreadeth out to the oppressed,
And <her hands> she extendeth to the needy:

21She feareth not, for her household, because of the snow,
For ||all her household|| are clothed with crimson:

22<Coverlets>\l she maketh for herself,<Of white linen and of purple> is her clothing:

23<Known in the gates> is her husband,
When he sitteth with the elders of the land:

24<Fine linen wraps> she maketh and selleth,
And <girdles> doth she deliver to the trader:

25<Strength and dignity> are her clothing,
And she laugheth at the time to come:gm

26<Her mouth> she openeth with wisdom,
And ||the instruction of kindness|| is on her tongue:

27She looketh well to the goings of her household,
And <the bread of idleness> will she not eat.

28Her children rise up, and call her happy!
Her husband, and he praiseth her:—

Chapter 1.

1 The words of the Proclaimer, son of David, king in Jerusalem.

2 Vanity of vanities! saith the Proclaimer, vanity of vanities! [all] is vanity.

3 What profit hath Man,—in all his toil wherewith he toileth under the sun? [Generation] goeth and [generation] cometh, but [the earth] <unto times age-abiding> remaineth. And the sun [breaketh forth], and the sun [goeth in],—yea <unto his own place> he panteth, from whence he’ brake forth. <Going unto the south, and circling unto the north,—circling, circling continually> is [the wind], and <over its own circuits> returneth the wind. ||All the streams|| flow into the sea, yet [the sea] is not’ full,—<unto the place whither the streams flow> [thither] do they again’ flow. ||All words|| are weak, unable’ is any man to tell,—not’ satisfied’ is the eye by seeing, nor filled’ is the ear with hearing. [That which hath been] is the same that shall be, and [that which hath been done] is the same that shall be done,—and there is [nothing’ new] under the sun. Is’ there a thing, of which it can be said, See here, it is [new]’? [Already] hath it been [for ages], [it is something] which was before us.

4 There is [no’ remembrance] of the thing before,—nor <even of the things after, which shall be> will there be any remembrance, with them who shall come after.

5 [In the Proclaimer] was king over Israel, in Jerusalem. And I gave my heart to seek and to search out, wisely, concerning all things which are done under the heavens,—[the same] is the vexatious employment God hath given’ to the sons of men, to work toilsomely therein. I saw all the works which were done under the sun,—and lo! [all] was vanity, and a feeding on wind. ||That which is crooked|| cannot be straight,—and [that which is wanting] cannot be reckoned. Spake [II], in’ my heart, saying, <As for me> lo! I have become great, and have gathered wisdom, beyond any one who hath been before me over Jerusalem,—and [my heart] hath seen much wisdom and knowledge: yea I have given my heart, to know wisdom, and to know madness, and folly,—I know that [even this] is a feeding on wind. For [in much wisdom] is much vexation,—and [the that increaseth knowledge] increaseth pain.

Chapter 2.

1 Said [II], in my heart, Come now! I will prove thee with gladness, and look thou on blessedness,—but lo! [even that] was vanity.

2 <Of laughter> I said, Madness! and <of mirth> What can it do? I sought out with my heart, to cherish with wine, my flesh,—but [my heart] was to guide with wisdom, even in laying hold of folly, until I should see which was blessedness for the sons of men, as to that which they could do, under the heavens, during the number of the days of their life. I enlarged my works,—I planted me vineyards; I made me gardens, and parks;—I planted in them trees of every kind of fruit; I made me pools of water,—to irrigate therefrom the thick-set saplings

[^a]: Or: “Monitor.” Heb.: qôheleth; exact meaning doubtful; and, in any case, difficult to render in English. “Convener,” “great orator,” “debater,” “speaker,” and other names have been thought of. Prob. the most helpful ref. is to Prov. i. 20, 24; viii. 1, 32–36; ix. 1–11.
[^b]: Or: “the son of earth.”
[^e]: “Vain pursuit”—T.G.; “vain wish”—Davies; “adherence to vanity”—Fuerst.
There was nothing more blessed for Man [than] that he should eat and drink, and see his desire for blessedness in his toil,—<even this> saw [I myself], that <from the hand of God> it was.
20 For who could eat and who could enjoy, so well as I? 21 For <to a man who is good before him> hath he given wisdom and knowledge and gladness,—whereas <to the sinner> he hath given employment, to gather and heap up, to give to one who is good before God, [even this] was vanity, and a feeding on wind.

Chapter 3.

1 For <every thing> there is a season,—
And a time for every pursuit under the heavens:—

2 A time to be born, and a time to die,—
A time to plant, and a time to uproot what is planted;
A time to kill, and a time to heal,—
A time to break down, and a time to build up;
A time to weep, and a time to laugh,—
A time to wail, and a time to dance for joy;

---

Growing up into trees: 7 I acquired, men-servants and women-servants, and [the children of the household] were mine,—also possessions, [herds and flocks in abundance] were mine, beyond all who had been before me in Jerusalem; 8 I heaped me up, both silver and gold, and the peculiar treasure of kings, and provinces,—I provided me singing-men and singing-women, and the delights of the sons of men, a wife and wives.

9 So I became great, and increased, more than any one who had been before me in Jerusalem,—moreover [my wisdom] remained with me;

and <nothing that mine eyes asked> withheld I from them,—I did not keep back my heart from any gladness, for [my heart] obtained gladness out of all my toil, and so [this] was my portion, out of all my toil. 11 <When ||[I]|| looked upon all my works, which my hands' had made, and on my toil, wherein I had toilsomely wrought> then lo! [all] was vanity, and feeding on wind, and there was no profit under the sun. 12 Thus turned [I], to look at wisdom, and madness, and folly,—for what can the man [do more] who cometh after the king? [save] that which [already] men have done. 13 Then saw [I], that wisdom' doth excel folly,— as far as light' excelleth darkness'.

14<As for the wise man> [his eyes] are in his head, whereas [the dullard] <in darkness> doth walk,—but [I myself] knew that [one destiny] happened to them [all]. 15 Then said [I], in my heart, <As it happened to the dullard> [even to me] will it happen, but wherefore [then] became [I] wise to excess? Therefore spake I, in my heart, [Even this] is vanity. 16 For there is no remembrance of a wise man, more than of a dullard, unto times age-abiding,—seeing that [already, in the days to come] all hath been forgotten, how then cometh it that the wise' man dieth' equally with the dullard'? 17 Therefore I hated life, for  was the work which was done under the sun,—for [all] was vanity, and a feeding on wind. 18 Therefore hated [I] all my toil, wherein I' was toiling, under the sun,—in that I should leave it for the man who should come after me; 19 and who' could know whether a <wise man> he would be or a foolish, and yet he would lord it over all my toil, wherein I had toiled and wherein I had acted wisely, under the sun,—[even this] was vanity.

Then resolved I, to give my heart over to despair,—concerning all the toil, wherein I had toiled, under the sun. 21 For here' is a man, whose toil hath been with wisdom and with knowledge and with skill,—yet <to a man who hath not toiled therein> shall he leave it as his portion, [even this] was vanity and a great vexation. 22 For what hath the man for all his toil, and for the striving of his heart,—wherein he himself] toiled under the sun? 23 For [all his days] are pains, and <vexatious> is his employment, <even in the night> his heart lieth not down,—[even this] was [vanity].
5 A time to cast away stones, and a time to heap up stones,—
A time to embrace, and a time to be far from loving embrace;
6 A time to seek, and a time to be lost,—
A time to keep, and a time to cast away;
7 A time to rend, and a time to sew,—
A time to be silent, and a time to speak;
8 A time to love, and a time to hate,—
A time of war, and a time of peace.

What profit hath he that worketh, in that wherein [himself] hath toiled? 10 I looked at the employment which God hath given to the sons of men, to work therein: 11 <Everything> hath he made beautiful in its own time,—also <intelligence> hath he put in their heart, without which men could not find out the work which God hath wrought, from the beginning even unto the end. 12 I know that there is no blessedness in them,—save to be glad, and to do well with one’s life. 13 Though indeed <that any man should eat and drink, and see blessedness, in all his toil> it is [the gift of God], 14 I know, that <whatsoever God doeth> [the same] shall be age-abiding, <unto it> there is nothing’ to add, and <from it> there is nothing to take away,—and <God> hath done it, that men should stand in awe before him. 15 [That which was] [already] had been, and [that which shall be] [already] shall have been,—but [God] seeketh that which hath been chased away.

16 Then again I saw under the sun,—[the place of justice] that there was lawlessness, and [the place of righteousness] that there was lawlessness. 17 Said [they], in my heart, <both the righteous and the lawless> will God judge,—for [there will be] a time for every pursuit, and concerning every work—[there]. 18 Said [they], in my heart, <as concerning the sons of men> That God was minded to prove them,—and that they might see, that they were beasts, [of themselves]. 19 For <as regardeth the destiny of the sons of men and the destiny of beasts> [one fate] have they, <as dieth the one> [so] dieth the other, and <one spirit> have they all,—and [the pre-eminence of man over beast] is nothing, for [all] were vanity: 20 [all] go unto one place,—[all] came from the dust, and [all] return to the dust. 21 Who knoweth the spirit of the sons of men, whether it ascendeth above,—or the spirit of the beast, whether it descendeth below, to the earth?

So I saw, that there was nothing better than that a man should be glad in his works, for [that] is his portion,—for who can bring him in, to look upon that which shall be after him?

Chapter 4.

Then again [they] considered all the oppressive deeds which were done under the sun,—and lo! the tears of the oppressed, and they have no comforter, and [on the side of their oppressors] is power, and they have no comforter. 2 So [they] pronounced happy the dead, who were already dead,—more than the living, who were living still; 3 and <as better than both> him who had not yet come into being,—who had not seen the vexatious work, which was done under the sun.

Then saw [they] all the toil and all the skill of the work, that [for this] a man was envied of his neighbour,—[even this] was vanity, and a feeding on wind. 5 [The dullard] claspeth his hands, and consumeth his own flesh. 6 Better a handful with quietness,—than both hands full—with toil, and feeding on wind.

Then again [they] looked at a vain thing under the sun:— 8 Here is one, without a second, <even son or brother> he hath none, yet is there no end to all his toil, [even his eye] is not satisfied with riches,—neither [saith he] [For whom?] am I toiling, and letting my soul want good? [Even this] was vanity, yea [a vexatious employment] it was! 9 Better are two, than one,—in that they have a good reward for their toil. 10 For if the one should fall> [the other] would raise up his companion,—but alas! for him who is alone when he falleth, with no second to raise him up! 11 Moreover <if two lie together> then have they warmth,—but how can [one] have warmth? 12 And <though an enemy should prevail against
Chapter 5.

1 Keep thy foot, b when thou goest unto the house of God, and be more ready to hear, than dullards to offer sacrifice,—for they make no’ acknowledgment of doing wrong. 2 Be not rash with thy mouth, and <with thy heart> be not in haste to bring forth a word, before God,—for ||[God]|| is in the heavens, and ||[thou]|| upon the earth, <for this cause> let thy words be few. 3 For a dream cometh through the multitude of business,—and ||the voice of a dullard|| is with a multitude of words.

4 <When thou vowest a vow unto God> do not defer to pay it, for there is no pleasure in dullards,—<what thou vowest> pay!

5 Better’ that thou shouldst not vow,—than vow, and not pay. 6 Do not let thy mouth’ cause thy flesh’ to sin,—neither say thou, before the messenger, that it was a mistake,—wherefore should God be indignant at thy voice, and destroy the work’ of thy hands?

7 For [it was done] amidst a multitude of dreams, and vanities, and many words,—but <towards God> be thou reverent.

8 <If ||the oppression of the poor, and the wrestling of justice and righteousness|| thou see in the province> do not be astonished over the matter,—

God giveth riches and gains and honour, so that nothing’ doth he lack for his soul9—or all that he craveth> and yet God doth not give him power to eat thereof, but ||a man unknown]| eateth it,—||this]| was vanity, and <an incurable evil> it was’.

3 Though a man should beget a hundred children, and live ||many years|| so that many’ should be the days of his years, but ||his own soul|| should not be satisfied with the good, and he should not even have ||a burial|| I said, <Better than he> is an untimely birth! 4 For <in vain> it came in, and <in darkness> it departeth,—and <with darkness> [its name] is covered: 5 <even the sun> it never saw, nor aught did it know,—<more quietness> hath this’ than the other’.

6 <Even though one hath lived a thousand years twice told> yet <good> hath he not seen,—is it not <unto one place> that ||all|| are going?
7 ||All the toil of man|| is for his mouth,—though ||even the desire|| is not satisfied!
8 For what profit hath the wise man, over the dullard? What can ||the poor man|| know’—so as to walk before the living? 9 Better’ what the eyes behold, than the wandering of desire,—||even this|| was vanity, and a feeding on wind.

10 <Whatsoever one may be> ||long ago|| was he called by his name, and it is known’ that it is—Son of Earth,—he cannot, therefore, contend with one stronger than he. 11 <Seeing there are’ things in abundance which make vanity abound> what profit hath man? 12 For who knoweth what is good for a man throughout his life, for the number of the days of his life of vanity, seeing he will make them, 1 like a shadow,—for who can tell a man, what shall be after him, under the sun?

Chapter 7.

1 Better’ a name, than precious ointment,—
And the day of death, than the day of one’s birth.
2 Better’ to go to the house of mourning, than to go to the house of banqueting,
For ||that|| is the end of all men,—
And ||the living|| should take it to his heart.
3 Better’ is grief than laughter,—
For <by the marring of the face> amended’ is the heart.

4 ||The heart of the wise|| is in the house of mourning,
But ||the heart of dullards|| in the house of mirth.
5 Better’ to hear the rebuke of the wise,
Than for any’ man to hear the song of dullards.
6 For <as the crackling of thorns under a pot> ||so|| is the laughter of the dullard,—
||Even this|| then, was vanity.
7 For ||oppression|| maddeneth the wise,—
And a bribe’ [destroyeth the understanding].
8 Better’ the latter end of a thing, than the beginning thereof,—
Better’ a patient spirit, than a haughty spirit.
9 Do not be rash in thy spirit, to be indignant,—
For ||indignation|| <in the bosom of dullards> doth remain.
10 Do not say,
What hath happened, that ||the former days|| were better than these?
For <not wisely> askest thou concerning this.
11 Good’ is wisdom, with an inheritance,—and a profit, to such as see the sun.
12 For  is wisdom, and  is silver,—but ||the advantage of knowledge|| is, that ||wisdom|| giveth life to the possessors thereof.
13 Consider the work of God,—for who’ can straighten what he hath bent?
14 <In the day of prosperity> be joyful,
But <in the day of misfortune> consider,—
<Even the one equally with the other> hath God’ made, to the end man might find out—after him—nothing.
15 <Everything> had I seen, in my days of vanity,—
Here’ was a righteous man, perishing in his righteousness,
And there’ was a lawless man, continuing long in his wickedness.
16 Do not become so very’ righteous, neither count thyself wise beyond measure,—wherefore’ shouldst thou destroy thyself?
17 Do not be so very’ lawless, neither become thou foolish,—wherefore’ shouldst thou die, before thy time?

Chapter 8.

Who is really a wise man, and who knoweth the interpretation of a thing?

The wisdom of a man lighteth up his countenance,
But by defiance of countenance one is disfigured.

I said, I The bidding of the king observe thou, even out of regard to the oath of God.

Not rashly from his presence shouldst thou go: do not take thy stand in a vexatious thing.—for whatsoever he pleaseth he will do. Where the word of a king is there is power,—who’th may say to him, What wouldst thou do? ||He that observeth the commandment will not notice a vexatious thing,—and of time and manner will will the heart of the wise take note. For to every pursuit there is a time and a manner,—when the vexation of man is great concerning it.

For there is no one who knoweth what shall be,—for when it shall be who will’th tell him? ||No man|| hath power over the spirit, to retain the spirit, and ||none|| hath power over the day of death, and there is no furlough in war,—neither shall lawlessness deliver them who are given thereto. ||All this|| had I seen, and tried to apply my heart to every work which was done under the sun,—at such time as one’th man had power over another’th man, to his hurt.

And ||thereupon|| I considered the lawless when buried, when they had entered [their graves], that from the place of the Holy One they used to go and boast in the city that they had so done,—even this was vanity.

Because sentence against a wicked work is not executed speedily—on this account the heart of the sons of men is fully set within them, to commit wickedness. Though a sinner be committing wickedness a hundred times, and continuing long in his own way yet I surely know that it shall be well to them who reverence God, who stand in awe before him; but shall it not be to the lawless man, neither shall he lengthen out his days like a shadow,—because he standeth not in awe before God.

Gt.: “said” shd have been expressed in Heb. text—G.n.
Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn., Syr., Vul.): “and do not”—G.n.
Qy.:="care," or "anxiety."
Or: “can.”
Some cod. (w. Sep. and Vul.): “had boasted…that they”—G.n. [This reading has been followed above, through the difficulty of otherwise making sense.]
14 Here' was a vain thing which was done upon the earth—that there were’ righteous men unto whom it happened' according to the work of the lawless, and there were’ lawless men, unto whom it happened according to the work of the righteous,—I said, that [even this] was vanity.

15 Then extolled I, gladness, in that there was’ nothing better for a man, under the sun, than to eat and to drink, and to be glad,—since ||that|| should tarry with him in his toil, for the days of his life which God had given him under the sun. 16 <When I gave my heart, to know wisdom, and to consider the business that was done upon the earth> then surely <by day and by night> there was one who suffered not his eyes ||to sleep||. 17 Then I considered all the work of God, that man could not find out the work that was done under the sun, inasmuch as man toileth in seeking and yet cannot find,—yea’ <even though the wise man should say he knoweth> yet can he not find it out.

Chapter 9.

1 For <unto all this> I applied my heart, and ||my heart|| considered all this, that ||the righteous and the wise and their servants|| were in the hand of God,—<neither love nor hatred> could any man know, ||e\ˈe\ˈ|| was before Him.d 2 ||Every one|| was like every one else, <one destiny> had the righteous and the lawless, the good and the pure and the impure, and he that sacrificed, and he that did not’ sacrifice,—<as the good man> ||so|| the sinner, <he that took an oath> as he who <of an oath> stood in fear. 3 ||This|| was a misfortune in all that was done under the sun, that <one destiny> had they all,—yea also ||the heart of the sons of men|| was full of wickedness, and ||madness|| was in their heart, while they lived, and <after that> [they went] unto the dead. 4 For <whosoever was united> to all the living> ||for him|| there' was hope,—inasmuch as ||a living dog|| fared better than a dead lion. 5 For ||the living|| knew that they should die,—but ||the dead|| knew not |anything|, neither had they any longer a reward, because forgotten’ was their memory.

6 ||Both their love and their hatred and their envy|| already’ had perished,—and <portion> had they none any longer, unto times age-abiding, in aught that was done under the sun.

7 Go thy way—eat, with gladness, thy food, and drink, with a happy heart, thy wine,—when already’ God is well pleased with thy works.

8 |Continually| let thy garments be white,—and <ointment upon thy head> let it not be lacking.

9 Enjoy’ life, with thy wife whom thou lovest, all the days of thy life of vanity, which he hath given thee under the sun, all thy days of vanity,—for ||that|| is thy portion in life, and in thy toil wherewith ||thou|| art toiling under the sun. 10 <Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do> <with thy might> do,—for there is no work nor calculation nor knowledge nor wisdom, in hades, whither ||thou|| art going.

11 I again’ saw under the sun, that not <to the swift> was the race, nor <to the strong> the battle, nay! nor <to the wise> food, nor yet <to the intelligent> riches, nor <even to the well-informed> comeliness,—for ||time and accident|| happened to them all. 12 For, indeed, man could not know his own time, like fishes which were caught in a cruel net, and like little birds which were caught in a trap,—<like them> were ensnared the sons of men, by a time of misfortune, when it fell upon them suddenly.

13 <Even this> had I seen of wisdom, under the sun,—and <of great import> was the same unto me:—14 A little city, and men therein few,—and there came against it a great king, and surrounded it, and built against it large siege-works; 15 but there was found therein, a man, poor [but] wise, and ||he|| delivered the city by his wisdom,—yet ||no one|| remembered that poor man. 16 Then said ||I||, Better’ is wisdom than strength,—although ||the wisdom of the poor man|| was despised, and ||his words|| not heard. 17 ||The words|| of the wise ||in quietness|| are heard,—beyond the outcry of one who ruleth over dullards. 18 Better’ is wisdom, than weapons of war,—but [one sinner] may destroy much good.

Chapter 10.

1 [Dead flies] cause to stink [and] ferment, the oil of the perfumer,—
   <More costly than wisdom or honour> is a little folly.

2 [The sense of the wise] is on his right hand,—
   But [the sense of the dullard] on his left:
   Yea <even by the way>, as the foolish man walketh along> his sense faileth him—and he telleth everyone that [foolish] is he!

3 If [the spirit of a ruler] riseth up against thee>
   [thy place] do not leave, for [gentleness] pacifieth such as have greatly erred.

4 Here was a misfortune I had seen under the sun,—a veritable mistake that was going forth from the presence of one who had power:
   Folly placed in great dignity,—
   While [the rich] took their seat:

5 I had seen [servants] upon horses,—
   And [rulers] walking like servants, on the ground.

6 [He that diggeth a pit] may fall,—
   And [he that breaketh through a hedge] there may bite him a serpent.

7 [He that removeth stones] may be hurt therewith,—
   [And he that cleaveth wood] may be endangered thereby.

8 If [blunt] be the iron, and [himself] hath not sharpened [the edge] then <much force> must he apply,—but <an advantage for giving success> is wisdom.

9 If a serpent will bite, unless he is charmed>
   Then there is nothing better for him that owneth a tongue.

10 [The words of a wise man’s mouth] are pleasant,—
   But [the lips of a dullard] will swallow him up:

11 [The beginning of the words of his mouth] is folly,—
   But [the latter end of his speech] is mischievous madness.

12 Yet [a foolish man] multiplieth words,—
   [Though] no man knoweth that which hath been, and <that which shall be after him> who can tell him?

13 [The toil of dullards] shall weary a man,
   That he knoweth not how to go into the city.

14 Alas! for thee, O land, when thy king is a boy,—
   And [thy rulers] <in the morning> do eat:

15 How happy art thou, O land, when thy king is a son of nobles,—
   And [thy rulers] <in season> do eat,
   For strength, and not for debauchery.

16 <By two lazy arms> the framework sinketh in,
   And <by the hanging down of the hands> the house’ may leak.

17 Merrily people make bread,
   And [wine] gladdenth life,—
   But [money] answereth all things.

18 Even in thy thought do not revile [the king],
   Nor <within thy bed-chambers> revile thou the rich,—
   For [a bird of the heavens] might carry the voice,
   Yea [an owner of wings] might tell the matter.

Chapter 11.

1 Cast thy bread-corn, upon the face of the waters,—
   For <after many days> shalt thou find it:

2 Give a portion to seven, yea even to eight,—
   For thou canst not know, what there shall be of misfortune, upon the earth.

3 If the clouds be filled with a downpour>
   <Upon the earth> will they empty themselves,
   And <if a tree fall in the south or in the north>
Chapter 12.

Yet remember thy Creator, in the days of thy vigour,—
Or ever come in, the days of discomfort,
And the years arrive, in which thou shalt say—
I have, in them, no’ pleasure;
Or ever be darkened—

The sun, and the light, and the moon, and the stars,—
And the clouds return’ after a downpour of rain;
In the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble,
And the men of might bow themselves,—
And the grinders cease because they are few,
And they who look through the windows are darkened;
And the doors in the street be closed,
When the sound of the mill become low,—
And one rise at the chirp of a small bird,
And low-voiced be all the daughters of song;
Yea <at what is high> they be in fear,
And there be ||terrors|| in the way,
And the almond be rejected,
And the grasshopper drag itself along,
And desire perish,—
For man is going to his age-abiding home,
When the wailers shall go round in the streets;
Or ever the silver cord be loosed,
Or the golden bowl be broken,—
Or the bucket by the fountain be shivered,
Or the wheel at the well be broken;
And the dust return’ to the earth, as it was,—
And ||the spirit|| return unto God, who gave it.
Vanity of vanities, saith the Proclaimer, ||all|| is vanity.

<Besides that> the Proclaimer being wise,—still further taught knowledge unto the people, and weighed and searched, arranged proverbs in abundance.
The Proclaimer sought to find out words giving delight,
And to note down rightly, the words of truth.
||The words|| as goads,
Yea <as driven nails> their well-ordered sayings,—
Given from one shepherd.

<Of making many books> there is no end,
And ||much study||\(^a\) is a weariness of the flesh.

13<The conclusion of the matter—the whole> let us hear,\(^b\)—
<Towards God> be reverent,
And <his commandments> observe,
For ||this|| [concerneth] all mankind.

14For <every work> will God bring into judgment,
   With every hidden thing,—
   Whether good, or evil.

THE SONG OF SONGS.

Chapter 1.

1 The Song of Songs, which pertaineth to Solomon.

[She.] 2 Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth!
[They.] For better ’are thy caresses than wine:
3 <Like the fragrance of thy precious oils≥ is thy name,
<For this cause> virgins love thee.
[She.] 4 Draw me!
[They.] <After thee> will we run!
[She.] The king | hath brought me | into his chambers.
[They.] We will exult and rejoice in thee,
We will mention thy caresses, beyond wine,
Sincerely’ they love thee.
[She.] 5 <Swarthy> I am’ but comely,
Ye daughters of Jerusalem.
[They.] Like the tents of Kedar,
Like the curtains of Solomon.
[She.] 6 Do not look on me,
Because ||I|| am so swarthy,
Because the sun hath scorched’ me,—
||My mother’s sons|| were angry with me,
They set me to keep the vineyards,
Happy ||mine own’ vineyard|| have I not kept…
7 Tell me, thou loved of my soul!
Where’ wilt thou pasture thy flock?
Where’ wilt thou let them recline at noon?
For why’ should I be as one that wrappeth a veil about her, by the flocks of thy companions?

[He.] 8 If thou know not of thyself,
Most beautiful among women!
Get thee forth in the footsteps of the flock,
And pasture thy kids by the huts of the shepherds…
9 <To a mare of mine, in the chariots of Pharaoh>
Have I likened thee, my fair one!
10 Comely are Thy cheeks, with bead-rows,
Thy neck, with strings of gems.
[They.] 11 <Rows of golden ornaments> will we make thee,
With studs of silver.
[She.] 12 <By the time the king is in his circle>
||My nard|| will have given out its fragrance:
13 <A bag of myrrh> is my beloved to me,
<Between my breasts> shall it tarry the night!
14 <A cluster of henna> is my beloved to me,
In the vineyards of En-gedi. b
[He.] 15 Lo! thou art beautiful, my fair one,
Lo! thou art beautiful,
||Thine eyes|| are doves!
[She.] 16 Lo! thou art beautiful, my beloved,
Yea delightful!
||Both.|| Yea! ||our couch|| is covered with leaves:
17 ||The beams of our house|| are cedars,
||Our fretted ceiling|| is cypress-trees.

Chapter 2.

[She.] 1 I am The meadow-saffron c of Sharon,
The lily of the valleys.
[He.] 2 <As a lily among thorns>
||So|| is my fair one, among the daughters!

SONG OF SONGS – Chapter 3.

1 <Upon my couch, in the night-time> sought I the beloved of my soul,—
I sought him, but found him not.

2 Come! I must arise, and go about in the city,
In the paths and in the broadways,
I must seek the beloved of my soul,—
I sought him, but found him not.

3 The watchmen that go round in the city [found me],
<The beloved of my soul> have ye seen?

4 <Scarcely had I passed from them>
When I found’ the beloved of my soul,—
I caught him, and would not let him go,
Until that I had brought him into the house of my mother,
And into the chamber of her that conceived me.

[He.]
5 I adjure you, ye daughters of Jerusalem,

[She.]
6 <His left hand under my head> Then ||his right hand|| embraceth me!

<In the retreats of the crag,
In the hiding-place of the terrace> Let me see thy form,
Let me hear thy voice,—
For ||thy voice|| is sweet,
And ||thy form|| comely.\footnote{Or: “reddened.” Cp. O.G. 334.}

[Both.]
7 Take ye for us, the foxes,
||The little foxes that are spoiling the vines||,—
And ||our vines|| are all blossom!

[She.]
8 ||My beloved|| is |mine|,
And ||I|| am |his|,
He that pastureth among lilies!

[She.]
9 Resembleth, my beloved, a gazelle,
Or a young stag,—
Lo! here he is, standing behind our wall,
Looking in at the windows,
Peeping in at the lattice.

Responded my beloved, and said to me,—
Rise up! my fair—my beautiful—one,
And come away.

For lo ||the winter|| is past,—
||The rain|| is over, [and]\footnote{Or: “standard.”} gone;
10 ||The flowers|| have appeared in the earth,
||The time of the spring-song|| hath come,—
And ||the voice of the turtle|| is heard in our land;
11 ||The fig-tree|| hath spiced\footnote{Or: “sound.”} her green figs,
And ||the vines—all blossom|| yield fragrance,—
Rise up! my fair—my beautiful—one,
And come away!

12 O my dove!

[They.]
6 Who’is this, coming up out of the wilderness,
   Like pillars\(^a\) of smoke,—
   With perfume of myrrh, and frankincense,
   Besides all the aromatic powder of the merchant?
7 Lo! his couch, ‘tis Solomon’s own,
   ||Three score heroes|| around it,—
   Of the heroes of Israel:
   ||All of them|| grasping the sword,
   Trained for war,—
   ||Every man|| with his sword upon his thigh,
   Because of dread, in the night-time.
9 ||A palanquin|| King Solomon made himself,
   Of the trees of Lebanon:
10 <The supports thereof> made he of silver,
   <The couch\(^b\) thereof> of gold,
   <The seat thereof> of purple,—
   ||The midst thereof|| hath an inlay of love\(^c\)
   From the daughters of Jerusalem.
11 Go forth and gaze, ye daughters of Zion, upon King Solomon,—
   Wearing the crown, wherewith his mother
   [crowned him],
   In the day of his marriage,\(^d\) and
   In the day of his heart’ gladness.

Chapter 4.

[He.]
1 Lo! thou art beautiful, my fair one,
Lo! thou art beautiful,
||Thine eyes|| are doves, from behind thy veil,—
||Thy hair|| is like a flock of goats, which are reclining on the sides of Mount Gilead:
2 ||Thy teeth|| are like a flock, evenly grown,\(^e\) which have come up from the washing-place,—

Whereof ||all of them|| are twin-bearers, and
<bereaved>\(^f\) is none’ among them:
3 <Like a cord of crimson> are thy lips,
   And ||thy mouth|| is lovely,—
   <Like a slice of pomegranate> are thy temples,
   behind thy veil:
4 <Like the tower of David> is thy neck, built for war,\(^g\)—
   ||A thousand shields|| hung thereon,
   ||All|| the equipment of heroes:
5 <Thy two breasts|| are like two young roes, twins
   of a gazelle,—
   Which pasture among lilies.
6 <Until the day |breathe|,
   And the shadows |be lengthened|>
I will get me unto the mountain of myrrh,
And unto the hill of frankincense.
Thou art ||all over|| beautiful, my fair one,
And <blemish> is there none’ in thee.
8 <With me, from Lebanon> O bride,
   <With me, from Lebanon> shalt thou enter,—
   Thou shalt look round\(^b\) from the top of Amana,
   From the top of Senir, and Hermon,
   From the dens of lions,
   From the mountains of leopards.
9 Thou hast encouraged me,’ my sister, bride,— Thou hast encouraged me,\(^j\) with one [glance]\(^k\) of thine eyes,
   With one ornament of thy neck.
10 How beautiful’ are thy caresses, my sister, bride,—
    How much more delightful’ thy caresses, than wine,
    And the fragrance of thine oils, than all spices:
11 <With sweetness> thy lips do drip, O bride,—
   ||Honey and milk|| are under thy tongue,
   And ||the fragrance of thy garments|| is like the fragrance of Lebanon.
12 <A garden barred> is my sister, bride,—
    A spring’ barred, — a fountain sealed:

13] Thy buddings forth]] are a paradise of pomegranates,
    With precious fruits,—
Henna bushes, with nard blossoms:
14] Nard and saffron, sweet cane and cinnamon,
    With all woods of frankincense,—
Myrrh and aloes, with all the chiefs of spices:
15] A garden fountain, a well of living waters,—
And flowings from Lebanon.

[She.]
16] Awake, O north wind, and come in, thou south,
Fan my garden—its balsams [will flow out],—
Let my beloved enter' his garden,
And eat his precious fruits.

Chapter 5.

[He.]
1] I have entered my garden, my sister, bride,
I have plucked my myrrh, with my balsam,
I have eaten the honey of my thicket, a
I have drunk my wine, with my milk:—
Eat ye, O friends,
Drink, yea drink abundantly, ye beloved!

[She.]
2] [I] was sleeping, but [my heart] was awake,—
The voice b of my beloved—knocking!
Open to me, my sister, my fair one, my dove,
my perfect one,
For [my head] is filled with dew,
[my locks] with the moisture of the night.
3] I have put off my tunic, oh how
I have entered my garden
I have bathed my feet
Upon the handles of the bolt.
4] [My beloved] thrust in his hand, at the window; c
And [my feelings] were deeply moved for him; d
5] [I myself] arose, to open to my beloved,—
And [my hands] dripped with myrrh,
And [my fingers] with myrrh distilling,
Upon the handles of the bolt.
6] [I myself] opened to my beloved,
But [my beloved] had turned away, had passed on,—
[My soul] had gone out when he spake,
I sought him, but found him not,
I called him, but he answered not.
7] The watchmen who were going round in the city
[found me],
They smote me, wounded me,—
The watchmen of the walls [took away my cloak e from off me].
8] I adjure you, ye daughters of Jerusalem,—
<If ye find my beloved> what will ye tell him?
That <sick with love> I am'.

[Daughters of Jerusalem.]
9] What is thy' beloved more than any other' beloved,
Thou most beautiful among women?
What is thy' beloved more than any other' beloved,
That <thus> thou hast adjured us?

[She.]
10] [My beloved] is white and ruddy,
Conspicuous beyond ten thousand:
11] [His head] is pure gold,—
[His locks] are bushy, f black as a raven;
12] [His eyes] like doves, by the channels of water,—
    Bathing in milk, set as gems in a ring; g
13] [His cheeks] like a raised bed h of balsam,
    Growing' plants of perfume,—
[His lips] lilies, dripping with myrrh distilling:
14] [His hands] cylinders of gold, set with topaz,—
[His body] wrought work of ivory, covered with sapphires:
15] [His legs] pillars of white marble, founded on sockets of gold,—
[His form] like Lebanon, choice as cedars:
16] [His mouth] most sweet,
Yea [altogether] he is delightful,—
[This] is my beloved,
Yea [this] is my dear one, ye daughters of Jerusalem.

[Daughters of Jerusalem.]

1 Whither’ hast thy beloved gone?
Thou most beautiful among women?
Whither’ hast thy beloved [turned him aside]?
That we may seek him with thee.
[She.]

2 [[My beloved]] is gone down to his garden,
To the beds of balsam,—
To pasture in the gardens,
And to gather lilies.
[[/]] am, my beloved’s,
And [[my beloved]] is mine,
He that pastureth among lilies.

[He.]

4 [Beautiful] art thou, my fair one, as Tirzah, a Comely, as Jerusalem,— Majesticb as bannered hosts!

5 Turn away thine eyes from me,
For [[they]] have excited me,— [[Thy hair]] is like a flock of goats, that are reclining on the sides of Mount Gilead:

6 [[Thy teeth]] are like a flock of sheep which have come up from the washing-place,—
Whereof [[all of them]] are twin-bearers, and <bereaved>c is there none’ among them:

7 <Like a slice of pomegranate> are thy temples,
from behind thy veil:

8 [[Threescore]] are the queens,
And [[fourscore]] are the concubines,—
And [[virgins]] there are, without number.

9 [[One alone]] is my dove, my perfect one,
[[One alone]] was she to her mother,
[[Pure]] was she to her that bare her,—
The daughters [have seen her], and pronounced her happy,
[[Queens and concubines]] and they have praised her’.

Beautiful as the moon,
Pure as the sun,
Majesticd as bannered hosts?

To look at the fresh shoots of the ravine, —
To see whether had burst forth the vine, had blossomed the pomegranate:—

12 I know not [how it was] [my soul] set for me the chariots of my willing people!

[They.]

13 Return, return, O Shulamite,f
Return, return, that we may look on thee!
[She.]

What would ye look on in the Shulamite?
[They.]

As it were the dance of a double campg…

Chapter 7.

1 [How beautiful] are thy feet in sandals, O daughter of a noble,—
[[The curvings of thy hips]] are like ornaments wrought by the hands of a skilled workman:

2 [[Thy navel]] is a round bowl, may it not lack spiced wine!
[[Thy body]] a heap of wheat fenced about with lilies;

3 [[Thy two breasts]] are like two young roes,
the twins of a gazelle:

4 [[Thy neck]] is like a tower of ivory,— [[Thine eyes]] are pools in Heshbon, by the gate of Bath-rabbim,h

5 [[Thy nose]] is like the tower of Lebanon, which looketh towards Damascus:

5 [[Thy head upon thee]] is like Carmel,
And [[the hair of thy head]] is like purple,—
[[The king]] is held captive by the ringlets!

He put out the vineyard to keepers,—
||Every man|| was to bring in, for the fruit thereof,
a thousand silverlings:

Mine own vineyard is before me,—
The thousand belong to thee, O Solomon,
And two hundred to the keepers of the fruit thereof.

[He.]

O thou fair dweller in the gardens,
||The companions|| are giving heed to thy voice,
Let me hear it.

[She.]

Come quickly, my beloved, and resemble thou
A gazelle, or a young stag,
Upon the mountains of balsam-trees.
THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET ISAIAH.

§ 1. After a General Introduction, follows—a Solemn Indictment against Israel: sustained by Exhortation, Promise, and Threatening.

Chapter 1.

1 The vision of Isaiah, son of Amoz, which he saw, concerning Judah and Jerusalem,—in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah,—kings of Judah.

2 Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth, for ||Yahweh|| hath spoken:—
Sons have I brought up, and advanced, And they have rebelled against me.

3 An ox knoweth his owner, And an ass his masters crib,—||Israel|| doth not know, ||My people|| doth not consider.

4 Alas! a nation—committing sin, a people—burdened with iniquity, a seed—practising wickedness, sons—acting corruptly.

5 Why should ye be smitten any more? Ye would again’ turn aside! The whole head is sick, And the whole heart faint:

6 <From the sole of the foot, even unto the head> there is in it no soundness, Bruise and stripe and newly-made wound,— They have not been pressed out, nor bound up, nor soothed with oil.

7 Your country—is a desolation, Your cities—are consumed with fire,— Your soil—right before your eyes] [foreigners] are devouring it,

And it is a desolation, a very overthrow by foreigners;e

8 And left’ is the Daughter of Zion, Like a hut in a vineyard,— Like a lodge in a gourd-plot, Like a city besieged.

9 <If ||Yahweh of hosts|| had not left us a very small remnant> <Like Sodom> had we become, <Gomorrah> had we resembled.

10 Hear the word of Yahweh, ye rulers of Sodom,— Give ear to the instruction of our God, ye people of Gomorrah:—
||Of what use to me] is your multitude of sacrifices:

Saith Yahweh: I am sated with ascending-offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beasts,—

12 <When ye enter to see my face> Who hath required this at your hand, trampling my courts?

13 Ye shall not again’ bring in an empty’ present, ||Incense|| <an abomination> is that’ unto me! New moon, and sabbath, calling an assembly—

14 <Your new moons, and your appointed feasts> my soul [hateth],— They have become unto me a burden I am too weary to bear:

15 <Even when ye spread forth your open palms> I hide mine eyes from you; Yea <though ye multiply’ prayers> I am not hearkening,— ||Your hands|| <with deeds of blood> are filled.

16 Wash you, make you clean, Put away the wickedness of your doings from before mine eyes,— b Some cod. (w. Syr.): “And your c.”—G.n.

c Or: “A veritable foreign’ overthrow.”
ISAIAH – Chapter 2.

17 Learn to do well—
Seek justice,
Correct the oppressor,
Vindicate the fatherless,
Plead the cause of the widow.

18 Come, I pray you, and let us settle the dispute,
Saith Yahweh,—

lest your sins be found like scarlet,
As snow shall they be made white,
lest they appear red like crimson,
As wool shall they become.

19 If ye be willing—and hearken—
Of the good of the land shall ye eat;
But if ye refuse and rebel—
With the sword shall ye be devoured,
For [the mouth of Yahweh] hath spoken it.

20 How hath she become unchaste!—
The city that was Faithful,—
Full of justice, Righteousness lodged in her,
But [[now]] murderers!

21 [[Thy silver]] hath become dross,—
[Thy wine]] weakened with water;
[[Thy rulers]] are unruly, and companions of thieves,
Every one of the people loveth a bribe, and runneth after rewards,—
Of the fatherless they do not vindicate,
And [the plea of the widow] reacheth them not.

22 Therefore
Declareth the Lord, Yahweh of hosts,
The Mighty One of Israel,—
Alas! I must appease me on mine adversaries,
I must avenge me on mine enemies;
That I may turn my hand against thee,
And smelt away, as with potash,
And remove all thine alloy;
That I may restore thy Judges, as at the first, and thy Counsellors, as at the beginning,—
After that shall thou be called Righteous’ citadel,
Trusty’ city,—

27 ||Zion|| with justice shall be redeemed,—
And ||her returning ones|| with righteousness;
And ||the downfall of transgressors and sinners|| shall be [together],—
And [they who forsake Yahweh] shall be brought to an end;
For they shall turn pale on account of the oaks which ye have chosen;
And ye shall blush on account of the gardens which ye had chosen;
For ye shall be as an oak with its leaf® faded,
And a garden that hath no ||water||;
Then shall the strong one become tow, And his work a spark,—
And they shall both blaze together,
And there be none° to quench the fire.

§ 2. A complete Vision concerning Judah and Jerusalem, in which Sin and Punishment and ultimate Cleansing and Glory are vividly portrayed: the whole prefaced by an extract from the prophet Micah (iv. 1-3).

Chapter 2.

1 That® which Isaiah, son of Amoz, saw in vision,—concerning Judah and Jerusalem.

2 But it shall come to pass, [in the afterpart of the days],
That the mountain of the house of Yahweh Shall be [set up] as the head of the mountains, And be exalted above the hills,—
And all the nations shall stream thereunto;
And many peoples shall go, and say—
Come ye, and let us ascend Unto the mountain of Yahweh, Unto° the house of the God of Jacob, That he may teach us of his ways, And we may walk in his paths,—
For <out of Zion> shall go forth a law, And the word of Yahweh out of Jerusalem;
And he will judge between the nations, And be umpire to many peoples,—

And they will beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks, ||Nation—a—against nation|| shall not lift up sword, Neither shall they learn any more to make war.

5 O house of Jacob! come ye, and let us walk in the light of Yahweh.

6 Therefore hast thou abandoned thy people, the house of Jacob, Because they have become full of the East, And use hidden arts, like the Philistines,—And with the children of foreigners strike hands;—

7 So that filled is their land with silver and gold, And there is no end to their treasures,—And filled is their land with horses, And there is no end to their chariots;

8 And filled is their land with idols,—To the work of their own hands do they bow themselves down, To that which they made with their own fingers.

9 So the mean man boweth down, And the great man stoopeth low;— Therefore do not thou forgive them!

10 Enter into the rock, Or hide thee in the dust,— Because of the terribleness of Yahweh, And for his majestic splendour.

11 ||The lofty looks of mean men|| shall be humbled, And ||the haughtiness of great men|| shall be bowed down,— And Yahweh alone' shall be exalted' ||in that day||.

12 For ||a day of Yahweh of hosts|| [shall be]— Upon every one who is high and lofty,— And upon every one who is lifted up, And he shall be brought low; And upon all cedars of Lebanon, that are high and lifted up,— And upon all the oaks of Bashan; And upon all the lofty mountains,—

And upon all the uplifted' hills; And upon every high tower,— And upon every fortress wall; And upon all the ships of Tarshish,— And upon all desirable' banners. And the haughtiness of mean men shall be humbled,— And the loftiness of great men shall be laid low,— And Yahweh alone shall be exalted' ||in that day||.

18 And ||the idols|| shall wholly' pass away; And they shall enter into the holes of the rocks, and into the caves of clay, ||Because of the terribleness of Yahweh, And for his majestic' splendour||.

When he ariseth to shake terribly the earth.

19 ||In that day|| shall the son of earth cast his idols of silver, and his idols of gold,—which had been made for him to worship, into the hole of the mice, and to the bats; That he may enter into the clefts of the rocks, and into the fissures of the crags,— Because of the terribleness of Yahweh, And for his majestic' splendour, When he ariseth to shake terribly the earth.

21 Cease ye from the son of earth, In whose nostrils is but a breath,— For <wherein’ to be reckoned’ upon> is he?

Chapter 3.

1 For lo! ||the Lord, Yahweh of hosts|| removing from Jerusalem and from Judah, The stay and staff,— The whole stay of bread, And the whole stay of water:

2 Man of might, and man of war,— Judge and prophet, And diviner and elder;

3 Captain of fifty, and favourite; And counsellor, and skilled artificer;
And master of magical formulas;
And I will appoint [boys] to be their princes,—
And [petulant children] shall rule over them.
And the people [will tyrannise]
Every man over his fellow-man,
And every man over his friend,—
And they will rage
[The boy] against [the elder],
And [the despised] against [the honourable].
When a man [shall lay hold] on his brother, of the house of his father, [saying]—
||Clothing|| hast thou*,
Become thou our [ruler],—
||This downfall|| be under thy hand≥
He will swear, b in that day, saying—
I will take no control,
When <in mine own house> is neither food nor clothing,—
Ye must not set me’ for a ruler of people!
For stumped’ hath Jerusalem, and ||Judah|| hath fallen,— Because [their tongue and their doings] are against Yahweh,
Provoking his glorious’ presence. c
||The show of their face|| hath answered d against
them,
And <their sin—like Sodom> have they told,
they have not concealed it.
Alas for their souls!
For they have requited to themselves calamity].
Say ye to the righteous,
It is well!
For <the fruit of their doings> shall they eat:
Alas! <for the lawless> it is ill,
For ||what his own hand hath matured|| shall be done to him.
My people! <children> are their tyrants, f
And ||women|| rule over them,—
My people! <they who should lead thee forward> are causing thee to stray,
<Thy pathways> have they destroyed. g
Yahweh [hath taken his station to plead],—
And is standing to judge peoples:
||Yahweh|| into judgment] will enter,
With the elders of his people,
And their princes,b—
But [ye] have consumed the vineyard,
||That which hath been robbed from the oppressed|| is in your houses.
What right have ye to crush my people,
And <the faces of the oppressed> to grind?
Demandeth My Lord, Yahweh of hosts—
And Yahweh saith—
Because haughty’ are the daughters of Zion,
And they walk with neck thrown back, and wanton eyes,—
Tripping along as they go,
And <with their feet> making, a tinkling sound≥ Therefore will My Lord e smite with leprosy the crown of hair of the daughters of Zion,—
And ||as for Yahweh|| <their shame> will he lay bare!
In that day > will My Lord m remove the finery—of the anklets, and the little suns, and the little moons;
the pendants, and the bracelets, and the veins;
the chaplets, and the armlets, and the girdles, and the scent-cases,
and the amulets;
the rings, and the nose-jewels;
the robes, and the over-tunics, and the cloaks, and the purses;
and the mirrors, and the linen wraps, and the tiaras, and the cloaks.
And it shall come to pass—
That <instead of fragrance> a putrid odour] shall be,
And <instead of a girdle> an encircling rope,
And <instead of a girdle> baldness,
And <instead of a festal robe> a girding of sackcloth,
Branding instead of beauty:
<Thy males> ||by the sword shall fall,—
And <thy mighty men> ||by the war;
And her gates shall mourn and lament,—

a “Caprice”—O.G.
b Lit.: “lift up” (supply his hand),
c Ml.: “the eyes of his glory”—“his glorious eyes”—“his gloriously manifested presence.”
d Or: “a look at their face”; or. “the expression of their face”;
e Or: “testified.”
f “Its ruler is acting the child”—O.G.
g Ml.: “swallowed up.”

b Or: “generals.”
i Or: “What aileth you [that] ye crush.”
j Or: “Adhonây, Yahweh.”
k “With their feet they rattle their bangles”—O.G.
l Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns.) have: “Yahweh” instead of:
“My Lord (Heb.: ’adônây).”—G.n.
m See ver. 17, n.
n Ml.: “might” or “valour.” Some cod. (w. Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.) have expressly: “mighty ones”—G.n.
And <forsaken> <on the ground> shall she sit.

Chapter 4.

1 And seven women will take hold of one man, in that day, saying,
<Our own bread> will we eat,
And <our own apparel> will we wear,—
||Only|| let us be called by thy name, to take away our reproach.

2 <In that day>
Shall [the Bud of Yahweh] become beautiful and glorious,—
And [the Fruit of the Land] splendid and majestic,
To the escaped of Israel.
And it shall come to pass—
||He that is left in Zion!||
And ||he that remaineth in Jerusalem||
Shall be called ||holy||,—
||Everyone written unto life, in Jerusalem||.

3 When My Lord‖ shall have bathed away the filth of the daughters of Zion,
And <the blood-guiltinessb of Jerusalem> he shall wash away out of her midst,—
By the spirit of judgment, and
By the spirit of thorough cleansing≥
Then will Yahweh [create]—
<Over all the homec of Mount Zion and Over her assembly>d
A cloud by day, and a smoke,
And the shining of a fire-flame, by night,—
For <over all the glory> shall be a canopy;
And  shall there be
For a shade by day, from the heat,—and
For a refuge, and for a shelter, from storm and from rain.

§ 3. The Parabolic Song of the Vineyard, Explained and Applied, with a six-fold Lament ("Alas!") and a Refrain; followed by a Prediction of Invasion.

Chapter 5.

1 Let me sing, I pray you, for a well-beloved of mine,
The song of my beloved, concerning his vineyard:—
<A vineyard> had my well-beloved, on a very fruitful hill;
And he thoroughly dug it,
And gathered out the stones thereof,
And planted it with a precious vine,
And built a tower in the midst thereof,
|Moreover also|  hewed he therein,—
Then waited he, that it should bring forth grapes.
And it brought forth wild' grapes:£

3 Now, therefore, O inhabitant of Jerusalem,
And men of Judah,—
Judge, I pray you, betwixt me, and my vineyard:—
What could have been done further to my vineyard,
That I had not done in' it?
Why' then—
<When I had waited that it should bring forth grapes>
Brought it forth wild' grapes?

4 ||Now|| therefore, I pray you, let me tell |you| what I' am about to do to my vineyard,—
To take away the fence thereof,
And it shall be eaten up,
To destroy the wall thereof,
And it shall be trodden down;
And I will make it a waste;—
It shall be neither pruned nor hoed,
But there shall come up briars and thorns,—
And <upon the clouds> will I lay a charge,
That they rain thereon no rain.

5 Surely ||the vineyard of Yahweh of hosts|| is the house of Israel,
And ||the men of Judah|| are the plantation in which he dearly delighted,—
And he waited
For |equity| but lo! |murderous iniquity|,
For the rule of right, but lo |the cry of the wronged|.≥

g N.B.: the striking assurance—“And he waited for mishpâh, but lo mishpâh;
for ẓedhâkâh, but lo ẓeâkâh.”
8 Alas! for them who join house to house,
  <Field to field> bring they near,—
  Until there is no room,
  But ye are left to dwell alone' in the midst of the land.

9 <In mine ears> [said] Yahweh of hosts,— Verily ||houses in abundance|| shall become |a
  desolation|,
  Large and fair, without inhabitant;
  For ||ten yokes of vineyard|| shall yield |one bath|,\textsuperscript{a}—
  And ||the seed of a homer||\textsuperscript{b} shall yield an ephah.\textsuperscript{c}

10 Alas! for them who rise early in the morning that  they may pursue,—
  Who follow on in the evening cool, [until] ||with wine|| they are heated;
  And it cometh to pass—||that lyre and harp||, timbrel and flute, and wine, are in their banquets,—
  But <the doing of Yahweh> they do not discern,
  And <the work of his hands> have they not seen.
  ||Therefore|| are my people taken away captive,
  before they know it,—
  And ||their honourable men|| are famished with hunger,
  And ||their multitude|| do gape for thirst.
  ||Therefore|| hath hades enlarged' her desire;\textsuperscript{d}
  And opened her mouth to its widest,—
  And their glory, and their multitude, and their pomp, and he that is uproarious, ||shall descend||
  thereinto.
  And the mean man hath been bowed down,
  And the mighty man hath been humbled,—
  Yea ||the looks of the haughty|| shall be humbled.\textsuperscript{e}
  But Yahweh of hosts ||that hath been exalted|| in justice,—
  And ||the GOD that is holy|| hath been hallowed in
  righteousness;
  Then shall the young rams feed' where they please,—
  And <the wastes of the wealthy> shall strangers' consume.
  Alas! for them

Who draw on themselves punishment, with cords of falsehood,—
  And <as with wagggon-bands> |penalty|:

19 Who say—
  Let his work quicken'—let it hasten',
  That we may see,—
  And let the purpose of Israel's Holy One
  |draw near and come|.
  That we may know!

20 Alas! for them
  Who call evil good, and good evil,—
  Who put darkness for light, and light for darkness,
  Who put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter.

21 Alas! for them
  Who are wise in their own eyes,—
  And <in their own sight> are prudent.

22 Alas! for them
  Who are heroes, to drink wine,—
  And men of valour, to mingle\textsuperscript{e} strong drink,
  Who justify the lawless, for a bribe,—
  Whereas <the righteousness of the righteous> they take from him.\textsuperscript{h}

23 ||Therefore||
  ≤As a tongue of fire |eateth up straw|,
  And a flame reduceth ||dry grass|| to powder≥\textsuperscript{i}
  ||Their root|| ||like rottenness|| shall become,
  And ||their blossom|| ||like dust|| shall ascend,— Because they refused the law\textsuperscript{j} of Yahweh of hosts,
  And <the utterance of the Holy One of Israel>
  they despised.

24 ||Therefore||
  Did the anger of Yahweh kindle' upon [his own people],
  And he stretched out his hand against them and smote them—
  So that the mountains |trembled|,

\textsuperscript{a} Bath=a measure for liquids, about 8½ gallons.
\textsuperscript{b} Omer=3½ quarts=a 10\textsuperscript{b} of an ephah.
\textsuperscript{c} Ephah=about 1½ and 19 bush. Eng.
\textsuperscript{d} Or: "lute"—O.G.
\textsuperscript{e} MI.: "her soul."
\textsuperscript{f} Cp. chap. ii. 9, 11, 17.
\textsuperscript{g} "That is, make a choice drink by mixing with spices, etc. (mixing with water came later, cp. 2 Macc. xv. 39)"—O.G.
\textsuperscript{h} As may be done by suppressing the evidence of it, or otherwise thwarting its due effect.
\textsuperscript{i} "As flaming chaff sinketh down"—O.G.
\textsuperscript{j} Or: "instruction."
And [their dead bodies] served [for fuel] in the midst of the streets.

<For all this> hath his anger [not turned back],
But <still> is his hand outstretched.\(^b\)

26 Therefore will he lift up an ensign to the nations afar off,
And signal\(^c\) for him from the end of the earth,—
And lo! <with hot haste> will he come:
None shall be weary, and none shall stumble in his midst,
He shall neither slumber, nor sleep,—
Nor shall be loosened, the girdle of his loins,
Nor snapped, the thong of his sandals:

||Whose arrows|| are sharpened, and ||all his bows|| bent,—
||The hoofs of his horses|| <like flint> are accounted,
And ||his hoofs|| [are] like a storm-wind:

<A roar> hath he, like a lioness,—
He\(^d\) will roar like wild lions—
And will growl, and lay hold on prey, and carry into safety, and there be none' to deliver.

29 Yea he will growl at him, in that day, like the growling of the sea,—
<Though he look hard for the land> lo! the darkness of distress,
Yea ||the light|| hath grown dark in its clouds!\(^e\)

§ 4. By a Vision in the Temple, Isaiah is called and qualified for his Prophetic Mission; and prepared to wait long for good Success.

Chapter 6.

1 <In the year that King Uzziah died> I saw My Lord,\(^f\) sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and ||his skirts|| did fill the temple;\(^g\)

2 ||Seraphim|| were standing above him; <six wings severally> had each one,—
<With twain> he covered his face',
And <with twain> he covered his feet',
And <with twain> he did fly.

3 And they continued crying out one to another,\(^h\) and said,
Holy—holy—holy, is Yahweh of hosts,—
||The fulness of the whole earth|| is his glory.

4 And the foundations of the porch\(^i\) [were moved] at the voice of him that cried,—and ||the house|| was filled with smoke.\(^j\) Then said I—
Woe to me!—for I am undone,
Because  am ||l||,
And <in the midst of a people of unclean lips> do I dwell,—
For <the King, Yahweh of hosts> have mine eyes seen!

6 Then flew unto me, one of the seraphim,
And <in his hand> a live coal,\(^j\)—
<With tongs> had he taken it from off the altar.

7 Then touched he my mouth, and said—
Lo! this hath touched thy lips,—
Thus shall be taken away, thine iniquity,
And ||thy sin|| by propitiation be covered.

8 Then heard I the voice of My Lord, saying,
Whom shall I send?
And who' will go for us?
And I said—
Here am I'—send me'.

9 Then said he—
Go and say unto this people,—

§ 5. Isaiah’s first Message to King Ahaz: “Courage!”

Chapter 7.

1 And it came to pass <in the days of Ahaz son of Jotham son of Uzziah, king of Judah> that Rezin king of Syria, and Pekah son of Remaliah king of Israel, [came up] to Jerusalem, to war against it, but could not prevail against it.
2 And it was told the house of David, b saying,
Syria hath settled down upon Ephraim.
Then shook his heart, and the heart of his people, as the trees of a forest shake’ before a wind. c Then said Yahweh, unto Isaiah,
Go forth, I pray thee, to meet Ahaz, thou and Shear-jashub’ thy son, unto the end of the channel of the upper pool, unto the highway of the fullers field; d and say unto him—
Take heed and keep thyself calm—do not fear, neither let ||thy heart|| be faint, because of these two fag-ends of smoking firebrands,—in spite of y the glow of the anger of Rezin and Syria, and the son of Remaliah.
5 ≤Because Syria hath taken counsel] against thee, for mischief,—[with] Ephraim and the son of Remaliah, saying.
6 Let us go up against Judah, and besiege it, and break it open, for ourselves,—and set up a king in the midst thereof, even the son of Tabeal≥

7 ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh, e—
It shall not stand,
Neither shall it come to pass!
8 For ≤though the head of Syria’ is Damascus,
And the head of Damascus is Rezin≥
Yet <within threescore and five years more’> shall Ephraim be broken, that it shall not be a people;
9 ||Even though [the head of Ephraim] is Samaria,
And [the head of Samaria] is the son of Remaliah].
<If ye trust not>
Surely ye cannot be trusted! f

§ 6. Isaiah’s second Message to King Ahaz: “Ask a Sign!”

10 And again’ spake Yahweh unto Ahaz, saying—
11 Ask thee a sign, of Yahweh thy God,—
Go down deep for a request,
Or ascend on high! g
12 But Ahaz said,—
I will not ask,
Nor will I put Yahweh to the proof.
13 Then said he—
Hear, I pray you, O house of David!
Is it [too little] for you to weary [men], that ye must weary ||even my God||?
14 Wherefore’ let h My Lord h Himself give’ you a sign,—

a A sp. v.r. (sevir): “hath…in it.” Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn.):

f Should not the expositor bear this in mind, and carry it over g Why this encouragement to ask for an extraordinary sign, if a merely trivial coincidence had been in the Divine mind?
h Taking yittēn as a “jussive”—used “in the expression of command, wish and request”—Davies’ Gesenius’ Heb.
i Some cod.: “Yahweh” (instead of “Adhonây”)—G.n.

\textbf{<Curds and honey>} shall he eat, by the time that he knoweth to refuse the bad and choose the good; 16 for \textbf{<before the boy knoweth to refuse the bad and choose the good>} forsaken' shall be the land,\textsuperscript{d} at which [\textbf{<thou>}] art alarmed, of the presence of both her kings.

17 Yahweh will bring' upon thee, and upon thy people, and upon the house of thy father, days which have not come, from the day when Ephraim departed from Judah,—|even the king of Assyria. 18 And it shall come to pass \textbf{<in that day>} that Yahweh will give a signal—\textbf{To the fly that is in the uttermost part of the Nile-canals of Egypt,} And to the bee that is in the land of Assyria. 19 And they shall all of them \textbf{<come and settle down>}—\textbf{In the desolate torrent-valleys,} And in the rents of the crags,—\textbf{And on all the thorn-bushes,} And on all the pastures.\textsuperscript{e}

20 \textbf{<In that day> will My Lord} shave <with a hired' razor, even with them of the lands over the River \textbf{["Euphrates"]}, with the king of Assyria> the head, and the hair of the feet,—\textbf{yea, <even the beard>} will it sweep off. 21 And it shall come to pass, \textbf{<in that day>} that a man shall keep alive a young cow, and two sheep. 22 \textbf{Yea it shall come to pass} <for the abundance of the yield of milk> that he shall eat curds,—\textbf{<for curds and honey>} shall every one eat, that is left in the midst of the land. 23 \textbf{And it shall come to pass} <in that day> that \textbf{|every place wherein there used to be a thousand vines at a thousand pieces of silver|—\textbf{yea <even for briars and thorns>} shall it be.} 24 <With arrows and with a bow> shall one come in thither,—\textbf{for <briars and thorns>} shall be all the land. 25 But \textbf{<all the hills which with the hoe> can be weeded>}—there shall not come thither, the fear of briars and thorns,—but it shall be for the sending forth of oxen, and for the tread of lesser cattle.

\section*{§ 7. Isaiah himself instructed to take action: If the Name of Promise is declined, a Name of Threatening shall be given and attested.}

Chapter 8.

1 And Yahweh said unto me:

But \textit{did he} trustfully respond to the gracious challenge, and thereby secure the immediate fulfilment of the promise? The answer, \textbf{in the negative, is writ large in what follows (ver. 17). He would not "trust," and therefore could not "be trusted" (ver. 9.)}]

ISAIAH – Chapter 9.

9
Rage, O ye peoples, — and be overthrown,
And give ear, all ye distant parts of the earth,—
Gird yourselves and be overthrown,
Gird yourselves, and be overthrown:

10
Determine a plan,—and it shall be frustrated,—
Speak a word, and it shall not stand,
For With-us-is-God!

11
For thus spake Yahweh unto me, like a firm grasp of the hand,—when he admonished me, not to walk in the way of this people, saying:

12
Ye shall not say—A confederacy! of everything of which this people [may say]. A confederacy! And shall ye not fear or regard as awful:

13
Yahweh of hosts || shall ye hallow,—
And let || be your fear, and let || inspire you with awe;

14
So shall he become a hallowed asylum,—
But a stone to strike against, and a rock to stumble over, unto both houses of Israel,
A trap and a snare to the dweller in Jerusalem;
And many shall stumble among them,—and fall and be torn, and snared, and captured.

15
Bind thou up the testimony,—
Seal the instruction amongst my disciples.

16
I will therefore long for Yahweh,
Who is hiding his face from the house of Jacob,—
And will wait for him.

17
Lo! || and the children whom Yahweh hath given’ me || are for signs and for wonders, in Israel,—from Yahweh of hosts, who is making his habitation in Mount Zion.

18
But when they say unto you—
Seek ye unto the necromancers and unto the wizards, who chirp, and who mutter?
Should not a people seek unto its God?

19
To the law, and to the testimony!
If they speak not according to this word
[It is] because they have no dawning day.

Section 9. A renewed Description of Deepening Gloom (cp. v. 26–30), which serves as a Background for an Outburst of Messianic Light.

21
Therefore shall they pass through it, hard pressed and hungry,—
And it shall be <when they hunger> then will they rage and revile their king and their god,
and turn their faces upwards;

22
<And unto the land> shall they look hard,
And lo! || distress and darkness, the gloom of anguish|| driven away!

Chapter 9.

1
For there is no gloom to her who had been in anguish,

2
|| The people who were walking in darkness ||
Have seen a great light,—

3
Thou hast increased the exultation,
Thou hast made great the joy, —

a Or: “Adhonây.”

b No thanks to Ahaz, but this name of promise, once given, strikes root; cp. ver. 10. The Heir may not come yet, but his Inheritance must be reserved for him, in spite of every vicissitude.

c Cp. Intro., Synopsis, B., c. d So in many cod. (w. 4 ear. pr. edns., Syr., Vul.); but in some cod. (w. 3 ear. pr. edns., Aram. and Sep.): “with”—G.n.

f Or: “my instructed ones,” Cp. chap. l. 4; liv. 13.

g Or: “is about to make.”

h So O.G.; but others: “familiar spirits.” Cp. Lev. xx. 27.

i Or: “instruction.”

j So Gr. the letters shd be regrouped and the words accordingly emended; an opinion so strongly sustained in his Intro., p. 161, that the resultant reading is, in this translation, taken up into the text. It has the unlooked-for argument in its favour, that it calls for what Dr. R. Moulton terms the “envelope”
They joy before thee, according to the joy of harvest,
As men exult when they distribute spoil.

For he takest away the yoke of their burden,
The cross-bar of their shoulder,
The goad of their driver
Hast thou broken, as in the day of Midian.

Surely every boot of one trampling in tumult,
And the war-cloak rolled in blood
Then shall serve for burning, food for fire;
For the yoke of their burden, and the war-cloak
Surely shall be burned up;
Therefore will Yahweh strengthen the adversaries of Resin against him,—
And his enemies will he arouse:
Syrians before, and Philistines behind,
Thus have they devoured Israel with open mouth,—
<For all this> hath his anger not turned back, But <still> is his hand outstretched.

Yet the people shall not have turned unto him that smote them,—
And <Yahweh> of hosts have they not sought.
Therefore hath Yahweh cut off from Israel—
Head and tail,
Palm-top and rush,
In one day.

<The elder and favourite> is the head,—
And <the prophet teaching falsehood> is the tail;
And <they who should have led this people forward> have been causing them to stray,—
And <they who are led of them> are destroyed.¹
[For this cause] <over their choice young men> will My Lord not rejoice,
And <on their fatherless and their widows> will he not have compassion,
For <every one of them> is profane and an evildoer,
And <every mouth> is speaking baseness,—
<For all this> hath his anger not turned back, But <still> is his hand outstretched.

For lawlessness hath consumed like fire,
<Briars and thorns> doth it devour,—
Yea it hath kindled upon the thickets of the forest,
And they have rolled up, as a column of smoke.

19 <Through the wrath of Yahweh of hosts> is the land consumed,—
And [the people] have come to be [as fuel for fire],
|A man| <unto his own brother> sheweth not pity;
And he hath slain on the right, and yet is hungry,
And hath eaten on the left, yet are they not satisfied,—
|Every one| <the flesh of his own arm> will they eat:

Manasseh—Ephraim, and Ephraim—Manasseh,
||They together||—against Judah,—
<For all this> hath his anger [not turned back],
But <still> is his hand outstretched.

Chapter 10.

1 Alas! for them who ordain iniquitous', decrees,—
And ||busy writers|| who make a business of writing [mischief]:

2 Turning aside |from judgment| ||the poor||,
And robbing |of justice| ||the oppressed of my people||,—
So that |widows| become [their spoil],
And |of the fatherless| they make prey.

3 What, then, will ye do for the day of visitation,
And for the devastation which <from afar> shall come?
<Unto whom> will ye flee for help?
And where' will ye leave your glory?

4 <Without me> one hath bowed under a prisoner,
Yea <under the slain> do they fall!
<For all this> hath his anger [not turned back],
But <still> is his hand outstretched.

16 [Therefore] shall the Lord, Yahweh of hosts, Send among his fat ones [a] leanness, And <under his glory> shall he kindle [a kindling], [like the kindling of fire];

17 So shall the Light of Israel become [a fire], And [his Holy One] [a flame], Which shall burn and consume his thorns and his briers, in one day;

23 For [a full end and that a decreed one] is My Lord, Yahweh of hosts, executing in the midst of all the earth.¹

24 [Therefore], [thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh of hosts,

Do not fear, O my people dwelling in Zion, because of Assyria,—When <with his rod> he would smite thee, And when <his staff> he would lift up against thee, in the manner of Egypt;

25 For <yet a very little while> and displeasure shall end, Yea, [mine anger] over their destruction.

26 And Yahweh of hosts will brandish over him [a scourge]—Like the smiting of Midian, at the rock Oreb,—And <his staff> over the sea He will lift it up in the manner of Egypt;

27 And it shall come to pass <in that day> That his burden shall remove from off thy shoulder, And his yoke from off thy neck,—Yea, the yoke shall be broken, because of fatness.m

28 He hath come in unto Ayyâth, Hath passed through Migron,—<At Michmash> storeth his baggage: They have passed over the pass, Geba is his halting-place,—[terror-stricken] is Ramah, [Gibeah of Saul] hath fled!

29 Make shrill thy voice, O daughter of Gallim! Hearken, O Laishah; Answer, O Anathoth!

Yahweh—with his weapons of indignation,
To destroy the land.

6 Howl ye! for at hand’ is the day of Yahweh,—

And it shall be—
Like a gazelle that is chased,
And like a sheep with none’ to lift it up,—
||Each|| to |his own people| will they turn,
And |each|| to |his own land| will they flee:
||Every one found|| shall be thrust through,—
And ||every one taken|| shall fall by the sword;
And ||their infants|| shall be dashed to the ground, before their eyes,—
Plundered’ shall be |their houses|, and ||their wives ravished||.
Behold me! stirring up against them, |the Medes|,—
Who <of silver> shall take no account,
And <as for gold| they shall not delight in it;
And ||bows|| shall dash the young to pieces,—
And <on the fruit of the womb| will they have no pity,
<Over>||children| will |their eye| throw no shield.
Thus shall Babylon—
The most lovely of kingdoms,
The majestic beauty of the Chaldees—
|Become| as in the divine overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah.
It shall not be dwelt’ in for ever,
Neither shall it be inhabited, from generation to generation,—
Neither shall encamp there |an Arab|,
Nor ||shepherds|| fold their flocks there.
Then shall lie down’ there, |wild beasts|,
And filled’ shall be their houses, with |owls|,—
Then shall inhabit there, the ostrich,
And ||shaggy creatures|| shall dance there.
And jackals ||shall answer| in their citadels,
And |wild dogs| in their voluptuous palaces,—
And near to come’ is |her time|,
And ||her days|| shall not be delayed.

Chapter 14.

For Yahweh |will have compassion| on Jacob,
And will yet’ choose Israel,
And will give them rest upon their own soil,—
And the sojourner ||shall join himself| unto them,
And they shall attach themselves unto the house of Jacob;
And peoples ||shall take them|, and bring them into their own place,
And the house of Israel shall possess themselves of them |upon the soil of Yahweh| ||for servants
and for handmaids||,—
Thus shall they be taking captive their captors,
And shall tread down their oppressors.
And it shall come to pass  8 in the day when Yahweh ||shall give thee rest| from thy toil, and from thy disquiet,—and from the hard service which had been laid upon thee>  9 that thou shall take up this taunt over the king of Babylon, and shalt say:—
How’ hath ceased’ the oppressor!
Ceased the exactress!
Broke’ hath Yahweh the staff of the lawless,—
The sceptre of despots;
Smiting peoples in passion,
With stroke unremitting,—
Trampling, in anger, on nations,
Persecution unhindered.
<Quiet, at rest> the whole earth,—
Men have burst into shouting!
||Yeà the pine-trees|| make mirth at thee,
||Cedars of Lebanon||
<Since thou wast laid low>
No feller hath come up against us!

[9] [Hades, beneath] is excited about thee
To meet thine arrival,—
Rousing up, for thee, Shades, a
All the he-goats b of earth!
Maketh rise from their thrones,
All the kings of the nations.

||All of them|| answer, and say to thee,—
||Thou too|| made strengthless [as well]!
<Unto us> art thou like!
<Brought down to Hades> thy pride,
The hum of thy harps, c
<Beneath thee> is spread out corruption, d
And [thy coverlet]| | =—worms!

How' hast thou fallen from heaven,
O Shining One—Son of the Dawn!
Hewn down to the earth,
O crusher of nations!

Yet ||thou|| didst say in thy heart—
<The heavens> will I lift up my
That I may sit in the Mount of Assembly, f
In the Recesses of the North:
I will mount on the hills of the clouds,
I will match the Most High!

<Howbeit> <to Hades> shalt thou be brought down,—
To the Recesses of the Pit!

||They who see thee|| <upon thee> will gaze,
<Upon thee> will thoughtfully muse,—
Is this' the man who startled the earth?
Who terrified kingdoms?
Who made the world like a desert?
And <its cities> brake down?
<Its prisoners> he loosed not,
Each one to his home?

||All the kings of the nations—they all|| are lying in state,
Each one in his crypt;

But [thou] art flung out from thy grave,
Like a scion detested, g
Beshrouded with slain, the pierced of the sword,
Like a carcase trod underfoot:

<As for them who go down to h the stones of the Pit> i
Thou shalt not be united with them in burial;
For <thy land> thou didst ruin,
<Thy people> didst slay,— <Unnamed to times age-abiding>
Be the seed of the wicked!

Prepare—for his sons—shambles,
For the iniquity of their fathers,—
They shall not rise, nor possess the earth,
Nor fill the face of the world with cities.

I will rise, then, against them,
Declareth Yahweh of hosts,—
And will cut off from Babylon,
Record and remnant,
And j scion and seed,
Declareth Yahweh.

And will make her a possession for the bittern, k
And marshes of water,—
And will sweep it with the besom of destruction,
Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

Yahweh of hosts [hath sworn], saying,—
Surely <as I intended> ||so|| hath it come to pass,
And <as I purposed> ||the same|| shall stand:—
That I will break in pieces the Assyrian, in my land,
Yea <upon my mountains> will I tread him underfoot,—
So shall be removed from off them, his yoke,
And ||his burden|| [from off their shoulder] shall be removed.

||This|| is the purpose that is purposed upon all the earth,—

§ 14. A Prophecy against Philistia,—“Yahweh hath founded Zion.”

28<In the year that King Ahaz died> came this oracle:—

29 Do not rejoice, Philistia [any of thee],
   In that the rod of him that smote thee [is broken],—
   For <out of the root of the serpent> shall come forth [a viper],
   And his fruit be a fiery dragon that flieth.

30 Then shall feed, the firstborn of the poor,
And ||the needy|| [in confidence] lie down,—
And I will kill with famine thy root,
And ||thy residue|| shall be slain.

31 Howl—O gate, Make outcry—O city,
   Dispersed art thou, Philistia [all of thee],—
   For <out of the north> a smoke cometh in,
   With ‘no’ straggler in his ranks.

32 What, then, shall one answer the messengers of a nation?
   That ||Yahweh|| hath founded Zion,
   And <in her> shall seek refuge, the oppressed of his people.

§ 15. A Prophecy against Moab.

Chapter 15.

1 The oracle on Moab:
   <Because <in a night> was laid waste Ar of Moab—destroyed!>
   Because <in a night> was laid waste Kir of Moab—destroyed>
2 He hath gone up to Bayith and Dibon, to the high places, to weep,—
   <On Nebo and on Medeba> Moab is howling,
   <On all their heads> a baldness,
   <Every’ beard> clipped.
3 <In their streets> have they girded them with sackcloth,— <On their housetops, and in their broadways> every one<, is howling—melting in tears;
   And Heshbon [hath made outcry], and Elealeh,
   <Unto Jahaz> hath been heard their voice,—
   ||For this cause|| do the armed men of Moab roar,
   ||Every man’s soul|| quivereth to him.
5 ||Mine own heart|| for Moab continueth to make outcry,
   ||Her fugitive|| [as far as Zoar] is like a heifer of three years;
   For <the accent of Luhith> [with weeping] they ascend,
   For <by the way of Horonaim—an outcry of destruction> they excite;
6 For ||the waters of Nimrim|| shall become |desolation|,—
   For grass [hath dried up],
   Herbage [hath failed],
   ||Green thing|| hath not sprung up!
7 <For this cause> |the savings they had made, and that which they had stored<,—
   <Over the torrent-bed of the willows> shall they bear them.
8 For the outcry [hath gone round] the boundary of Moab,—
   ||As far as Eglaim|| the howling thereof,
   And ||to Beer-elim|| the howling thereof.
9 For ||the waters of Dimon|| are full of blood,
   For I will lay upon Dimon new troubles, b,—
   To the escaped of Moab> [the lions],
   Even to the survivors on the soil.

Chapter 16.

1 Send ye the lamb due to the ruler of the land,
   From Sela towards the desert,—
   Unto the mount of the daughter of Zion;
2 Yet shall it be that—

   Shall be the daughters of Moab, at the fords of Arnon.

Execute thou judgment,
Make as the night thy shadow, in the midst of high noon,—
Hide thou the outcasts, <The wanderer> do not thou reveal.

4 Let mine own outcasts [sojourn with thee], O Moab, become thou a covert to them, from the face of the spoiler,—
For vanished is the oppressor, At an end is extortion, They who tread down have ceased out of the land.

5 So shall be established [in lovingkindness] [a throne],
And one shall sit thereon [in truth] [in the home of David],— Judging—and seeking justice, and speeding righteousness.

6 We have heard of the arrogance of Moab,
Proud exceedingly!
His haughtiness and his arrogance and his passion,
<Not true> are his boastings.

7 Therefore shall [Moab] howl for [Moab], [All that belong to her] shall wail,—
<For the ruins> of Kir-hareseth shall they moan out, Utterly stricken!

8 For [the fields of Heshbon] are withered—
The vine of Sibmah, [The owners of nations] have broken off ruddy branches, <Unto Jazer> had they reached, They had spread abroad to the desert,— [Her boughs] had stretched forth, had gone over to the sea.

9 <For this cause> will I bewail, in the wailing of Jazer, The vine of Sibmah,
I will drench thee with my tears, O Heshbon, and Elealeh,—

For <upon thy fruit-harvest, and upon thy grain-harvest> [the battle-shout] hath fallen.

Now shall be withdrawn rejoicing and exultation, out of the garden-land,
And <in the vineyards> shall be neither singing nor shouting,— <Wine in the winepress> the treader [shall not tread],
<The vintage-shout> have I made to cease.

11 [For this cause] [mine inward parts—for Moab] [like a lyre] shall make a plaintive sound,—
Yea [what is within me] [for Kir-heres].

And it shall be—
<When it is seen that Moab hath laboured in vain on the high place>
He shall enter into his holy place to pray, and shall not prevail.

13 <[This]] is the word which Yahweh spake concerning! Moab in [time past];
But [now] hath Yahweh spoken, saying, <In three years,—as the years of a hireling> shall the glory of Moab be diminished, with all the great multitude,—even a very small remnant, [of no account].

§ 15. A Prophecy against Damascus.

Chapter 17.

1 The oracle on Damascus,—
Lo! [Damascus] is to be removed from being a city,
And shall become a heap of ruins:

2 [Forsaken] are the desolate cities,— [For flocks] shall they serve, Which shall lie down, and have none’ to make them afraid.

3 Then shall the fortress cease from Ephraim, And the kingdom from Damascus, and the remnant of Syria,— <Like the glory of the sons of Israel> shall they be,— Declarest Yahweh of hosts.

§ 18. A Prophecy against Egypt: “Yahweh will plague and heal!”

Chapter 19.

1 The oracle on Egypt:
Lo! [Yahweh], riding upon a swift cloud, and he will enter Egypt,
And the idols of Egypt shall shake at his presence,
And [the heart of Egypt] shall melt within him;
2 And I will stir up Egyptians against Egyptians,
And they shall fight—
Every one against his brother, and Every one against his neighbour,—
City against city, and Kingdom against kingdom.

3 And the spirit of Egypt shall vanish within them,
Yea <the sagacity thereof> will I swallow up,—
And they will seek Unto the idols, and
Unto them that mutter, and Unto them that have familiar spirits,\(^c\) and Unto the wizards;

4 And I will deliver the Egyptians into the hand of a cruel lord,—
And a fierce king shall rule over them,
Declareth the Lord,\(^d\) Yahweh of hosts.
5 And the waters shall be dried up from the great stream,\(^e\)—
And [the River] shall waste and be dry;
6 And rivers [shall stink],
The canals of Egypt be shallow and waste,
[Reed and rush] be withered;
7 The meadows by the Nile, by the mouth of the Nile,
And all that is sown in the Nile,
Shall be dry driven away and not be!
8 Then shall the fishers lament,
And all shall mourn who cast in the Nile a hook,—
And [they who spread nets on the face of the waters] shall languish;

9 Then shall turn pale
The workers in combed flax,—and
The weavers of white linen;
10 Then shall her pillars be crushed,—

Chapter 20.

1 <In the year that Tartan entered Ashdod, when Sargon king of Assyria [sent him],—and he fought against Ashdod and captured it>.

2 ||at that time|| spake Yahweh, through# Isaiah son of Amoz, saying, Go, and loose the sackcloth from off thy loins, And <thy sandal> draw thou off from thy foot,— And he did so, walking disrobed and barefoot. 3 Then said Yahweh,—

3 <As my servant Isaiah |hath walked| disrobed and barefoot, three years, as a sign and a wonder, against Egypt and against Ethiopia>

4 ||So|| shall the king of Assyria lead away the captives of Egypt, and the exiles of Ethiopia, young and old, disrobed and barefoot,—with their persons behind uncovered’ ||the shame of Egypt||.

5 Thus shall they be confounded, and turn pale,— For Ethiopia, their expectation, and For Egypt, their boast;4 And the inhabitant of this shore |shall exclaim|, in that day, Lo! ||such|| is our expectation, whereunto we fled for help, that we might be delivered from the presence of the king of Assyria!

§ 20. A Prophecy against the Desert of the Sea.

Chapter 21.

1 The oracle on the desert of the sea:

≤As storm-winds in the South which with a rush from the desert do come from a terrible land>

2 [So] hath [a grievous vision] been told me:—

||The deceiver|| is deceiving,

And [the spoiler] is spoiling,

Go up, O Elam,

Besiege, O Media,

<All the sighing she hath caused> have I made to cease.

3 ||For this cause|| are my loins filled’ with anguish,

||Pangs|| have seized me, as the pangs of her that is giving birth,—

I writhe, so that I cannot hear,

I tremble, so that I cannot see:

4 My heart fluttereth’,

||A horror|| terrifieth me,—

<My twilight of pleasure>⁵ hath he turned for me into a time of trembling.

5 [Ye thought] to prepare the table—spread the mat—eat—drink!…

Arise, ye chieftains, anoint the shield!⁶

6 For ||thus|| hath My Lord said’ unto me,—

Go, set the watchman,

<What he seeth> let him tell!

7 ≤When he seeth

A train of horsemen in double rank,

A train of asses,

A train of camels≥

Then shall he hearken attentively, with diligent heed.

8 Then cried he,

A lion!

<On the watch> O My Lord, had I’ been standing continually, by day,

And <at my post> had I’ been stationed whole nights;—

9 When lo! here was a train of men coming,

With horsemen in double rank,—

And one began and said,

Fallen! fallen! is Babylon,

And ||all the images of her gods|| are smashed to the ground!

10 O thou My threshing!€

And the grain of my corn-floor!€

<That which I have heard from Yahweh of hosts, the God of Israel>

Have I declared |unto you|.

§ 21. A Prophecy against Dumah (Edom).

11 The oracle on Dumah:€

<Unto me> is one crying—out of Seir,

Watchman! how far gone is the night?

Watchman! how far gone is the night?⁶

12 Said the watchman,

There cometh a morning,

But also’a night,—

<If ye will enquire> enquire ye¹—

Come [again]!

§ 22. A Prophecy against Arabia.

13 The oracle on Arabia,—

<Among the shrubs in Arabia> must ye lodge,

Ye caravans of Dedanites.

14 <To meet the thirsty> bring ye water,—

Ye dwellers in the land of Tema;

<With bread for him> get in advance of him that is in flight!

15 For <before swords> have they fled:

Before a sword that is drawn,

Before a bow that is bent,

And before the stress of war.

16 For ||thus|| hath My Lord said unto me,—

<Within a year, according to the years of a hireling> shall fall all the glory of Kedar;

¶ “The oracle of silence, i.e., of concealment, hidden meaning.”

Instead of “in Arabia,” Cheyne reads and renders: “at eventide”—P.B.
And had no regard unto him that made it,
Nor unto him that formed it long ago> had ye respect.
And § when My Lord Yahweh of hosts called, in that day,—for weeping, and for lamentation, and for shaving bare, and for girding with sackcloth>
Then lo! joy and rejoicing, killing oxen, and slaughtering sheep, eating flesh, and drinking wine,—
Let us eat and drink,
For <to-morrow> we may die!
Therefore did Yahweh reveal himself in mine ears,
Surely there shall be no propitiatory-covering put over this iniquity for you, until ye die,
Saith My Lord, Yahweh, of hosts.
§ 24. Shebna removed from his office as Steward, and Eliakim installed in his stead.

||Thus|| said My Lord Yahweh<sup>d</sup> of hosts,
Come, go in unto this steward,
Unto Shebna, who is over the house:<sup>e</sup>
What doest thou here?
And whom hast thou here?
That thou hast hewn for thyself here a sepulchre,—
As one hewing on high' his sepulchre,
Cutting out in the cliff<sup>f</sup> a habitation for himself?
Lo! ||Yahweh|| is about to hurl thee, with a hurl, O mighty man,—
And roll thee with a roll;
He will ||toss|| thee, with a toss, like a ball, into a country wide on both hands,—
||There|| shalt thou die,
And ||there|| shall thy glorious' chariots be the contempt of the house of thy lord.
Thus will I thrust thee out from thine office,—
And <from thy station> shall one tear thee down.
And it shall come to pass, <in that day>
That I will call for my servant, for Eliakim, son of Hilkiah,
And will clothe him with thy tunic, And <with thy girdle> will I gird him,

And shut, and none’ shall open;
23 And I will fasten him as a peg in a sure place,—
And he shall become a throne of glory to the house of his father;
24 And they shall hang upon him, all the weight of his fathers house—
The offshoots, and the side-twigs—
All the small vessels,
Both the cups and all the jugs

§ 25. A Prophecy against Tyre: when restored to her Traffic, she will render Tribute to the Temple of Yahweh.

Chapter 23.

1 The oracle on Tyre,—
Howl! ye ships of Tarshish,
For it is laid too waste to be a haven to enter,
<From the land of Cyprus> hath it been unveiled to them.
2 Be dumb, ye inhabitants of the Coast,—
Whom [the merchants of Zidon]|<passing over the sea> once replenished;
3 Yea <on mighty waters> was the grain of Shihor,
||The harvest of the Nile| was her increase,—
And so she became a mart of nations.
4 Turn thou pale, O Zidon,
For spoken’ hath the sea, the fortress of the sea,
saying,—
I have neither been in pangs nor given birth,
I have neither brought up young men, nor promoted virgins.
5 <Like the report of Egypt>
They shall be in pangs at the like report of Tyre.⁹
6 Pass ye over to Tarshish,—
Howl, ye inhabitants of the Coast:
7 Is this, to you, an exultation?
<Though [from ancient days] is her antiquity>, Yet shall her own feet’ carry her away, far off to dwell.⁴
d 8 Who’ hath purposed this, against Tyre,
The bestower of crowns,—
Whose merchants are princes,
Her traders, the honourable of the earth?
9 ||Yahweh of hosts|| hath purposed it,—
To humble the pride of all beauty,
To make of little esteem all the honourable of
the earth.
10 Pass through thy land, as the Nile,— O daughter of Tarshish, there is no’ restraint⁶ any longer!
11 ||His hand> hath he stretched out over the sea,
He hath shaken kingdoms,—
||Yahweh|| hath given command against the Phoenician coast,⁷
To destroy her fortresses.
12 Therefore hath he said,—
||No more, again|| do thou exult,
Thou violated virgin daughter of Zidon,—
<To Cyprus> arise and pass over,
<Even there> shall one find thee no rest.
13 Lo! <the land of the Chaldeans>
|This| is the people, that was not,
||Assyria|| founded it for the inhabitants of the desert,—
They set up its siege-towers,
They demolished its palaces,
Made it a ruin!
14 Howl, ye ships of Tarshish,—
For laid waste’ is your fortress.
15 So shall it be <in that day>
That Tyre shall be forgotten seventy years,
According to the days of a certain king:
<At the end of seventy years> shall it befall
Tyre according to the song of the harlot:
16 Take thou a lyre, Go round the city,
O harlot forgotten,—

b “Jars, pitchers”—O.G.
c Cp. O.G. p. 453, b. d Or: “sojourn.”
e But see O.G. 561⁶.
f See O.G. 488⁷.
Sweetly touch the strings, Lengthen out the song,
That thou mayest be called to mind.

17 So shall it be <at the end of seventy years>
That Yahweh will visit Tyre,
And she will return to her hire,—
Yea she will play the harlot—with all the kingdoms of the earth, upon the face of the ground.

18 But [her merchandise and her hire] shall be hallowed unto Yahweh,
It shall not be stored up, nor hoarded,—
For <to them who dwell before Yahweh> shall her merchandise belong,
That they may eat to satisfaction,
And have stately apparel.

§ 26. A world-wide Devastation gives place to a Manifestation of Yahweh as King in Jerusalem; in connection with which, supra-mundane and mundane hostile Powers are Imprisoned, Death is Defeated, the Veil over the Nations is Removed, Israel fills the World with Fruit, and Songs are sung both in the Uttermost Parts of the Earth and in the Land of Judah.

Chapter 24.

1 Lo! Yahweh emptying the earth, and laying it waste,—
And he will turn over the face thereof,
And scatter them who dwell therein.

2 And it shall be—
<As the people> ||so|| the priest,
<As the servant> ||so|| his lord,
<As the maid> ||so|| her mistress,—
<As the buyer> ||so|| the seller,
<As the lender> ||so|| the borrower,
<As the debtor> ||so|| his creditor.

3 Emptied—emptied—shall be the earth, yea pillaged—pillaged,—
For ||Yahweh|| hath spoken this word.

4 Mourneth, fadeth, the earth
Languished, fadeth, the world,—
Languished’ have the lofty of the people of the earth.

5 Yea |the earth itself| is profaned under them who dwell therein,—
For they have

Chapter 25.

1 O Yahweh! <my God> thou art,
   I will exalt thee,
   I will praise thy Name,
   For thou hast done a wonderful thing,—
   Purposes of long ago
   Faithfulness in truth.

2 For thou didst become
   A refuge to the weak
   A refuge to the needy
   when distress was upon him,—
   A shelter from the storm,
   A shade from the heat,
   When the blast of tyrants was like a storm against a wall.

3 As heat in a desert ||the pomp of foreigners||
   wilt thou subdue,—
   Heat—with the shade of a cloud,
   ||The song of tyrants|| become low.

4 Then will Yahweh of hosts prepare for all the peoples <in this mountain>
   A banquet of fat things
   A banquet of old wines,—
   Of fat things full of marrow,
   Of old wines well refined;

5 And he will swallow up <in this mountain>
   The mask of the veil
   the veil that is upon all the peoples,
   And the web that is woven over all the nations.

6 Having swallowed up death itself victoriously>
My Lord, Yahweh, | will wipe away| tears from off all faces,—
And <the reproach of his own people> will he remove from off all the earth,
   For ||Yahweh|| hath spoken.

9 So shall it be said <in that day>
   Lo! <our God> is this!
   We waited for him, that he might save us,—
   ||This|| is Yahweh!
   We waited for him,
   Let us exult and rejoice, in his salvation.

10 For the hand of Yahweh will settle down in this mountain,—
Then shall Moab be trodden down in its place,
Like the treading down of a strawheap in the water of a dunghill;

11 Should he spread forth his hands in the midst thereof,
As a swimmer spreadeth forth to swim
Then would be laid low his pride, together with the devices of his hands.

12 Yea <the lofty stronghold of thy walls>
Hath he brought down—
Laid low—
Levelled to the ground, even unto the dust.

Chapter 26.

1 <In that day> shall be sung this song, in the land of Judah,—

2 Open ye the gates,—
That there may enter in—a righteous nation preserving fidelity.

3 <A purpose sustained> thou wilt guard,
[saying] Prosper! Prosper!
Because <in thee> hath he been led to trust.

4 Trust ye in Yahweh unto futurity,—
For <in Yah, Yahweh> is a rock of ages.

5 For he hath brought down the inhabitants of the height, the city exalted,—
He layeth it low.
Layeth it low, even to the ground,
Levelleth it, even unto the dust:

6 The foot trampleth it,—
The feet of the lowly,
a The steps of the weak.

7 ||The path of a righteous man|| is ||even||,—
O Upright One! <the track of a righteous man> thou makest level. b

8 Surely <in the path of thy regulations> O Yahweh, we waited for thee,— Unto thy Name and unto thy Memorial c was there a longing of soul:
With my soul I longed for thee in the night, Yea <with my spirit within me> I kept on searching for thee,— d
For <when thy regulations [extend] to the earth>
The inhabitants of the world will have learned ||righteousness||.

9 <Let favour be shewed to the lawless> he hath not learned righteousness,
<In a land of honest dealings> he acteth perversely,—
And seeth not the splendour of Yahweh.

10 O Yahweh <though thy hand be lifted up> yet do they not see, Would they might see—and turn pale at a peoples zeal,—
Surely ||the fire of thine enemies|| must consume them!

11 O Yahweh, thou wilt ensure prosperity for us,—
For <even all our works> hast thou wrought for us.

12 O Yahweh, our God!
Lords other than thee have owned us,—
By thyself alone will we call upon thy Name.

13 ||The dead|| come not to life again,
||The shades|| do not arise, f—
Therefore thou hast visited and destroyed them, And caused to perish every memorial of them.

14 Thou hast increased the nation, O Yahweh,
Thou hast increased the nation, |thou hast gotten thyself glory|,
Thou hast extended far, all the ends of the land.

15 O Yahweh! <in distress> they sought thee,— They poured out a whispered prayer, h when thy chastening was upon them.

16 ≤Like as a woman with child—appear to limit the statement to the “other lords” just alluded to in ver. 13. As much as to say: When our enemies die, we have done with them for ever; even though, for a time, they had been our “lords.”

h “A prayer in a hushed or whispered tone”—Davies’ H.L.
Chapter 27.

1 <In that day> will Yahweh
  <With his sword—the hard and the great and the strong>
  [Bring punishment]
  Upon Leviathan, the floeing serpent,
  And upon Leviathan, the crooked serpent,—
  And will slay the monster which is in the sea.

2 <In that day> A Wine-Vineyard! sing ye unto her:
3 ||—Yahweh|| am watching over her,
   <Every moment> will I water her,— <Lest anyone injure her>
   <Night and day> will I watch over her.
4 <Fury> have I none,—
   Oh that there were delivered to me, briars and thorns, in battle!
   I would march in among them,
   I would set fire to them [one and all].
5 Else, let one lay hold of my protection;,
   Let him make peace with me,—
   <Peace> let him make with me.
6 <In coming times> shall Jacob [strike root],
   Israel [shall blossom and bud],—
   Then shall they fill the face of the world with fruit.
7 Was it <with the smiting of his smiter> that he smote him?
   Or <as with the slaying of his slayer> was he slain?
8 <By driving her away—by dismissing her> wouldest thou contend with her?
   He removed her by his rough wind, in a day of east wind.
9 [Therefore] <hereby> shall a propitiatory-covering be put over the iniquity of Jacob,
   And all ||this|| is the fruit of taking away his sin,—
   <When he maketh all the stones of an altar like chalk-stones that soon crumble>
   Sacred Stems and Sun Images [shall not arise].
10 For ||the fortified city|| is solitary,
   The dwelling forsaken, and left as a wilderness,—
   ||There|| shall the calf feed,
   And ||there|| lie down,
   And shall consume the branches thereof:

ISAIAH – Chapter 28.

11 When the cut-off boughs thereof are dry, they shall be broken to pieces, ||Women|| coming are kindling it! For it is ||not a people of understanding||, ||For this cause||
Will he that made him [not have compassion upon him] And ||[he that formed him]|| will shew him no favour.

12 And it shall come to pass [in that day] That Yahweh will beat off his fruit from the stream of the River [=Euphrates], unto the torrent-valley of Egypt,— And ||ye|| shall be picked up, one by one, O sons of Israel.

13 And it shall come to pass [in that day] That there shall be a blowing with a great horn, Then shall come in Such as have wandered in the land of Assyria, And such as have been outcasts in the land of Egypt,— And they shall bow themselves down unto Yahweh, In the holy mountain, In Jerusalem.

§ 27. Samaria’s Overthrow foretold, the Babble of Ephraim’s Drunkards being mimicked in Derision and in Wrath: Jerusalem’s Scoffing Rulers denounced; and to them is threatened the founding of a Testing Stone in Zion.

Chapter 28.

1 Alas! for the proud crown of the drunkards of Ephraim, And for his fading wreath of majestic beauty,— Which is on the head of the fertile valley, of them who are overcome\(^a\) with wine.

2 Lo! My Lord\(^b\) hath one who is ||strong and bold||, \(<\text{Like a storm of hail, a destroying tempest,}^c\>
Hath he thrust it down to the earth with force:
\(<\text{With the feet}^d\> shall be trodden down\(^e\) the proud crown of the drunkards of Ephraim!

3 So shall his fading wreath of majestic beauty, Which is on the head of the fertile valley, become’— Like the first-ripe fig before fruit-harvest, Which \(<\text{when he that looketh upon it seeth,}^f\> while it is yet in his hand\(g\) he swalloweth it up.

4 ||In that day|| will Yahweh of hosts become A crown of beauty, and A diadem of majesty,— Unto the remnant of his people:

5 Even a spirit of justice—to him that presideth over justice, And strength to them who would turn back the battle at the gate.

6 But \(<\text{as for these}^h|| With wine\> do they reel, and \(<\text{With strong drink}^i\> do they stagger,— ||Priest and prophet|| reel with strong drink They are swallowed up through wine, They stagger through strong drink, They reel in prophetic vision, They totter in pronouncing judgment.

7 For ||all tables|| are full of filthy vomit,— There is no place!

8 ||Whom|| would he teach knowledge? And ||whom|| would he cause to understand the message? Them who are weaned from the milk? taken from the breasts?

9 For it is— Precept upon precept, precept upon precept, Line upon line, line upon line,— A little here, a little there.\(d\)

10 For \(<\text{with a jabbering lip, and with an alien tongue}^f\> must he speak unto this people! To whom he said— ||This|| is the rest—give ye rest to the weary, and ||This|| is the quietness,— But they were unwilling to hear.

11 So the word of Yahweh must be’ to them— Precept upon precept, precept upon precept, Line upon line, line upon line,

\(a\) Ml.: “smitten down.”
\(b\) Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns.): “Lo! Yahweh”—G.n.
\(c\) Some cod. (w. 4 ear. pr. edns.): “a gate of destruction”—G.n.
\(d\) Heb.: \(^e\)
\(Zaw \, lâzâw \, zaw \, lâzâw,\)
\( \text{“The repetition and assonance of the short words are intended to set forth mimetically the drunken babble of the scoffers”} \)— Davies’ H.L.
A little here, a little there, a—
That they may go, and fall backward, and be torn, and snared, and captured.

14 [Therefore], hear ye the word of Yahweh,
Ye men who scoff,—
Ye rulers of this people that is in Jerusalem.

15 [Because ye have said—
We have solemnised a covenant with death,
And <with hades> have we effected a vision, a—

||The overflowing scourge, when it sweepeth
b by|| shall not reach unto us,
For we have made lying' our refuge,
And <in falsehood> have we hid ourselves≥

16 [Therefore]
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh, c
Behold me! founding in Zion, a stone,
A stone of testing, d
The costly corner of a well-laid foundation,
||He that trusteth|| shall not make haste!

But I will make—
Justice' the line, and Righteousness' the plummet,—
And the hail shall |sweep away|' your refuge of lying,
And <your hiding-place> the waters shall overflow;

So shall be wiped out your covenant with death,
And ||your vision| with hades|| not stand,—
<When ||the overflowing scourge|| sweepeth past> then shall ye be thereby beaten down:

As often as it sweepeth past> it shall take you' away,
For <morning by morning> shall it pass along,
By day and by night,—
And it shall be nothing less than a terror, to make out the message;

For too short' is the couch to stretch oneself out,—
And ||the coverlet|| too narrow, when one draweth up his feet.b

21 For <as in Mount Perazim> i will Yahweh arise,
<As in the vale of Gibeon> will he be stirred,—
To do his work—foreign' is his work,
And to perform his task—strange' is his task.

22 ||Now|| therefore, do not shew yourselves
scoffers,
Lest your fetters |be bound fast|,—
For <of a full end, and that a decreed one> have I heard from My Lord, Yahweh of hosts, upon all the land.k

§ 28. Practical Wisdom traced to its true Source [added by some to the foregoing section].

23 Give ear, and hear ye my voice,—
Hearken, and hear ye my speech:—

24 <All day long> doth the plowman plow for sowing?
Doth he continue laying open and harrowing his soil?

25 Doth he not <when he hath levelled the face thereof>
Cast abroad the fennel?
And <the cummin> doth he not scatter?
And plant wheat in rows,
And barley in a lot,
And spelt in the border thereof?

26 Yea, One hath trained him to good judgment,
||His God|| directeth him.

27 For <not with a sledge> must |black coriander|
be threshed,
Nor must ||the wheel of a cart|| <on cummin> be turned,
But <with a staff> must |fennel| be beaten,
And |cummin| ||with a rod|:

||Bread-corn|| must be crushed,—
Yet would he not be evermore' ||threshing|| it,
So he hasteneth over it the wheel of his cart,
with his horsemen,
He crusheth it not!

29 ||Even this|| <from Yahweh of hosts> cometh forth,—

a Heb.:—
Wēhâyâh lâhem dēvar-yahweh',
Zaw lâzîw, zaw lâzîw,
Kâw lâkâw kâw lâkâw,

Chapter 29.

1 Alas for Ariel, Ariel,b
The city against which [David] encamped,— Add ye a year to a year,
Let ||the festivals|| come round;
Yet will I bring Ariel into straits,—
And she shall become a bewailing and wailing,
Yea she shall become to me a veritable Hearth of God.d

2 And I will encamp round about against thee,—
And lay siege against thee with a fort,
And raise against thee siege-works;
And thou shalt be brought low—
<Out of the earth> shalt thou speak,
And <out of the dust> shalt thou lower thine utterance,—
And <as one that hath a familiar spirit>
<Out of the earth> shall come thy voice,
And <out of the dust> thy speech shall chirp;
Then shall be [as fine dust] the multitude of thy foreigners,—
And <as chaff that passeth away> the multitude of tyrants;
And it shall come to pass, in a twinkling, suddenly.

3 § 30. Yahweh further complains of his own People for Want of Discernment, for Formality, and unbelieving Perversity; but foretells Better things.

4 From Yahweh of hosts> shalt thou be visited,
With thunder, and with earthquake, and a great noise, hurricane and storm, and a flame of fire devouring;
And it shall be like the dream of a night vision,
With the multitude of all the nations who have been making war against Ariel,—
Even with all who have been making war against her, and her stronghold, and who have been laying siege to her;
Yea it shall be

≤As when the hungry man dreameth’, and lo! he is eating,
But he awaketh, and his soul is empty,
Or as when the thirsty man dreameth’, and lo! he is drinking,
But he awaketh, and lo! he is faint, and his soul is craving≥
||§0|| shall it be with the multitude of all the nations, that have come forth to war against Mount Zion.

5 Yea hath tightly shut your eyes—the prophets,—
And <your heads—the seers> hath he covered.e

6 And so all’ vision hath become unto you, as the words of a writing that is sealed,
Which is delivered unto one acquainted with writing,saying,
Pray thee, read this,
And he saith,
I cannot, for it’ is sealed;
And then the writing is delivered to one unacquainted with writing,saying,
Pray thee, read this,
And he saith,
I am not acquainted with writing.

||Therefore|| behold me! again' dealing wonderfully with this people, doing wonderfully a wonderful thing,—
So [shall perish] the wisdom of their wise men,
And [the intelligence of their intelligent men] shall vanish!
Alas! for them who would fain have been too deep for Yahweh, by giving secret counsel,—and therefore [in the dark] have been their doings, and they have said,
Who' can see us? and—
Who' can understand us?
Your perverseness!
As if [like clay] [the potter] could be reckoned;

He made me not?
Or hath [the thing fashioned] ever said [of him that fashioned it]
He hath no understanding?

||Not now|| shall [Jacob] turn pale,
And [not now] shall their faces whiten;
For <when he seeth his children, the work of my hands, in his midst>

And <the God of Israel> will they regard with awe.
Then will they who erred in spirit, comprehend, And [the murmurers] accept instruction.

Chapter 30.
1 Alas! for sons who are rebellious,
Declareth Yahweh.
Executing a purpose, but not from me,
And pouring out a libation, but not from my spirit,—
That they may add sin to sin:
Who are setting out to go down to Egypt,
But [at my mouth] have not asked,— Betaking them to the protection of Pharaoh
And seeking refuge under the shadow of Egypt.
Therefore shall [the protection of Pharaoh] become to you] a shame,
And [the refuge in the shadow of Egypt] an insult;
For [their princes] have been [in Zaan],—
And [their messengers] unto Hanes would draw near.
||Every one|| hath felt ashamed of a people that could not serve them,—
Neither with help, nor with service,
But they are a shame, yea even a reproach.

They would carry, on the shoulders of young asses, their wealth,
And, on the humps of camels, their treasures,
Unto a people that cannot serve them.

But as the breaking of the potter's vessel:—
Therefore have I proclaimed concerning this,
|Insolent| ! |they|| sit still! |

Now enter—
Write it upon a tablet before them,
And <upon a scroll> inscribe it,—
That it may serve for a later day,
For futurity, unto times age-abiding:—

That it is ||a rebellious people||
Sons, apt at deceiving,—
Sons, unwilling to hear the law of Yahweh:
Who have said to [the seers],
Ye must not [see]!
To the prophets,
Ye must not prophesy to us reproofs!
Speak to us smooth things,
Prophecy delusions:
Depart ye from the way,
Turn aside from the path,—
Desist, from setting before us ||the, Holy One of Israel||.

Therefore—
||Thus|| saith the Holy One of Israel,
Because ye have rejected this word,—
And have trusted in oppression and perverseness,
And have relied thereon shall this iniquity become to you

As a breach ready to fall,
A bulging in a high wall,—
Whose breaking down cometh ||suddenly in a twinkling||.

Yea he will break it—as the breaking of the pitcher of a potter, ||crushed|| he will not spare;
So that there shall not be found, ||when it is smashed||

Or to skim off water out of a cistern.

For ||thus|| said my Lord Yahweh,^e the Holy One of Israel—
||By returning and resting|| shall ye be saved,
||In keeping quiet and trusting|| shall be your strength,— Howbeit ye would not!

But ye said,—
Nay! but ||on horses|| will we flee,
||For this cause|| shall ye indeed flee,—
And ||on the swift|| will we ride,
||For this cause|| ||swift|| shall be your pursuers:

One^d thousand|| ||before the war-cry^d of one—before the war-cry of five|| shall ye flee,—
Until ye have been left,
As a pole on the top of a mountain,
And as an ensign upon a hill.

And ||therefore|| will Yahweh wait,
That he may grant you favour,
And ||therefore|| will he lift himself up,
That he may show you compassion,—
For ||A God of justice^e is ||Yahweh||,
How happy all they who are waiting for him

For ||a people|| ||In Zion|| shall dwell
||In Jerusalem||,—
As for weeping thou shalt not weep!
As for favour he will grant thee favour, at the sound of thine outcry,—
As soon as he heareth he hath answered thee!

Though My Lord^h should give you| bread in short measure, and water in scant allowance|.
Yet will thy Teacher^i [not hide himself any more],
But thine eyes shall ever be looking on thy Teacher.^j

So shall ||thine own ears|| hear a word from behind thee saying,—
||This|| is the way, walk ye therein,
||When ye would turn to the right hand,||
Or when ye would turn to the left||.

Then will ye defile—
The overlaying of thy graven images^k of silver,

In the great day of slaughter,
When the towers fall.

Then shall [the light of the moon] be [as the light of the sun],

\textbf{Chapter 31.}

1 Alas! for them who are going down to Egypt for help,
<On horses> would rely,—
And have trusted—
In chariots—because they are many, and
In horsemen, because they are very bold,
But have not looked unto the Holy One of Israel,
And \(<\text{onto Yahweh}>\) have not sought.

2 But \([\text{he also} > \text{is wise}, \text{and hath brought in calamity,}\>
And \(<\text{his own words} >\) hath he not set aside,—

Against the house of evil-doers, and Against the help of the workers of iniquity.

Now ||the Egyptians|| are |men| and not |GOD|,
And ||their horses|| |flesh| and not |spirit|;
<When ||Yahweh|| shall stretch out his hand>
Then ||he that is giving help|| shall stumble’,
And ||he that is receiving help|| shall fall’;
And ||together|| shall |all| of them |vanish|!

For ||Thus|| hath Yahweh said unto me—
<Like as a lion or a young lion growleth’ over his prey,
Who—though there be called out against him
a multitude of shepherds—
Will not |at| their |voice| be dismayed,
Nor |at| their noise| be daunted>
||So|| will Yahweh of hosts come down, to make war over Mount Zion, and over the hill thereof.

As <little mother-birds hovering> ||so|| will Yahweh of hosts throw a covering over
Jerusalem,—
||Covering|| so will he rescue,
||Passing over|| so will he deliver!

Return ye unto him, against whom the sons of Israel have deeply’ revolted,

For <in that day> will every man reject his idols of silver, and his idols of gold,—
Which your hands made for you |as a sin|!

Then shall the Assyrian fall, by the sword, not of a great man,
And ||the sword, not of a mean man|| shall deavour him,— Howbeit he shall take his flight from² the face of a sword,
And ||his young men|| shall come |under tribute|;

And <his own Cliff³> ||through terror|| shall he pass by,
And his princes’ shall be dismayed at an ensign,—
Declareth Yahweh,
Who hath a flame in Zion,
And hath a furnace in Jerusalem.

§ 32. An Ideal Reign of Righteousness, with its blessed Results in quickened Intelligence, improved Speech, and rectified moral Judgments; which Reign, however, has not yet come, and the Careless Women may lament over impending Calamity; but, with the Outpouring of the Spirit, it will come, and its gracious Fruits abound.
Also, the great Anti-city will be sunk. Happy! all diligent Sowers of the Prophetic Word.

Chapter 32.

1
Lo! <in righteousness> shall reign |a king|
Yea ||even princes|| <with equity> shall bear rule.

2
So shall each one become’
As a hiding-place from the wind
And a covert from the storm,—
As channels of water in a dry place,
As the shadow of a massive cliff in a weary land.

3
And the eyes of them who are ready to see, |shall not be closed|,—
And ||the ears of them who are ready to hear||
shall hearken;

4
And ||the heart of the hurried|| shall take note of knowledge,
And ||the tongue of stammerers|| shall make haste to speak plainly.

5
|A² base man| shall no longer be called
||noble||,—
Nor ||a knave|| be named ||liberal||;

6
For ||a base man|| <with baseness> will speak,
And ||his heart|| will practise iniquity,—
Practising profanity,
And speaking, against Yahweh that which misleadeth,
Emptying the soul of the hungry,
And <the drink of the thirsty> he causeth to fail;

7
Yea  |his weapons| are wicked,—
||He|| <base schemes> hath devised
To ruin the oppressed with speeches of falsehood,
Even when the needy pleadeth for justice.

8
But ||a noble man|| <noble things>²³ hath

And the heavens’ [shall roll up as a scroll],—
Yea [all their host] shall fade—
Like the fading and falling of a leaf from a vine, and Like what fadeth and falleth from a fig-tree.

5 For [my sword] hath been sated in the heavens,—
Lo! upon Edom a shall it descend,
Even on the people whom I have devoted to justice.

<From generation to generation> shall it lie waste,
<Never, never> shall any pass through it:

§ 35. The Invasion of Sennacherib King of Assyria.

Chapter 36.

Now it came to pass, in the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah, that Sennacherib king of Assyria came up against all the fortified cities of Judah, and took them. Then did the king of Assyria send Rabshakeh from Lachish to Jerusalem, unto King Hezekiah, with a heavy force,—and he took his stand by the upper channel of the pool, in the highway of the fuller’s field. And there went out to him—Eliakim son of Hilkiah, who was over the household,—and Shebna, the scribe, and Joah son of Asaph, the recorder. And Rabshakeh said unto them,

Pray ye unto Hezekiah,—
||Thus saith the great king, the king of Assyria, What is this trust, wherewith then dost trust?||

I have said [sayest thou]—they are only words of the lips—

Counsel and might [have I] for the war,—
||Now upon whom’ dost thou trust, that thou hast rebelled against me?||

Lo! thou dost trust on the support of this bruised cane, on Egypt, whereon, if a man lean, it will enter his hand, and lay it open,—
||So is Pharaoh, king of Egypt, to all who trust upon him.||

But if thou shouldst say unto me, ||In Yahweh our God do we trust||

Then is that not he [whose high places and whose altars] Hezekiah hath removed, and said unto Judah and unto Jerusalem,

<Before this altar> shall ye bow yourselves down?

||Now therefore, pledge thyself, I pray thee, with my lord, the king of Assyria,— That I supply thee with two thousand horses, If thou, on thy part, be able to set riders upon them;||

||How then wilt thou turn away the face of one pasha of the least of my lord’s servants?||

Or hast thou, on thy part, trusted upon Egypt, for chariots and for horsemen?

But ||is it ||without Yahweh|| that I have come up against this land, to destroy it? ||Yahweh himself|| said unto me, Go thou up against this land, and destroy it!

Then said Eliakim, and Shebna, and Joah, unto Rabshakeh—

Speak, we pray thee, unto thy servants in the Syrian language, for ||we|| can ||understand|| it,—and do not speak unto us in the Jews’ language, in the ears of the people who are upon the wall.

12 But Rabshakeh said—
   Is it <unto thy lord and unto thee> that my lord hath sent me, to speak these things? Is it not concerning the men who are tarrying upon the wall, that they may eat and drink what cometh from them, ^a ||with you||?

13 So then Rabshakeh took his stand, and cried out with a loud voice, [in the Jews’ language], and said,
   Hear ye the words of the great king, the king of Assyria:

   ||Thus|| saith the king,
   Let not Hezekiah deceive’ you,—for he shall not be able to deliver you.

14 Neither let Hezekiah cause you to trust in Yahweh, saying,
   Yahweh will certainly deliver| us,—this^b city shall not be given over| into the hand of the king of Assyria.

15 Do not hearken unto Hezekiah,—for ||thus|| saith the king of Assyria,
   Deal with me thankfully, and come out unto me,
   Then shall ye eat,
   Every one of his own vine, and
   Every one of his own fig-tree,
   And drink, every one the waters of his own cistern:

16 Until I come and take you, into
   A land like your own land,—
   A land of corn, and new wine,
   A land of bread, and vineyards:—

17 Lest Hezekiah |persuade you|, saying,
   ||Yahweh|| will deliver us!
   Have the gods of the nations |delivered|—any one of them—his country, out of the hand of the king of Assyria?

18 Where^c are the gods of Hamath, and Arpad?
   Where’ are the gods of Sepharvaim?
   ||If indeed they had only delivered Samaria, out of my hand||!

   20 Who’ are they, among all the gods of these countries, that have delivered their country out of my hand?
      That ||Yahweh|| should deliver [Jerusalem] out of my hand!

21 But they held their peace, and answered him not a word,—for <the command of the king> it was, saying,— Ye must not answer him.

22 Then came in—Eliakim son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and Joah son of Asaph, the recorder, unto Hezekiah, with rent clothes,—and they told him the words of Rabshakeh.

---

Chapter 37.

1 And it came to pass, <when King Hezekiah heard it> that he rent his clothes,—and covered himself with sackcloth, and entered the house of Yahweh; 2 and sent Eliakim who was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth,—unto Isaiah the prophet, son of Amoz; 3 and they said unto him,
   ||Thus|| saith Hezekiah,
   <A day of distress and rebuke and reviling> is this day,—
      For children are come to the birth, and ||strength|| is there none* to bring forth.

4 |It may be| that Yahweh thy God will hear’ the words of Rabshakeh, whom the king of Assyria, his lord, hath sent’ to reproach a Living God, and will rebuke the words’ which Yahweh thy God hath heard,—
   Wherefore lift thou up a prayer, for the remnant that remaineth.

5 So the servants of King Hezekiah came unto Isaiah. 6 And Isaiah said unto them,
   ||Thus|| shall ye ||surely say|| unto your lord,—
   ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—
   Be not thou afraid because of the words which thou hast heard, wherewith the servants of the king of Assyria have reviled [Me].

7 Behold me! about to let go against him, a blast of alarm, and <when he heareth the report> then will lie return to his own country,—and I

8 So Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria, warring against Libnah,—for he had heard, that he had broken up from Lachish.

9 And he heard it reported concerning Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, saying,
   He hath come forth to fight with thee,— so <when he heard it> he sent messengers unto Hezekiah, saying:

10 [[Thus]] shall ye surely speak unto Hezekiah king of Judah, saying,
    Let not thy God, in whom |[thou]| art trusting, beguile thee, saying,— Jerusalem [shall not be given over] into the hand of the king of Assyria.

11 Lo! |[thou] thyself] hast heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all the lands, in devoting them to destruction,—and shalt |[thou]| be delivered?

12 Did the gods of the nations [deliver them] whom my fathers destroyed,—Gozan, and Haran, and Rezeph, and the sons of Eden, who were in Telassar?

13 Where’ are the king of Hamath, and the king of Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim,—of Hena, and Ivvah?

14 And <when Hezekiah had received the letter at the hand of the messengers, and had read it> then went he up to the house of Yahweh, and Hezekiah |spread it out| before Yahweh. 15 And Hezekiah prayed’ unto Yahweh, saying:

16 O Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,—inhabiting the cherubim,″
   |[Thou thyself] art God, ″even thou alone, for all the kingdoms of the earth:
   |[Thou] didst make ″the heavens and the earth.

17 Bow down, O Yahweh, thine ear—and hear, Open, O Yahweh, thine eyes—and see,— Yea hear thou all the words of Sennacherib, who hath sent—to reproach a Living God.

18 <Of a truth> O Yahweh,—the kings of Assyria have devoted to destruction all the countries, and their land; and have put their gods in the fire,—for |[no-gods]| were |[they]|, but the work of the hands of men—wood and stone, and so they destroyed them.

19 ||Now|| therefore, O Yahweh our God, save us e out of his hand,—
That all the kingdoms of the earth [may know], That |[thou]| art Yahweh, |[thou] alone].

21 Then Isaiah son of Amoz sent unto Hezekiah, saying,—
   [[Thus]] saith Yahweh, God of Israel,
   |<In that thou hast prayed unto me concerning Sennacherib king of Assyria>|
   ||[this]| is the word which Yahweh hath spoken concerning him,—
   The virgin daughter of Zion |[laughs] to| to scorn—mocketh thee,
The daughter of Jerusalem ||[after thee]| [doth wag her head]!

23 ||Whom|| hast thou reproached, and insulted?
And ||[against whom]| hast thou lifted high thy voice?
Yea thou hast proudly raised thine eyes ||[against the Holy One of Israel].

24 ||Through thy servants| thou hast reproached My Lord, and hast said,—
   <With my multitude of chariots> have I’ ascended
   The height of the mountains, The recesses of Lebanon,
That I may cut down
   Its tallest cedars,
   Its choicest firs,
That I may enter
   Its highest summit,
   Its thick garden forest:

25 ||I|| have digged, and drunk waters,—
That I may dry up, with the soles of my feet, all the Nile-streams of Egypt.

26 Hast thou not heard—
   That <long ago> |[that]| is what I appointed, And <from days of old> devised?
||Now|| have I brought it to pass,
That thou mightest Serve to lay waste [in desolate ruins] ||[fortified cities]|;
And ||[their inhabitants, being powerless]| were overturned, and put to shame—
They became’—

Grass of the field, and 28 Howbeit <thine abode, and thy coming out and thy going in> I know,—and thy raging [against me].

29 <Because thy raging against me, and thy contempt> have come up into mine ears
Therefore will I put
My ring in thy nose, and
My bit in thy lips,
And will turn thee back, by the way by which thou camest.

30 And [this' unto thee] is the sign,
Eating [this year] the growth of scattered seeds,
And [in the second year] that which shooteth up of itself,;
Then in [the third year]
Sow ye'—and reap, and
Plant ye vineyards, and eat the fruit thereof.

31 Then shall the escaped of the house of Judah that remain, [again]
Take root downward,—
And bear fruit upward.

32 For [out of Jerusalem] shall come forth a remnant,
And that which hath escaped, [out of Mount Zion'],—
[The jealousy of Yahweh of hosts] will perform [this].

33 [Therefore], [thus] saith Yahweh, concerning the king of Assyria,
He shall not enter this city,
Nor shoot there, an arrow,—
Nor attack it with shield,
Nor cast up against it a mound:

34 <By the way that he came in>
[By the same] shall he return,—
And [into this city] shall he not enter,
Declareth Yahweh.

35 Thus will I throw a covering over this city, to save it,—
For mine own sake,
And for the sake of David my servant.

36 Then went forth the messenger of Yahweh, and smote—in the camp of the Assyrians—a hundred and eighty-five thousand,—and <when men arose early in the morning> lo! [they were all] dead bodies! 37 So Sennacherib the king of Assyria, brake up, and went his way, and returned,—and remained in Nineveh. 38 And it came to pass, <as he’ was bowing down in the house of Nisroch his god> that [Adrammelech and Sharezer his sons] smote him with the sword, howbeit [they] escaped into the land of Ararat,—and [Esarhaddon his son] reigned [in his stead].

§ 36. Hezekiah's Sickness—Recovery—and Writing.

Chapter 38.

1 <In those days> was Hezekiah sick unto death,—and Isaiah the prophet, son of Amoz, [came in unto him], and said unto him—
||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
Set in order thy house, for [about to die] thou art, and shalt not recover.

2 Then Hezekiah turned his face unto the wall,—and prayed unto Yahweh; and said,—
I beseech thee, O Yahweh, remember, I pray thee, how I have walked before thee, in faithfulness and with an undivided heart, and that which is good in thine eyes I have done. And Hezekiah wept aloud. 4 Then came the word of Yahweh unto Isaiah, saying:

5 Go, and say unto Hezekiah—
||Thus|| saith Yahweh, the God of David thy father:
I have heard thy prayer,
I have seen thy tears,—
Behold me! about to add unto thy days', [fifteen years];

6 And [out of the hand of the king of Assyria] will I deliver thee, and this city;
And I will throw a covering over this city.

7 And [this] to thee shall be the sign, from Yahweh,—that Yahweh will do' this thing which he hath spoken:—

8 Behold me! causing the shadow on the steps, which hath come gone down on the steps of Ahaz with the sun, to return' [backwards] [ten steps].

10    ||[ll] said—

     <In the noontide of my days> I must enter the gates of hades,—
     I am deprived of the residue of my years!
     I said—
     I shall not see Yah, Yah, in the land of the living,
     I shall discern the son of earth no longer, with the dwellers in the quiet land.\(^a\)

12    ||[My dwelling] hath been broken up,

     <Since he hath promised for me> ||[Himself]|| will perform.

§ 37. Messengers from Babylon—how treated by the King—Denunciation by the Prophet.

Chapter 39.

1    <At that time> Merodach-baladan son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a present unto Hezekiah,—for he had heard that Hezekiah had been sick, and had recovered.

2    And Hezekiah [rejoiced over them], and showed them his house of precious things—the silver and the gold and the spices and the precious ointment, and all his armoury—and all that was found among his treasures,—there was nothing which Hezekiah [did not shew them]—in his house, or in all his dominion.\(^3\) Then came Isaiah the prophet, unto King Hezekiah,—and said unto him—
     What said these men? and whence came they unto thee?
     And Hezekiah said,
     <From a land far away> came they unto me, from Babylon!

Then said Isaiah unto Hezekiah,—
Hear thou the word of Yahweh of hosts:

Lo! days are coming, when all that is in thy house, and that which thy fathers have treasured up until this day, shall be carried away unto Babylon,—nothing shall be left,

Saith Yahweh.

And <of thy sons who shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget> shall they take away,—and they shall become eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.

Then said Hezekiah,—
Go Godʹ is the word of Yahweh which thou hast spoken.

And he said,
Surely, there shall be peace and stability in my days.

ISAIAH – Chapter 41.

§ 40. The Coastlands in particular and the Races of Men in general are summoned by Yahweh to defend their Idolatries. An Avenger is called from the North and East, as Yahweh’s Servant, who, though in himself a mere Worm, yet by the help of his God becomes a Threshing Instrument, and scatters Opposers as Chaff. True Worshippers are mightily Consoled, and Idolatry is put to Shame.

Chapter 41.

1 Be silent [and hearken] unto me,\(^a\) O ye Coastlands,
And let the Races of Men renew their strength,—
Let them approach, ||[then]|| let them speak,
||[Together]|| <for controversy> let us draw near:—

2 Who’ roused up one from the East,
||[In righteousness]|| called him to his feet,—
Set before him, nations,
And <over kings> caused him to rule,
His sword [made [them] like dust],
His bow [like driven chaff]:

3 He pursued them, passed along safely,—
<Upon the path of his own feet> entered he not?

4 Who’ hath wrought and performed,
Calling the generations, in advance?
||[I, Yahweh, [who am] First]],
And <with them who are last>|> ||[I]|| am the Same!\(^c\)

5 Coastlands [have seen], so they fear,
||[The ends of the earth]|| are in dread,—
They have drawn near, and have come:

6 ||[Every man]|| <to his neighbour> giveth help,—
And <to his brother> saith, Take courage!

7 So [the carver] hath encouraged [the goldsmith],
[He that maketh smooth with the hammer], [him that smiteth the anvil],—
Saying of the welding, It is ||[good]!!

Then hath he fastened it with nails—it must not totter!

8 But ||[thou], Israel, my Servant, Jacob, whom I have chosen,—
The seed of Abraham, my loving one,\(^d\)

9 Thou whom I have taken hold of from the ends of the earth,
And <from the extremities thereof> have called thee,—
And said to thee <My Servant> thou!
I have chosen thee, and not cast thee off>:

10 Do not fear, for <with thee> I am!
Look not\(^e\) around, for ||[I]|| am thy God,—
I have emboldened thee,
Yea I have helped thee,
Yea I have upheld thee, with my righteous’ right-hand.

11 Lo! they shall turn pale and be ashamed—
All they who have been incensed against thee,—
They shall become as nothing and perish—
The men who have been thine accusers:

12 Thou shalt seek them, but shalt not find them—
The men who have contended with thee,
They shall become as nothing, and as a thing of nought—
The men who have warred against thee;

13 For ||[I, Yahweh, thy God]|| am firmly grasping thy right-hand,—
Who am saying unto thee
Do not fear!

14 Do not fear! Thou worm Jacob,
Ye men of Israel,—

15 Lo! I have made of thee a new pointed threshing sledge, [owning teeth],— Thou shalt thresh mountains, and crush them,
And <hills—like chaff> shalt thou make:

16 Thou shalt fan them, and ||[a wind]|| shall carry them away,
And ||[a whirlwind]|| scatter [them],—
But ||[thou]|| shalt exult in Yahweh,

⁴ “East—West—North—South”; a wider deliverance, surely, than and that from Babylon.
And none <out of my hand> can deliver,—
I work, and who’ reverseth?

Your Redeemer, The Holy One of Israel,—
<For your sakes> have I sent into Babylon,
And will bring down |as fugitives| ||all of them||,
||Even the Chaldeans, in the ships which cause them loud outcry||.²

||I—Yahweh|| am

The Creator of Israel,
Your King.

≤Who setteth’ [in the seal] ||a way||,—
And [in the mighty waters] ||a path||;
Who bringeth forth |Chariot and horse,|

They shall not arise,
They are extinguished,
<Like a wick> are they quenched!

Do not keep in mind, former things,—
And <things of old> do not consider:
Behold me! doing |a new thing|,
||Now|| shall it spring forth,
Will ye not take note thereof?
Surely I will set
||In the desert|| ||a way||,
||In a desolate land|| ||rivers||;

Jackals, and ostriches,
Because I have given—
||In the desert|| ||waters||,
||Rivers|| ||in a desolate land||,
To give drink unto my people, my chosen:
||A people which I have fashioned for myself||,
<My praise> shall they record.

Yet <not upon me> hast thou called, O Jacob,—
For thou hast been wearied of me, O Israel:
Thou hast not brought in to me small cattle as thine ascending-offerings,
Nor <with thy sacrifices> hast thou honoured me,—
I have not oppressed thee with meal-offerings,
Nor have I wearied thee with frankincense;

Thou hast wearied me |with thine iniquities|.

||I—I|| am he that is ready
To wipe out thy transgressions, for mine own sake,—
And <thy sins> not remember.

Put me in mind,
Let us enter into judgment, |at once|,—
Recount ||thou| that thou mayest be justified:
||Thy chief father|| hath sinned,—
And ||thine interpreters|| have transgressed
against me;
So then I must needs profane the rulers of the holy place,—
And deliver
|Jacob| to be devoted to destruction, and
|Israel| ||unto reviling||!

Do not fear, O my Servant Jacob, and Jeshurun,⁴ whom I have chosen;

For I will pour
Water upon the thirsty soil, and Floods upon the dry ground,—
I will pour
My spirit upon thy seed, and
My blessing upon thine offspring;
So will they spring up among⁵ the grass,

Chapter 45.

1 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh, to his Anointed, to Cyrus—
Whose right hand I have firmly grasped,
To subdue, before him, [nations],
And <the loins of kings> will I ungird,—
To open, before him, [the two-leaved doors],
And ||the gates|| shall not be shut:
2 I <before thee> will go,
And <the hills> will I level,e—<The doors of bronze> will I break in pieces,f
And <the bars of iron> will I cut asunder;g
3 Then will I give thee
The treasures of darkness,
Even the hoards of hidden places,—
That thou mayest get to know
That ||I—Yahweh, who am calling thee by thy name|| am the God of Israel.
4 <For the sake of my servant Jacob,
Even Israel my chosen>
Therefore have I called unto thee by thy name,
I give thee a title though thou hast not known me,—
5 ||I|| am Yahweh, and there is none else,<Besides me> there is no’ God,—
I gird thee, though thou hast not known me:
6 That men may get to know,
From the rising of the sun,
And from the west,

There is neither knowledge nor discernment—to say,
<Half thereof> have I burned up in the fire,
Moreover also’ I have baked |on the coals thereof| ||bread||,
I roasted flesh, and have been eating,—
And <of the remainder thereof> |an abomination| shall I make?
And <to a log of wood> shall I pay adoration?
20 He is feeding on ashes,
||A deluded heart|| hath turned him aside,—
And he cannot deliver his own soul, nor say,
Is there not a falsehood in my right hand?
21 Remember these things, O Jacob,
And [Israel,—for ||my Servant|| thou art’,—
I have fashioned thee, ||a Servant of mine|| thou art’.
22 O Israel,a thou shalt not be forgotten of me,
I have wiped out,
As with a thick cloud, ||thy transgressions||,
And as with a broad cloud ||thy sins||,—
Return unto me, for I have redeemed thee.
23 Shout in triumph, ye heavens, for Yahweh |hath effectually wrought|,
Shout, O ye underparts of the earth,
Ring out,
Ye mountains, into cries of triumph,
Thou forest, and every tree therein,—
For |Yahweh| hath redeemed’ |Jacob|,
And <in Israel> will he get himself glory.
24 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
Who hath redeemed thee,
Who hath fashioned thee from birth,b—
||I—Yahweh|| am the maker of all things,
Stretching out the heavens, [alone],
Spreading forth the earth, [of myself];c
25 Frustrating the signs of praters,
And <diviners> he confoundeth,—

He who created the World, called Cyrus, and decreed the Destiny of Israel—not in vain. He may seem to hide himself; yet shall Idolatry be silenced, Israel be saved, Salvation be tendered to Earth's Ends, and every Knee love to him.

Let the drops fall, ye heavens, from above,
Yea, let [[the skies]] pour down righteousness,—
Let the earth open, and let them bear as their fruit—deliverance,
And let [[justice]] spring forth therewith,

<As to things to come> they have asked me,
<Concerning my sons and concerning the work of my hands> they would command me!

[[made the earth,

Chapter 48.

1 Hear ye this—O house of Jacob,
Ye who call yourselves by the name of Israel,
Yea [from the waters] of Judah came they forth,—
Who swear by the name of Yahweh,
And [by the God of Israel] call to remembrance—
[Not in truth, nor in righteousness];

2 For [of the holy city] do they call themselves,
And [on the God of Israel] do they stay themselves,— [Yahweh of hosts] is his name.

3 [Things in advance] [of old] I declared,
Yea [out of mine own mouth] came they forth,
that I might let them be known,—
[Suddenly] I wrought, and they came to pass.

4 [Because I knew that—
[Obstinacy] thou wast,—
And [a sinew of iron] was thy neck,

And thy brow, brazen≥

5 Therefore told I thee—in time past,
<Ere yet it came> I let thee hear,— Lest thou shouldst say—
[Mine idol] wrought them,
Yea [my carved image] and my molten image] commanded them!

6 Thou hast heard—see it [whole]
And will [ye] not tell?
I have let thee hear new things—from the present time,
Even secrets, which ye knew not.

7 [Now] are they created, and [not in time past],
And [before to-day] thou hadst not heard of them,—
Lest thou shouldst say, Lo! I knew them!

8 Nay! thou hadst not heard,

   That [my salvation] may reach as far as [the end of the earth].

7 ||[Thus]|| saith Yahweh—the Redeemer of Israel,
   his Holy One,
   ≤To him that is despised of the soul,
   To the abhorred of the nation,
   To the servant of rulers≥
   ||[Kings]|| shall see and arise,
   ||[Princes]|| lo! they have bowed themselves down,—
Because of Yahweh, who is faithful,
The Holy One of Israel, lo! he hath chosen thee.

8 ||[Thus]|| saith Yahweh—
   <In a time of acceptance> have I answered thee,
   <In a day of salvation> have I helped thee,—
   That I may preserve thee,
   And give thee as the covenant of a people, b
   To establish the land,
   To bring into possession the desolate
   heritages;
   Saying To them who are bound,
       Go forth, c
   To d them who are in darkness,
       Shew yourselves,—
   <By the roads> shall they graze,
   And <on all bare places> shall be their pasture:
   They shall neither hunger, nor thirst,
   Nor shall smite’ them the glowing sand, or the glaring sun,—

For ||[he that hath compassion upon them]||
   will lead them,
   And <unto springs of water> will he conduct them. e

11 Then will I make of all my mountains, a road,
   And ||[my highways]|| shall be upraised.
12 Lo! ||[these]|| <from afar> shall come in,—
   And lo! ||[these]|| from the North and from the West,
   And ||[these]|| from the land of Sinim. f

13 Shout in triumph—O heavens!
   And exult—O earth!
   And break forth, ye mountains, g into shouts of triumph,—
   For Yahweh hath comforted his people; h
   And <on his humbled ones> i taketh he compassion.

14 But Zion [had said],
   Yahweh hath forsaken’ me,—
   Even ||[My Lord]|| h hath forgotten me!
15 Can [a woman] forget [her sucking child],
   Past taking compassion on the son of her womb?
   ||[Even these]|| may forget,
   Yet will ||[I]|| not forget [thee]:
16 Lo! <on the palms of my hands> have portrayed
   thee,—
   ||[Thy walls]|| are before me continually.
17 In haste’ are thy sons,—
18 ||[They who have been tearing thee down and laying thee waste]|| <out of thee> let them go forth!
19 Lift up, round about, thine eyes, and see,
   ||[All those]|| have gathered themselves together—
   have come to thee!
   <As I live> Declareth Yahweh,— Surely <all those—as an ornament> shalt thou put on,
   And bind them about thee for a girdle, as a bride.
20 Surely <as for thy wastes, and thy desolations, and thy land of ruins>

—O.G. 625.

f “Prob. China is intended”—Davies’ H.L. But see O.G. 696.

g Written: “Mountains will break forth”; read: “And break forth, ye mountains”; and so in some cod. (w. 4 ear. pr. edns., Aram., Syr. and Vul.) both written and read. In some cod., however, both written and read (w. Sep.): “Mountains will break forth” — G.n.

h Or, “patient ones.”

i Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns.): “And ||[Yahweh]||” — G.n.
Surely ||now|| shalt thou be too strait for thine inhabitants,
And <far off> shall be they who have been swallowing thee up.
20 The children of whom thou wast bereaved ||shall yet’ say in thine ears||,—
<Too strait for me> is the place,
Make room for me, that I may settle down.
21 Then shalt thou say in thy heart,—
Who hath borne me [these],
Seeing ||have been bereaved, and unfruitful, a captive and banished?
||Therefore, who’ hath brought them up?
Lo! ||was left |alone||,
||where were |they||?
22 ||saith My Lord, Yahweh¹—
Lo! I will lift up, unto nations, my hand,
Yea <unto peoples> will I raise high my banner,—
And they shall bring in thy sons in their bosom,
And ||thy daughters|| |on the shoulder| shall be borne;
23 And ||[kings] shall be |thy foster-fathers||,
And ||[their queens]|| |thy nursing mothers||,
<With face to the ground> shall they bow down to thee,
<The dust of thy feet> shall they lick,—
So shalt thou know that ||[I]|| am Yahweh,
In that |they shall not be put to shame|
||Who were waiting for me||.
24 Shall prey ||be taken from a mighty one||?
Or |the captive of one in the right| be delivered?
25 ||Even the captive of the mighty one|| shall be taken away,
And ||the prey of the tyrant|| be delivered;
And ||thine opposers|| ||will oppose,
And ||thy children|| ||will save;
26 Then will I feed thy tormentors with their own flesh,
And <as with new wine—with their own blood> shall they be drunk,—
So shall all flesh |know| that ||[I—Yahweh]|| am thy Saviour.⁸

And ||thy Redeemer|| is the Mighty One of Jacob.

§ 49. Were Israel’s Restoration a Mere Question of Power, it might easily be accomplished; but No!—and Yahweh’s Servant is heard narrating his Sufferings, and proclaiming his Confidence of Vindication. From his Story let all Godly Sufferers learn to trust, and all Self-Glorifiers take warning.

Chapter 50.
1 ||Thus||² saith Yahweh—
Where then is the set, oil of your mother’s divorce, whom I have put away?
Or |which of my creditors| is it, to whom I have sold you?
Lo! <for your iniquities> have ye been sold,¹
And <for your transgressions> hath your mother been put away.
2 Wherefore’
<When I came in> was there not’ one?
<When I called> was there none’ to answer?
Is mine own hand ||really shortened|| that it cannot redeem?
Or is there not’ |in me| strength, to deliver?
Lo! <by my rebuke> I dry up the sea,
I make rivers a desert,
Their fish Stinketh, for want of water,
Yea dieth, for thirst:
3 I clothe the heavens with gloom,
And <of sackcloth> make I their covering.
4 ||My Lord, Yahweh|| hath given unto me the tongue of the instructed,
That I should know how to succour the fainting, with discourse,—
He kept wakening—morning by morning,
He kept wakening mine ear,⁶ to hearken’ as do the instructed;
5 ||My Lord, Yahweh|| opened mine ear,
And ||I|| was not rebellious,—
||Away|| turned I not:
6 <My back> gave I to smiters, and
<My cheeks> to them who pulled out the beard,—
<My face> hid I not’ from insult and spitting.

ISAIAH – Chapter 51.

§ 50. Yahweh again comforts his People.

Chapter 51.

1 Hearken unto me,
Ye that pursue righteousness,
Ye that seek Yahweh,—
Look well unto the rock whence ye were hewn,
And unto the quarry whence ye were digged:

2 Look well unto Abraham your father,
And unto Sarah who gave you birth,—
For he was alone when called I him,
And I blessed him, that I might make him many.

3 For Yahweh hath comforted Zion,
He hath comforted all her waste places,
And hath made her wilderness like Eden,
And her waste plain like the garden of Yahweh,— [Joy and gladness] shall be found in her,
Thanksgiving, and the voice of melody.

4 Attend unto me, O my people,
And [O my nation] unto me give ear,—
For [instruction] from me shall go forth,
And <my justice>—for a light of peoples—will I establish:

5 At hand is my righteousness,
Gone forth hath my salvation,
And [mine own arms] unto the peoples shall give justice,—
<Upon me> [Coastlands] shall wait,
And <for mine arm> shall they hope.

6 Lift up—to the heavens—your eyes,
And look around to the earth beneath,
<Though> [the heavens] [like smoke] should have vanished,
And [the earth] [like a garment] shall fall to pieces,
And [her inhabitants] [in like manner] should die;
Yet [my salvation] unto times age-abiding shall continue,
And [my righteousness] shall not be broken down.

7 Hearken unto me, ye who discern righteousness,
The people in whose heart is my law,—
Do not fear the reproach of frail men,
Nor <at their revilings> be dismayed;

8 For <like a garment> shall they be eaten of the moth,
And <like wool> shall they be eaten of the larva;
But [my righteousness] unto times age-abiding shall continue,
And [my salvation] unto the remotest generation.

§ 51. Yahweh’s Arm invoked by the Memory of its Past Deeds and in Joyful Assurance of the Result. The Divine Voice of Comfort is again heard. The Prophet himself expostulates with his afflicted People and delivers a further Divine Message.

9 Awake, awake, put on strength, O arm of Yahweh, Awake, As in days of old, The generations of bygone ages: Art not thou’ that which— Hewed down Rahab, Piercing the Crocodile?\(^a\)

10 Art not thou’ that which dried up The Sea, The waters of the mighty Deep,— That which made of the abysses of the sea’ a road for the passing over of the redeemed? Therefore ||the ransomed of Yahweh|| shall again’ come unto Zion, with shouts of triumph,\(^b\) With gladness age-abiding on their head,— ||Joy and gladness|| shall overtake [them], Sorrow and sighing [have fled away].\(^c\)

11 ||I—II|| am he that comforteth you,— Who’ art |thou| that thou hast feared Frail man that dieth, and ||A son of the earthborn|| who |as grass| shall be delivered up?

12 That thou hast forgotten Yahweh thy maker, Who stretched out the heavens, And founded the earth? That thou hast dreaded continually, all the day, by reason of the fury of the oppressor, in that he\(^d\) was ready to destroy? Where’ then, is the fury of the oppressor? The captive hath hastened’ to be loosed,— That he might not die in the pit, Neither should |his bread| be cut off.

13 But ||II—Yahweh|| am thy God, Who threw into commotion the sea, And the waves thereof roared,— ||Yahweh of hosts|| is his name. Therefore have I put my words in thy mouth, And <with the shadow of my hand> have I covered thee,— To plant\(^e\) the heavens, and To lay the foundations of the earth, and To say unto Zion, <My people> thou art’!

17 Rouse thee—rouse thee, stand up, O Jerusalem, Who hast drunk, at the hand of Yahweh, his cup of indignation: <The goblet-cup of confusion>\(^f\) hast thou drunk—hast thou drained.

18 There is none’ to guide her, Among all the sons she hath borne,— There is none’ to grasp her hand, Among all the sons she hath brought up.

19 <Twain> are the things befalling thee, Who will lament for thee? Wasting and destruction, and\(^g\) famine and sword, By whom shall I comfort thee?

20 ||Thy sons|| have fainted, They lie at the head of all the streets, like a gazelle in a net,— Who, indeed, are full of The indignation of Yahweh, The rebuke of thy God.

21 |Therefore| hear, I pray thee, |this|, thou humbled one,— And drunken, but not with wine:— ||Thus|| saith Thy Lord, Yahweh, Even thy God who pleadeth the cause of his people:—

Lo! I have taken, |out of thy hand| the cup of confusion,— <As for the goblet-cup of mine indignation> Thou shalt not again’ drink it, any more\(^h\).

23 But I will put it into the hand of thy tormentors, Who said to thy soul, Bow down thus we may pass over,— And so thou didst place, as the ground, thy back, Yea, as the street, to such as were passing along.

\(^h\) This then must be Israel’s final deliverance.
§ 52. Zion called upon to clothe Herself with Strength and Beauty, and shake herself from the Dust of her Captivities; to enjoy Redemption by a Price more precious than Silver; to acknowledge the Name of her lately reviled God as that of a now Present, Speaking King, at last Returned to Zion; as Welcome Heralds proclaim, Consenting Watchmen attest, and her own Songs celebrate. Out of Bondage, then! Yahweh waits to become your Vanguard and Rear-guard.

Chapter 52.

1 Awake, awake,
   Put on thy strength, O Zion,—
   Put on thy beautiful garments,
   O Jerusalem,—thy holy city,
   For there shall not again come into thee any more the uncircumcised and unclean.

2 Shake thyself from the dust, arise—sit down,
   Loose thyself from the bonds of thy neck,
   O captive! daughter of Zion!

3 For thus saith Yahweh, ye sold yourselves,—
   And not with silver shall ye be redeemed.

4 For thus saith My Lord Yahweh,
   To Egypt went down my people at first to sojourn there,—
   But Assyria without cause hath oppressed him.

5 Now therefore, what do I here?
   Demandeth Yahweh.—
   That my people have been taken away for nought?
   They who rule them do howl,
   Declareth Yahweh,
   And continually—all the day is my Name brought into contempt.

6 Therefore shall my people acknowledge my Name:
   In that day shall they acknowledge that I am the same, even I who am speaking,— Here I am!

7 How beautiful, upon the mountains, are the feet—
   Of him
   That bringeth good tidings,
   That publisheth peace,
   That bringeth good tidings of blessing,
   That publisheth salvation,—
   That saith unto Zion,
   Thy God hath become king.

8 The voice of thy watchmen!
   They have uplifted a voice,
   Together do they renew the shout of triumph,—
   For shall they see,
   When Yahweh returneth to Zion.

9 Break forth, shout in triumph, j[together], ye waste places of Jerusalem,—
   For Hath comforted his people, Hath redeemed Jerusalem:

10 Yahweh hath bared his holy arm, in the eyes of all the nations;
   So shall all the ends of the earth see the salvation of our God.

11 Away! away! come forth from thence!—
   May ye touch,—
   Come forth out of her midst,
   Purify yourselves, ye who are to carry the vessels of Yahweh;

12 Nor shall ye come forth, shall ye journey,—
   Is Yahweh, and the God of Israel.

§ 53. Yahweh’s Servant disclosed, first and last, as an Exalted Conqueror, but immediately as a Sufferer; even at first, however, with an allusion to his Marred Appearance, and at last with his Death regarded as the cause of his Victory. At the beginning and end of the Prophecy, the Voice is plainly that of Yahweh himself; but at liii. 1 the Voice changes, and sounds like that of Israel in changeful Moods propounding her conflicting Thoughts about the Sufferer: as if a final Generation had taken up—in order to resolve and correct—the Doubts and Mistakes of their Ancestors. (Cp. Intro., Chapter II., 11.)

13 Lo! my Servant[1] [prospereth],—
He riseth, and is lifted up, and becometh very high:
14 The more that Many [were amazed at thee]
So marred, beyond any man’s, was his appearance,—
And his form, beyond the sons of men[2]
The more doth he startle[3] Many nations,
<Before him> have kings closed[4] their mouth,—
For <that which had not been related to them>
have they seen,
And <that which they had not heard> have they diligently considered.

Chapter 53.

1 Who[5] believed what we have heard?
And <the arm of Yahweh> to whom was it revealed?
2 When he came up as a sapling[6] before him,
And as a root-sprout out of dry ground[7]
He had neither beauty nor majesty,—
<When we beheld him> there was nothing to behold, that we should desire him;
3 Despised was he, and forsaken of men,
Man of pains, and familiar with sickness,—
Ye <like one from whom the face is hidden>

Despised, and we esteemed him not.
4 Yet surely <our sicknesses> [he] carried,
And <as for our pains> he[8] bare the burden of them,—
But [we] accounted him stricken,
Smitten of God, and humbled.[9]
5 Yet [he],
was pierced for transgressions that were ours,
was crushed for iniquities that were ours,—
[The chastisement for our well-being] was upon him,
And <by his stripes> there is healing for us.
6 [We all][10] <like sheep> had gone astray,
<Every man>—to his way—had we turned,—
And ||[Yahweh]] caused to light upon him
The guilt of ||us all||.
7 ||Hard pressed][11]—yet [he] humbled himself,
Nor opened his mouth—
As [a lamb][12] <to the slaughter> is led,
And [as a sheep][13] <before her shearsers> is dumb—
Nor opened his mouth.
8 <By constraint and by sentence> was he taken away,
And <of his age> who considered
That he was cut off out of the land of the living,[14]
<For my people’s transgression> did the stroke fall on him?
9 And <appointed with lawless men> was his grave,
And <with the wicked> [his tomb,—
Though <no violence> had he done,
Nor was guile in his mouth.
10 Yet ||[Yahweh]|| purposed to bruise[15] him,
He laid on him sickness:—
—if his soul become an offering for guilt>

Note how gradually the Servant’s sufferings have been disclosed: first, a mere hint of temporary discouragement (xlii. 1); second, an open lament over failure (xlii. 4); third, personal ill-usage (l. 6); fourth, here, violent death! “Rich” must mean “wicked,” just as poor often means “godly”—A.B. [6] Note the echo; Heb.: kullânu in both cases.
[7] Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns.) have: “he came near”—G.n. [Cp. Deu. xxvi. 1.]
[10] Note how gradually the Servant’s sufferings have been disclosed: first, a mere hint of temporary discouragement (xlii. 4); second, an open lament over failure (xlii. 4); third, personal ill-usage (l. 6); fourth, here, violent death!
[12] “Crush”—O.G.
[14] The translator has here very cautiously commenced an indentation, to suggest the question, whether what follows is not an indirect Divine Soliloquy as to the reasons by which the strange procedure is justified: That Yahweh should have purposed to lay on his own approved “Servant” the iniquity
He shall see a seed,
He shall prolong his days,—
And ||the purpose of Yahweh|| <in his hand> shall prosper:

If the travail of his soul> shall he see,
He shall be satisfied with his knowledge,
A setting right, when set right himself shall my Servant win for the Many,
Since <of their iniquities> ||he|| taketh the burden.

[Therefore] will I give him a portion in the great,
And <the strong> shall he apportion as spoil,
Because he poured out to death his own soul,
And <with transgressors> let himself be numbered,—
Yea ||he|| <the sin of Many> bare,
And <for transgressors> interposeth.

§ 54. In Strains of exquisite Tenderness Yahweh of Hosts addresses the Nation he purposes to Renew and Restore. The Wife put away shall come back—for ever.

Chapter 54.

1 Shout in triumph, O barren one,
Who hadst not borne,—
Break forth into shouts of triumph—and trill thy voice,
Who hadst not travailed in birth,
For ||more|| are the children of the Desolate,
Than the children of Her who had the husband,

Saith Yahweh.

2 Enlarge the space of thy tent,
And <the curtains of thy habitations> let them spread forth, do not spare,— Lengthen thy cords,
And <thy tent-pins> make thou fast;

For <on the right hand and on the left> shalt thou break forth,—
And ||thy seed|| shall <of the nations> take possession,
And <forsaken cities> shall they cause to be inhabited.

4 Do not fear, for thou shalt not turn pale,
Neither feel disgraced, for thou shalt not be put to the blush,—
For <the shame of thy youth> shalt thou forget,
And <the reproach of thy widowhood> shalt thou remember no more;

For <thy husband> is ||thy Maker],
||Yahweh of hosts|| is his Name,—
And ||redeemer|| <the Holy One of Israel>,
<The God of all the earth> shall he be called.

For <like a wife forsaken and grieved in spirit> hath Yahweh' ||called thee||,—
<Even the wife of youthful days> in that thou wast rejected,

Saith thy God.

7 <For a small moment> I forsook thee,—
But <with abounding compassions> do I embrace thee:

In an overflow of vexation< I hid my face, ||for a moment> from thee,
But <with lovingkindness age-abiding> have I had compassion on thee,—

Saith thy Redeemer, Yahweh.

9 For <the waters> of Noah> is this unto me,—
<As to which I sware that the waters of Noah should not again pass over the earth>

||So|| have I sworn
Not to be vexed with thee,
Nor to rebuke thee.

10 For ||the mountains|| may move away,
And ||the hills|| may be shaken,—
But ||my lovingkindness|| <from thee> shall not move away,
And ||my covenant of peace|| shall not be shaken,

Saith he who hath compassion upon thee—Yahweh.

11 O thou humbled one, storm-tossed, ||uncomforted||,—
Lo! ||I|| am about to set in antimony, thy stones,
And will found thee in sapphires;

And make rubies, thy battlements,
And thy gates, sparkling stones,—
And all thy boundaries, stones of delight;

(lxi.) or terrible Avenger (lxiii.). Henceforth the formation of a NEW ISRAEL becomes the leading theme.

Chapter 55.

1  And [all thy children] shall be the instructed of Yahweh,—
   And [great] shall be the prosperity of thy children.

2  In righteousness shalt thou be established,—
   Be thou far from oppression—
   But indeed thou shalt not fear,
   And from crushing calamity—
   But indeed it shall not come nigh unto thee.

3  Lo! they would [quarrell] with thee—not at all from me,— [Whoso hath quarrelled with thee] <over thee> shall fall.

4  Lo! [I] have created the smith, who bloweth up a fire of coals,
   And who bringeth forth an instrument for his work,—
   And [I] have created the waster to destroy:—
   [No instrument formed against thee] shall prosper,
   And [every tongue that riseth against thee in judgment] shall thou prove to be lawless,—
   [This] is the inheritance of the servants of Yahweh,
   And [their righteousness] is [from me],
   Declareth Yahweh.

5  Incline your ear, and come unto me,
   Hearken, That your soul [may live],—
   That I may solemnise for you a covenant age-abiding,
   The Lovingkindness to David, well-assured.

6  Lo! [As a witness to the peoples] have I given him,—
   [As a leader and commander] to the peoples:

7  Lo! [A nation thou shalt not know] shall thou call,
   And [a nation which hath not known thee] <unto thee> shall run,—
   For the sake of Yahweh thy God,
   And for the Holy One of Israel, because he hath adorned thee.

8  Seek Yahweh, while he may be found,—
   Call ye upon him, while he is near:
   Let the lawless forsake his way,
   And the man of iniquity, his thoughts,—
   And let him return unto Yahweh,
   That he may have compassion upon him,
   And unto our God,
   For he will abundantly pardon.

9  For [higher] are the heavens than the earth,—
   [[So] [higher] are
   [My ways] than [your ways], and
   [My thoughts] than [your thoughts].]

10  For [as the rain and the snow descend' from the heavens,
   And [thither] do not return,
   Except they have watered the earth,
   And caused it to bring forth and bud,—
   And given [seed to the sower, and bread to the eater]
   [So] shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth,
   It shall not return unto me void,—
   But shall accomplish [that which I please,
   And shall prosper in that whereunto I have sent it.

11  [So] shall my thoughts [be] without price
   That I may solemnise for you a covenant age-abiding,
   The Lovingkindness to David, well-assured.

12  [With] with gladness shall ye come forth,
Append text a shall ye be led,—
And ||The mountains and the hills|| shall break out, before you, into shouts of triumph,
And ||all the wild trees|| shall clap their hands:
A name age-abiding> will I give him, which shall not be cut off.
6 And <as for the sons of the foreigner—
Who have joined themselves unto Yahweh,
To wait upon him, and
To love the name of Yahweh,
To become his, for servants,— Every one who keepeth the sabbath, lest he profane it,
And who layeth firm hold on my covenant
Surely I will bring them into* my holy' mountain,
And make them joyful in my house of prayer,

Cast ye up—cast ye up, prepare ye a way,—
Lift the stumbling-block out of the way of my people.a

For ||[thys]|| saith he that is high and lifted up—
Inhabiting futurity,c
And ||[holyl]|| is his name:
<A high and holy place> will I inhabit,
Also with the crushed and lowly in spirit,d
To revive the spirit of the lowly, and
To revive the heart of them who are crushed;e—

For <not age-abidingly> will I contend,
<Nor perpetually> will I be wroth,—
For ||[spirit]|| <before me> would faint,
Even ||[the breathing souls]|| which ||[Il]|| had made.

Because of his iniquitous gain was I wroth—
and smote him,
Hiding myselff that I might be wroth,—
But he went on, turning aside in the way of his own heart.

That I might heal him,—
And guide him,
And restore consolations to him, and to his mourners:

Creating the fruit of the lips—
Prosperity! Prosperity!
For him that is far off, and for him that is near,
Saith Yahweh,b

So should I heal him.

Chapter 58.

Cry aloud,k do not spare,
<Like a horn> lift high thy voice,—
And declare,
To my people, their transgression, and
To the house of Jacob, their sins.

Yet <me>—day by day> do they seek,
And <in the knowledge of my ways> they delight,—
Like a nation that had done ||[righteousness]||
And <the justice of their God> had not forsaken?
They ask of me the just regulations,1
<In approaching God> they delight.

Wherefore’ have we
Fasted, and thou hast not seen?
Humbled our soul,m and thou wouldst take no note?
Lo! <in the day of your fast> ye take pleasure,
But <all your toilers> ye drive on!

Lo! <for strife and contention> ye fast,
And to smite with the fist of lawlessness,—
Ye shall not fast as to-day,
To cause to be heard, on high, your voice!

Ye shall not fast as to-day,
To the lawless, and to his head,
And to spread out? Is it <this> thou wilt call a fast,
Or a day of acceptance with Yahweh?

Is not <this> the fast that I must ever choose—
To unbind the tight cords of lawlessness,
To let the crushed go free, and
That <every yoke> ye tear off?

Is it not to break, unto the hungry, thy bread,i

So then there hath been a driving back of justice, And [righteousness] afar off standeth,— For truth [hath stumbled in the broad-way], And [right] cannot enter;

And [the truth] hath been [found missing], And he that hath turned away from wrong is liable to be despoiled.

And <when Yahweh [looked]> Then was it grievous in his eyes, that there was no’ justice:

§ 61. “Arise, shine!”—a Call to Zion to dispel the deep Gloom of the Nations.

Chapter 60.

1 Arise—shine,
For thy light [hath come],—
And ||the glory of Yahweh|| |on thee| hath beamed;
2 For lo! ||darkness|| covereth the earth,
And ||deep gloom|| |the peoples,—
But <on thee> beameth Yahweh,
And ||his glory|| |on thee| is seen.
3 So shall nations come* to thy light,
And kings, to the brightness of thy dawning.
4 Lift up—round about—thine eyes, and see,
||They all|| have gathered themselves together—have come to thee,—
||Thy sons|| |from afar| shall come,
And ||thy daughters|| |on the side| shall be carried.
5 ||Then|| shalt thou see, and be radiant,
And thy heart [shall throb and be enlarged],—
For there shall be turned upon thee the fulness of the sea,
||The riches of the nations|| shall come unto thee;
6 ||The multitude of camels|| shall cover thee,
The young camels of Midian and Ephah,
||All they of Sheba|| shall come,—
<Gold and frankincense> shall they bring,
And <the praises of Yahweh> shall they joyfully tell:
7 ||All the flocks of Kedar|| shall be gathered unto thee,
||The rams of Nebaioth|| shall wait upon thee,—

They shall come up, with acceptance, on mine altar;[2]
And <my beautiful’ house> will I adorn.
8 Who are these* that,
As a cloud, do fly? and
As doves to their cotes?
9 Surely <for me> shall |Coastlands| wait,[d]
And the ships of 'Tarshish, first,[f]
To bring in thy sons, from far,
Their silver and their gold with them,—
Unto the name of Yahweh, thy God,
And unto the Holy One of Israel,
Because he hath adorned thee.
10 So shall [the sons of the foreigner] build |thy walls|,
And ||their kings|| shall wait upon thee,—
For <in my vexation> I smote thee,
But <in my favour> have I had compassion upon thee.
11 So shall thy gates be open*—continually,
<Neither day nor night> shall they be shut,—
That they may bring unto thee the riches of the nations,
And ||their kings|| be led.
12 For ||the nation and the kingdom that will not serve thee|| shall perish,—
Yea ||the nations|| shall be <utterly wasted>.
13 ||The glory of Lebanon||, <unto thee> shall come,
The fir-tree, the h holm-oak, and the sherbin-cedar, together.
To adorn the place of my sanctuary,
And <the place of my feet> will I make glorious.
14 Then shall come unto thee, bending low,
The sons of them who had humbled thee,
Then shall bow down, unto the soles of thy feet,
All they who had despised thee;
And they shall call thee—
The city of Yahweh,
The Zion of the Holy One of Israel.

|To times age-abiding> shall they possess the
land,—
The sprout of mine own planting,

22 ||The little one] shall become a thousand, and

||I—Yahweh| <in its own season> will hasten it.

The day of avenging of our God;b
To comfort all who are mourning;
To appoint unto the mourners of Zion—
To give unto them,
A chaplet instead of ashes,
The oil of joy instead of mourning,
The mantle of praise instead of the spirit of dejection, l—
So shall they be called,
The oaks of righteousness,
The plantation of Yahweh:
That he may get himself glory.

3 Then shall they build the wastes of a bygone age,
|The desolations of former times> shall they raise up,—
And they shall build anew—
The cities laid waste,
The desolations of generation after generation.

5 Then shall strangers stay’ and feed your

§ 65. Israel recalls her past Mercies, and bases on them a Prayer for Deliverance from her present forsaken and ruined Condition.

7 <The lovingkindness of Yahweh> will I recall, ||The praises of Yahweh], According to all that Yahweh [hath bestowed upon us],—
Even the abundance of goodness to the house of Israel, Which he bestowed upon them—
According to his compassions, and According to the abundance of his lovingkindness.
Therefore he said—
Surely <my people> they are’, <Sons> they will not act falsely!
So he became their’ saviour.
In all their affliction ||he| was afflicted, a
And ||the messenger of his presence|| saved them,
In his love and in his pity ||he|| redeemed them,—
And then lifted them up and carried them, all the days of the age-past time.
But ||they|| rebelled, and grieved his Holy Spirit,—
And so he turned against them as an enemy, ||He himself||b fought against them.
Then were recalledc the days of the age-past time, ||Moses—his people||:—
Where‘ is he that led them up out of the sea, with the shepherdsd of his flock?
Where‘ is he that put, within him, his Holy Spirit?
That caused to go [at the right hand of Moses] his own majestic’ arm,— Cleaving the waters from before them,

For ||thou| art our father,
Though ||Abraham|| knew us not,
And ||Israel|| could not acknowledge us,—
||Thou, O Yahweh|| art our father,
<Our Redeemer from the Age-past time> is thy name.
[Wherefore] shouldst thou suffer us to wander, O Yahweh, from thy ways?
[Wherefore] shouldst thou let us harden our heart past revering thee?
Return thou, for the sake of Thy servants,
The tribes thou thyself hast inherited.
<For a short time only> did thy holy’ people hold possession,—
||Our adversaries|| trod down thy sanctuary!
We have become like those Over whom <from age-past times> thou hast not ruled,
Who have never’ been called by thy name!

Chapter 64.

Would that thou hadst rent the heavens, hadst come down.
<At thy presence> had ||mountains|| quaked:
As fire kindleth’ brushwood,
[As] fire causeth ||water|| to boil≥
[So] <if thou wouldst make known thy Name to thine adversaries>
<At thy presence> ||nations|| would tremble.
When thou didst fearful things, we could not expect>

ISAIAH – Chapter 65.

§ 66. Divine Condescension to Gentiles while Israel are yet sunk in Idolatry. A New Israel to be formed out of the Old; yea New Heavens and a New Earth to be created.

Chapter 65.

1 I have let myself be consulted, by them who had not asked,
   I have suffered myself to be found, by them who had not sought me,—
   I have said Here I am! Here I am!
   Unto a nation that had not been called by my name.

2 I have spread out my hands, all the day,
   Unto a rebellious people,—
   Who walk In the way that is not good,†
   After their own devices.

3 ≤The people who are provoking me to anger, to my face, continually,— Sacrificing in gardens, and Burning incense upon bricks;†

4 Who tarry among graves,
   And <in the secret places> do lodge,—
   Who eat the flesh of swine,
   And ||the broth of refuse things|| is in their vessels,—

5 Who say—
   Draw near by thyself,
   Do not approach with me,
   For I am holier than thou!≥

4 ≤Although from age-past times
   It was never heard,
   It was not perceived by [the ear],—
   Neither did [the eye] ever see—
   That ||a god besides thee|| could work for the man who waited for him≥

5 Yet didst thou meet
   Him who was rejoicing’ and working righteousness,
   Even them who <in thy ways> remembered thee,—
   Lo! ||thou|| hast been vexed, c
   And truly we had sinned,
   <Among them> was [the prospect] of an age [to come],
   That we might be saved.

6 But we have become as one unclean [all of us],
   And <as a garment polluted> were all our righteous doings,—
   And so we faded like a leaf [all of us],
   And ||our iniquity|| d <as a wind> carried us away;

7 And there was none’
   To call upon thy Name,
   To rouse himself to lay firm hold on thee,—
   For thou hadst hidden thy face from us; s
   And hadst made us despond, by means of our iniquity. g

8 But ||now|| b O Yahweh, <our father> thou art’,—
   ||We|| are the clay, and ||thou|| art our potter,
   Yea <the work of thy hand> are [we all]:

9 Do not be indignant, O Yahweh, so very greatly,
   Neither <perpetually> do thou recall iniquity,—
   Lo! look around, we pray thee…[thy people|| are [we all].

10 ||Thy holy’ cities|| have become a wilderness,—
   ||Zion||  hath become, ||Jerusalem|| a desolation!

11 ||Our holy’ and our beautiful’ house,
   Where our fathers praised thee||,
   Hath become a conflagration,—
   And ||all our delightful places|| are in ruins!

12 <In view of these things> wilt thou restrain thyself, O Yahweh?
   Wilt thou hold thy peace, and humble us so very greatly?

Lo! it is written before me,—
I will not keep silence,
But I have' recompensed, and will' recompense, into their bosom:
Your own iniquities,
And the iniquities of your fathers together,
Saith Yahweh,
Who have burned incense upon the mountains,
And <upon the hills> have reproached me,—
Therefore will I measure their former work, into their bosom.

||Thus|| saith Yahweh—

As [new wine] is found [in the cluster],
And one saith, Do not destroy it, for a blessing' is in it;

So will I do for the sake of my servants,
That I may not destroy the whole [nation];
Therefore will I bring forth
|Out of Jacob| |a seed|, and
|Out of Judah| |an inheritor of my mountains|, That my chosen ones may inherit’ it,
And |my servants| dwell there;
Then shall [Sharon] become [a fold for flocks],
And the vale of Achor, for the lying down of herds,—
For my people who have sought me.

But ||ye|| are they—
Who forsake Yahweh,
Who forget my holy' mountain—
Who prepare, for Fortune, a table, and
Who fill, for Destiny, mixed wine;

Therefore will I destine you’ to the sword,
And ||ye all|| <to the slaughter> shall bow down.
Because I called, and ye answered not,
I spake, and ye hearkened not,—
But did that which was wicked in mine eyes,
And <of that wherein I delighted not> ye made choice:

|Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—

Lo! ||my servants|| shall eat, but ||ye|| shall be famished,
Lo! ||my servants|| shall drink, but ||ye|| shall be thirsty,—
Lo! ||my servants|| shall rejoice, but ||ye|| shall turn pale;

Lo! ||my servants|| shall shout in triumph for mirth of heart,
But ||ye|| shall make outcry, for pain of heart, And <for a breaking of spirit> shall ye howl.
So shall ye leave your name for an oath,⁸ to my chosen ones,—
So then My Lord Yahweh [will slay thee],—
And <his servants> will he⁹ call by another name:
So that ||he who blesseth himself in the earth|| Will bless himself in the God of faithfulness,' And ||he who sweareth in the earth|| Will swear by the God of faithfulness,¹—
Because the former troubles [have been forgotten], and Because they are hid from mine eyes.

For, behold me!
Creating new heavens, and a new earth,—
And the former shall not be mentioned, neither shall they come up on the heart.⁵
But joy ye and exult, perpetually,¹ in what I’ am about to create,—
For, behold me!
Creating Jerusalem an exultation, and
Her People a joy;
Therefore will I Exult in Jerusalem
ˎ
Exult in Jerusalem, and
Joy in my People,—
And there shall be heard in her |no more|
The sound of weeping, or the sound of a cry:
There shall be thenceforward |no more|
A suckling of a few days, or an elder
Who filleth not up his days,—
But ||a youth, a hundred years old|| may die,

21 Then shall they build houses, and dwell' in them,—
And plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them;
22 They shall not build, and ||[another]|| dwell,
They shall not plant, and ||[another]|| eat,—
For <as the days of a tree> shall be the days of my people,
And <the work of their own hands> shall my chosen ones [use to the full];
23 They shall not labour in vain,
Nor have children for terror,—
For <the seed of the blessed ones of Yahweh> shall they be',
And their offspring, with them.
24 And it shall come to pass—
That <before they call> ||[I]|| will answer,
And <while yet they'> are speaking> ||[I]|| will hear.
25 ||[The wolf and the lamb]|| shall feed [in unity],
And ||[the lion]|| <as an ox> shall eat straw;
But <as for the serpent> ||[dust]|| shall be his food:
They shall not harm—
Nor shall they destroy,
In all my holy mountain, Saith Yahweh.

§ 67. The Humble in Heart, and the Profane who hate them, must be Divinely discriminated. The Birth of a Man-child and of a Nation. Rejoice with Jerusalem. Be warned by the Fate of Idolaters and Transgressors.

Chapter 66.

1 ||[Thus]|| saith Yahweh,
||[The heavens]|| are my throne, and
||[The earth]|| is my footstool:
Where' then is the house which ye can build me?
Or where' is my place of rest?
2 For <all these things> hath mine own hand made,
And all these things |came into being|,—
Declareth Yahweh.
But <for this one> will I look around,
For him who is humbled and smitten in spirit,
And so careth anxiously for my word.
3 ||[He that slaughtereth an ox]|| [is as one] who smiteth a man,
||[He that sacrificeth a lamb]|| [is as one] who beheadeth a dog,
||[He that causeth a meal-offering to ascend]|| [offereth it with] the blood of swine,
||[He that maketh a memorial of frankincense]|| [is as one] who blesseth iniquity:
||[They indeed]|| have chosen their own ways,
And <in their own abominations> their soul hath found delight;
4 ||[I, also]|| will choose the things that vex them,
And <the things they dread> will I bring upon them, Because—
I called, and there was none' to answer,
I spake, and they hearkened not,—
But did that which was wicked in mine eyes,
And <of that wherein I delighted not> made choice.
5 Hear the word of Yahweh, ye who care anxiously for his word:
Said your brethren
Who hated you,
Who thrust you out for my Name's sake,
Yahweh be glorified!
Therefore shall he appear to your rejoicing,
But ||[they]|| shall turn pale.
6 The sound of a tumult—out of the city,
A sound, out of the temple,—
The sound of Yahweh, rendering recompense to his foes.
7 <Before she travaileth> she hath brought forth,—
<Before her pains come to her> she hath given birth to a man-child!
8 Who hath heard the like of this?
Who hath seen the like of these things?
Can [a land] be made to bring forth' [in one day]?
Or [a nation] be born' [at one time]?
<As soon as she travaileth> Zion hath also given birth to her children.

10 Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and exult over her,
All ye who love her,—
Joy with her, right joyfully,
All ye who used to mourn over her:
That ye may draw, to satisfaction, out of the fountain of her consolations,—
That ye may drain out and get exquisite delight from the abundance of her glory.

12 For thus saith Yahweh,—
Behold me! extending unto her, [like a river][prosperity],
That ye may draw it forth,—
<Upon the side> shall ye be carried, and <Upon the knees> shall ye be caressed:
And <as one whom ||his mother|| consoleth> ||the glory of the nations||,
And <in Jerusalem> shall ye be consoled.

14 As soon as ye have seen it ||your heart|| shall be joyful,
And ||your bones|| like green herbage shall thrive,—
So shall be known
The hand of Yahweh with his servants,
But indignation with his foes!

15 For lo! ||Yahweh|| <with fire> doth come,
And <like a storm-wind> are [are] his chariots,—
To rend, with fury, his anger,
And his rebuke, with flames of fire.

16 For <by fire> will Yahweh enter into judgment,
And by his sword, with all flesh,—
And many shall be the slain of Yahweh.

17 ||They who hallow themselves and purify themselves for the gardens,||
Behind a certain thing in the midst,
Who eat the flesh of swine, and the abomination, and the mouse||
shall be cut off—

18 Because ||Yahweh||… <for their works and their devices> doth it come!…
Am about to gather together all nations and tongues,—
So shall they come, and see my glory.

19 Then will I set, among them, a sign,
And will send, of them, such as have escaped, unto the nations—
Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, that draw the bow,
Tubal and Javan,—
The Coastlands that are afar off,
Who have not heard my fame,
Nor seen my glory,
And they shall tell my glory throughout the nations.

20 Then shall they bring in all your brethren out of all the nations,
As a present unto Yahweh,
Upon horses and in chariots and in palanquins and on mules and on dromedaries,
Unto my holy mountain—Jerusalem,

21 And <of them also> will I take for priests—for Levites,

22 For <as the new heavens and the new earth, which I am about to make, are to remain before me>—

Declareth Yahweh.

23 And it shall come to pass, that
<From one new moon to another, and
From one sabbath to another> Shall all flesh |come in| to bow down before me,

Saith Yahweh.
Then shall they go forth and look, upon the dead bodies of the men who had been trespassing against me,—
For their worm shall not die,
And their fire shall not be quenched;
So shall they become an abhorrence, to all flesh.
§ 1. After a brief historical Record, Jeremiah tells of his Pre-natal Destination and early Call to the Prophetic Office. He is charged to be fearless, sent to Nations and Kingdoms, and assured of Divine Aid. Almond Branch and Boiling Caldron shown him as Emblems of his Mission.

Chapter 1.

The words of Jeremiah, son of Hilkiah,—of the priests who were in Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin: 2 unto whom came the word of Yahweh, in the days of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah,—in the thirteenth year of his reign; 3 it came also in the days of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, unto the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah son of Josiah, king of Judah,—as far as the carrying away of Jerusalem captive in the fifth month.

So then, the word of Yahweh came unto me saying:

Before I formed thee at thy birth, a I took knowledge of thee, And before thy nativity b I hallowed thee,— <A prophet to the nations> I appointed thee.

Then said I— Ah! My Lord Yahweh! Lo! I know not how to speak,— For  am ||I||!

Then said Yahweh unto me, Do not say, <A child> am ||I||,— For <against whomsoever I send thee> shalt thou go, And <whatsoever I command thee> shalt thou speak:

Be not afraid of their faces,— For <with thee> am ||I||, to deliver thee, Declareth Yahweh.

Then Yahweh put forth his hand, and touched my mouth,— and Yahweh said unto me, Lo! I have put my words' in thy mouth.

See! I have set thee in charge, this day, over the nations, and over the kingdoms, To uproot and to break down, and to destroy and to tear in pieces,— To build and to plant.

Moreover the Word of Yahweh came unto me, saying, What canst thou see, Jeremiah? And I said, <A twig of an almond-tree>d can I see.

Then said Yahweh unto me— Thou hast rightly seen,—for <keeping watch>e am I, over my word, to perform it.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, a second time, saying, What canst thou see? And I said, <A boiling caldron>f can I see, with [the front thereof] ||on the North||.

Then said Yahweh unto me,— <Out of the North> shall break forth calamity, against all the inhabitants of the land. 15 For behold me! calling for all the families of the kingdoms of the North, Declareth Yahweh,— and they shall come, and set every one his throneb at the opening of the gates of Jerusalem, and against all her walls, round about, and against all the cities of Judah!

Then will I pronounce my judgments against them, concerning all their wickedness,—in that they have forsaken me, and have burned incense unto other gods, and have bowed down to the worksi of their own hands.

Chapter 2.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
2 Go and cry in the ears of Jerusalem, saying—
   ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
   I remember, in thy behalf, the lovingkindness of thy youthful days,
The love of thy bridal estate,—
Thy coming out after me,
Through the desert,
Through a land [not sown]:—
|Holiness| was Israel unto Yahweh,
The first-fruit of his increase,—
||All that devoured it||b were held guilty,
||Calamity|| used to come upon them,—
Declareth Yahweh.

3 Hear ye the word of Yahweh, O house of Jacob,
And all the families of the house of Israel.
        ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,—
What did your fathers find in me, by way of perversity, that they removed far from me,—and went after vanity, c and became vain?d 6 Neither said they,
Where is Yahweh,
Who brought us up out of the land of Egypt,—
Who led us
Through the desert,
Through a land of wastes and clefts,
Through a land of parched places and of death-shade,
Through a land
Along which no man had passed,
And in which no son of earth dwelt?

Then brought I you into a country of garden’ land, to eat the fruit thereof and the goodness thereof,—and yet <when ye entered> then defiled ye my land, and <mine inheritance> ye made an abomination.

8 ||The priests|| said not,
   Where’ is Yahweh?
And ||they who handled the law|| did not acknowledge me,
And ||the shepherds|| transgressed against me,—
And ||the prophets|| prophesied by Baal,
And so <after things that could not profit> did they walk.

9 ||Therefore|| <yet further|| will I plead with you,
Declareth Yahweh,
   Yea <with your children’s children> will I plead.

10 For—pass through the coastlands of the West, e and see,
And <unto Kedar> send ye and |consider diligently|,—
   And see—whether there hath been the like of this!
11 Hath |a nation| changed |gods|, although ||they|| were No-gods?
Yet ||my people|| have changed mye glory’ for that which could not profit!

12 Be amazed, O ye heavens, at this,—
And shudder, be dried up utterly,

Urgeth Yahweh.}

For <two wicked things> have my people committed,—

<Me> have they forsaken, |a fountain of living water],
To hew out for themselves cisterns, broken’ cisterns, that cannot hold water.

Was Israel ||a servant||?

<Born in the house> was |he|?
Wherefore hath he become a prey?

<Against him> have been roaring |wild lions|,
They have uttered their voice,—and have made his land a desolation,
||His cities|| have been burned, so as to have no inhabitant.

||Even the sons of Noph and Tahpanhes|| have been crushing the crown of the head.

Is not this’ what thou wast certain to do for thyself,—in that thou didst forsake Yahweh thy God, when he was leading thee by the way?

||Now|| therefore, what hast thou to do with the way to Egypt, to drink the waters of Shihor?
Or what hast thou to do with the way to Assyria,
to drink the waters of the River [=Euphrates]?||

Let thy wickedness correct thee,
And ||thine apostasies|| rebuke thee,
Know therefore and see,
That it is a wicked thing and a bitter, that thou shouldest have forsaken Yahweh thy God,—
And that the dread of me should not have pertained to thee,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh^b of hosts.

For <in age-past time>e
I brake thy yoke,
I tare off thy fetters,
And thou saidst, I will not transgress,d—
Nevertheless <on every> high hill, and under every green tree> wast thou lying down as an unchaste woman.

Yet ||\| planted thee a precious vine,\|^a a wholly true seed,—

How then didst thou change thyself towards me, into the degenerate plantings of the alien^b vine?

For <though thou wash thee with nitre, h
And take thee much soap>j

Yet is thine iniquity inscribed’ before me,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.^j

How canst thou say,
I have not defiled myself,

<After^k the Baalim> have I not gone?

See thy way, |in the valley,
Own’ what thou hast done,—

A nimble young she-camel, crossing’ her own ways;

A wild ass, taught of the desert,

<In the desire of her soul> she snuffeth the wind,

<In her occasion> who can turn her back?

||None who seek her| will weary themselves,
<In her month> they shall find her!

Withhold thy foot from being unshod,
And thy throat from thirst!

But thou saidst, Hopeless!
No! for I love foreigners, and <after them> will I go.

<As the shame of a thief when he is found>

||So|| hath been put to shame|m the house of Israel,—

||They, their kings, their princes, and^n their priests, and their prophets|:

Saying, to a tree, |<My father> art [thou]!
And to a stone, ||Thou|| didst give us^p birth,
For they have turned unto me the back, and not the face,—

But <in the time of their calamity> they will say, Arise, and save us!

Where then are thy gods‘ which thou hast made for thyself?

Let them arise, if they can save thee, in the time of thy calamity,—

1 He hath said, e

2 Lift up thine eyes unto the bare heights, and see—where thou hast not been unchastely embraced! beside the ways hast thou sat to them, like the Arabian in the desert,—and hast defiled the land’ with thine unchastities, and with thy wickedness.

Does not this abrogation of the Ark imply the disappearance of the Covenant which it contained and represented?

Or: “one of a city”.

And they shall say no more,

The ark of the covenant of Yahweh,

Neither shall it come up on the heart,

Neither shall they remember it,

Neither shall they miss it,

Neither shall it be made any more.

At that time shall they call Jerusalem,

The throne of Yahweh,

and there shall be gathered unto her all the nations—to the Name of Yahweh, to Jerusalem; and they shall walk no more’ after the stubbornness of their own wicked heart.

In those days shall the house of Judah go unto the house of Israel,—that they may enter together out of the land of the North, upon the land which I gave as an inheritance unto your fathers.

||I myself|| had said,—

How can I put thee among the sons,

And give thee a land to be coveted,

An inheritance of beauty, of the hosts of nations?

Yet I said,

“My father” shalt thou call me,

And ||away from me|| shalt thou not turn.

But indeed a wife goeth treacherously from her husband||||so|| have ye acted treacherously with me, O house of Israel,

Declareth Yahweh.

A voice, on the bare heights is heard,

The weeping of the supplications of the sons of Israel,—

Because they have perverted their way,

Have forgotten’ Yahweh their God.

Return, ye apostate sons,

I will heal your apostasies!

||[A voice, on the bare heights]|| is heard,

The weeping of the supplications of the sons of Israel,—

Because they have perverted their way,

Have forgotten’ Yahweh their God.

Return, ye apostate sons,

I will heal your apostasies!
Behold us! we have come unto thee,
For ||thou|| art Yahweh our God.

23 [Surely] <to falsehood> pertain the hills,
The noisy throng on the mountains,— [Surely] <in Yahweh our God> is the salvationa of Israel!

24 But [the Shameful thing] hath devoured the labour of our fathers, from our youth:
Their flocks, and their herds, theirb sons, and d their daughters.

25 We must lie down in our shame,
And our reproach ||be our covering||,
For <against Yahweh our God> have we sinned,
||We, and our fathers, from our youth, even until this day||,—
Neither have we hearkened’ unto the voice of Yahweh our God.

Chapter 4.

1 <If thou wilt return, O Israel>
Declareth Yahweh,
<Unto me> mayst thou return,—
And <if thou wilt remove thine abominations from before me>
Then shalt thou not become a wanderer.

2 <If thou wilt swear,
By the life of Yahweh!
in faithfulness, in justice and in righteousness>d
Then shall the nations bless themselves in him,
And <in him> shall they glory.c

§ 4. Against Judah and Jerusalem an Invasion is threatened—to the Anguish of the tenderhearted Prophet, who, assured it must be so, pictures the Scene of Devastation in Language of great beauty. Rejected by her Paramours, the Forsaken One makes bitter Outcry.

3 For ||thus|| saith Yahweh,
Unto the men of Judah and unto Jerusalem,d

Till ye the untilled ground,—
And do not sow among thorns.
Circumcise yourselves unto Yahweh,
So shall ye remove the impuritye of your heart, ye men of Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem,—
Lest mine indignation ||go forth as fire||, and burn, and there be none to quench it,
Because of the wickedness of your doings.

5 Declare ye in Judah,
And <in Judah> let it be heard,
And say,
Blow yef a horn in the land,—
Cry, with full voice,
Gather yourselves together,
And let us enter the defenced’ cities.

6 Lift up an ensign—Zion-ward,
Bring into safety, do not tarry,—
For <calamity> am ||[l]|| bringing in from the North,
Even ||a great destruction]||:g

7 There hath come up a lion’ out of his thicket,
Yea  ||a destroyer of nations||—
hath set forward,
hath come forth out of his place,—
To make thy land’ a desolation,
||Thy cities|| shall fall in ruins, |so as to have no’ inhabitant|.

8 ||On this account|| gird you with sackcloth, lament and howl,—
Because the glow of the anger of Yahweh ||hath not turned| from us.

9 And it shall come to pass, in that day,
Declareth Yahweh,
That the courageh of the king ||shall fail|,
And the couragei of the princes,—
And the priests ||shall be astonished|,
And ||the prophets|| shall be amazed.

10 Then said I,—
Ah! My Lord Yahweh!

[Surely] thou hast suffered this people and Jerusalem [to be beguiled], saying,
||Peace|| shall ye have,— whereas the sword shall reach' unto the soul.

<At that time> shall it be said of this people and of Jerusalem,—
||The sharp wind of the bare heights in the desert|| cometh towards the daughter of my people,—||not to winnow, nor to cleanse||.

||A wind too strong for these|| cometh in for me.
||Now|| will ||I also|| pronounce sentences upon them:*

Lo! <like clouds> shall he come up,
Even as a storm-wind> his chariots,
<Swifter than eagles> his horses,—
Woe to us, for we are laid waste!

Wash, from wickedness, thy heart, O Jerusalem,
That thou mayest be saved,—
||How long|| shall lodge within thee thy wicked' devices?

For a voice declareth from [Dan],—
And publisheth trouble' from the hill country of Ephraim.

Put ye in mind the nations,
Lo! publish ye against Jerusalem,
||Blockaders|| are coming in from a land afar off,—
And have uttered, against the cities of Judah, their voice:

<As the keepers of a field> have they come against her, round about,—
For <against me> hath she rebelled,
Declareth Yahweh.

||Thine own way|| And thine own doings||
Have done these things unto thee,—
||This thy wickedness||
Surely it is bitter,
Surely it hath reached unto thy heart.

My bowels! My bowels!
I am pained in the walls of my heart,
My heart beateth aloud to me,
I cannot be still!
For <the sound of a horn> hast thou* heard, O my soul,

The loud shout of war!
<Breath upon breath> they cry;*
For ||ruined|| is all the land,—
||Suddenly|| are ruined my tents,
||In a moment|| my curtains!
||How long|| shall I keep on seeing a standard,— continue to hear the sound of a horn?

Surely ||pervasive|| is my people,
<Me> have they not known,*
<Foolish sons> they are',
Yea <without understanding> they are';
<Wise> they are', to commit wickedness,
But <how to do well> they know not!

I beheld
The earth; and lo! it was waste and wild,*—
The heavens also, and their light was' not:

I beheld
The mountains, and lo! they were trembling,—
And ||all the hills|| had been violently moved:

I beheld
And lo! there was no' human being,—
Yea ||all the birds of the heavens|| had fled:

I beheld
And lo! ||the garden-land|| was a desert,—
And ||all its cities|| had been broken down,
Because of Yahweh,
Because of the glow of his anger!

For ||thus|| saith Yahweh,
<A desolation> shall all the land become—
Nevertheless <full end> will I not make.

||For this cause||
shall the land mourn',
and the heavens above be overcast':
Because I have spoken, have purposed, and have not repented, nor will I turn back therefrom.

<At the noise of horseman and archer>*
The whole city is in flight|,
They have entered dark thickets,
Yea <unto the crags> have they gone up,—
||Every city|| is forsaken,
There remaineth not in them ||a man||!

And <when ||thou|| art laid waste> what wilt thou do?

Chapter 5.

1 Run ye to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem,
And see, I pray you, and know, and seek out in the broad places thereof,
Whether ye can find ||a man||,
Whether there is’ one Doing justice,
Demanding fidelity,—
That I may pardon her.

2 <Even though they say ||By the life of Yahweh||> Yet in fact’ <falsely> do they swear.

3 O Yahweh! <thine own eyes> are they not directed to fidelity?
Thou hast smitten them,
Yet have they not grieved, a
Thou hast consumed them—
They have refused to receive correction,—
They have made their faces bolder than a cliff,
They have refused to return.

4 And ||I|| said,—
Only’ ||poor people|| are [they],—
They act foolishly, For they know not
the way of Yahweh,
the justice of their God!

5 I will betake me unto the great men, and will speak [with them]! For ||they|| know
the way of Yahweh,
the justice of their God!
Yea but’ ||they|| |with one accord| have broken the yoke,
torn off the bands.

6 ||For this cause|| hath the lion out of the forest smitten’ them,
||The wolf of the waste plains|| preyeth’ upon them,
||The leopard|| is keeping watch over their cities,
||Every one that goeth out from thence|| is torn in pieces,—
For they have multiplied their transgressions,
Numerous’ are their apostasies.

7 How <for this> can I pardon thee?
||Thine own sons|| have forsaken me,
And have sworn by No-gods,—
<When I had fed them to the full> b Then committed they adultery,
And <the house of the unchaste woman> they used to throng:

8 <Lusty, well-fed horses> had they become,
||Every man|| <unto his neighbour’s wife>
would neigh!

9 <For these things> shall I not punish?
Demandeth Yahweh:
Yea <on a nation such as this> must not my soul
avenge herself? c

10 Scale ye her walls, and destroy,
But  do not make,—
Remove her tendrils,
For <not to Yahweh> do [they] belong!

11 For <very treacherously> have the house of Israel and the house of Judah |dealt with me|,
Declareth Yahweh.

12 They have acted deceptively against d Yahweh,
And have said,
Not He!
Neither shall there come’ upon us [calamity],
<Nor sword nor famine> shall we see;

13 But ||the prophets|| shall prove to be wind,
And there is [no one] speaking in them,—
||Thus|| shall it be done to themselves!

Therefore

||This|| saith Yahweh,

God of hosts,
</Because ye have spoken this word>,— Behold me! making my words in thy mouth to be fire,
And [this people]—wood,
So shall it devour them.

Behold me! bringing upon you a nation from afar, O house of Israel,

 Declareth Yahweh,—
<A nation invincible> it is',
<A nation from age-past times> hath it been',
A nation' whose tongue thou shalt not know,
Neither shalt thou understand what it speaketh:
||Its quiver|| is like an open sepulchre,—
||They all|| are heroes:

Then shall it eat thy harvest, and thy bread, which [thy sons and thy daughters] should eat,—
It shall eat thy flock and thy herd,
It shall eat thy vine and thy fig-tree,—
It shall destroy thy defenced' cities, wherein ||thou[| art trusting, [with the sword].

Yet <even in those days>
 DECLARETH YAHWEH,
Will I not make of you' [a full end].

And it shall come to pass ≤when ye shall say,
|For what cause| hath Yahweh our God done’ to us all these things?≥
Then shalt thou say unto them,—
≤As ye forsook me', and served the gods of the foreigner' in your own land≥
||So|| shall ye serve aliens' in a land [not your own].

Tell ye this, throughout the house of Jacob,—
And let it be heard throughout Judah, saying:

Hear this, I pray you, ye people—foolish and without heart,—
</Eyes> have they, and see not,
</Ears> have they, and hear not≤b

</Even for me> will ye have no reverence?
Enquireth Yahweh,
And <because of me> will ye not he minded?
In that ≤though I placed the sand as a bound to the sea,

A decree age-abiding, and it should not pass
beyond it,—
When they would toss themselves,
Then should they not prevail,
When the waves thereof would roar,
Then should they not pass beyond it≥

Yet ||this people|| hath an obstinate and rebellious heart,—
They have turned aside, and gone their way;
Neither have they said in their heart,—
Let us, we pray you, revere Yahweh our God,
Who giveth rain, even’ the early and the latter,
in its season.≤

<The appointed weeks of harvest> he reserveth for us.

||Your iniquities|| have thrust away these things,
Yea ||your sins|| have withheld that which is good from you.

For there have been found among my people,
lawless men,—
One lieth in wait, as with the stooping of fowlers,
They have set a trap, they capture [men]:

<As ||a cage|| is full of birds>
||So|| are [their houses] full of unrighteous gain,—

||For this cause|| have they become great, and waxed rich:

They have waxed fat, they shine,
Yea' they have overpassed the records of wickedness.
</The right> have they not determined,
||The right of the fatherless, that they might prosper||,—

Yea <justice to the helpless> have they not decreed.

<Upon these things> shall I not bring punishment? Demandeth Yahweh.

Or <on a nation such as this> shall not my soul
aveng[e' herself]?≥

||An astounding and horrible thing|| hath been brought to pass in the land:

||The prophets|| have prophesied falsely,
And ||[the priests] tread down [by their means],
And ||[my people] love it [so],—

Chapter 6.

1 Take your goods into safety, ye sons of Benjamin, out of the midst of Jerusalem, and in Tekoa blow ye a horn, and on Beth-haccherem raise a fire-signal,—for calamity hath looked out from the North, even a great destruction.

2 To a comely and delicate woman have I likened the daughter of Zion: against her shall come shepherds, with their flocks; they have pitched against her their tents, round about. They tend their flocks, every one near at hand.

3 Hallow ye against her a war, Arise! and let us go up in broad noon. Woe to us, for the day hath turned, for the shadows of evening stretch along.

4 Arise! and let us go up in the night, and let us destroy her palaces.

5 For so saith Yahweh of hosts, Cut ye down timber, and cast up against Jerusalem, a mound,—that is the city to be punished! There is nothing but oppression in her midst; like the casting forth by a well of its waters, so hath she cast forth her wickedness,— Violence and destruction are heard in her, before my face, continually are suffering and smiting.

6 Receive thou correction, O Jerusalem, lest my soul be torn from thee,—lest I make thee a desolation, a land not habitable.

§ 6. The Invader approaches, making light of his Task, his Men clamouring for the Fray. Yahweh, tearing himself from his People because they abound in Wickedness and Violence, and refuse to hearken, and mock the Divine Word—charges the Enemy not to spare. The Prophet himself, filled with Yahweh's Indignation, pours out his Warnings wherever he can get a Hearing, and is further appointed to act as an Assayer of Metal amongst his People.

7 Were they led to turn pale, because an abominable thing they had done! Nay! they did not at all turn pale, Nay! they did not so much as know how! to exhibit shame! Therefore shall they fall among them who are falling, in the time when I punish them, shall they be overthrown.

Thus saith Yahweh—

Stand ye at the ways—and see,
And ask for the paths of age-past times,b
Where is the goodc way?
And walk therein,

But they said,
We will not walk [therein]!
Therefore will I raise up over you, watchmen,
Give ye heed to the sound of a horn,—
But they said,
We will not give heed!

Therefore hear, O ye nations,—
And take knowledge, O assembly,
Of that which befalleth them:
Hear thou—O earth,
Lo! am bringing in Calamity against this people,
The fruit of their own devices,—
Therefore will I raise up over you watchmen,
Give ye heed to the sound of a horn,—
But they said,

Therefore will I raise up over you watchmen,
Give ye heed to the sound of a horn,—
But they said,

O daughter of my people,
Gird thee with sackcloth, and roll thyself in ashes,—
The mourning for an only son make thou for thyself,
Most bitter lamentation!!
For suddenly shall the destroyer come upon us.

An assayer have I set thee amongst my people, of gold-ore,1—
That thou mayest note and try their way:
They all are rebels of rebels,
Slander-walkers,
[They are] bronze and iron!

And <on horses> will they ride,—
Arrayed each one, like a man for battle,
Against thee, O daughter of Zion!

We have heard the report thereof,
Relaxed’ are our hands,—
Anguish hath taken hold on us,
[[Pangs]] as on her that is giving birth.

Do not go out into the field,
And <in the road> do not walk,—
Because ||a sword|| hath the foe,—
Terror round about;h

These and other Enormities, including a Falsifying of Records, deepen the Gloom, until at length the Harvest is past!

Chapter 7.

1 The word that came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:—

2 Stand thou in the gate of the house of Yahweh, and thou shalt proclaim there’ this word,—and shalt say—
Hear ye the word of Yahweh, all Judah, ye who are entering in at these gates, to bow down unto Yahweh:

3 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Amend your ways, and your doings,—That I may cause you to dwell in this place.

4 Do not, on your part, trust in false’ words, saying,—The temple of Yahweh, The temple of Yahweh, The temple of Yahweh, they are!

5 But ≤if ye shall ||thoroughly amend|| your ways, and your doings,—Shall ||thoroughly execute|| justice, between a man and his neighbour;

6 <The sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow> shall not oppression, And <innocent blood> shall not shed in this place,—And <after other gods> shall not walk, to your own hurt≥

7 Then will I cause you to dwell In this place, In the land’ which I gave to your fathers,—From one age even unto another.b

8 Lo! ||ye, on your part|| are trusting in false’ words,—To no profit!

9 Are ye to steal, commit murder, and commit adultery, and swear [falsely], and burn incense unto Baal,—and walk after other gods, whom ye have not known;

10 And will ye then come in, and stand before me, in this house, whereon my Name hath been called, and say,—
We have set ourselves free,—for the purpose of committing all these abominations?

11 <A den of robbers> hath this house, on which my Name hath been called, become [in your own eyes]? ||I, also||—lo! I have seen it,
Declareth Yahweh.

12 For go, I pray you, unto my place which was in Shiloh, Where I made my Name to dwell [at first],—And see what I did to it, because of the wickedness of my people Israel!

13 ||Now|| therefore— ≤Because ye have done all these deeds, Declareth Yahweh,—And though I spake unto you, betimes’ speaking, Yet ye hearkened not, And though I cried unto you, Yet ye answered not≥

14 Therefore will I do to the house, Whereon my Name hath been called, Wherein ||[ye]|| are trusting, Even to the place which I gave to you and to your fathers,—Just as I did unto Shiloh;

15 And will cast you’ out from before me,—Just as I have cast out All your brethren, All the seed of Ephraim.

16 ||Thou|| therefore—Do not pray for this people, Neither lift up for them cry or prayer, Neither intercede with me,—For I am not going to hear thee.

17 Dost thou not’ see what ||[they]|| are doing In the cities of Judah,—and In the streets of Jerusalem?

18 ||The children|| gather wood, and ||The fathers|| kindle the fire, and ||The women|| knead dough,—

To make sacrificial cakes’ to the queen of the heavens,
And to pour out drink-offerings’ to other gods,
Provoking me to anger!

19 Is it <me> they are provoking?
Enquireth Yahweh,—
Is it not <themselves>—unto the shame of their own faces?

20 |Wherefore||[Thus]| saith My Lord Yahweh—
Lo! ||[mine anger and mine indignation]|| are about to be poured out upon this place,
On man, and on beast, and
On the tree of the field, and
On the fruit of the ground,—
And it shall burn, and shall not be quenched.

21 |Thus| saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,
<Your ascending-offerings> add ye unto your peace-offerings, and eat ye flesh.

22 For I bade not your fathers,
Neither commanded I them,
In the day I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt,—
Concerning the matter of ascending-offering and peace-offering:

23 But <this thing> I commanded them—saying,
Hearken ye unto my voice,
So will I become unto you—a God,
And ||[ye]| shall become unto me—a people,—
Ye shall therefore walk in all the way that I may command you,
To the end it may be well with you;

24 Yet they hearkened not,
Neither inclined their ear,
But walked In the counsels—
In the stubbornness of their own wicked heart;
And went backward, and not forward.

25 <Ever since the day that your fathers came forth out of the land of Egypt, until this day>
Have I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, <Daily, betimes> sending them;
Yet they hearkened not unto me,
Neither inclined their ear,—
But stiffened their neck,
They did more wickedly than their fathers.

26 Therefore shalt thou speak unto them all these words,
Though they do not hearken unto thee,—
And thou shalt cry aloud unto them,
Though they do not answer thee;—

27 But thou shalt say unto them,—
||[This]| is the nation that hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh its God,
Neither accepted they correction,—
Perished’ is fidelity,
And is cut off out of their mouth.

28 Cut thou off thy crown of hair, [O Jerusalem],
And cast it away,
And lift thou up on the bare heights, a dirge,—
For Yahweh hath rejected and cast out the generation with which he was wroth.

29 For the sons of Judah [have done] that which was wicked in mine eyes,
Declareth Yahweh,—
They have set their abominations in the house whereon my Name hath been called, to defile it;
And they have built the high places of Topheth, which is in the valley of the son of Hinnom,
To burn up their sons and their daughters’ in the fire,—
Which I commanded not,
Neither came it up on my heart.

30 |Therefore| lo! |days are coming|,
Declareth Yahweh,
When it shall not be called any more—
The Topheth, nor
The valley of Ben-hinnom, but
The valley of Slaughter,—
And they shall bury in Topheth, for want’ of place;
33 And the dead bodies of this people shall become food,
    For the bird of the heavens, and
    For the beast of the earth,—
    And there shall be none to drive them away.
34 So will I cause to cease,
    From the cities of Judah, and
    From the streets of Jerusalem,
    The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness,
The voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride;—
    For  shall the land become.

Chapter 8.

1 <At that time>

Declareth Yahweh,
Shall they bring forth
    The bones of the kings of Judah, and
    The bones of his princes, and
    The bones of the priests, and
    The bones of the prophets, and
    The bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem
    Out of their graves.
2 And shall spread them out—
    To the sun and
    To the moon and
    To all the host of the heavens,
    Whom they have loved,
    And whom they have served,
    And after whom they have walked,
    And whom they have sought,
    And to whom they have bowed themselves down,—
    They shall not be gathered,
    Neither shall they be buried,
    <As heaps of dung on the face of the ground> shall they be.
3 Then shall [death] be chosen rather than [life], by all the remnant of them that remain, of this wicked family,—in all the places, by whither I have driven them,
    Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

4 Therefore shalt thou say unto them—
    ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
    Will men fall, and not arise?
    Will one turn away, and not come back?
5 Wherefore hath this people of Jerusalem apostatised with an enduring apostacy,— Taken fast hold of deceit,
    Refused to come back?
6 I hearkened and heard—
    <Not aright> did they speak,—
    [Not a man] repented him of his wickedness, saying,
    What have I done!
    They have ||every one|| turned to their course again,
    Like a horse sweeping on through the battle.
7 ||Even|| the stork in the heavens knoweth her appointed times,
    And ||the turtle and the swallow|| observe the season for coming;
    But ||my people|| know not the just sentence of Yahweh.
8 How can ye say,
    ||Wise|| are [we],
    And ||the law|| of Yahweh is with us?
    ||But indeed|| lo! <false> hath dealt the false pen of the scribes!
9 Ashamed are the wise, dismayed, and captured!
    Lo! <the word of Yahweh> have they rejected,
    And ||what wisdom|| have [they]?
10 ||Therefore|| will I give—
    Their wives to others,
    Their fields to such as shall take possession of them,
    For ||from the least, even unto the greatest||
    ||Every one|| is ||wholly given to extortion||;
    ||From|| the prophet, even unto the priest
    ||Every one|| dealeth ||false||ly.
11 <And so they have healed the grievous wound of the daughter of my people ||slightly||,—
    Saying, ||Peace! peace! when there was no peace!||

4 ||Every one|| <of his neighbour> beware ye, And <in no brother> may ye trust,— For ||every brother|| ||supplanteth||! And ||every neighbour|| <as a tale-bearer> goeth about;¹

5 Yea ||every one|| <of his neighbour> maketh a dupe, And <truth> they do not speak,— They have taught their tongue to speak falsehood, ||Thy dwelling|| is in the midst of deceit,— <Through deceit> have they rejected the knowledge of ||me||, Declareth Yahweh.

8 <A pointed arrow> is their tongue, <Deceit> hath it spoken,— <With his mouth, peace unto his neighbour> doth one speak, But <within himself> he layeth his ambush. ||For these things> shall I not bring punishment on them? 10 <Over the mountains> will I take up a weeping and wailing, And <over the oases of the desert> a dirge, For they have been burned, so that no man passeth through, Neither have men heard the lowing of cattle,— ||Both the bird of the heavens and the beast|| have fled, have gone their way: Thus will I give up Jerusalem To heaps, A habitation for jackals,— And <the cities of Judah> will I give up to desolation, without inhabitant.

16 And will scatter them among the nations, which neither they nor their fathers [have known],— And will send after them the sword, until I have consumed them. ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, Consider ye diligently and call for the wailing women, that they may come,— And <unto the wise women> send ye, that they may come; Yea let them make haste, and lift up over us a wailing,— That our eyes [may run down] with tears, And ||our eyelashes|| stream down with water;— Yea ||a voice of wailing|| hath been heard out of Zion, How are we ruined! Cutting off
The boy from the street,

Let not [the rich man] glory [in his riches];
But <in this> let the glorying one glory—

Chapter 10.

1 Hear ye the word which Yahweh hath spoken unto you, O house of Israel:—

||Thus|| saith Yahweh—

<Unto the way of the nations> become not ye accustomed,
Nor <at the signs of the heavens> be ye dismayed,—
Because the nations are dismayed at them.

For <as for the prescribed customs of the peoples> [vanity] they are’,—
For  one cutteth down,
Work for the hands of a skilled workman, ||with the axe||:

<With silver and with gold> he decketh it,—
<With nails and with hammers> they fasten them, that it may not totter.

<Mere palm-trunks turned> they are’, and cannot speak,
They must needs be ||carried||, for they cannot take a step,—
Be not afraid of them, for they cannot do harm,
And <even to do good> is not in their power.

||None|| there is |like unto thee||, f O Yahweh,—
||Great|| art ||thou||,
And ||great|| is |thy Name|, ||for might||.

|Who would not revere thee, O King of nations? For ||thee|| doth it beseem;
Forasmuch as <among all the wise men of the nations,
And throughout all their royal estate>
||None|| there is |like unto thee||.

But <at once> do they become brutish and stupid, g—

<An example of utmost vanity> is |a tree|!

And gold, from Uphaz,

10 But ||Yahweh|| is God [in truth], ||He|| is a God that [liveth], And a King of times age-abiding,— <At his anger> quaketh the earth, And nations cannot endure' his wrath. ||Thus|| shall ye say unto them, ||The gods that made not the heavens' And the earth' Shall perish out of the earth, And from under these heavens!∗

11 |||He|| that made the earth by his power, That established the world by his wisdom,— And [by his understanding] stretched out the heavens≥ ||At the voice that he uttered> there was a tumult of waters in the heavens, And he caused vapours to ascend from the ends of the earth,— <The lightnings for rain> he made, And brought forth wind out of his treasuries.

22 The noise of a rumour! lo it hath come! Even a great commotion, out of the land of the North,— To make the cities of Judah A desolation, A den of jackals.

Chapter 11.

1 The word that came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:

2 Hear ye the words of this covenant,—and speak ye unto the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, 3 and say thou unto them, [Thus] saith Yahweh, God of Israel,— [Accursed] is the man who will not hear’ the words of this covenant; 4 which I commanded your fathers—in the day when I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the smelting-pot of iron—saying,

Hearken unto my voice, and do them,

According to all that I may command you,— So shall ye become [my’ people],
And || will become your’ God:

That the oath may be established’ which I sware to your fathers,
To give them a land flowing with milk and honey, 5 as at this day.

Then answered I and said, Amen, O Yahweh!

6 And Yahweh said unto me,— Proclaim thou all these words, throughout the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying,— Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do them,

7 For I solemnly took your fathers to witness in the day that I brought them up out of the land of Egypt—even until this day, betimes taking them to witness, saying,—

Hearken ye unto my voice.

8 Howbeit they hearkened not, neither inclined their ear, but walked severally in the stubbornness of their wicked heart,—so then I brought upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do, but they did them not.

9 Yahweh therefore said unto me,— There is found a conspiracy, among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem: They have turned back unto the iniquities of their first fathers, who refused to hear my words, yea || have walked after other gods, to serve them,—the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken’ my covenant, which I solemnised with their fathers.

[Therefore]

||Thus|| saith Yahweh, Behold me! bringing upon them calamity, which they shall not be able to escape,—and |though they make outcry unto me| yet will I not hearken unto them. 12 Then shall the cities of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, go’ and make outcry unto the gods, to whom they’ have been burning incense,—but they will not at all || save || them in the time of their calamity; 13 for <according to the number of thy cities> have become thy gods O Judah,— and <according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem> have ye set up altars to the Shameful thing, altars for burning incense to Baal.

14 ||Thou|| therefore, do not prayb for this people, Neither lift thou up for them cry or prayer,— For I am not going to hear, in the time that they cry unto me concerning’ their calamity.

Why’ hath the beloved <in mine own house> done an abomination?
Shall ||vows and holy flesh||d take away from thee thy wickednesses, or shalt thou <by these> escape?e

16 <A green olive-tree, fair with goodly fruit> did Yahweh call thy name, —<with the noise of a great tumult> hath he kindled fire upon it, and the branches thereof || shall be broken.

17 But ||Yahweh of hosts, who planted thee|| hath pronounced against thee [calamity],—on account of the wickedness of the house of Israel and of the house of Judah, which they have wrought for themselves, provoking me to anger by burning incense to Baal.

18 Now when [Yahweh] let me know, and I did know [then] didst thou shew me their doings.

19 But [I] was as a gentle lamb that is to be led to the slaughter,—and I knew not that <against me> they had devised devices [saying]—

Let us destroy the tree with its fruit,

Yea let us cut him off out of the land of the living,

And [his name] shall be remembered no more!

20 But, O Yahweh of hosts,
Who judgest righteously,
Who triest affections and intellect,

Let me see thine affections avenging upon them,

For <unto thee> have revealed my cause.

21 [Therefore]

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
Concerning the men of Anathoth, who are seeking thy life, saying,—

Thou shalt not prophesy in the name of Yahweh,

So shalt thou not die by our hand;

22 [Therefore]

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,—
Behold me! bringing punishment upon them,
||The young men|| shall die by [the sword],
||Their sons and their daughters|| shall die by [famine];

And <remnant> shall they have none,—

For I will bring calamity against the men of Anathoth, in the year of their visitation.

Chapter 12.

1 ||Righteous|| art thou, O Yahweh, when I present my pleading unto thee,—
Yet <concerning the things that are right> let me speak with thee,—

Wherefore hath [the way of the lawless] prospered?

2 [Wherefore] have all [utter traitors][f] [been at ease]?
Thou didst plant them, yea they took root,
They have gone on, yea’ they have borne fruit,—

|Near| art thou’ [in their mouth],
But far off from their affections.

3 But [thou, O Yahweh], knowest me,
Wilt thou observe me, and try my heart [towards thee]?

Drag them away, as sheep for slaughter,
And hallow them, for the day when they are to be slain.

4 ||How long|| shall the land mourn,
And [the herbage of the whole field] wither?
<For the wickedness of them that dwell therein> beast and bird [have perished],
For, say they,
He will not see our latter end!

5 <If [with the footmen] thou hast run, and they have wearied thee>
How then wilt thou hotly contend [with horses]?
||Though [in a safe land] thou’ art confident>
Yet how wilt thou deal with the proud banks of the Jordan?

6 For <even thy brethren and the house of thy father>
||Even they|| have betrayed thee,
||Even they|| have cried after thee [with full voice],—

Do not trust in them, though they speak unto thee [fair words].

7 I have forsaken mine own house,
I have given up mine inheritance,—
I have delivered the dearly beloved of my soul, into the hand of her enemies:

8 ||Mine inheritance|| hath become to me [as a lion in a jungle],—
She hath given forth against me her voice,
||For this cause|| have I hated her.

It hath been made a desolation, It hath mourned unto me, all desolate,— All the land hath become a desolation, For [no' man] layeth it to heart.

They sowed [wheat], but <thorns> have they reaped, They have put themselves to pain, they shall not be profited,— Yea turn ye pale at your produce, Because of the glow of the anger of Yahweh.

Thus saith Yahweh Concerning all my wicked neighbours, who have been touching the inheritance which I gave as an inheritance unto my people Israel,— Behold me! uprooting them from off their own soil, Whereas <the house of Judah> will I uproot out of their midst.

And it shall come to pass <after I bare uprooted them> I will again' have compassion upon them,—and will bring them back— Every man—to his own inheritance, and Every man—to his own land.

And it shall come to pass— If they will |[diligently learn]| the ways of my people— To swear by my Name [saying], By the life of Yahweh, As they taught my people to swear by Baal> Then shall they be built' in the midst of my people.

But <if they will not hearken> Then will I Uproot that nation, Uproot, that I may destroy,— § 11. By Symbolic Action with a Linen Girdle, Jeremiah is taught how Israel now failed of fulfilling Yahweh's Designs, and, by the Metaphor of Wine-jars, how the Nation must suffer Punishment. If the People will not repent, the Prophet will weep in secret. The King and Queen-Mother specially called on to humble themselves.

Chapter 13.

Thus said Yahweh unto me,—

Go, and buy for thyself, a linen girdle, and put upon thy loins,—but <in water> shalt thou not place it.

So I bought a girdle, according to the word of Yahweh,—and put upon my loins. Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, a second time, saying:

Take the girdle which thou hast bought, which is upon thy loins,—and arise, go to the Euphrates, and hide it there, in a hole of the cliff.

So I went, and hid it, by the Euphrates, as Yahweh had commanded me. And it came to pass, at the end of many days,—that Yahweh said unto me,— Arise, go to the Euphrates, and take from thence, the girdle, which I commanded thee to hide there.

So I went to the Euphrates, and dug, and took the girdle' out of the place where I had hidden it,—and lo! the girdle [was spoiled], it was good for nothing. Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Thus saith Yahweh,— <After this manner> will I spoil the pride of Judah, and the great pride of Jerusalem.

This wicked people, who are refusing to hear my words, who are walking in the stubbornness of their heart, and have gone after other gods, to serve them, and to bow down to them]| yea let them be like this girdle, which is good for nothing.

For <as a girdle cleaveth unto the loins of a man> ||so|| caused I to cleave unto me—the whole house of Israel, and the whole house of Judah,

Declareth Yahweh,

Behold me! filling all the inhabitants of this land—
Even the kings that are sitting for David, upon his throne, and the priests and the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem—with drunkenness;
and I will dash them every man against his brother, even the fathers and the sons [together],

Declareth Yahweh,—

Neither will I spare,

Hear ye and give ear, be not haughty,—
For ||Yahweh|| hath spoken.

Give ye, to Yahweh your God—glory,
Before he cause darkness, and
Before your feet stumble upon the twilight mountains;
Lest <when ye wait for light>
He turn it into the shadow of death,
And change it for thick darkness.

But <if ye will not hear it>
<In secret places> shall my soul weep’,
Because of the pride,—
And mine eye’ ||shall flow over|| and run down [with tears],
Because captive’ hath been taken the flock of Yahweh.

Say thou to the king and to the queen-mother,

Abase yourselves— Sit down,—
For descended’ have your Crown of adornment.

||[The cities of the South]| are shut,
And there is none’ to open,—
Judah [hath been carried away captive],
She hath altogether’ been carried away captive in full number.

Lift up your eyes and see,
Them who are coming in from the North,—
Where is The flock that was given thee,
Thy beautiful’ flock?

What wilt thou say when he shall bring punishment upon thee,
Since ||thou thyself|| hast accustomed them to be over thee as friends [in chief]?
Shall not [pangs] seize thee, as of a woman in childbirth?

But <if thou say in thy heart,
Wherefore’ have these things befallen’ me?>
||[For the greatness of thine iniquity]| have
Thy skirts’ been turned aside,
Thy heels’ suffered violence!

Can [the Ethiopian] change’ [his skin],
Or [the leopard] [his spots]?
Even ||ye|| may be able to do right,
Who are accustomed’ to do wrong.

Therefore have I scattered them,
As broken straw passing away, by the wind of the desert.

||This|| is thy lot,
||[Thy measured portion from me]],
Declareth Yahweh;—

For that thou didst forget me,
And confide in falsehood:

Therefore ||[even I myself]| have drawn away thy skirts, over thy face,
And thy shame [hath been seen].

<Thine adulteries, and thy neighings, thine unchaste’ wickedness>
<Upon the hills in the field> I have seen thine abominations!

The Prophet in dismay apostrophises his Mother, vindicates himself, and is assured of Divine Protection.

Chapter 14.

1 So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah, concerning the matter of the drought:—
2 Judah mourneth, and is assured of Divine Protection.
3 And their nobles have sent their menials to the waters,—

You have been to the pits, They have been in the drought; The plowmen are pale, They have covered their heads.

4 Because the ground is cracked, For there hath been no rain in the land The plowmen are pale, They have covered their heads.

5 For even the hind of the field hath calved, and forsaken, Because there is no young herbage; Yea wild asses stand still on the bare heights, They pant for air like jackals,— Dimmed are their eyes, Because there is no grass.

6 Though our iniquities have testified against us>

O Yahweh, effectually work thou, for the sake of thy Name,— For our apostasies have abounded, Against thee have we sinned.

8 Thou Hope of Israel,
15 Therefore saith Yahweh, concerning the prophets who are prophesying in my Name, though [they] sent them not, and yet [they] have been saying, [Neither sword nor famine] shall there be in this land,—

<By sword or by famine> shall [those’ prophets] be consumed;

And [the people to whom they’ have been prophesying] shall be getting cast out into the streets of Jerusalem, because of the famine and the sword, and of there being none’ to give burial [unto them], [their wives, nor their sons nor their daughters],—

So will I pour out upon them their own wickedness.

Therefore shalt thou say unto them this word, Let mine eyes [run down] with tears night and day,

And let them not rest,—

For [with a grievous injury] hath been injured the virgin, the daughter of my people,

[With a wound, severe indeed]!

16 <If I have gone out into the field> Then lo! the slain of the sword!
And [if have entered the city> Then lo! the diseases of famine!
For [both prophet and priest] have trafficked against the land [unnoticed].

17 Hast thou [utterly rejected] Judah? <Zion itself> hath thy soul loathed?
[Why] hast thou smitten us, so that there is for us no’ healing?

A waiting For prosperity, but no’ welfare, and a For a time of healing, but lo! terror!

18 We acknowledge, O Yahweh, Our own lawlessness, The iniquity of our fathers,—
For we have sinned against thee.

Do not despise—for the sake of thy Name, Do not’ treat with contempt—the throne of thy glory,— Remember!—do not break thy covenant with us.

Are’ there, among the vanities of the nations, senders of rain?

Or can [the heavens themselves] give myriad drops?
Art not [thou] he, O Yahweh our God?
Therefore will we wait for thee,
For [thou] hast made all these.

Chapter 15.

1 Then said Yahweh unto me,

<Though Moses and Samuel should stand’ before me> My soul could not’ be toward this people,—
Send them away from before me,
And let them go forth.

2 And it shall come to pass <when they say unto thee, Whither’ shall we go?>

Then shalt thou say unto them,

[This] saith Yahweh—

[Such as are for death] to death, and [Such as are for the sword] to the sword, and [Such as are for famine] to the famine, and [Such as are for captivity] to captivity.

3 And I will set in charge over them—four species,

Declareth Yahweh,
The sword, to slay, and
The dogs, to trail along,—and
The bird of the heavens and
The beast of the earth, to devour and to destroy.

4 And I will make them a terror, to all the kingdoms of the earth,—

On account of Manasseh, son of Hezekiah, king of Judah,
[For what he did in Jerusalem].

5 For who shall have pity upon thee, O Jerusalem? And who shall lament for thee?
And who shall turn aside, to ask for thy welfare?

6 [Thou] hast abandoned [me], Declareth Yahweh,

<Backward> thou wilt go,—
Therefore have I stretched forth my hand against thee and laid thee waste,—
I am weary of having compassion.

7 Therefore have I winnowed them with a winnowing shovel, in the gates of the land,—
I have bereaved—I have destroyed my people,
<From their own ways> have they not returned.

§ 14. The Potter’s House and its Lessons: attempting to enforce which, Jeremiah’s Hearers conspire against him, and he prays against them—though once he had pleaded for them.

Chapter 18.

The word that came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh, saying:

1 Arise and go down to the house of the potter,— and there he was! making a piece of work on the wheels. 4 Then was marred the vessel that he was making, while yet it was clay in the hand of the potter,—so he turned and made of it another vessel, as seemed right in the eyes of the potter to make it. 5 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

6 Like this potter can I not deal with you, O house of Israel?

Demandeth Yahweh:
Lo! <as clay in the hand of the potter> ||So|| are ||ye|| in my hand, O house of Israel.

7 The moment I speak, concerning a nation, or concerning a kingdom,—to pull up and to break down, and to destroy; 8 and that nation return’ from its wickedness, against whom I have spoken≥ then will I repent concerning the calamity’ which I had devised to bring upon it.

9 And the moment I speak, concerning a nation, or concerning a kingdom,—to build, and to plant; 10 and it commit wickedness in mine eyes, in not hearkening unto my voice≥ then will I repent concerning the good wherewith I had said I would do it good.

11 Now therefore, I pray thee, speak unto the men of Judah, and concerning the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying,

Thus saith Yahweh,—
Lo! I’ am fashioning against you calamity, and devising against you, a device,—
Return, I pray you, every man from his wicked way,
And amend your ways, and your doings.
And since they will say, Hopeless!
For <after our own devices> will we walk,
And every one <the stubbornness of his own wicked heart> will we do!≥

Therefore]

Thus saith Yahweh,
Ask, I pray you, among the nations,—
Who hath heard [such things as these]?
A very horrible thing hath [the virgin, Israel] done!

14 Shall the snow of Lebanon [fall from the rock of the field]?
Or shall waters from afar, deep, overflowing, [be dried up]?

15 Yet my people [have forgotten me],
Unto vanity> have they been burning incense;
And it hath caused them to stumble
In their ways,
The roads of age-past times,
To walk in by-paths—
A way [not cast up].

16 To make their land a desolation,
The hissings of age-abiding times,—
Every one that passeth by her] shall be astonished and wag his head.

17 Like an east wind> will I scatter them before the enemy,—

And hearken unto the voice of mine accusers.

20 Shall [evil] be recompensed' for [good]?
For they have digged a pit for my life,
—Remember how I stood before thee
To speak, in their behalf, what was good!
To turn back thine indignation from them.

21 Therefore give thou up their sons to the famine,
And deliver them into the hands of the sword,
And let their [wives] become childless and widows,
And let [their men] be slain by death,
[Their young men] be smitten by the sword in battle.

22 Let there be heard a cry out of their houses,
When thou shalt bring in upon them a troop,

Because they digged a pit to capture me,
And <snares> did they hide for my feet.

§ 16. Jeremiah is smitten and put in the Stocks by Pashhur, priest, and overseer of the Temple. Next day, when set free, he boldly denounces Pashhur—naming him a “Terror-round-about,” and dooming him to be carried Captive to Babylon. Then his Mind recoils, especially when he finds himself laughed at and nicknamed by the People: he resolves to be silent, and cannot: finally, in full Oriental style, he curses the Day he was born.

Chapter 20.

1 And when Pashhur son of Immer, the priest, who also was deputy-overseer in the house of Yahweh, heard that Jeremiah had prophesied these things, then Pashhur smote Jeremiah the prophet,—and put him in the stocks that were in the upper gate of Benjamin, which was in the house of Yahweh. And it came to pass <on the morrow, when Pashhur brought forth Jeremiah, out of the stocks>—that Jeremiah said unto him—

"Not Pashhur" hath Yahweh called thy name, But Mâgôr-miṣṣaviv ["Terror-round-about"].

4 For

||[Thus]||saith Yahweh—
Behold me! making thee a [mâgôr, i.e.: a] terror to thyself and to all who love thee, and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, [thine own eyes also] beholding.
And <all Judah> will I deliver into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he will carry them captive to Babylon, and smite them with the sword.

5 And I will deliver up—
All the wealth of this city, and
All her labour and
All her precious things,—
And <all the treasures of the kings of Judah> will I deliver up into the hands of their enemies, and they will make of them a prey, and take them, and carry them into Babylon.

6 And [thou, Pashhur, and all who are dwelling in thy house] shall go into captivity,— Yea <into Babylon> shalt thou enter, And <there> shalt thou die, And <there> shalt thou be buried,

8 And I will make this city a desolation, and a hissing,—[every one that passeth by it] shall be astonished and hiss, over all her wounds;
9 And I will suffer them to eat the flesh of their sons, and the flesh of their daughters, yea <every one—the flesh of his friend> will they eat,—in the siege, and in the straitness, wherewith [their enemies, and they who seek their lives], will straiten them.

10 Then shalt thou break the bottle; before the eyes of the men who are walking with thee;
and shalt say unto them—
||Thus||saith Yahweh of hosts—
||Thus and thus||will I break this people, and this city,
As one breaketh the vessel of a potter, which cannot be made whole any more,—
And <in Topheth> shall they bury, for want of place to bury.

12 ||Thus||will I do to this place,
Declareth Yahweh,
And to the inhabitants thereof,—
||Even making this city like Topheth|:

13 Yea [the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Judah], shall <like the place of Topheth> be places defiled,—even all the houses, upon whose roofs they burned incense, to all the host of the heavens, and poured out drink-offerings to other gods.

14 Then entered Jeremiah out of Topheth, whither Yahweh had sent him to prophesy,—and stood in the court of the house of Yahweh, and said unto all the people:

||Thus||saith Yahweh of hosts,

|Peradventure| he will be persuaded, and we shall prevail over him, and take our vengeance upon him.e
11 But ||Yahweh|| is with me, as a mighty one striking terror,
||For this cause|| shall my persecutors stumble, and not prevail,—
They have turned very pale,
ˎ For they have not prospered,
ˎ <Confusion age-abiding> it shall not be forgotten!
12 But, O Yahweh of hosts—
Testing the righteous,
Beholding the affectionsf and the heart,—
Let me see thine avenging upon them,
For <unto thee> have I laid bare my cause.
13 Sing ye to Yahweh! Praise ye Yahweh!

For he hath delivered the soul of the needy, out of the hand of evildoers.
14 ||Accursed|| be the day on which I was born,—
||The day when [my mother] bare me|| let it not be blessed!
15 ||Accursed|| be the man who carried tidings to my father, saying,
There is born to thee a man’-child!
Making him very glad:
16 Yea let that’ man be—as the cities which Yahweh overthrew’ and repented not,—
And let him hear
ˎ An outcry in the morning, and ˎ A war-shout at broad noon!
17 Because I was not slain from the womb,—
Nor did [my mother] become [my grave],
Nor was her womb great for ever!
18 |Wherefore| was’ it—
That <from the womb> I came forth, to see labour and pain; and
That |in shame| should |my days| be consumed!

§ 17. In reply to Enquiries of Yahweh made by Jeremiah for King Zedekiah, special Answers are sent to the King, to the People, and to the House of David. Further Messages to the Royal House.

Chapter 21.
1 The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh,—when King Zedekiah sent unto him Pashhur, son of Malchiah, and Zephaniah, i son of Maaseiah, j the priest, saying:
2 Enquire for us, I pray thee, of Yahweh, in that ||Nebuchadrezzar, king of Babylon|| maketh war against us,—|Peradventure| Yahweh will deal with us, according to all his wonders, as that he go up from us.
3 Then said Jeremiah unto them,—
||Thus|| shall ye say unto Zedekiah:
4 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
God of Israel—
Behold me! turning back the weapons of war that are in your hand, wherewith ||ye|| are fighting the king of Babylon and the Chaldeans, who are besieging you, outside the wall,—and I will gather them into the midst of this city.

5 And [I myself] will fight against you, with a hand outstretched, and with an arm of strength,—and with anger and with wrath, and with great indignation; and I will smite the inhabitants of this city, [both man and beast]—<of a great pestilence> shall they die.

7 And <after that> Declareth Yahweh—Will I deliver Zedekiah king of Judah, and his servants, and the people,—even such as are left in this city from the pestilence, from the sword, and from the famine,—into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, even into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them who are seeking their life,—and he will smite them with the edge of the sword, he will not have pity on them, nor will he spare, nor will he have compassion.

8 And <unto this people> shalt thou say,

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,—Behold me! setting before you, the way [of life], and the way [of death].

9 ||He that remaineth in this city|| shall die—by the sword, or by the famine, or by the pestilence,—Whereas ||he that goeth forth and falleth unto the Chaldeans, who are besieging you,||—then shall he live; and ||his life|| shall become to him [a spoil];

10 For I have set my face against this city, for calamity and not for blessing,

Declareth Yahweh,—<Into the hand of the king of Babylon> shall it be given up, and he will burn it with fire.

11 Now <as to the house of the king of Judah>—hear ye the word of Yahweh:—

O house of David! ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,

Administer justice [betimes],

And deliver the robbed out of the hand of the oppressor,—Lest mine indignation [come forth like fire], And burn, and there be none to quench it, Because of the wickedness of your doings:

13 Behold me! against thee, O thou dweller in the vale, on the level rock, Declareth Yahweh,—Ye who are saying, Who shall come down upon us? Who shall enter our habitations?

14 Yet will I bring punishment upon you, according to the fruit of your doings,

Declareth Yahweh,—and will kindle a fire in her forest, and it shall devour all things round about her.

Chapter 22.

||Thus|| said Yahweh,

Go thou down to the house of king of Judah, and speak thou there this word, 2 and say—Hear thou the word of Yahweh, O king of Judah, who sittest upon the throne of David,—[thou, and thy servants, and thy people, who enter in at these gates]||

Execute ye justice, and righteousness, And deliver the robbed, out of the hand of the oppressor,—But <the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow> do not oppress, neither commit violence, And <the blood of the innocent> do not ye shed, in this place.

For <if ye [indeed do]] this thing> then shall there enter into the gates of this house—kings, sitting for David upon his throne, riding in chariots and on horses, [he, and his servants, a and his people].

5 But [if ye will not hear] these words
   [By myself] have I sworn Declare Yahweh—
That [a ruin] shall [this house] become.
6 For [Thus] saith Yahweh
Concerning the house of the King of Judah,—
7 And I will hallow against thee Destroyers,
Every man with his weapons,—
And they shall cut down of the choicest of thy cedars, and cast upon the fire.
8 Then shall many nations pass by this city,—and shall say, every man to his neighbour,
<For what cause> hath Yahweh done [Thus] unto this great city?
9 And they shall say,
Because they forsook the covenant of Yahweh, their God,—
And bowed down to other gods, And served them.
10 Do not ye lament for him that is dead,
Neither bemoan ye [him],
But weep ye—weep on b—for him that is going away,
For he shall not return any more,
Nor see the land of his birth.
11 For [Thus] saith Yahweh—
Touching Shallum, c son of Josiah, king of Judah,
That reigneth instead of Josiah, his father,
Who hath gone forth out of this place,
He shall not return thither any more;
12 For [in the place whither they have taken him captive]
[There] shall he die,—
And [this land] shall he see no more.
13 Alas! for him who buildeth
His house without righteousness,
And his roof-chambers without justice,—
<Of his neighbour> taketh service for nought,
And <recompense for his work> giveth him not.
14 Who saith—
I will build me a roomy house, with spacious roof-chambers,—
So he cutteth him open its windows,
And it is covered in with cedar,
And he painteth it with vermillion.
15 Shalt thou reign, because [thou] art eager to excel in cedar?
<Thy father> did he not eat and drink, and do justice and righteousness,
And [then] it was well with him?
16 [Did he not] plead the cause of the oppressed and the needy,
And [then] it was well?
Was not [that] to know [me]?
   Demandeth Yahweh.
17 Verily thou hast neither eyes, nor heart, save for thy plundering and for thy shedding of [innocent blood], and for oppression and for crushing, to do’ them!
18 Therefore— [Thus] saith Yahweh,
<Touching Jehoiakim son of Josiah—
King of Judah>
They shall not cry in lament for him
Alas, my brother! or Alas, sister!
They shall not cry in lament for him
Alas, lord! or Alas! his renown!
19 <With the burial of an ass> shall he be buried,— Dragged along and cast forth, beyond the gates of Jerusalem.
20 Ascend the Lebanon, and make outcry,
And <in Bashan> put forth thy voice,—
And make outcry from Abarim; c
For all thy lovers [are torn in pieces].
21 I spake unto thee in thy carelessness,—
Thou saidst, I will not hearken! [This] hath been thy way from thy youth,
That thou hast not hearkened to my voice.
22 <All thy shepherds> the wind shall feed,
And [thy lovers] <into captivity> shall depart,—

23 O inhabitress of Lebanon, that maketh thy nest in the cedars, —
How hast thou bemoaned thyself. Now that pangs have overtaken thee, Anguish, as of her that giveth birth.

24 As I live] — Declareth Yahweh,—
<Even though Coniah] son of Jehoiakim king of Judah were the signet-ring upon my right hand> yet ||from thence|| would I pull thee off; 25 and I would give thee into the hand of them who seek thy life, and into the hand of them from the face of whom ||thou|| dost shrink in fear,—even into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and into the hand of the Chaldeans: 26 and I will hurl thee out, and thy mother who bare thee, upon another land, where ye were not born,—and ||there|| shall ye die. 27 But <unto the land whither they shall be lifting up their souls to return> ||there|| shall they not return.

28 <An earthen vessel, to be despised, thrown about> is this man Coniah?
Or an instrument, in which is no pleasure? |Wherefore| are they to be cast out, ||he and his seed||, and to be thrown forth upon a land which they have not known?

29 O land, land, land!
Hear thou the word of Yahweh!
||Thy word|| saith Yahweh,—
Register ye this man |childless|,
A man who shall not prosper in his days,—
For there shall prosper of his seed,
No man sitting upon the throne of David, Or ruling any more over Judah.

§ 18. Bad Shepherds denounced: Yahweh himself will gather the Remnant of his Flock, and raise up Good Shepherds, notably One of Davidic Descent, of Saving Power, and of Divine Name; in whose Days a Wider Return than from Babylon shall furnish a new Formula for Swearing. False Prophets, Dreamers, Pretenders are to be for ever disgraced.

Chapter 23.

1 Alas for the shepherds, who are destroying and scattering the sheep of my pasture,

2 |Therefore|
||Thus|| saith Yahweh, God of Israel,
Concerning the shepherds who are tending my people,—
||Ye|| have scattered my flock, and have driven them away, and have not visited them,—
Behold me! visiting |upon you| the wickedness of your doings,
Declareth Yahweh.

3 ||I myself|| therefore, will gather the remnant of my flock, out of all the lands whither I have driven them,—
And will bring them back unto their own fold,
And they shall be fruitful and multiply;
4 And I will raise up over them shepherds, who will tend them,—
So shall they not be afraid any more, nor be dismayed, nor be missing,
Declareth Yahweh.

5 Lo! |days are coming|,
Declareth Yahweh,
when I will raise up to David A righteous Bud,
And he shall reign as |king|, and prosper,
And shall execute justice and righteousness in the land.
6 <In his days>
Shall Judah |be saved|,
And ||Israel|| abide securely,—
And ||this|| is his name whereby he shall be called,
||Yahweh|| our Righteousness.

7 |Therefore| lo! |days are coming|,
Declareth Yahweh,
When it shall not be said any more,
As Yahweh liveth, who brought up the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt;
8 but—
As Yahweh liveth, who hath brought up and who hath brought in the seed of the house of Israel out of the land of the North, and out of all the lands whither I have driven them,—
And they shall remain upon their own soil.

9 <As for the prophets>—
Broken’ is my heart within me,
Trembled’ have all my bones,

a Nearly so, Davies’ H.L. 221. Cp. O.G. 386.
b Heb.: konyáhû.

c Or: “sprout.” Cp. chap. xxxiii. 15; Is. lxi. 11.
I have become as a drunken man,
And as a strong man whom wine hath overcome,—
Because of Yahweh,
And because of his holy’ words.

10 For <with adulterers> is the land filled’,
Yea <because of cursing> doth the land mourn,
Dried up are the oases of the desert,—
And [their oppression] hath become wicked,
And [their might] is not right.

11 For <both prophet and priest> are profane,—
<Even in my house> have I found their wickedness,
Declareth Yahweh.—

12 Therefore shall their way become to them like slippery places in darkness,
They shall be driven on, and shall fall therein,—
For I will bring in upon them calamity—
The year of their visitation
Declareth Yahweh.—

13 <Even among the prophets of Samaria> had I seen a foolish thing,—
They prophesied by Baal,
And led astray my people Israel.

14 But <among the prophets of Jerusalem> have I seen a horrible thing,— Committing adultery,
And walking in falsehood,
And so strengthening the hands of doers of wickedness, not to return any man from his wickedness:
They have [all of them] become’ to me [as Sodom],
And her inhabitants, [as Gomorrah].

15 Therefore
||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,
Concerning the prophets,—
Behold me!
Feeding them with wormwood,
And I will cause them to drink poisoned water,—
For <from the prophets of Jerusalem> hath there gone forth profanity unto all the land.

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,—
Do not hearken unto the words of the prophets who are prophesying unto you,
They’ are filling you’ [with vain’ hopes],—
<The vision of their own hearts> do they speak,
Not from the mouth of Yahweh!

17 They keep on saying to them who despise me,
Yahweh hath spoken], [saying] <Prosperity> shall ye have!
And <to every one who is going on in the stubbornness of his own heart> have they said,
There shall come on you |no calamity|;
For who’ hath stood in the council of Yahweh, that he should see, and hear his word?
Who hath given ear to his’ word, and heard it?

19 Lo! the tempest of Yahweh!
||Indignation|| hath come forth, e
Even a tempest whirling along:
<On the head of the lawless> shall it hurl itself down.

20 The anger of Yahweh |wilt not return],
Until he hath executed, nor
Until he hath established,
The purposes of his heart,—
<In the afterpart of the days> shall ye understand it [perfectly].

21 I sent not the prophets, yet ||they|| ran,
I spake not unto them, yet ||they|| prophesied.

22 But <if they had stood in my council>
Then might they have announced my words unto my people,
And have turned them from their wicked’ way and from the wickedness of their doings.

23 Am I’ ||a God at hand||,
Demandeth Yahweh.—
And not a God afar off?

24 Can any hide’ himself in secret places, that ||I|| shall not see him?
Demandeth Yahweh,—
<The heavens and the earth> do I’ not fill?
Demandeth Yahweh.

26 [How long] shall it be in the heart of the prophets,
   [To be] prophets of falsehood,—
   And prophets of the deceit of their own heart?
27 Who lay a plot to cause my people [to forget]

   Just as their fathers forgot [my name], ||for Baal||.
28 <The prophet with whom is a dream>
   Let him relate it as a dream,
   And <he with whom is my word>
   Let him speak my word as truth,—
   What is the chaff to the wheat?'
   Demandeth Yahweh:
29 Is not my word [like this],

   Demandeth Yahweh,—
   And like a hammer, that breaketh in pieces a cliff?
30 [Therefore] behold me! against the prophets,
   Declareth Yahweh,—
   who steal my words, every man from his neighbour:
31 Behold me! against the prophets,
   Declareth Yahweh,
   who presume with their tongue and declare,
   He declareth:d
32 Behold me! against such as prophesy the dreams of falsehood, Declareth Yahweh, who have related them, and led astray my people, with their falsehoods and with their recklessness, —whereas ||I|| had not sent them, nor commanded them, so that they could be of no ||profit|| to this people.
   Declareth Yahweh.
33 But <when this people, or a prophet or a priest, shall ask thee, saying>
   What is the oracle of Yahweh?≥
   Then shalt thou say unto them,
   ||Ye yourselves|| are the oracle,
   Therefore will I reject you,
   Declareth Yahweh;
34 But <the prophet, or the priest, or the people, who shall say—>
   The oracle of Yahweh≥
   I will bring punishment upon that man, and upon his house.
35 ||Thus|| shall ye say—every man unto his neighbour, and every man unto his brother,—
   What’ hath Yahweh |answered?| or,
   What’ hath Yahweh |spoken?|
36 but <the oracle of Yahweh> shall ye not mention [any more], —for ||every man’s oracle|| shall be his own word, because ye have perverted the words of a Living’ God, ||Yahweh of hosts, our God||.
37 ||Thus|| shall thou say unto the prophet,—
   What’ hath Yahweh |answered thee?| or
   What’ hath Yahweh |spoken?|
38 But <since ye keep on saying
   |The Oracle of Yahweh|>,
   |therefore|
   ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
   ≤Because ye have said this word, The oracle of Yahweh, whereas I had sent unto you saying
   Ye shall not say, The oracle of Yahweh≥ 39 [therefore] behold me! I will lift you up, —and carry you away, and the city which I gave to you and to your fathers, from before my face; 40 and will give unto you reproach age-abiding,—and disgrace age-abiding, which shall not be forgotten.

§ 19. Two Baskets of Figs: the Good representing the Captives; and the Bad setting forth such as remain in Judea or dwell in Egypt.

Chapter 24.

1 Yahweh shewed’ me, and lo! two baskets of figs, which had been set before the temple of Yahweh,—after that Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon had carried away captive, Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim king of Judah, and the princes of Judah, and the carpenters and the smiths, out of Jerusalem, and had brought them into Babylon:—

§ 20. Jeremiah sums up the Messages he had delivered against Judah and Jerusalem, from the thirteenth Year of Josiah to the fourth of Jehoiakim; declaring that, as these Messages had been unheeded, the threatened Chaldean Invasion must needs come, but the Captivity in Babylon should be limited to Seventy Years. The Prophet passes the Cup of Indignation round to the Nations, beginning at Jerusalem, and significantly ending with Sheshach (or Babylon, chap. ii. 41).

Chapter 25.

1 The word, which came upond Jeremiah, concerning all the people of Judah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah,—

§1 some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns., Sep. and Vul.) read: “unto”—G.n.

2 [the one basket] was of very good figs, like the first-ripe' figs; and [the other basket] was of very bad figs, which could not be eaten for badness. 3 Then said Yahweh unto me,—

§2 some cod. (w. Sep., Syr., Vul.) read: “eyes” (pl.)—G.n.

And I said,

Figs:

||the good figs|| very good; and
||the bad|| very bad, which cannot be eaten for badness].

4 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

||Like these’ good figs|| will I regard them of Judah who are carried into captivity, whom I have sent out of this place into the land of the Chaldeans, for good].

6 Therefore will I set mine eye upon them, [for good], and will bring them back upon this land,—

||Thus|| saith Yahweh God of Israel,

Like these good figs|| so will I regard them of Judah who are carried into captivity, whom I have sent out of this place into the land of the Chaldeans, for good;

and will give them a heart, to know [me], that [for good] am Yahweh,

So shall they become my’ people,

And [for good] will become their’ God;

for they will return unto me with all their heart.

8 And <like the bad figs, which cannot be eaten [for badness]>

Surely [thus] saith Yahweh—

||so|| will I deliver up Zedekiah king of Judah, and his princes, and the remnant of Jerusalem, that remain in this land, and them who are dwelling in the land of Egypt; yea I will deliver them up, as a terror of calamity, to all the kingdoms of the earth,—as a reproach, and as a byword, as a mockery and as a contempt, in every place whither I will drive them; 10 and I will send among them, sword, famine and pestilence,—until they are consumed from off the soil, which I gave to them, and to their fathers.

9 Howbeit ye hearkened not unto me, that ye might provoke me to anger with the work of your hands, unto your own hurt.

3 § From the thirteenth year of Josiah son of Amon king of Judah, even until this day, the which is the twenty-third year≥ hath the word of Yahweh come’ unto me; and I have spoken unto you, [betimes] speaking, yet have ye not hearkened. 4 And Yahweh sent’ unto you, all his servants the prophets, [betimes] sending, though ye hearkened not, neither inclined ye your ear’ to hear:

§3 some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns., Sep. and Vul.) read: “unto”—G.n.

9 Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn., Sep., Syr. and Vul.): “and famine”—G.n.

4 One school of Massorites omit this “all.”

5 Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns., Sep. and Vul.): “unto”—G.n.

7 A sp. v.r. (sevir): “and concerning”—G.n.
8 Therefore
    "Thus" saith Yahweh of hosts,—
     <Because ye have not heard my words>.
9 Behold me! sending and fetching all the families of the North,
    Declareth Yahweh,
    and Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, my servant,
    And I will bring them in against this land, and against its inhabitants, and against all these nations, [round about],—
    And I will devote them to destruction, and make them an astonishment and a hissing, and age-abiding desolations.
10 And I will banish from among them—
    The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness,
    The voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride,—
    The sound of the millstones, and the light of the lamp.a 11 So shall all this land become, a desolation, an astonishing, b
    And these nations shall serve the king of Babylon, seventy years.
12 And it shall some to pass—
     <When the seventy years are fulfilled>—
    I will visit upon the king of Babylon and upon that nation,

    Declareth Yahweh,
    their iniquity, and upon the land of the Chaldeans,—and I will turn it into age-abiding desolations.
13 So will I bring upon that land,
    All my words which I have spoken against it,— Even all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah hath prophesied against all the nations.
14 For many nations, and great kings, have used
    ||even them|| as slaves,
    So will I recompense to them—
    According to their deed, and
    According to the work of their own hands.

13 For ||thus|| said Yahweh, God of Israel unto me, Take this cup of indignation' wine, out of my am sending thee [to drink it];

14 Yea they shall drink, and reel to and fro, and act

15 So I took the cup out of the hand of Yahweh,— and caused all the nations, unto whom Yahweh had sent me, [to drink]: 18 [to wit, said he]—
    Jerusalem, and the cities of Judah, and her kings,

    ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,
    God of Israel,—
Drink ye and be drunken, and vomit, and fall, and rise not,—because of the sword’ which I am sending between you.

28 And it shall be <when they shall refuse to take the cup at thy hand, to drink> then shalt thou say unto them—
||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,
Ye shall ||certainly drink||;
29 For lo! <with the city on which my Name hath been called> am I’ making a beginning of sending calamity,
And shall ||ye|| be held ||guiltless||?
Ye shall not be held guiltless:

Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

30 ||Thou|| therefore, shalt prophesy against them all these words,—and shalt say unto them—
||Yahweh|| <from on high> will roar,
Yea <from his holy habitation> will utter his voice,
He will ||roar mightily|| over his home, b
<With a shout as of them who tread the winepress> c will he answer unto all the inhabitants of the earth.

31 There hath come in a tumult, as far as the end of the earth,
For  hath Yahweh |with the nations|,
||Himself|| hath entered’ into judgment with all flesh,—
<As for the lawless> he hath delivered them to the sword,
Declareth Yahweh.

32 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,
Lo calamity! going forth from nation to nation,—
And ||a great tempest|| shall be stirred up, out of the remote parts of the earth.
33 Then shall the slain of Yahweh <in that day> be from one end of the earth, even unto the other end of the earth,—
They shall not be lamented, nor gathered together, nor buried,
||Thus|| saith Yahweh.

<As dung, on the face of the ground> shall they serve.

34 Howl, ye shepherds, and make outcry,
And roll in the dust, ye illustrious of the flock,
Because your days for being slaughtered, are fulfilled,—
Therefore will I break you in pieces, d and ye shall fall, like a precious vessel!
35 Then shall place of refuge vanish from the shepherds,
And escape, from the illustrious of the flock.
36 The voice of the outcry of the shepherds!
Yea the howling of the illustrious of the flock!—Because Yahweh is laying waste the grounds where they fed.
37 Then shall be silenced the prosperous pastures, e—
Because of the fierceness of the anger of Yahweh.
38 He hath left, as a lion, his covert,
For their land hath become a horror,
Because of the fierceness of oppression, e and Because of the fierceness of his anger.

§ 21. Jeremiah, delivering his Warnings in the Temple Court, Priests, Prophets, and People seize him and threaten him with death; whereupon the Princes hear the Case: the Peril of the Prophet is noted, but Ahikam delivers Jeremiah out of his Enemies’ Hands.

Chapter 26.

1 <In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah> came this word from Yahweh, saying:
2 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,—
Stand thou in the court of the house of Yahweh, and speak unto all the cities of Judah, who are entering in to bow down in the house of Yahweh, all the words’ which I have commanded thee to speak unto them,—do not thou keep back a word:
3 [Peradventure] they will hear, and return every man from his wicked’ way,—and I shall repent as to the calamity which I’ am devising to execute upon them, because of the wickedness of their doings:

4 Therefore shalt thou say unto them, \[||Thy|]| saith Yahweh,—
\[\leq\] If ye will not hearken unto me, To walk in my law as which I have set before you;

5 To hearken unto the words of my servants the prophets, whom I am sending unto you, even if [betimes] sending, though ye have not hearkened;

6 Then I will make this house like Shiloh,—And <this city> will I make a contempt to all the nations of the earth.

7 So the priests and the prophets, and all the people, heard’ Jeremiah, speaking these words in the house of Yahweh.\(^a\) And it came to pass <when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking all that Yahweh had commanded [him] to speak unto all the people> that the priests, and the prophets, and all the people, [laid hold of him], saying— Thou shalt ||surely die||!

9 |Why| hast thou prophesied in the name of Yahweh, saying, <Like Shiloh>\(^c\) shall this house become, And ||this city|| shall be desolate, without inhabitant? And all the people |were gathered together| unto Jeremiah, in the house of Yahweh.

10 <When the princes of Judah heard’ these things> then came they up out of the house of the king, [unto] the house of Yahweh,—and took their seats in the opening of the new gate of Yahweh." Then spake the priests and the prophets unto the princes, and unto all the people, saying,— <Worthy of death> is this man,\(^d\) because he hath prophesied against this city, as ye have heard, with your own ears.

12 Then spake Jeremiah, unto all the princes’ and unto all the people, saying,—

||Yahweh|| sent me to prophesy against this house, and against this city, all the words that ye have heard.

13 ||Now|| therefore, amend your ways, and your doings, and hearken’ unto the voice of Yahweh your God,—that Yahweh may repent him, as to the calamity’ which he hath spoken concerning you.

But <I> behold me! in your hand,—do with me as may be good and right in your eyes;

15 |Only|, ye must ||know|| that <If ye do put [me] to death> verily <innocent blood> are ye’ laying upon yourselves, and against this city, and against her inhabitants,—for <of a truth> did Yahweh send’ me unto you, to speak in your ears, [all these words].

16 Then said the princes, and all the people, unto the priests, and unto the prophets,— There is nothing in this man’ worthy of death, for <in the name of Yahweh our God> hath he spoken unto us.

17 Then rose up men, from among the elders of the land, and spake unto all the convocation of the people, saying:

18 ||Micah\(^b\) the Morashtite|| was prophesying, in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah,—and he spake unto all the people of Judah, saying,

||Thy|]| saith Yahweh of hosts—
||Zion|| <as a field> shall be plowed’, And ||Jerusalem|| <into heaps of ruins> shall be turned,
And ||the mountain of the house|| [be] like mounds in a jungle.\(^e\)

Did Hezekiah king of Judah and all Judah ||put him to death||? Did he not revere Yahweh, and appease the face of Yahweh? And did not Yahweh repent’ him, as to the calamity which he had spoken against them?

There was, however, a man prophesying in the name of Yahweh, Urijah, son of Shemaiah, of Kerith-jearim,—who prophesied against this city, and against this land, according to all the words of Jeremiah. And when King Jehoiakim, and all his mighty men, and all the princes, heard his words, then the king sought to put him to death,—but Urijah heard, and feared, and fled, and entered Egypt. Then did King Jehoiakim send men to Egypt,—even Elnathan son of Achbor, and certain men with him, into Egypt.

§ 22. Jeremiah, making Symbolic Bonds and Bars, prophetically charges the Kings of Edom, Moab, Ammon, Tyre and Zidon to submit to Nebuchadnezzar, in spite of False Prophets counselling resistance. A similar Charge to the Priests and People of Jerusalem to disregard their False Prophets: the Temple Vessels shall not soon be brought back; but those still left shall be taken.

Chapter 27.

<In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah> came this word unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:

||Thus|| said Yahweh unto me, Make thee bonds and bars, and put them upon thine own neck.

Then shalt thou send them unto the king of Edom, and unto the king of Moab, and unto the king of the sons of Ammon, and unto the king of Tyre, and unto the king of Zidon,—by the hand of messengers coming into Jerusalem, unto Zedekiah king of Judah. And thou shalt give them charge, unto their lords, saying,—||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,

||Thus|| shall ye say unto your lords:

||I|| made The earth—
The man and the beast that are on the face of the earth—

By my great power,
And by mine outstretched arm,—
And gave it to whomsoever was right in mine own eyes.

||Now|| therefore, ||I|| have given all these lands, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, my servant,—

Moreover also, <the wild beast of the field> have I given him, to serve him.
Therefore shall all the nations serve him, and his son, and his son's son,—until the time even of his own land ||itself|| arrive, when many nations and great kings shall use him as a slave.

And it shall come to pass, that <the nation or kingdom which will not serve him, even Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and that will not put its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon>, —<with sword, and with famine, and with pestilence> will I bring punishment upon that nation,

Declareth Yahweh, until I have consumed them by his hand.

||Ye|| therefore, do not ye hearken unto your prophets, nor unto your diviners, nor unto your dreams, nor unto your users of hidden arts, nor unto your mutterers of incantations,—in that ||they|| are speaking unto you, saying, Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon;

<for falsehood> are they prophesying unto you, that ye may be far removed from off your own soil, and I drive you out, and ye be destroyed.

But the nation that shall bring its neck into the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him, I will let them remain in quietness upon their own soil,

Declareth Yahweh, and they shall till it, and dwell therein.

1 Now [these] are the words of the letter which Jeremiah the prophet sent’ from Jerusalem,—unto the residue of the elders of the captivity, and unto the priests, and unto the prophets, and unto all the people, whom Nebuchadnezzar had carried away captive from Jerusalem to Babylon; 2 after that Jeconiah the king and the queen-mother and the eunuchs, the princes of Judah and Jerusalem and the craftsmen and the smiths, [had gone forth] from Jerusalem;— 3 by the hand of Elasah son of Shaphan and Gemariah 4 son of Hilkiah, whom Zedekiah king of Judah sent’ unto Babylon, to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, saying:—

Yahweh make thee like Zedekiah and like Ahab,

23 Because they have committed vileness in Israel,
And have committed adultery with the wives of their neighbours,
And have spoken, as a word in my name, ||a falsehood|| |which I commanded them not|,—
And |||I|| am one who knoweth—and a witness,

24 Also <unto Shemaiah the Nehelamite> shalt thou speak, saying:
25 ||Thus|| speaketh Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, saying,—
Because ||thou|| hast sent, in thine own name, ||letters||, unto all the people who are in Jerusalem, and unto Zephaniah son of Maaseiah the priest, and unto all the priests, saying:
26 ||Yahweh|| hath made thee priest, instead of Jehoiada the priest, that ye should be deputies in the house of Yahweh, to any man who is raving and prophesying, so shalt thou put him into the stocks and into the pillory:

'Tis long!
Build ye houses, and dwell [in them],
And plant gardens, and eat the fruit thereof.
29 And Zephaniah the priest hath read this letter in the ears of Jeremiah the prophet,
30 Therefore hath the word of Yahweh come unto Jeremiah, saying:
31 Send thou unto all them of the captivity, saying, ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
Concerning Shemaiah the Nehelamite,—

Chapter 30.
1 The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:—
2 ||Thus|| speaketh Yahweh, God of Israel, saying,—
Write thee all the words which I have spoken unto thee, in a scroll;
3 For lo! ||days are coming||,
Declareth Yahweh,
when I will turn the captivity of my people Israel and Judah,
4 Now ||these|| are the words which Yahweh hath spoken against Israel and against Judah:
5 Yea ||thus|| saith Yahweh,
<A voice of trembling> have we heard,
Dread, and not welfare!
6 Ask, I pray you, and see, whether a male travaileth with child!
Why’ have I seen
Every man with his hands upon his loins, like a woman in travail, and Every face turned into ghastliness?
7 Alas! for ||great|| is that day, so that none is like it. a—
   Yea [a time of anguish] it is i for Jacob,
   But <out of it> shall he be saved.
8 And it shall come to pass, in that day,
   Declareth Yahweh of hosts,
   That I will break his yoke from off thy neck,
   And <thy bonds> will I tear off,—
   And foreigners |shall use him as a slave no more;|
9 But they shall serve Yahweh their God,—and David their king, whom I will raise up unto them.

||Thou|| therefore, do not fear, O my Servant
   Jacob,
   Urgeth Yahweh,
   Neither be thou dismayed, O Israel,
   For behold me! saving thee from afar,
   And thy seed out of the land of their captivity,—
   Then shall Jacob return, and rest b and be quiet,
   And there shall be none to make him afraid;
10 For <with thee> am I,
   Declareth Yahweh,
   To save thee,—
   <Though I make an end of all the nations whither
   I have scattered thee> c
   Yet' will I not <of thee> make an end,
   But will chastise thee in measure, not holding thee ||guiltless!!| d

For ||thus|| saith Yahweh—
   Incurable' is thy pain?
   <Because of the abounding of thine iniquity,
   [Because] numerous' have been thy sins>
   Have I done these things unto thee.
16 ||Therefore|| ||all who devour thee|| shall be devoured,
   And ||all thine adversaries—all of them|| <into captivity> shall depart,—
   So shall [they who plundered thee] |be plundered,
   And <all who preyed upon thee> will I deliver up as a prey.
17 For I will put a bandage upon thee,
   And <from thy wounds> will I heal thee,
   Declareth Yahweh,—
   <Because <An outcast> they called thee,
   'Tis ||Zion||! who hath |none to ask for her welfare> e

||Thus|| saith Yahweh—
   Behold me! bringing back the captivity of the tents of Jacob,
   And <on his habitations> will I have compassion,—
   So shall the city be built, |upon her own mound,
   And ||the citadel|| f <upon its own site> shall remain:
19 So shall there proceed from them
   Thanksgiving, g and
   The sound of them who make merry,—
   And I will multiply them, and they shall not become few,
   And will make them honourable, and they shall not be despised: h
20 And [his sons] shall come to be |as aforetime],
   And ||his assembly|| <before me> shall continue,—
   And I will bring punishment on all his oppressors;
21 And ||his illustrious one|| shall spring |from himself]
   And ||his ruler|| <from his own midst> shall proceed,
   And I will bring him near, and he shall approach unto me,—
For who is' there that hath pledged* his own heart to approach unto me?

Demandeth Yahweh:

22 So shall ye become my' people; And ||[I] will become your' God.

23 Lo! [the tempest of Yahweh]! ||[Indignation]|| hath come forth, ||[A tempest rolling itself upward]||,—

<Upon the head of the lawless ones> shall it hurl itself down!

24 The fierceness of the anger of Yahweh will [not turn back], Until he hath executed, nor Until he hath established The purposes of his heart,—

<In the afterpart of the days> shall ye understand it.c

Chapter 31.

1 <At that time>

Declareth Yahweh, I will become a God, to all the families of Israel; And ||[they]|| shall become my' people.

2 ||[Thus]|| saith Yahweh,— There hath found favour in the desert, a people escaped from the sword,— I must go to cause him, [even Israel], to rest.

3 <From afar> [Yahweh] hath appeared unto me. Yea <with an age-abiding love> have I loved thee,

<For this cause> have I prolonged to thee loving-kindness.

4 <Again> will I build thee, and thou shalt be built, thou virgin, Israel,—

<Again> shalt thou deck thyself with thy timbrels, And go forth in the dance of them that make merry:

5 <Again> shalt thou plant vineyards* in the mountains* of Samaria,—

The planters have planted, and have laid open [the vineyards].

6 For it is' a day the watchmen have proclaimed throughout the hill country of Ephraim,—

Arise ye, and let us go up to Zion, unto Yahweh our God.

7 For ||[thus]|| saith Yahweh— Shout ye for Jacob, with gladness, Make shrill thy voice, as the head of the nations,—

Publish ye, praise ye, and say, Save thou, O Yahweh, thy people, the remnant of Israel.

8 Behold me bringing them in out of the land of the North, And I will gather them out of the remote parts of the earth,

<Among them> the blind and the lame, The woman with child and she that giveth birth [together],—

||[A great convocation]|| shall return hither:

9 <With weeping> shall they come in, And <with supplications> will I lead them, I will bring them unto rivers of waters, By a smooth way, wherein they shall not stumble,—

For I have become [to Israel] [a father], And <as for Ephraim>*[my firstborn] is he!

10 Hear ye the word of Yahweh, O ye nations, And declare ye in the Coastlands, afar off,— And say—

||[He that scattereth Israel]|| will gather him, And watch over him, as a shepherd his flock;

For Yahweh hath ransomed' Jacob,— And redeemed him from the hand of one stronger than he.

12 Then shall they come in, and shall shout in triumph on the height of Zion, And shall stream* unto the goodness of Yahweh, To the wheat, and to the new wine, and to the oil, and to the young of the flocks and of the herds,—

So shall their soul become like a garden well watered, And they shall not again' languish [any more].

13 ||[Then]|| shall [the virgin] rejoice [in the dance], And young men and elders, [rejoice] [together],—

I have ||heard|| Ephraim, bemoaning himself, Thou hast chastised me, and I have been chastised, Like a bullock [not broken in], Sufferb me to return, that I may’ return, For ||thou|| art Yahweh my God.

Surely <after my return> I was filled with regret, And <after I came to know myself> I smote upon the thigh,— I turned pale, and was even confounded, For I had borne the reproach of my youthful days.

Was Ephraim ||a very precious son to me||? Was he a most delightful’ child? For <as often as I have spoken against him> I have ||remembered|| him [again]! <For this cause> have my affections been deeply moved for him, I must have ||compassion|| upon him, Declareth Yahweh.

Erect thee waymarks,

Set thee up finger-posts, Apply thy heart to The highway— The road by which thou didst depart,— Return, O virgin of Israel, Return unto these thy cities. [How long] wilt thou turn hither and thither, O apostate daughter? For Yahweh hath created’ a new thing in the earth, ||A female|| defendeth ||a strong man||!

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, ||Again|| shall they say this word, in the land of Judah and in the cities thereof, when I cause their captivity to return, Yahweh [bless thee], Thou home of righteousness! Thou mountain of holiness! Then shall there dwell throughout Judah itself and all the cities thereof, ||together||,— Husbandmen, who shall move about with a flock;

For I have satiated the weary soul,— And <every languishing soul> have I filled. <Upon this> I awoke and considered,— And ||my sleep|| had been sweet to me!c

Lo! ||days are coming||, Declareth Yahweh— That I will sow The house of Israel, and The house of Judah, With the seed of men, and With the seed of beasts;

And it shall come to pass, that— <Just as I watchedd over them, to root up and to break down and to tear out and to destroy, and to break in pieces> ||So|| will I watche over them, to build and to plant, Declareth Yahweh.

<In those days> shall they say no more, ||Fathers|| did eat sour grapes,— And ||children’s teeth|| are blunted!f

But ||every one|| <for his own iniquity> shall die,—

31 Lo! [days are coming],

Declareth Yahweh,—

When I will solemnize—

With the house of Israel, and

With the house of Judah,

A new covenant:

Not like the covenant which I solemnised with their fathers,

In the day when I grasped their hand, to bring them forth out of the land of Egypt,—

In that I had become a husband unto them,

Declareth Yahweh.

32 For is the covenant which I will solemnize with the house of Israel, after those days,

Declareth Yahweh,

I will put my law within them,

Yea <on their heart> will I write it,—

So will I become their God,

And shall become my people.

33 Then shall they no longer teach

Every man his neighbour, and

Every man his brother, saying,

Know ye Yahweh,—

For shall know me,

Even unto the greatest of them,

Declareth Yahweh,

For I will forgive their iniquity,

And <their sin> will I remember no more.

34 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—

Who hath given the sun for a light by day,

The ordinances of the moon and the stars, for a light by night,—

Who excited the sea, and the waves thereof

roared'

||Yahweh of hosts|| is his name:—

35 <If these ordinances depart from before me>

Declareth Yahweh,—

||The seed of Israel also|| may cease from being a nation before me, [all the days].

37 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—

<If the heavens above can be measured],

Or the foundations of the earth beneath |be searched out|

||I also|| may reject all the seed of Israel, for all that they have done,

Declareth Yahweh.

38 Lo [days, are coming], e

Declareth Yahweh,

That the city shall be built for Yahweh,

From the tower of Hananeel,

[As far as] the gate of the corner;

Then shall go forth again the measuring-line

straight forward,

Over the hill Gareb,

And it shall go round to Goah;

And [all the vale of the dead bodies, and of the ashes, and all the fields as far as the Kidron torrent-bed, as far as the horse-gate corner on the east],

Shall be holy unto Yahweh,—

It shall not be rooted up, nor thrown down, any more, [unto times age-abiding].

§ 26. When requested by King Zedekiah to say why he had been prophesying against Jerusalem and the King, Jeremiah narrates how he had, under Divine Guidance, redeemed his Family's Property at Anathoth: this enables him to return to his Royal Questioner a circumstantial though indirect Reply.

Chapter 32.

1 The word which came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh, in the tenth year of Zedekiah king of Judah,—[the same] was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar;
2 and ||then|| the forces of the king of Babylon] were besieging Jerusalem,—and ||Jeremiah the prophet|| had been shut up in the guard-court, which was in the house of the king of Judah;
3 whom Zedekiah king of Judah [had shut up], saying,—

Jeremiah 32

Why art thou prophesying, saying,—

Thus saith Yahweh,
Behold me! giving up this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall capture it; and Zedekiah king of Judah shall not be delivered out of the hand of the Chaldeans,—for he shall be wholly given up into the hand of the king of Babylon, and shall speak—the mouth of the one to the mouth of the other, and the eyes of the one into the eyes of the other shall look; and shall he remain, until I visit him, Declareth Yahweh,— though ye fight with the Chaldeans ye shall not prosper?

And Jeremiah said,—
The word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Lo! Hanameel son of Shallum thine uncle hath come unto thee, saying,—Buy thee my field that is in Anathoth, for thine is the right of redemption, to buy it.

So Hanameel son of mine uncle came unto me, according to the word of Yahweh, into the guard-court, and said unto me,

Buy, I pray thee, my field that is in Anathoth, which is in the land of Benjamin, for thine is the right of inheritance, and the redemption,—buy it for thyself.

So I knew, that the word of Yahweh it was. And I bought the field, from Hanameel son of mine uncle, that was in Anathoth,—and weighed him the silver, seventeen shekels was the silver; and I wrote in the scroll, and sealed it, and took in attestation witnesses,—and weighed the silver in the balances.

Then took I the scroll of purchase, both that which was sealed—the title and the conditions—and that which was open; and gave the scroll of purchase, unto Baruch son of Neriah son of Mahseiah, in the sight of Hanameel mine uncle son’s son, and in the sight of the witnesses, who subscribed the scroll of purchase,—in the sight of all the Jews, who were sitting in the guard-court.

Then charged I Baruch, in their sight, saying:

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,
Take thou these scrolls, this scroll of purchase, even that which is sealed, and this scroll that is open, and put them in an earthen vessel,—that they may remain many days.

For

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel:

shall houses and fields and vineyards, be bought, in this land.

Then prayed I unto Yahweh,—after I had delivered the scroll of purchase, unto Baruch son of Neriah, saying:

Alas! My Lord, Yahweh! Lo! thou thyself didst make the heavens, and the earth, by thy great might, and by thine outstretched arm,—

There is nothing too wonderful for thee:

Executing lovingkindness unto thousands,
But recompensing the iniquity of fathers, into the bosom of their children after them;

Thou GOD, the great, the mighty, ||Yahweh of hosts|| is his name:

Great in counsel, and mighty in deed,—

Whose eyes are open on all the ways of the sons of men, to give unto every one

According to his ways, and

According to the fruit of his doings:

Who didst set signs and wonders, in the land of Egypt, unto this day, and in Israel, and among mankind,

And didst make for thyself a name, [as at this day];

And didst bring forth thy people Israel, out of the land of Egypt,

With signs and with wonders, and

With a strong hand, and

With an outstretched arm, and

With great terror;

And didst give unto them this land, which thou hadst sworn to their fathers to give unto them,—a land flowing with milk and honey; And they came in and took possession of it, But hearkened not unto thy voice, Nor <in thy law> did they walk, <Nought of what thou hadst commanded them to do> did they do,— And so thou hast caused to befall them, [all this calamity],

Lo! the earthworks! they have entered the city, to capture it, And ||[the city] hath been given into the hand of the Chaldeans, who are fighting against it, because of the sword and the famine and the pestilence,— And so [what thou didst speak] hath come to pass, And there' thou art, looking on! Yet ||[thou thyself] saidst unto me, O My Lord, Yahweh, Buy thee the field for silver, And take in attestation ||[witnesses]],— Whereas ||[the city] hath been given into the hand of the Chaldeans!

Then came the word of Yahweh, unto Jeremiah, b saying:—
Lo! ||[I] am Yahweh, God of all flesh,— <For me> is |anything| too wonderful?

|Therefore| ||[Thus]| saith Yahweh,—
Behold me! giving this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he shall capture it;

And the Chaldeans, who are fighting against this city, [Shall enter], and Shall set this city on fire and Shall consume it,— With the houses on whose roofs they burned incense to Baal, and poured out drink-offerings to other' gods, that they might provoke me to anger;

For the sons of Israel and the sons of Judah have been nothing but doers of wickedness in my sight, from the days of their youth,—

For the sons of Israel have been doing nothing but provoke me to anger by the workmanship of their hands,

Declareth Yahweh;

For <According to mine anger, and According to mine indignation> hath been to me this city, from the day when they built it, even unto this day,—that I should pull it down from before my face: 32 because of all the wickedness of the sons of Israel and the sons of Judah, which they have done to provoke me to anger, ||[they, their kings, their princes, their priests, and their prophets, and the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem]|:

Thus have they turned unto me the back, and not the face,—<Though I instructed them, |betimes| instructing them>

Yet have they not' been hearkening, to receive correction;
But have set their abominations’ in the house on which my name hath been called, [to defile it];
And have built the high places of Baal, which are in the valley of Ben-hinnom, To cause their sons and their daughters to pass through unto Molech, Which I commanded them not,

Neither came it up on my heart,§
That they should do this horrible thing,—
Causing [Judah] to sin!

||[Now therefore] <because of this>|—

||[Thus]| saith Yahweh, God of Israel,— Concerning this city, whereof ye' are saying,
It hath been delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, by sword, and by famine, and by pestilence:
Behold me! gathering them out of all the lands, whither I have driven them—
In mine anger, and
In mine indignation, and
In great vexation,—

b On due consideration we may feel certain that Jeremiah’s answer to Zedekiah included not only a rehearsal of the prophet’s prayer (verses 16–25), but took in as well the answer of Yahweh (verses 27–44): in which case it is easy to conclude that the pronoun “me” must have originally appeared (in verse 26) where “Jeremiah” now stands; and where “me” still stands in Sep. and Vul.

c Cp. chaps. vii. 30, 31; xix. 5.
And I will cause them to return into this place, And will make them dwell securely; And they shall become my people,— And will become their God; And I will give them one heart, and one way, That they may revere me, all the days,— For the good of them, and of their children after them; And I will solemnise to them a perpetual covenant, That I will not turn away from following them, to do them good,— But the reverence of myself will I put in their heart, so that they shall not turn away from me. And I will rejoice over them to do them good,— And will plant them in this land in truth, with all my heart and with all my soul. For thus saith Yahweh, Like as I have brought upon this people all this great calamity, So am I bringing upon them all the good that I am speaking concerning them. Therefore shall fields be bought in this land,— whereof ye are saying, It is a desolation, Without man or beast, It hath been given into the hand of the Chaldeans: Fields—for silver shall men buy, And write in scrolls, And seal them, And take in attestation witnesses, In the land of Benjamin, and In the places round about Jerusalem, and In the cities of Judah, and In the cities of the hill country, and In the cities of the lowland, and In the cities of the South,— For I will cause them of their captivity to return, Declareth Yahweh.

Chapter 33.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, the second time, when he was yet imprisoned in the guard-court, saying:
2 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh, who doeth it,— [Yahweh], a who fashioneth it, to establish it, ||Yahweh|| is his name:
3 Call unto me, that I may answer thee,—and tell thee things great and inaccessible, which thou hast not known.
4 For ||Thus|| saith Yahweh, God of Israel, Concerning the houses of this city, and concerning the houses of the kings of Judah,—which are thrown down against the earthworks and against the sword:
5 ||In entering to fight with the Chaldeans|| it is to fill them with the dead bodies of men, whom I have smitten in mine anger and in mine indignation,—and because of whom I have hidden my face from this city,—by reason of all their wickedness.
6 Behold me! laying upon her a bandage of healing, so will I heal them,— And will reveal to them abundance of prosperity and truth;
7 And I will bring back Them of the captivity of Judah, and Them of the captivity of Israel,— And I will build them, [as at the first];
8 And I will purify them from all their iniquity wherewith they have sinned against me,— And I will grant pardon for all their iniquities, Wherewith they have sinned against me, and Wherewith they have transgressed against me;
9 So shall she become to me,— A name of joy, A praise, and An adorning,

To all the nations of the earth,—
Who will hear all the good which I am doing them,
And will dread and be deeply moved, over all the good and over all the prosperity which I am causing her.

||Thus|| saith Yahweh—
|Again| shall be heard in this place, as to which ye are saying,
||Deserted|| it is, without man or beast,
In the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem,
Which are desolate without man or inhabitant or beast?

The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness,
The voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride,
The voice of them who are saying,
Praise ye Yahweh of hosts,
For good is Yahweh,
For age-abiding is his lovingkindness,
[The voice] of them who are bringing a thank-offering into the house of Yahweh,—
For I will bring back the captives of the land, as at the first,
Saith Yahweh.

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,
|Again| shall there be in this place—
Which is deserted, without man or even beast—
And all the cities thereof,—
The home of shepherds, causing |flocks| to lie down.

<<In the cities of the hill country,
In the cities of the lowland, and
In the cities of the South, and
In the land of Benjamin, and
In the places round about Jerusalem, and
In the cities of Judah>>
|Again| shall the flock pass over the hands of the numberer,
Saith Yahweh.

Lo! days are coming,

Declareth Yahweh,— when I will establish my good word, which I have spoken—
As to the house of Israel,
And concerning the house of Judah:

<In those days, and at that time> will I cause to bud unto David,
A Bud of righteousness,—
And he shall execute justice and righteousness, in the land:

<In those days>
Jehovah shall be saved, and
||Jerusalem|| abide |securely|,—
And ||this|| is that which shall be proclaimed to her—
||Yahweh|| our righteousness!

For ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,—
There shall not be wanting to David,—
A man, [before me],
To offer an ascending-sacrifice, or
To make a perfume with a gift, or
To offer a |peace-offering|, |all the days|!

And the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, saying:

<<If ye can break,
My covenant of the day, and
My covenant of the night,
That there be not day and night in their season>>

<<My covenant also|| may be broken,
|With David my servant|,
That he shall not have a son, to reign upon his throne,—
And with the Levites| the priests, mine attendants:

<<As |the host of the heavens| cannot be recorded|,
Nor |the sand of the sea| be measured>>

And the Levites who attend upon [me].[a]

23 And the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, saying:
Hast thou not observed, what [this people] have spoken, saying,
<<The two families which Yahweh did choose>>
he hath even cast them off?
And so <<my people>> they despise, as though they could not again’ become a nation in their sight!

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
<If <<my covenant of day and night, the ordinances of the heavens and the earth>> I did not appoint>>

26 <<The seed of Jacob also, and of David my servant>> might I cast off, so as not to take of his seed as rulers’ unto the seed of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob,—
For I will bring back them of their captivity, and will have compassion upon them.

§ 28. Two further Messages to King Zedekiah—the Latter based upon the Breach of Covenant by Princes and People as to letting their Bond-servants go free. The Solemnity of Covenanting portrayed.

Chapter 34.

1 The word which came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh,—when Nebuchadnezzar[b] king of Babylon and all his force and all the kingdoms of the earth the dominion of his hand, and all the peoples, were fighting[c] against Jerusalem and against all her cities, saying:

||Thus|| saith Yahweh
God of Israel,
Go and speak unto Zedekiah, king of Judah,— and say unto him—

||Thus|| saith Yahweh
Behold me! giving this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he will burn it with fire;
And ||thou|| shalt not escape out of his hand,
For thou shalt be ||taken||,
And ||into his hand|| shalt thou be delivered,—
And ||thine own eyes|| <into the eyes of the king of Babylon> shall look,

And ||his mouth|| <with thy mouth> shall speak,
And <Babylon> shalt thou enter.

4 ||Nevertheless|| hear the word of Yahweh,
O Zedekiah, king of Judah,—
||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
Concerning thee,
Thou shalt not die by the sword;
<In peace> shalt thou die,
And <<the burnings made for thy fathers, the former kings who were before thee>> ||so|| shall they make a burning unto thee,
And <<with an Alas lord! shall they lament thee,—
Because of the word ||[]|| have spoken,
Declareth Yahweh.

6 Then spake Jeremiah the prophet, unto Zedekiah king of Judah, all these words, in Jerusalem; when ||the force of the king of Babylon|| was fighting<d> against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Judah that were left,—against Lachish and against Azekah, for ||they|| remained among the cities of Judah, as fortified’ cities.

8 The word which came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh,—<after that King Zedekiah had solemnised a covenant with all the people who were in Jerusalem, proclaiming unto them ||liberty|: ³ ῆ that every man should let his servant and every man his handmaid, ||being a Hebrew or a Hebrewess|| ||go free|,—so that no man should use them as slaves,| e ||to wit a Jew his brother|;> ¹⁰ so then they hearkened—even all the princes and all the people who had entered into the covenant, that every man should let his servant and every man his handmaid ||go free|, so as not to use them as slaves| [any longer],—yea they hearkened, and let them go, ¹¹ howbeit they turned, after that, and brought back the servants and the handmaids whom they had let go ||free|, and brought them into subjection as servants and as handmaids> ¹² So then the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
God of Israel,—

||I myself|| solemnised a covenant with your fathers, in the day when I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slaves, saying:

<At the end of seven years> shall ye let go, every man his brother, ||being a Hebrew,|| who shall sell himself unto thee, and serve thee six years, then shalt thou let him go [free] from thee.

Howbeit your fathers hearkened not unto me, neither inclined their ear.

And though ye just now turned, and did that which was right in mine eyes, by proclaiming liberty, every man to his neighbour,—and solemnised a covenant [before me] in the house on which my Name hath been called yet have ye turned and profaned my Name, and brought back, every man his servant, and every man his hand-maid, whom ye had let go [free], [at their own desire],—and have brought them into subjection, to become your servants and handmaids.  [Therefore]—

||Thus|| saith Yahweh, ||Ye|| have not hearkened unto me, in proclaiming liberty, every man to his brother and every man to his neighbour:

Behold me! proclaiming [to you] [a liberty]:

Declareth Yahweh, unto the sword, unto the pestilence, and unto the famine, so will I make you a terror to all the kingdoms of the earth;

and will give the men who are transgressing my covenant [in that they have not confirmed the words of the covenant, which they solemnised [before me], when they cut [the calf] in twain, and passed between the parts thereof; even the princes of Judah, and the princes of Jerusalem, the eunuchs and the priests, and all the people of the land,—who passed between the parts of the calf yea I will give them into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them who are seeking their life, and their dead bodies shall become food for the birds of the heavens, and for the beasts of the earth.

§ 29. The Rechabites. Their Persistent Obedience to their father Jonadab used for reproving Judah and Jerusalem, and as a ground of Promise to themselves.

Chapter 35.

1 The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh,—in the days of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah, saying:

2 Go unto the house of the Rechabites, and speak with them, and bring them into the house of Yahweh, into one of the chambers,—and give them [wine] to drink.

3 So I took Jaazaniah, son of Jeremiah, son of Habazziniah, and his brethren, and all his sons,—and all the house of the Rechabites;

4 and brought them into the house of Yahweh, into the chamber of the sons of Hanan son of Igdaliah, a man of God,—which was beside the chamber of the princes, which was above the chamber of Maaseiah son of Shallum, keeper of the porch; and I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites, bowls full of wine, and cups,—and said unto them,

Drink ye wine.

6 Then said they,—We will not drink wine,—for ||Jonadab son of Rechab, our father|| laid command upon us, saying,

Ye shall not drink wine, ||ye, nor your sons||, unto times age-abiding; nor <house> shall ye build, nor ||seed|| shall ye sow, nor <vineyard> shall ye plant, neither shall ye have' them,—but <in tents> shall ye dwell, all your days, that ye may live many days, on the face of the soil’ where ye are sojourn ing.

8 So we have hearkened unto the voice of Jonadab son of Rechab, our father, in all that he commanded us,—not to drink wine' all our days, ||[we, our wives, our sons, nor our daughters]|; ⁹ and not to build houses for us to dwell in,—and so <vineyard or field or seed> have we none; ¹⁰ but we have dwelt in tents,—and have hearkened and done, according to all that Jonadab our father commanded’ us. ¹¹ And so it came to pass, when Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came up into the land, that we said,—

Let us ||even enter|| Jerusalem, because of the force of the Chaldeans and because of the force of the Syrians:

So have we dwelt in Jerusalem.

12 Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah, saying:

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,

Go and say to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem,—

Will ye not receive correction, by hearkening unto my words?

Demandeth Yahweh:

13 Confirmed’ are the words of Jonadab son of Rechab—which he commanded his sons, that they should not drink |wine|, and they have not’ drunk, until this day, for they have hearkened unto the command of their father.

But ||I|| have spoken unto you, |betimes| speaking, and ye have not hearkened |unto me|.

And I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, |betimes| sending, saying,

Return, I pray you—every man from his wicked' way,
And amend your doings,
And do not go after other’ gods to serve them,
So shall ye remain on the soil, which I gave to you, and to your fathers,— but ye have not inclined your ear, nor hearkened |unto me|.

16 Because the sons of Jonadab son of Rechab have [confirmed] the commandment of their father, which he commanded them,—whereas ||this people|| have not hearkened |unto me|≥

Therefore

||Thus|| saith Yahweh, God of hosts, God of Israel,

Behold me! bringing in against Judah, and against all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, all the calamity, which I have spoken concerning them,—

Because I spake unto them, and they did not hearken,
And I called to them, and they did not answer.

18 But <to the house of the Rechabites> said Jeremiah:

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,

Because ye have hearkened unto the commandment of Jonadab your father, and have kept all his commandments, and done’ according to all that he commanded you≥

[Therefore]

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,—

Jonadab son of Rechab shall not want one to stand before me, |all the days|!

§ 30. By Divine Command, Jeremiah, through Baruch, writes in a Scroll all the Words he has hitherto spoken concerning Israel, Judah and the Nations; after which Baruch reads the Scroll first to all the People, then to the Princes; next, Jehudi begins to read it to King Jehoiakim, who, having heard a Portion, angrily cuts up the Scroll and consumes it in the Fire; for which he is denounced by Yahweh, and the Scroll is rewritten—with Additions.

Chapter 36.

1 And it came to pass, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, that this word came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:

2 Take thee a scroll, ⁵ and write therein, all the words which I have spoken unto thee, concerning Israel, and concerning Judah, and concerning all the nations,— from the day I began to speak unto thee, from the days of Josiah, even until this day:

a Heb.: yehónâdâb.

b Heb.: yehónâdâb.
3 [Peradventure] the house of Judah will hearken' unto all the calamity, which I' am devising to execute against them,—to the end they may return, every man from his wicked' way, whereupon I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin.

4 So Jeremiah called' Baruch, son of Neriah,—and Baruch wrote', from the mouth of Jeremiah, all the words of Yahweh which he had spoken unto him, upon a scroll. 5 Then did Jeremiah command Baruch, saying,—

[I] am hindered, I cannot' enter the house of Yahweh;

6 [Thou] therefore shalt enter, and read in the roll which thou hast written from my mouth, the words of Yahweh, in the ears of the people, in the house of Yahweh, on the day of a fast,—moreover also <in the ears of all Judah who are coming in out of their cities> shalt thou read them:

7 [Peradventure] their supplication [will fall] prostrate, before Yahweh, and they return' every man from his wicked way,—

For [great] are the anger and the indignation, which Yahweh hath spoken' against this people.

8 So then Baruch son of Neriah did' according to all which Jeremiah the prophet commanded him, reading in the book the words of Yahweh, in the house of Yahweh. 9 And it came to pass in the fifth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah, in the ninth month, that all the people of Jerusalem, and all the people who were coming in out of the cities of Judah, into Jerusalem, had proclaimed a fast before Yahweh; 10 Baruch, therefore, read in the book, the words of Jeremiah, in the house of Yahweh,—in the chamber of Gemariah son of Shaphan—the scribe, in the upper court, at the opening of the new gate of the house of Yahweh, in the ears of all the people.

11 <When Micaiah, son of Gemariah son of Shaphan, heard> all the words of Yahweh, out of the book> 12 then went he, down unto the house of the king up to the chamber of the scribe, and lo! [there] all the princes sitting,—Elishama the scribe, and Delaiah son of Shemaiah, and Elnathan son of Achbor, and Gemariah son of Shaphan, and Zedekiah son of Hananiah, and all the princes. 13 So Micaiah told’ them all the words which he heard,—when Baruch read in the book, in the ears of the people. 14 All the princes, therefore, sent' unto Baruch, Jehudi, son of Nathaniah son of Shelemiahb son of Cushi, saying,

≤The roll, wherein thou didst read in the ears of the people> take it in thy hand, and come.

So Baruch son of Neriah' took' the roll in his hand, and came in unto them. Then said they unto him, 15 Sit down, we pray thee, and read it in our ears. So Baruch read’ it in their ears. 16 And it came to pass <when they heard all the words> that they turned with fear one to another,—and said unto Baruch,

We must [surely tell] the king, all these words! 17 Then <unto Baruch> put they questions, saying,—

Tell us, we pray thee, [How] didst thou write all these words at his mouth?

18 So Baruch said’ unto them,

<With his own mouth> used he to proclaim unto me' all these words,—and I kept on writing in the book, [with ink].

19 Then said the princes unto Baruch,

Go hide thee, [thou and Jeremiah], and let [no man] know where ye [are]!

20 Then went they in unto the king, into the court, but <the roll> had they put in charge, in the chamber of Elishama the scribe,—so they declared, in the ears of the king’ all the words. 21 [The king], therefore, sent [Jehudi], to fetch the roll, and he fetched it, out of the chamber of Elishama the scribe,—and Jehudi read’ it in the ears of the king, and in the ears of all the princes, who were standing near the king.

22 Now [the king] was sitting in the winter’ house, in the ninth month,—[with the fire-stove before him burning]. 23 So then it came to pass <when Jehudi had read three or four columns, that he cut it up into fragments with a scribe’s knife, and cast them into the fire that was in the stove,—until all the roll was consumed on the fire that was on the stove. 24 Yet were they not in dread, neither rent they their garments,—[the king, nor any of his

|Nevertheless| [[El Nathan and Delaiah and Gemariah]] interceded with the king, not to burn the roll,—but he hearkened not unto them.

Then did the king command Jerahmeel son of the king, and Seraiah son of Azriel, and Shelemiah son of Abdeel, to fetch Baruch the scribe, and Jeremiah the prophet,—but Yahweh had hid’ them.

Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah the prophet,—but Yahweh had hid’ them.

Therefore ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,—
||Thou|| hast burned this roll, saying,
Why’ hast thou written thereon—saying, The king of Babylon shall ||certainly come|| and lay waste this land, and cause to cease therefrom, man and beast

And ||his dead body|| shall be cast out—to the heat by day, and to the frost by night;
And I will visit upon him’ and upon his seed’ and upon his servants’, the punishment of their iniquity,—and will bring upon them, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and against the men of Judah, all the calamity, which I have spoken against them, but they have not hearkened.

So ||Jeremiah|| took another roll’ and gave it unto Baruch son of Neriah, the scribe, who wrote thereon, from the mouth of Jeremiah’ all the words of the book, which Jehoiakim king of Judah had burned’ in the fire,—and further’ were added thereunto, many words ||like unto them||.

§ 31. King Zedekiah, at the Beginning of his Reign, asks for Jeremiah’s Prayers; and, in answer, is warned not to count on Nebuchadrezzar’s permanent Departure from Jerusalem. During a temporary Withdrawal of the Chaldeans, Jeremiah is caught going out to Anathoth, falsely accused, smitten, and cast into Prison. The King, secretly consulting the Prophet, reduces his sentence to Confinement in the Guard-court, appointing him a Cake per Day while Bread lasted in the City.

Chapter 37.

1 And Zedekiah son of Josiah reigned as king instead of Coniah son of Jehoiakim, whom Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon made king in the land of Judah. 2 But neither he, nor his servants, nor the people of the land, had hearkened’ unto the words of Yahweh, which he had spoken’ through Jeremiah the prophet. 3 And King Zedekiah sent Jehucal son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah son of Maaseiah the priest, unto Jeremiah the prophet, saying,— Pray thou, I beseech thee, in our behalf, unto Yahweh, our God.

4 Now ||Jeremiah|| was coming in and going out in the midst of the people, for they had not put him into prison. 5 And ||the force of Pharaoh|| had come forth out of Egypt,—and <when the Chaldeans who were besieging Jerusalem heard the tidings of them> they went up from Jerusalem. 6 Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah the prophet, saying:
||Thus|| saith Yahweh, God of Israel,
||Thy|| shall ye say unto the king of Judah, who sent you unto me to enquire of me,—
Lo! ||the force of Pharaoh, which is coming out to you to help|| is about to return to its own land, to Egypt;

Then will the Chaldeans come back, and fight against this city,—and capture it, and burn it with fire.

||Thy|| saith Yahweh,—
Let not your own souls deceive you, saying,
The Chaldeans will ||surely depart|| from us! For they will not depart;

10 For <though ye had smitten all the force of the Chaldeans who are fighting with you, and there had remained of them only desperately wounded’ men> yet ||every man in his tent|| should have arisen and burnt this city [with fire].

11 Now it came to pass ≤when the army of the Chaldeans [had gone up] from Jerusalem,— because of the force of Pharaoh≥ 12 then went forth Jeremiah out of Jerusalem, to go into the land of Benjamin,—to receive a portion from thence in the midst of the people. 13 And so it came to pass <he’ being in the gate of Benjamin, and there being there’ a ward-master whose name was Irijah son of Shelemiah son of Hananiah> that he seized Jeremiah the prophet, saying, <Unto the Chaldeans> art thou’ falling away!

14 Then said Jeremiah,
False! I am not falling away unto the Chaldeans! Howbeit he hearkened not unto him,—so Irijah seized Jeremiah, and brought him in unto the princes. 15 Then were the princes wroth’ against Jeremiah, and smote him,—and put him in prison, in the house of Jonathan the scribe, for <that> had they made the prison. 16 <When Jeremiah had entered into the dungeon-house and into the cells, and Jeremiah [had remained there] many days> 17 then sent King Zedekiah—and fetched him, and the king [asked him], in his own house, [secretly], and said,—
Is’ there a word from Yahweh?
And Jeremiah said,—
There is, for (said he), <Into the hand of the king of Babylon> shalt thou be delivered!

18 And Jeremiah said’ unto King Zedekiah,—
What sin have I committed against thee, or against thy servants, or against this people, that ye have delivered me’ up into prison?

19 [Where], then are your prophets, who prophesied unto you, saying,—
The king of Babylon [shall not come] against you, nor against this land?

20 [Now] therefore, hear, I beseech thee, O my lord the king,—
Let my supplication, I pray thee, fall prostrate before thee, and do not cause me to return unto the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there!

21 Then King Zedekiah gave command, and they committed Jeremiah into the guard-court, and [said] that there should be given him a cake of bread daily, out of the bakers’ street, until all the bread out of the city [should be spent]. So Jeremiah remained’ in the guard-court.

§ 32. The Princes again conspiring against Jeremiah,
King Zedekiah weakly delivers him into their Hands, and they let him down with ropes into a miry Dungeon; from which Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, having interceded with the King, and taking with him thirty Men, delivers him; and Jeremiah, meanwhile giving good but unheeded Counsel to the King, remains in the Guard-court until Jerusalem is captured.

Chapter 38.

1 And ≤when Shephatiah son of Mattan, and Gedaliah son of Pashhur, and Jucal son of Shelemiah, and Pashhur son of Malchiah, heard’ the words which Jeremiah’ was speaking unto all the people, saying:
||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
||He that remaineth in this city|| shall die, by sword, by famine, or by pestilence,—whereas ||he that goeth forth unto the Chaldeans|| shall live, so shall he have his life b for a spoil, ||and shall live||.

2 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,—
This city shall [surely be given] into the hand of the force of the king of Babylon, and he shall capture it≥

3 Then said the princes unto the king,—
Let this man, we pray thee, [be put to death], for <in this way> is he’ weakening the hands of the men of war who are left in this city, and the hands of all the people, by speaking unto them’ such words as these; for ||this man|| is not’ seeking [prosperity] for this people, but [misfortune].

5 Then said King Zedekiah,—
Lo! he’ is in your hand; for [the king] is not’ one who is able to do anything’ against’ you.

6 Then took they Jeremiah, and cast him into the dungeon of Malchiah, son of the king, which was in the guard-court, and they let Jeremiah down with ropes,—now in the dungeon was no water, only mire, so Jeremiah sank in the mire.

When Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, one of the eunuchs, he being in the house of the king, heard that they had delivered Jeremiah into the dungeon,—the king being seated in the gate of Benjamin, then went forth Ebed-melech, out of the house of the king, and spake unto the king, saying:

9 My lord, O King! wickedly have these men done all that they have done to Jeremiah the prophet, whom indeed they have cast into the dungeon,—since he would have died where he was, because of the famine, for there is no bread any longer in the city.

Then the king commanded Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, saying,—

Take with thee from hence, thirty men, and lift Jeremiah the prophet out of the dungeon, before he die.

So Ebed-melech took the men with him, and went into the house of the king, under the treasury, and took thence pieces of cast-off clothes, and old rags,—and let them down unto Jeremiah in the dungeon, with the ropes. Then said Ebed-melech the Ethiopian unto Jeremiah,—

Put, I pray thee, the pieces of cast-off clothes and the old rags, under thine arm-joints, under the ropes. And Jeremiah did so. Then drew they Jeremiah, with the ropes, and lifted him up out of the dungeon,—and Jeremiah remained in the guard-court. Then King Zedekiah sent and fetched Jeremiah the prophet unto him, in the third entrance, which is in the house of Yahweh,—and the king said unto Jeremiah,—

I am going to ask thee a thing, do not hide anything from me.

Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah,—

When I tell thee wilt thou not surely put me to death?

And when I counsel thee thou wilt not hearken unto me.

So King Zedekiah sware unto Jeremiah, secretly saying,—

By the life of Yahweh, who made for us this soul—

I will in no wise put thee to death, Neither will I deliver thee into the hand of these men, who are seeking thy life.

Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah—

Thus saith Yahweh, God of hosts, God of Israel—

If thou wilt indeed go forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon, then shall thine own soul live, and this city shall not be burned with fire,—but thou shalt live, thy house.

But if thou wilt not go forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon, then shall this city be delivered into the hand of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire, and shalt not escape out of their hand.

Then said King Zedekiah unto Jeremiah:

I am afraid of the Jews, who have fallen away unto the Chaldeans, lest they deliver me into their hand, and they maltreat me.

But Jeremiah said,

They shall not deliver!—Hearken, I pray thee, unto the voice of Yahweh, in what I am speaking unto thee, that it may be well with thee, and thy soul live.

But if thou art refusing to go forth is the thing which Yahweh hath shewed me:—

Behold, then, all the women that are left in the house of the king of Judah brought forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon,—and those very women saying,

The men thou wast wont to salute have goaded thee on, and prevailed upon thee,—

Thy foot hath sunk in the mire, they have turned away back.

Yea thou shalt behold all thy wives and thy children, brought forth unto the Chaldeans, and shalt not escape out of their hand,—but by the hand of the king of Babylon shalt thou be taken, and [this city] shall be burned with fire.

24 Then said Zedekiah unto Jeremiah—
Do not let [any man] know of these words, and thou shalt not die.

25 But when the princes hear [that I have spoken with thee], and they come in unto thee and say unto thee—
Do tell us, we pray thee, what thou didst speak unto the king, do not hide it from us, so will we not put thee to death,—and what spake [the king] unto thee? [?

26 Then shalt thou say unto them,—
I was causing my supplication to fall prostrate before the king,—that he would not cause me to return to the house of Jonathan, [to die there].

27 Then came in all the princes unto Jeremiah, and asked him, and he told them, according to all these words which the king [had commanded], [so they turned in silence] from him, for the matter [had not been reported]. 28 So Jeremiah remained in the guard-court, until the day when Jerusalem [was captured]; [thus] it fell out when Jerusalem [was captured].

§ 33. After an eighteen Months' Siege, Jerusalem is taken; King Zedekiah flees to the Waste Plains of Jericho, is captured, brought to Nebuchadrezzar at Riblah, his Sons and Nobles are slain in his presence, his Eyes are put out, and he is taken in Fetters to Babylon. Jerusalem burned, her Walls thrown down, and her Inhabitants carried captive to Babylon—saving some of the Poor, who are left to till the Soil.

Chapter 39.

1 <In the ninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month> came Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon and all his force against Jerusalem, and they besieged it. 2 <In the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month> was the city [broken into]. 3 Then came in all the princes of the king of Babylon, and sat in the middle gate,—Nergal-sharezer, Samgar-nebo, Sarsechim, chief eunuch, Nergal-sharezer, chief soothsayer, and all the residue of the princes of the king of Babylon.

4 And it came to pass <as soon as Zedekiah king of Judah and all the men of war saw them> that they fled, and went forth by night out of the city, by way of the king's garden, through the gate between the two walls,—and he went forth by way of the waste plain.

5 But the force of the Chaldeans pursued them, and overtook Zedekiah, in the waste plains of Jericho, and when they had taken him, they brought him up unto Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, to Riblah, in the land of Hamath,—and pronounced upon him sentences of judgment. 6 And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah, in Riblah, before his eyes,—and [all the nobles of Judah] did the king of Babylon slay; [and <the eyes of Zedekiah> did he put out, and bound him with fetters of bronze, to bring him into Babylon]. 8 And <the house of the king, and the houses of the people> did the Chaldeans burn with fire,—and <the walls of Jerusalem> brake they down; [and <the remnant of the people who were left in the city, and the disheartened, who fell away unto him, and the remnant of the people who were left> did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, take captive to Babylon. 10 But <of the poor people, who had [nothing]> did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, leave remaining in the land of Judah, and gave them vineyards and ploughed fields, [on the same day].

§ 34. By Nebuchadrezzar's Command Jeremiah is to be well treated: he is taken out of the Guard-court.

11 Then Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon [gave command], concerning Jeremiah,—through Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, saying:
12 Take him, and [thine eyes] set thou upon him, and do not unto him any' harmful thing,—but <just as he shall speak unto thee> [so] shalt thou do with him.

13 So Nebuzaradan, chief of the royal executioners, [sent], also Nebushazban, chief of the eunuchs, [lit: “house.”] and Nergal-sharezer, a chief of the magi, and all the chiefs of the king of Babylon;

14 yea they sent and fetched Jeremiah out of the guard-court, and delivered him unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, to bring him forth into a home, b so he dwelt in the midst of the people.

§ 35. A Divine Message to Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, recognising his Faith and assuring him of his Life.

15 Now unto Jeremiah had come the word of Yahweh, while he was yet shut up' in the guard-court, saying:

16 Go and speak to Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, saying,—

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Behold me! bringing about my words against this city, for calamity—and not for blessing,—and they shall come to pass before thee, [in that day].

17 But I will deliver thee in that day, Declareth Yahweh,—and thou shalt not be given up into the hand of the men’ from the face of whom ||thou|| mightest shrink with fear.

18 For I wilt ||surely deliver|| thee, and <by the sword> shalt thou not fall,—but thou shalt have thine own life c [as a spoil],Because thou hast trusted in me, Declareth Yahweh.

§ 36. Nebuzaradan giving Jeremiah his Choice, of going down to Babylon or remaining in the Land, the Prophet decides to dwell at Mizpah with Gedaliah, who had been appointed Governor of the Cities of Judah.

Chapter 40.

1 The thing that happened d unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, after Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners had let him go from Ramah,—when he had taken him, he having been bound in fetters in the midst of all the captive-host e of Jerusalem, and Judah, who were being carried away captive to Babylon. f So then the chief of the royal executioners g took Jeremiah,—and said unto him, ||Yahweh thy God|| had threatened this' calamity' against this place; 3 and so Yahweh hath brought it about and done it, just as he threatened,—for ye have sinned against Yahweh, and have not hearkened unto his voice, and so this thing hath befallen’ you.

4 §§ Now|| therefore, lo! I have loosed thee to-day, from the fetters which were upon thy hand, g If it be good in thine eyes to come with me into Babylon> come, and I will set mine eyes upon thee, but <if evil in thine eyes to come with me into Babylon> forbear,—see! ||all the land|| is before thee, <whither it may be good and right in thine eyes to go> ||thither|| go!

5 And ere yet’ he could make reply—

Go thou back then unto Gedaliah b son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon hath set in charge over the cities of Judah, and dwell thou with him in the midst of the people, or <whithersoever it may be right in thine eyes to go> go!

So the chief of the royal executioners gave him an allowance and a present, and let him go. h Then came’ Jeremiah unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam, to Mizpah, i and dwelt with him in the midst of the people who were left in the land.

§ 37. All the Hebrew Captains left in the Field, with Jews out of Moab, Ammon and Edom, gather unto Gedaliah; among them a Traitor, Ishmael, of whom the Governor is warned; but Gedaliah refusing credence, is cruelly murdered, with the Jews and Chaldeans who are with him. After further Treacheries, Ishmael is pursued by Johanan and others, and his Captives are rescued, by himself escapes. Johanan and those with him, fearing the Wrath of the Chaldeans, dwell at the khan of Chimham, ready to go down into Egypt.

7 Now <=when all the captains of the forces which were in the field—||they and their men||, heard’ that the king of Babylon had set Gedaliah son of Ahikam in charge over the land,—and that he had committed to him men and women and children, and the poor of the land’ of those who had not been carried away captive to Babylon> then came they

in unto Gedaliah in Mizpah,—both Ishmael son of Nethaniah, and Johanan and Jonathan sons of Kareah, and Seraiah son of Tanhumeth, and the sons of Ephai b the Netophathite, and Jezaniah c son of the Maachathite, ||they and their men||. Then Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, sware unto them, and to their men, saying,

Do not be afraid of serving the Chaldeans,—dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, that it may be well with you.

But ||Ye|| however, gather ye wine and summer fruits and oil, and put [them] in your vessels, and dwell in your cities which ye have seized.

||Likewise also|| ||all the Jews, who were in Moab and among the sons of Ammon and in Edom, and who were in any of the lands|| ≤when they heard that the king of Babylon had granted a remnant to Judah, and that he had set in charge over them, Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan c yea, then returned all the Jews, out of all the places whither they had been driven, and came into the land of Judah, unto Gedaliah, in Mizpah,—and gathered wine and summer fruits, in great abundance.

But ||Johanan son of Kareah, and all the princes of the forces which were in the field|| came unto Gedaliah, in Mizpah, 14 and said unto him—

Dost thou ||at all know|| that ||Baalis, d king of the sons of Ammon|| hath sent Ishmael son of Nethaniah, to smite thee to death? 1a

But Gedaliah son of Ahikam ||believed them not||.

Then ||Johanan son of Kareah|| spake unto Gedaliah secretly, in Mizpah, saying,—

Let me go, I pray thee, and smite Ishmael son of Nethaniah, and not ||a man|| shall know it,—wherefore should he smite thee to death, f and all Judah who have gathered themselves unto thee, be dispersed, and the remnant of Judah perish?

Then said Gedaliah son of Ahikam, unto Johanan son of Kareah,

Thou mayest not do this thing,—for ||falsely|| art thou speaking against Ishmael.

Chapter 41.

1 And it came to pass <in the seventh month> that Ishmael son of Nethaniah son of Elishama of the seed royal and chiefs of the king, and ten men with him, ||came in|| unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam, at Mizpah,—and they did there’ eat bread together, in Mizpah. 2 Then arose Ishmael son of Nethaniah—and the ten men who were with him, and they smote Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan—with the sword, and slew him whom the king of Babylon ||had set in charge|| over the land. 3 And Ishmael smote ||all the Jews who were with him, even with Gedaliah in Mizpah, and the Chaldeans who were found there, the eight men of war||.

4 And it came to pass <on the second day, after he had slain Gedaliah, not ||a man|| knowing it> 5 that men came in from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria,—eighty men, with beards shaven and clothes rent, who also had cut themselves, with a meal-offering and frankincense in their hand, to bring them into the house of Yahweh. 6 Then went forth Ishmael son of Nethaniah to meet them, out of Mizpah, weeping all along as he went, b—and it came to pass <when he fell in with them> that he said unto them,

Come ye in unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam.

7 And so it was <when they had come into the midst of the city> that Ishmael son of Nethaniah slew them [and cast them] into the midst of a pit, ||he, and the men who were with him||. 8 But ||ten men|| were found among them, who said unto Ishmael—

Do not put us to death, for we have secret treasures in the field, wheat and barley and oil and honey.

So he forbare, and put them not to death, in the midst of their brethren. 9 Now <the pit, whereinto Ishmael cast all the dead bodies of the men whom

11 But <when Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces who were with him, heard’ of all the wickedness which Ishmael son of Nethaniah had done’|> 12 then took they all the men, and went their way to fight with Ishmael son of Nethaniah,—and found him near the many waters which were in Gibeon. 13 And it came to pass <when all the people who were with Ishmael saw’ Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces who were with him|> then were they glad.

14 So all the people whom Ishmael had carried away captive out of Mizpah, |compassed about|, and returned, and went their way’ unto Johanan son of Kareah. 15 But ||Ishmael son of Nethaniah| escaped, with eight men, from the face of Johanan,—and departed unto the sons of Ammon.

16 Then did Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces who were with him, take’ all the remnant of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael son of Nethaniah out of Mizpah, after he had smitten Gedaliah son of Ahikam,—mighty men, men of war, and women and children, and eunuchs, whom he had recovered out of Gibeon; 17 and they departed, and dwelt in the khanb of Chimham,c which is near Bethlehem,—that they might go to enter Egypt; 18 because of the Chaldeans, for they were afraid of them,—because Ishmael son of Nethaniah had smitten’ Gedaliah son of Ahikam,||whom the king of Babylon had set in charge’ over the land||.

§ 38. The Spared and Rescued Remnant of Jews solicit Jeremiah’s Intercession with Yahweh in their behalf; solemnly pledging themselves to abide the Result; yet, when the Answer proves adverse to their Wishes, they stubbornly disobey, and go down into Egypt as far as Tahpanhes, carrying Jeremiah and Baruch with them. Here the Prophet, with accompanying symbolic Action, foretells an Invasion of Egypt by Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon.

Chapter 42.

1 Then drew near, all the captains of the forces, and Johanan son of Kareah and Jezeaniah son of Hoshiaiah,—and all the people, from the least even unto the greatest; 2 and said unto Jeremiah the prophet—

Let our supplication, we beseech thee, fall prostrate before thee, and pray thou in our behalf, unto Yahweh thyGod, in behalf of all this remnant,—for we are left, a few out of many, [just as thine own eyes’ do behold us]: 3 that Yahweh thyGod may tell’ us, the way wherein we should walk,—and the thing that we should do.

4 And Jeremiah the prophet said’ unto them, I have heard; behold me! praying unto Yahweh your God, according to your words,—and it shall come to pass, that <the whole thing that Yahweh shall answer you> I will tell you, I will keep back from you, [nothing].

5 ||They|| therefore, said unto Jeremiah, Yahweh be against us, as a witness, [true and faithful],—if <according to all the word which Yahweh thy God shall send’ thee unto us> ||so|| we do not perform. 6 ||whether for good or for ill||, <unto the voice of Yahweh our God for which we’ are sending thee unto him> will we hearken,—to the end it may be well with us, [because we will hearken’ unto the voice of Yahweh our God],

7 And it came to pass <at the end of ten days> that the word of Yahweh came’ unto Jeremiah. 8 Then called he for Johanan son of Kareah, and for all the princes of the forces’ who were with him—and for all the people, [from the least even unto the greatest];

9 and said unto them,

[|Thus|] saith Yahweh, God of Israel—unto whom ye sent me, to cause your supplication to fall prostrate before him:—
10 <If ye will [indeed abide] in this land> then will I build you up, and not pull [you] down, and plant you, and not uproot [you],—for I have compassion, as touching the calamity’ which I have caused you. 11 Do not fear the face of the king of Babylon, of whose face ye’ are afraid,—do not fear him, Urgeth Yahweh, for <with you> am I’, to save you, and to deliver you out of his hand: 12 that I may grant you compassions, and he may have compassion upon you,—and suffer you to return unto your own soil.

But ≤since ye’ are saying,—
We will not dwell in this land,—nor hearken’ unto the voice of Yahweh your God: 14 saying,—
No! for <into the land of Egypt> will we go, where we shall not see war, nor <the sound of a horn> shall we hear,—nor <for bread> shall we be famished,—
|there| then will we dwell|≥

|Now|| therefore, ||for this cause| hear ye the word of Yahweh, O remnant of Judah,—

|Thus| saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,—

<If [ye’ do indeed set]| your faces, to enter Egypt, and do enter to sojourn there> 16 then shall it come to pass that [the sword which ye’ are fearing]| shall [there] overtake you, in the land of Egypt,—and [the famine which ye’ are dreading]| shall [there] lay fast hold of you, [in Egypt], and [there] shall ye die. 17 So shall it be with all the men who have set their faces to enter Egypt, to sojourn there, they shall die, by sword, by famine, or by pestilence,—and they shall have neither survival nor escape, from the face of the calamity’ which I’ am about to bring in upon them. 18 For—
|Thus| saith Yahweh of hosts,

God of Israel,—

<Just as mine anger and mine indignation [have been poured out] upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem> ||so|| shall mine indignation be poured out upon you’ when ye enter into Egypt,—thus shall ye become a curse, and an astonishment, and a contempt, and a reproach, and ye shall no more’ see |this place|.

Yahweh hath spoken’ concerning you, O ye remnant of Judah,
Do not enter into Egypt:
||Know certainly|| that I have taken you to witness to-day. 20 For ye have deceived yourselves at the cost of your lives,² for ||ye yourselves| sent me unto Yahweh your God, saying,—
Pray thou in our behalf, unto Yahweh your God,—and <according to all that Yahweh our God shall say>| ||so|| tell us, and we will do it.

Therefore have I told you to-day,—and yet ye have not hearkened unto the voice of Yahweh your God, ||even in any thing for which he hath sent me unto you||.

||Now|| therefore, ||know ye certainly||, that <by sword, by famine, or by pestilence> shall ye die,—in the place whither ye have desired to go, to sojourn.

Chapter 43.

And it came to pass ≤when Jeremiah had made an end’ of speaking unto all the people all the words of Yahweh their God, with which Yahweh their God had sent’ him unto them,—even all these words² 2 then spake Azariah son of Hoshaijah, and Johanan son of Kareah, and all the proud men,—saying unto Jeremiah—
||Falsely|| art thou’ speaking,
Yahweh our God [hath not sent thee] to say,
Ye shall not enter Egypt, to sojourn there;
but ||Baruch son of Neriah|| is goading thee on against us,—that he may deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, to put us to death, or take us away captive to Babylon.

So Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, and all the people, [hearkened not] unto the voice of Yahweh,—by remaining in the land

Chapter 44.

1. The word which came to Jeremiah, against all the Jews who were dwelling in the land of Egypt,—who were dwelling in Migdol, and in Tahpanhes, and in Noph, and in the land of Pathros, saying:

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,

God of Israel,

||Ye yourselves|| saw all the calamity’ which I brought in upon Jerusalem, and upon all the cities of Judah,—and there’ they are, a desolation, this day, and there is not’ in them an inhabitant: 3 because of their wickedness’ which they committed, provoking me to anger, by going to burn incense, to serve other’ gods, whom they had not known, ||they, ye, nor your fathers||; 4 yet I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, betimes’ sending them, saying,—

Do not, I pray you, commit this abominable thing, which I hate!

5. but they hearkened not, neither inclined their ear, by turning from their wickedness,—so as not to burn incense to other’ gods. 6 Therefore were mine indignation and mine anger [poured out], and a fire was kindled in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem,—and they became waste and desolate, as at this day. 7 Moreover therefore,

||Thus|| saith Yahweh, God’s of hosts,

God of Israel—

[Wherefore] are ye’ committing a great wickedness against your own lives," that ye should cut off from you man and woman, child and suckling, out of the midst of Judah,—so that there should not be left you a remnant: 8 in that ye provoke me to anger by the works’ of your own hands, burning incense to other’ gods, in the land of Egypt, which ye’ have been entering to sojourn,—that ye should cut [them] off’ from you, and that ye should become a

9. Take in thy hand great stones, and hide them in the mortar, that is in the brickyard’ which is at the entrance of the house of Pharaoh, in Tahpanhes,—before the eyes of the men of Judah. 10 Then shalt thou say unto them—

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,

God of Israel—

Behold me! sending and fetching Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, my servant, and I will set his throne’ over these stones, which I have hid,—and he shall spread his canopy over them. 11 And when he entereth> then will he smite the land of Egypt [and deliver]

Him who is for captivity’ to captivity, and

Him who is for the sword’ to the sword.

12. So will I kindle a fire in the houses of the gods of Egypt, and he shall burn them and carry them away captive,—and shall wrap the land of Egypt about him, just as a shepherd [wrappeth about] him his garment, and shall go forth from thence in peace;

And he shall break in pieces the pillars of Beth-shemesh, 9 which is in the land of Egypt,— contempt and a reproach among all the nations of the earth? Have ye forgotten the wicked ways of your fathers, and the wicked ways of the kings of Judah, and the wicked ways of his wives, and your own wicked ways, and the wicked ways of your own wives,—which they committed in the land of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem?

And <the houses of the gods of Egypt> shall he burn with fire.

They have not been crushed, unto this day; neither have they been afraid, neither have they walked in my law, and in my statutes, which I set before you, and before your fathers. Therefore ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Behold me! setting my face against you, for calamity,—even to cut off all Judah; and I will take the remnant of Judah who did set their faces, to enter the land of Egypt, to sojourn there, and they shall all be consumed, <in the land of Egypt> shall they fall by the sword, <by famine> shall they be consumed, ||from the least even unto the greatest||, <by sword and by famine> shall they die,—so shall they become a curse, and an astonishment, and a contempt, and a reproach; and I will bring punishment upon them who are dwelling in the land of Egypt, just as I brought punishment upon Jerusalem,—by sword, by famine, and by pestilence; and there shall be neither escape nor survival, unto the remnant of Judah, who have been entering, to sojourn there, into the land of Egypt,—that they should return to the land of Judah, even when they are lifting up their soul to return to dwell there, for none shall return, [saving fugitives].

Then all the men who knew that their wives were burning incense to other gods, and all the women standing by, a great convocation,—with all the people who were dwelling in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, [made answer unto Jeremiah], saying:

As touching the word which thou hast spoken unto us, in the name of Yahweh we are not going to hearken unto thee;

but ||we will certainly do|| the whole thing that hath gone forth out of our own mouth, by burning incense to the queen of the heavens, and pouring out to her drink-offerings, just as ||we and our fathers, and our kings and our princes|| did, in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem,—then were we filled with bread, and became prosperous, and <calamity> saw we none;

whereas ≤from the very time we ceased burning incense to the queen of the heavens and pouring out to her drink-offerings≥ we have lacked [everything],—and <by sword and by famine> have we been consumed.

And ≤though we’ are burning incense to the queen of the heavens and pouring out to her, drink-offerings≥ is it ≤without our men|| that we have made to her sacrificial cakes as images of her, and poured out to her, drink-offerings?≥

Then spake Jeremiah unto all the people,—against the men, and against the women, and against all the people who had been making any answer unto him, saying:

Was it not ≤the very incense which ye burned in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, ||ye, and your fathers, your kings and your princes, and the people of the land||≥ was it not ≤those very things|| that Yahweh did remember, and that came up on his heart; so Yahweh could’ no longer forbear, because of the wickedness of your doings, because of the abominations which ye committed,—and your land became’ a desolation, and an astonishment, and a contempt, without inhabitant—[as at this day]? ≤Because that ye burned incense, and that ye sinned against Yahweh, and hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh, and [in his law] and in his statutes and in his testimonies] did not walk≥ ||for this cause|| did this calamity befall you—[as at this day].

And Jeremiah said’ unto all the people, and unto all the women,—Hear ye the word of Yahweh, all Judah, who are in the land of Egypt,—
25 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,
         God of Israel, saying,
         ||Ye and your wives|| have both spoken with your mouth and <with your hands> have ye fulfilled, saying,
         We will ||certainly perform|| our vows which we have vowed, to burn incense to the queen of the heavens, and to pour out to her, drink-offerings; the women ||will certainly confirm’|| your vows, and ||certainly perform’|| your vows.
26 |Therefore| hear ye the word of Yahweh, all Judah, who are dwelling in the land of Egypt,— Behold me! I have sworn by my great Name, Saith Yahweh,
         That my Name |shall no more| be invoked by the mouth of any man of Judah, saying—
         By the life of My Lord, Yahweh, in all the land of Egypt.
         Behold me! watchingb over them |for calamity, and not for blessing|,—so shall all the men of Judah who are in the land of Egypt |be consumed| by sword and by famine, until there be an end of them. 28 Yet ||the fugitives of the sword|| shall certainly return’ out of the land of Egypt into the land of Judah, men easily counted,—that all the remnant of Judah who are entering Egypt to sojourn there |may know| ||whose word|| shall stand, ||mine or theirs||!
29 And ||this|| <to you> shall be the sign,
         Declareth Yahweh, that I’ am about to bring punishment upon you in this place,—that ye may know that my words shall ||certainly stand|| against you, |for calamity|:
30 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
         Behold me! delivering up Pharaoh-hophra king of Egypt, into the hand of his enemies, yea into the hand of them who are seeking his life,—just as I delivered Zedekiah king of Judah, into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon his enemy, and one seeking his life.

§ 40. Jeremiah’s faithful but regretful Scribe, Baruch, is, by Divine Message, reminded that his Ambition for great Things is ill-timed, and he is simply assured of his Life.

Chapter 45.

2 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh, God of Israel, Unto thee, O Baruch,—
3 Thou didst say,
         Surely woe to me! For Yahweh hath added’ sorrow unto my pain,—
         I am weary with my moaning, And <rest> have I not found!
4 ||Thus|| shalt thou say unto him,
   ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,—
   Lo! <what I had built> I’ am pulling down, And <what I had planted> I’ am rooting up,—
   And that’ is ||all the land||:d Wouldst |thou then seek to securec for thyself great things? Do not seek! For, behold me! bringing in calamity upon all flesh,

Because of the rushing of his chariots, the rumbling of his wheels

Because of the unnerving of their hands;
On account of the day that cometh to lay waste all the Philistines,
To cut off from Tyre, and Zidon, every escaped one that could have helped,—

And the spoiler shall enter
For Moab is broken:
Flee, deliver your own lives,
Then shall the women be as a shrub in the desert.

Moab is broken:
Her little ones have caused to be heard an outcry.

For the ascent of Luhith | with weeping | one ascendeth — with weeping,
For | in the descent of Horonaim | | the distress of the outcry of destruction | have they heard:
Flee, deliver your own lives,
Then shall the women be as a shrub in the desert.

For seeing thou hast trusted in thy works and in thy treasures

36 <Upon thy summer fruits, And upon thy vintage> [the spoiler] hath fallen.
37 So shall be withdrawn gladness and exultation— From the fruitful field, and From the land of Moab,—
38 And <from the vats> have I caused to fail, They shall not tread with shouting, ||The shouting|| shall be no' shouting!
39 <From the outcry of Heshbon, Even unto Elealeh, Even unto Jahaz> have they given forth their voice,
30 <From Zoar even unto Horonaim> the third Egath,— For ||even the waters of Nimrim|| <to utter desolation> have been turned:
30 Then will I cause to cease, from Moab, Declareth Yahweh,— 30 _Him that offereth at a high-place, and _Him that burneth incense to his gods.
30 [For this cause] ||my heart, for Moab|| <like flutes> shall make plaintive sounds, Yea ||my heart, for the men of Kir-heres|| <like flutes> shall make plaintive sounds, [Because] [the abundance he hath gotten] is lost!
30 For ||every head|| is baldness, And ||every beard|| clipped: <Upon all hands> are gashes, And <upon the loins> [sackcloth]!
30 <Upon all the housetops of Moab, And in her broadways> it is all lamentation,— 30 For I have broken Moab— Like a vessel wherein is no' pleasure, Declareth Yahweh.

42 Then shall [Moab] be destroyed [from being a people],—Because <against Yahweh> hath he magnified himself.

43 [Terror, and pit, and snare] a are upon thee, O inhabitant of Moab,

Declareth Yahweh:

44 [He that fleeth from the face of the terror] Shall fall into the pit, And [he that getteth up out of the pit] b Shall be captured by the snare,—For I will bring against her—[against Moab], The year of their visitation

Declareth Yahweh.

46 Woe to thee, Moab! Lost’ are the people of Chemosh,—For thy sons [have been taken] into captivity, And thy daughters into captivity.

47 Yet will I bring back the captivity of Moab, In the afterpart of the days

Hath Israel no’ [sons]? Hath he no’ [heir]?
Why hath [Malkam] b taken possession’ of [Gad], Or have [his people] <in the cities thereof> made their dwelling?

2 [Therefore] lo! [days are coming],

Declareth Yahweh,

When I will cause to be heard against Rabbah of the sons of Ammon, [an alarm of war], So shall she become a mound of desolation, And [her villages] <with fire> shall blaze,—Then shall [Israel] inherit them’ who inherited him’,

Saith Yahweh.

3 Howl, O Heshbon, for Ai is spoiled, Make outcry, ye daughters of Rabbah, Gird you with sackcloth, Lament ye, and run to and fro among the fences,—For [Malkam] b <into captivity> shall go, His priests and his princes, [together].

4 Why shouldst thou glory in the vales, The flowing of thy vale; O apostate’ daughter? She who is trusting in her treasures, [saying], k Who’ shall invade [me]?

5 Behold me! bringing upon thee, terror,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh l of hosts,

From all who are round about thee,—And ye shall be driven out every man before it, And there shall be none to bring home the wanderer;

§ 45. The Nations:—Edom. (Cp. Isa. lxiii.)

10 Of Edom—
|If Edom||—
|Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,
Is there no longer wisdom in Teman?
Hath counsel perished from the discerning?
Is their wisdom corrupt?

Flee ye, turn, go down deep to dwell, O inhabitant of Dedan,—
For <the doom of Esau> have I brought in upon him,
The time of his visitation.

If grape-gatherers came to thee
Would they not leave [gleanings]?
If thieves in the night
Would they not have taken away what sufficed them?

But I have stripped Esau bare,
I have uncovered his secret places,
And to conceal himself shall he not be able!
Spoiled, are his seed, and his brethren, and his neighbours, and he is’not.

Leave thy fatherless children will preserve them alive,—
And thy widows
let them trust.

For thus saith Yahweh—
Lo! [they who had not been adjudged to drink the cup] [shall surely drink],
And art thou the one to go [unpunished]? Thou shalt not go unpunished, but [shall surely drink].

For <by myself> have I sworn,
Declareth Yahweh,
That [Bozrah] shall become [an astonishment, a reproach, and a desolation, and a contempt],—
And [all her cities] shall become age-abiding desolations.

A report have I heard from Yahweh,
Yea [an envoy] throughout the nations hath been sent,— Gather yourselves together, and come against her,
And arise to the battle.

For lo! [Small] have I made thee among the nations,— Despised among men!

[Thy monstrous thing] hath deceived thee,
The insolence of thy heart,
O thou that inhabitest the hidden recesses of the cliff,
That holdest fast the height of the hill,—
<Though thou set high, as an eagle, thy nest>
[From thence] will I bring thee down,
Declareth Yahweh;

So shall [Edom] become an [astonishment],—
[Every one passing by her] will be astonished and hiss, over all her plagues:
Like the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah and her neighbours
Saith Yahweh,—
There shall not dwell there—a man,
Nor sojourn therein—any son of the earth-born.

Lo! [like a lion] will he come up from the majesty of the Jordan, unto the pasture perennial,
But I will wink—I will make him run away therefrom,
Who’ then shall be the Chosen One whom <over it> I may set in charge?
For who’ shall be like unto [me]? And who’ shall appoint [me] a [time]?
And who’ is’ the Shepherd, that shall stand before [me]?

Wherefore hear ye
The counsel of Yahweh, which he hath counseled against Edom,
And his devices which he hath devised against the inhabitants of Teman,— Surely the little ones of the flock [shall drag them away],
Surely he will cause their fold to be astounded over them.

Of Damascus

Turned pale’ have Hamath and Arpad,
For  have they heard,—
>In the sea> is anxiety, it cannot ||rest||.

Enfeebled’ is  Damascus

She hath turned to flee
But ||terror|| have seized her,—
||Anguish and pangs|| have seized her as a woman in childbirth.

Therefore shall her young men fall’ in her broadways,—
And ||all her men of war|| shall be silent in that day,
Declareth Yahweh of hosts;

Then will I kindle a fire in the walls of Damascus,—
And it shall devour the palaces of Ben-hadad.

§ 47. The Nations:—Kedar.

Of Kedar ||ˎ
And of the kingdoms of Hazor Which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon smote—
||Thus|| saith Yahweh,—
Arise ye, go up against Kedar.
So shall they spoil the sons of the East:

|Their tents and their flocks> shall they take, And <their curta inls, and all their baggage, b and their camels> shall they carry off for themselves,— And shall cry out unto them,
Terror round about!|

Flee, remove far away, go deep to dwell, Ye inhabitants of Hazor,

Urgeth Yahweh; For Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon—
|Hath counseled against you a counsel, And devised against you d a device.

Arise ye, go up against a nation at ease— dwelling securely,

Commandeth Yahweh,— Having neither doors nor bars, <Alone> do they dwell:

So shall [their camels] become [a prey], And [the throng of their cattle] [a spoil], Then will I scatter them to every wind, even the clipt-beards,— And <from all sides of him> will I bring in their doom,
Declareth Yahweh.

So shall Hazor become
A habitation of jackals,
An astonishment, unto times age-abiding:
There shall not dwell there—a man, Nor sojourn therein—a son of the earth-born.

Behold me! breaking the bow of Elam,—
The beginning’ of their might;

Then will I bring in against Elam, four winds, from the four quarters of the heavens, And will scatter’ them to all these winds,— And there shall be no nation‘ whither the outcasts of Elam [shall not come];

And I will cause Elam e to be dismayed Before their enemies, Even before them who are seeking their life, f § 49. The Nations:—Babylon.

Chapter 50.

1 The word which Yahweh spake
Against Babylon,
Against the land of the Chaldeans,
through Jeremiah the prophet:

2 Tell ye among the nations,
And let it be heard,
And lift ye up a standard,
Let it be heard, do not conceal:
Say ye—
Captured’ is Babylon,
Confounded’ is Bel, c
Broken in pieces’ is Merodach,
Confounded’ are her images,
Broken down’ her manufactured gods; d
For there hath come up against her—a nation out of the North,
[The same] shall make her land an astonishment,
And there shall be none to dwell therein,—
[Both man and beast] have removed—have gone.

3 <In those days, and at that time>
Declareth Yahweh,
Shall the sons of Israel come in,
[They] and the sons of Judah’ [together]:
<Weeping as they travel> so shall they journey on,
And <Yahweh their God> shall they seek;
<To Zion> shall they ask the way,

4 <Hitherward> their faces!
Come and let us join ourselves unto Yahweh,
In a covenant age-abiding, which shall not be forgotten.

5 <Wandering sheep> have ||my people|| been,
||Their own shepherds|| led them astray,
<On the mountains> they seduced them, g
<From mountain to hill> have they gone, They have forgotten their couching-place.

6 ||All who found them|| devoured them,
And ||their adversaries|| said—
We shall not be guilty,—
Because they have sinned
Against Yahweh, the pasturage of righteousness h
Yea ||the hope of their fathers—Yahweh||.

7 Remove ye out of the midst of Babylon,
And <out of the land of the Chaldeans> come ye forth, 1
And become ye like he-goats before the flock;

8 For lo! I’ am rousing and bringing up against Babylon, a gathered host i of great nations, out of the land of the North,
And they shall array themselves against her,
<From thence> shall she be captured,—
||His arrows|| are as of a hero making childless, k
None shall return [empty].

9 So shall the Chaldeans become a spoil,—
||All her spoilers|| shall be satisfied,
Declareth Yahweh;

10 Because they used to be glad,
Because they used to be uproarious,
When plundering mine inheritance,—
Because they used to caper about as a heifer at grass,
And bellow like bulls.

11 Your mother [hath turned very pale],
She that bare you [hath turned red],—
Lo! ||the last of nations|| is—

14 Set yourselves in array against Babylon round about,

For <against Yahweh> hath she sinned.

15 Raise a shout against her round about,
She hath stretched forth her hand, a
Fallen’ are her buttresses,
Torn down’ are her walls,—
<Because ||the avenging of Yahweh|| it is>—

18 [Therefore]—
||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,
Behold me! bringing punishment against the king of Babylon, and against his land,—
Just as I brought punishment against the king of Assyria.

19 So will I bring back Israel unto his own pasture,
And he shall feed upon Carmel and Bashan;
And <in the hill country of Ephraim and Gilead> shall [his soul] be satisfied’.

20 <In those days, and in that time>

Declarereth Yahweh,
The iniquity of Israel [shall be sought] and [there shall be none],
And the sins of Judah, and they shall not be found;
For I will grant pardon to them whom I suffer to remain.

21 <Against the land of Merathaim> go thou up against her,
And against the inhabitants of Pekod,—
Lay waste and devote to destruction after them,
Declarereth Yahweh,
And do according to all which I have commanded thee.

22 The ||sound of battle|| is in the earth,—
And a great destruction. e

23 How’ is cut and broken, the hammer of all the earth! f
How hath |Babylon| become an astonishment
|among the nations|!

24 I laid a snare for thee, yea’ and thou wast captured, O Babylon, when ||thou|| wast not aware,—
Thou wast found out, yea and taken,
For <with Yahweh> hadst thou contended.

25 Yahweh opened’ his armoury, and brought out his weapons of indignation,—
For ||a work|| it is’ pertaining to My Lord, Yahweh of hosts, in the land of the Chaldeans.

26 Come ye against her from farthest parts,
Throw open her granaries,
Cast her up as heaps, and devote her to destruction,—
Do not let her have [a remnant].

27 Cut up all her bullocks,
Let them go down to the slaughter,—
Alas for them!
For their day [hath come],
Their time for punishment.

   And against her princes,
   And against her wise men:

36 \[A sword\] is against the praters,
   And they shall be shewn to be foolish,
   \[A sword\] is against her heroes,
   And they shall be dismayed:

37 \[A sword\] is against his hopes and against his chariots, and against all the rabble that are in her midst,
   And they shall become women,—
   \[A sword\] is against her treasures,
   And they shall be made a prey:

38 \[A drought\] is against her waters,
   And they shall be dried up,—

   Yea ostriches \[shall dwell therein],—
   So shall it be dwelt in no more for ever,
   Neither shall it be inhabited, unto generation

40 \[Like the divine overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah\] and her neighbours>
   Declareth Yahweh,—
   There shall not dwell there—a man,
   Nor sojourn therein—a son of the earth-born.

41 Lo! a people coming in from the North,— Yea \[a great nation, and many kings\] shall be roused up out of the remote parts of the earth:

42 \[Bow and javelin\] shall they grasp,
   \[Cruel\] are they' and will not have compassion,
   \[Their voice\] \(<\)like the sea\(>\) will roar,\(^h\)
   And \(<\)on horses\> will they ride,—
   Set in array, as one man, for battle,

43 The king of Babylon hath heard' the report of
   them,
   And unnerved’ are his hands,—
   \[Anguish\] hath seized him,
   \[Writhing pain\], as a woman in child-birth.

Chapter 51.

1 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—Behold me! stirring up against Babylon, And against the inhabitants of the centre of them who rise up against me,—A wind that destroyeth;

2 And I will send to Babylon winnowers, And they shall winnow her, And shall empty her land,—For they are against her round about, in the day of calamity.

3 Let not the archer tread his bow, Nor lift himself up in his coat of mail,—And do not spare her young men, Devote to destruction all her host.

   And to all the inhabitants of Chaldea,
   All their wickedness which they have committed against Zion, before your eyes,—
   Declareth Yahweh.
25 Behold me! against thee, O destroying mountain,
   Declareth Yahweh,
   That destroyest all the earth,—
   Therefore will I stretch out my hand over thee,
   And roll thee down from the crags,
   And make of thee a burning mountain:
26 So shall they not fetch from thee
   A stone for a corner, nor
   A stone for a foundation,—
   For <desolations age-abiding> shalt thou become,
   Declareth Yahweh.
27 Set ye up an ensign in the earth,
   Blow ye a horn among the nations,
   Hallow against her—nations,
   Summon against her the kingdoms of Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz, f—
   Set in charge against her a marshal,
   Bring up cavalry like hairy locusts:
28 Hallow against her—nations,
   With the kings of Media,
   With g her governors and all her deputies,—
   And with all the land of his dominion:
29 Then did the land tremble, and was in pain,—
   For the plans of Yahweh [had been established

   To make the land of Babylon an astonishment, without inhabitant.
30 The heroes of Babylon have ceased’ to fight,
   They have remained in the strongholds,
   Parched’ is their might,

§ 51. A supplementary Account of Zedekiah’s Reign, of the Siege of Jerusalem, of the Precious Vessels and Leading Men carried away, of the several successive Deportations to Babylon, and of the changed lot of Jehoiachin in Babylon.

(Cp. chap. xxxix., 2 K. xxv.)

Chapter 52.

1 <Twenty-one years old> was Zedekiah when he began to reign, and <eleven years> reigned he, in Jerusalem,—and [[his mother’s name]] was Hamutal;b daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. 2 And he did that which was wicked in the eyes of Yahweh,—according to all that [Jehoiakim] had done. 3 For it was <because ||the anger of Yahweh|| had come against Jerusalem and Judah, until he had cast them’ out from his presence> that Zedekiah rebelled’ against the king of Babylon.

4 And it came to pass <in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth of the month> that Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came, ||he and all his force|| against Jerusalem, and encamped against it,—and he built against it a siege-wall round about. 5 And the city came into the siege,—until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah. 6 <In the fourth month, on the ninth of the month, when the famine had become severe’ in the city,—and there had come to be no bread for the people of the land> 7 then was the city ||broken up||, and ||all the men of war||, beginning to flee, went forth out of the city by night, by way of the gate between the two walls which was by the garden of the king (the Chaldeans being near the city round about),—and they went the way towards the Waste Plain. 8 And the force of the Chaldeans pursued’ the king, and overtook Zedekiah, in the Waste Plains of Jericho,—and ||all his force|| was scattered from him.

9 So they seized the king, and brought him up, unto the king of Babylon at Riblah, in the land of Hamath,—and he pronounced upon him sentences of judgment. 10 And the king of Babylon slew’ the sons of Zedekiah, before his eyes,—moreover also <all the princes of Judah> slew he in Riblah; 11 and <the eyes of Zedekiah> put he out,—and bound him with fetters of bronze, and the king of Babylon took’ him to Babylon, and put him in prison—until the day of his death.

12 And <in the fifth month, on the tenth of the month, [the same]] was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadrezzar, king of Babylon> came Nebuzaradan, chief of the royal executioners,—who stood before the king of Babylon, into Jerusalem; 13 and he burned the house of Yahweh, and the house of the king,—yea <all the houses of Jerusalem, even every great man’s house> burned he with fire; 14 and <all the walls of Jerusalem, round about> did all the force of the Chaldeans who were with the chief of the royal executioners, [breakdown]. 15 And <some of the poor of the people, and the residue of the people who were left in the city, and the disheartened who had fallen away unto the king of Babylon, and the residue of the multitude> did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, [carry away captive]. 16 But <others of the poor of the land> did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, leave’, for vinedressers and for husbandmen.

17 And <the pillars of bronze that pertained to the house of Yahweh, and the stands, and the sea of bronze which was in the house of Yahweh> did the Chaldeans [break in pieces],—and they carried away all the bronze of them, to Babylon: 18 and <the caldrons and the shovels and the snuffers and the dashing bowls, and the spoons, even all the utensils of bronze wherewith ministration used to be made> did they take away; 19 and <the basins and the censers and the dashing bowls and the caldrons and the lamps and the spoons and the cups, which were of gold, in’ gold, and which were of silver, in’ silver> did the chief of the royal executioners [take away]. 20 <As for the two pillars, the one sea, and the twelve oxen of bronze which were under the stands’ which King Solomon had made for the house of Yahweh> [without weight] was the bronze of all these things. 21 Now <as for the pillars> [eighteen cubits] was the height’ of each pillar, and [a line of twelve cubits］ compassed it about,—and [the thickness thereof] was four fingers’ breadth—hollow; 22 and there was [a capital] upon it [of bronze], and [the height of each’ capital] was five cubits, with lattice-work and pomegranates upon the capital round about—[the whole] was of bronze,—and [like these] were the second pillar and the pomegranates. 23 And the pomegranates were ninety-six on a side,—[all the pomegranates] were a hundred, upon the lattice-work, round about.

24 And the chief of the royal executioners [took away] Seraiah, the first’ priest, and Zephaniah, the second’ priest,—and the three keepers of the entrance-hall; 25 and <out of the city> took he one eunuch who was in charge over the men of war, and seven men of them who used to watch the face of the king, who were found in the city, and the scribe of the prince of the host, who used to muster the people of the land,—and sixty men of the people of the land, who were found in the midst of the city. 26 And <when Nebuzaradan, chief of the royal executioners, had taken’ them, and brought them unto the king of Babylon, at Riblah> 27 then did the king of Babylon smite’ them and put them to death at Riblah, in the land of Hamath,—thus carried he Judah captive, away from off their own soil.

28 ||This|| is the people, whom Nebuchadrezzar [carried away captive],—<In the seventh year—of them of Judah> three thousand and twenty-three; 29 <In the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar—out of Jerusalem> eight hundred and thirty-two souls; 30 <In the three-and-twentieth year of Nebuchadrezzar> Nebuzaradan, chief of the royal executioners, took away captive, ||of them of Judah|| seven hundred and forty-five souls: ||All the souls|| were four thousand and six hundred.

31 And it came to pass <in the thirty-seventh year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-fifth of the month> that Evil-merodach king of Babylon, in the year he began to reign, ||lifted up|| the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah, and brought him forth out of prison; 32 and spake with him comfortable words,—and set his throne above the throne of the kings who were with him in Babylon; 33 so he changed his prison garments,—and used to eat bread before his face continually, all the days of his life. 34 And ||his allowance|| was a continual’ allowance, given him from the king of Babylon, the portion of the
Chapter 1.

1. How is seated alone, the city that abounded with people,
   Hath become as a widow,—
She who abounded among the nations,
   Was a princess among provinces,
Hath come under tribute.

2. She weepeth sore in the night,
   And her tear is on her cheek,
She hath none to comfort her,
   Of all her lovers,—
All her friends have betrayed her,
   Have become her foes.

3. Carried away captive is Judah—
   Because of oppression and because of great servitude,
She hath remained among the nations,
   Hath found no place of rest,—
All her pursuers have overtaken her between straits.

4. The ways to Zion are mourning,
   Because none come to her appointed feasts,
Her priests are sighing,—
   Her virgins are grieved and it is bitter for her.

5. Her adversaries have become chief,
   Her foes are at ease,
For Yahweh hath grieved her, because of the multitude of her transgressions,—
   Her children have gone into captivity, before the adversary.

6. Thus hath gone forth from the daughter of Zion,
   All that adorned her,—
Her princes have become like harts that have found no pasture,
   And have gone strengthless before the pursuer.

7. Jerusalem hath remembered’
   In the days of her humiliation and her fleeings—
All her precious things, which have existed from the days of old,—
<Now that her people have been falling into the hand of the adversary, with none’ to help her>
The adversaries have seen’ her, have mocked over her sabbath-keepings.

8. Jerusalem hath grievously sinned, ||For this cause| <unto exile> hath she been delivered,—
   ||All who used to honour her| have despised her, for they have descried her unseemliness,
   Yea ||she herself| hath sighed, and turned back.

9. ||Her impurity| is in her skirts,
   She hath not remembered her hereafter,
   Therefore hath she come down wonderfully,
   None to comfort her,—
Behold, O Yahweh, my humiliation,
   That the foe’ hath made himself great.

10. ||His hand| hath the adversary spread out, over all her precious things,—
   For she saw that ||the nations| entered her sanctuary,
As to whom thou didst command’ they should not enter—unto thee!

11. ||All her people| are sighing, seeking bread,
   They have given their precious things for food to bring back life,— Behold, O Yahweh, and discern, that I have become worthless.

12. Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by?
   Look around and see, whether there is’ pain like my pain, which is severely dealt out to me,—
   In that Yahweh hath caused grief, in the day of the glow of his anger?

c Cp. ver. 18.
13>From on high> sent he fire, among my bones, and laid them prostrate,—
He spread out a net for my feet, he made me turn back,
He made me desolate, <all the day> faint.

14The yoke of my transgressions hath been bound by his hand—
They have intertwined themselves, have come up on my neck, it hath paralysed my strength,—
My Lord hath delivered me into the hands of those against whom I cannot rise up.

15My Lord hath flouted at all my magnates in my midst,
He hath called against me a host,² to crush my young men,—
<A winepress> hath My Lord trodden, to the virgin, the daughter of Judah.

16<For these things> am ||I|| weeping, ||Mine eye, mine eye|| is running down with waters,
For <far from me> is any who could comfort, could bring back my life,—
My sons are amazed, for strong’ is the foe.

17Zion hath spread forth her hands, there is none’ to comfort her,
Yahweh hath given command, respecting Jacob, unto them who surround him—his adversaries,— Jerusalem hath become as a removed woman, in their midst.

18Righteous’ is Yahweh, for <against his bidding> had I rebelled,— Hear, I pray you, all ye peoples, and see my pain;³
||My virgins and my young men|| have gone into exile.

19I called to my lovers, ||they|| deceived me,
||My priests and mine elders|| in the city] have breathed their last,—
For they sought them food, that they might bring back their life.

20See, O Yahweh, that I am in distress,
||Mine inward parts|| are⁴ in ferment,
My heart is turned within me,
For I have ||obstinately rebelled||,—
<Without> bereaveth the sword,
<Within> is like death!

21They have heard—that [sighing am] I’, [and am saying]—
There is none to comfort me,
||All my foes||—having heard of my calamity— have rejoiced,
Because ||thou|| hast done it,—
Thou hast brought in the day thou didst proclaim,
So let them become like me.

22Let all their wickedness |come in| before thee,
And deal thou severely with them’,
According as thou hast dealt severely with me’,⁷ for all my transgressions;
For many’ are my sighs, and ||my heart|| is sick.

Chapter 2.

1 How’ could My Lord, in his anger, |enshroud in gloom| The daughter of Zion?
Have cast from the heavens to the earth,
The beauty of Israel?
And not have remembered his footstool,⁸
In the day of his anger?

2 My Lord hath swallowed up—without pity—
All the pastures of Jacob,
Hath laid waste—in his indignation—
The strongholds of the daughter of Judah,
Hath brought them down to the ground,—
Hath profaned the kingdom, and the princes thereof.

3 He hath broken off—in the glow of his anger—
The whole horn of Israel,
Hath turned back his right hand, from the face of the foe,—
And hath kindled against Jacob, a very fire of flame,
Devouring round about.

He hath trodden his bow like a foe,

And hath slain all them who delighted the eye,—
In the home of the daughter of Zion hath he poured out as fire his indignation.
My Lord hath become like a foe,
Hath swallowed up Israel,
Hath swallowed up all her castles, ruined his strongholds,—and Hath caused to abound in the daughter of Judah lamentation and mourning.
Thus hath he destroyed like a garden his pavilion,
Hath laid waste his place of assembly,—Yahweh hath caused to be forgotten in Zion the appointed assembly and the sabbath, and hath spurned in the indignation of his anger the king and the priest.
My Lord hath rejected his altar,
Hath abhorred his sanctuary,
Hath delivered, into the hand of the foe, the walls of her castles,—A voice have they uttered in the house of Yahweh as on the day of an appointed assembly.
Yahweh hath devised to lay in ruins The wall of the daughter of Zion, He hath stretched out a line, He hath not turned back his hand From swallowing up,—Thus hath he caused to mourn—rampart and wall, Together have they languished!
Her gates have sunk in the earth,
He hath destroyed and broken in pieces, her bars,—Her king and her princes are among the nations,
There is no instruction, Even her prophets have found no vision, from Yahweh.

Seat on the ground, in silence,
Are the elders of the daughter of Zion, They have lifted up dust on their head, Have girded themselves with sackcloth,—Bowed down to the ground is the head, Of the virgins of Jerusalem.
Blinded with tears are mine eyes, In ferment is my body, Poured out to the earth is my grief. For the sore hurt of the daughter of my people,—When child and suckling are swooning, In the broadways of the city.
To their mothers they keep saying, Where are corn and wine? Swooning off, like one thrust through, In the broadways of the city, Pouring out their life Into the bosom of their mothers.
How shall I solemnly admonish thee? What shall I liken to thee, Thou daughter of Jerusalem? What shall I compare with thee, that I may comfort thee, Thou virgin, daughter of Zion? For great as the sea is thy grievous injury, Who can heal thee?
Thy prophets have had visions for thee, False and foolish, And have not unveiled thine iniquity To turn back thy captivity,—Yea they have had visions for thee, Oracles of falsehood, and enticements!
All passing by, have clapped over thee, their hands, Have hissed and wagged their head Over the daughter of Jerusalem,—saying] Is this the city, of which men used to say— The perfection of beauty! A joy to the whole earth!

17 Yahweh hath done what he thought; Hath carried out his word, wherewith he gave charge in the days of old, Hath thrown down and not spared,—Thus hath he let the enemy rejoice over thee, Hath raised high the horn of thine adversaries.
18 Their heart hath made outcry unto My Lord,—O wall of the daughter of Zion—Let tears run down as a torrent day and night, Do not give thyself relief; Let not the weeping of thine eye cease!
19 Arise, cry out in the night, <At the beginning of the watches> pour out, like waters, thy heart, Right before the face of My Lord,—Lift up, above thee, the palms of thy hands, For the life of thy children, Who are swooning for hunger at the top of all the streets!

36To oppress a son of earth in his cause,

39Why should a living son of earth complain,
[Let] a man [complain] because of his sins?
40Let us search out our ways, and examine them well,
And let us return unto Yahweh;
41Let us lift up our heart,
To the opened palms,
To the Mighty One in the heavens;
42||We|| have trespassed and rebelled,
||Thou|| hast not pardoned.

6 And the punishment\(^a\) of the daughter of my people
   Hath grown greater\(^b\) than the punishment\(^b\)
   of Sodom,—
   Which was overthrown as in a moment,
   ||When no hands had been laid violently upon her]].

7 Purer\(^c\) were her Nazirites\(^c\) than snow,
   Whiter were they than milk,—
   More ruddy, in body, than coral,
   <A sapphire> was their beauty of form.\(^d\)

8 <Darker than a coal> is their visage,
   They are not known\(^e\) in the streets—
   Their skin shrivelleth on their bones,
   Is withered, become like a stick.

9 Better\(^f\) are the slain of the sword,
   Than the slain of the famine,—
   For these pine away, stricken through,
   Wanting the produce of the field.

10 ||The hands of compassionate women||
   Have cooked their own children,—
   They have served as nourishment to them,
   In the grievous injury of the daughter of my people.

11 Yahweh hath completed\(^g\) his indignation,
   Hath poured out the glow of his anger;
   And hath kindled a fire in Zion,
   Which hath devoured her foundations.

12 Neither the kings of the earth, nor any of the inhabitants of the world, [believed]
   That an adversary or an enemy [should enter] the gates of Jerusalem!

13 [It is] for the sins of her prophets,
   The iniquities of her priests,—
   Who have been pouring out, in her midst,
   The blood of the righteous!

14 They have wandered—blind—in the streets,
   Have defiled themselves with blood;
   So that men may not touch their garments.

15 Turn aside! Unclean!
   Have they cried to them,
   Turn aside! Turn aside! Do not touch!
   <Because they have fled, yea, wandered>
   Men said among the nations,
   They will not again tarry;

16 ||The face of Yahweh|| hath scattered them,
   He will look them out no more:
   <The persons of the priests> they have not respected,\(^f\)
   <To the elders> have they shown no favour.

17 Still shall our eyes fail',
   For our help that is vain:
   <In our watchtower> have we watched—
   For a nation that will not save.

18 They have laid snares\(^i\) for our steps,
   That we cannot walk in our own broadways:
   Drawn near’ hath our end, Fulfilled’ are our days,
   Yea arrived’ hath our end.

19 Swifter\(^j\) are our pursuers, than the eagles of the heavens,—
   <Over the mountains> have they come hotly after us,
   <In the wilderness> have they lain in wait for us.

20 ||The fragrance of our nostrils||
   The Anointed of Yahweh||
   Hath been captured in their pits,—
   Of whom we had said—
   <In his shade> shall we live among the nations.

21 Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Edom,
   Thou inhabitress in the land of Uz,—
   <Even unto thee> shall the cup’ pass along,
   Thou shalt be drunken, and expose thy shame.

LAMENTATIONS – Chapter 5.

22 Completed' is thy punishment, O daughter of Zion,
He will no more carry thee away captive—
He hath punished thine iniquity, O daughter of Edom,
He hath stripped the veil from off thy sins.

Chapter 5.

1 Remember, O Yahweh, what hath befallen us,
Look around, and see our reproach:
2 ||Our inheritance|| turned over to foreigners,
||Our houses|| to aliens.
3 <Orphans> have we become, and< fatherless,
||Our mothers|| are widows indeed.
4 <Our water—for silver> have we drunk,
||Our wood—for a price|| cometh in.
5 <Upon our necks> are our pursuers,
We labour, and< there is allowed us no rest.>
6 <To Egypt> have we stretched out our hand,
<To Assyria> to be satisfied with bread.
7 <Our fathers> sinned, and< are not,
And< their iniquities> have borne.
8 <Slaves> have ruled over us,
There is none to set free from their hand.
9 <At the risk of our life> do we bring in our bread,
Because of the sword of the desert.
10< Our skin> <as with a furnace> is scorched,
Because of the hot winds of famine.
11 <Women—in Zion> were ravished,
||Virgins|| in the cities of Judah!
12 <Princes> <by their hand> have been hanged,
||The faces of elders|| not honoured.
13 <Young men>  have lifted,
And ||youths|| <under wood> have staggered.
14 ||Elders|| <from the gates> have ceased.
||Young men|| from their music.
15 Ceased' hath the joy of our hearts,
<Changed to mourning> our dance.
16 Fallen' is the crown of our head.
Surely woe to us, for we have sinned.
17 <For this cause> faint' is our heart,;
<For these things> dimmed' are our eyes:
18 Because of Mount Zion, which is desolate,

||Jackals|| have gone prowling therein.
19 ||Thou, O Yahweh|| <unto times age-abiding> dost remain,
||Thy throne|| from generation to generation:
20 Wherefore shouldst thou perpetually forget us?
Forsake us, to length of days?
21 Bring us back, O Yahweh, unto thyself,
And we will come' back!
Renew our days, as of old;
22 For though thou hast not ||utterly rejected|| us,
Thou art wroth with us—exceedingly!

§ 1. A Lightning Throne seen by the River Chebar.

Chapter 1.

1 And it came to pass <in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, I' being in the midst of them of the captivity, by the river Chebar> that the heavens [were opened], and I saw visions of God. 2 <On the fifth of the month, ||that|| was the fifth year of the captivity of King Jehoiachin> 3 ||in very deed|| came the word of Yahweh unto Ezekiel son of Buzi, the priest, in the land of the Chaldeans, by the river Chebar,— yea the hand of Yahweh [came on him there].

4 So then I beheld, and lo! a tempestuous wind coming out of the North, a great cloud, and a fire catching hold of itself, 4 and it had a brightness round about,—and <out of the midst thereof> as burnished copper b to look upon, out of the midst of the fire; 5 and <out of the midst thereof> a likeness of four living ones,—and ||this|| was their appearance, <the likeness of a man> had they; 6 and <four faces each, and four wings each> had they; 7 and ||their feet|| were straight feet,—and ||the sole of their feet|| was like the sole of the foot of a calf, but sparkling, as shining bronze to look upon; 8 and ||the hands|| of a man ||were under their wings, on their four sides,—and ||their faces and their wings|| belonged to the four of them: 9 <joined to each other> were their wings,—they turned not when they went, <each one straight before him> did they go; 10 and ||the likeness of their faces|| was the face of a man, with the face of a lion to the right of the four of them, and <the face of an ox, on the left> of the four of them,—<the face of an eagle> also had they four; 11 and ||their wings|| were spread a above,—||two of each|| joined one another, and ||two|| covered their bodies; 12 and <each one, straight before him> did they go,—<whithersoever the spirit was minded to go> they went, they turned not when they went. 13 <As for the likeness of the living ones> ||their appearance|| was like live coals of fire, burning up like the appearance of torches, ||the same|| went to and fro between the living ones,—and the fire had ||brightness||, and <out of the fire> went forth b lightning. 14 And ||the living ones|| ran and returned, b—like the appearance of a flash of lightning.

15 And I looked at the living ones,—and lo! ||one wheel upon the earth beside the living ones|| for each of his four faces. 16 ||The appearance of the wheels and of their structure|| was like a Tarshish-stone c to look upon, and they four had ||one likeness,—and ||their appearance and their structure|| were just as would be ||a wheel in the midst of a wheel||.

17 <Upon their four sides, when they went> ||so|| did they go,—they turned not when they went. 18 <As for their rings> they were so high, that they were terrible, and <their rings full of eyes round about> had they four. 19 And <when the living ones went> the wheels went ||beside them||,—and <when the living ones were lifted up from the earth> the wheels were lifted up: 20 <whithersoever the spirit was minded to go> they went—||that|| was the spirit minded to go,—and ||the wheels|| would be lifted up along with them, for ||the spirit of the living one|| was in the wheels: 21 <when they went> these ' went, and <when they stood> these' stood,—and <when they were lifted up from off the earth> the wheels were lifted up ||along with them||, for ||the spirit of the living one|| was in the wheels.

23 And <under the expanse> [their wings] were straight', one towards another,—[each one] had two, covering <on this side> and [each one] had two, covering <on that side> [their bodies].

24 And I heard the sound of their wings, as the sound of many waters, as the sound of the Almighty, [when they went], the sound of a storm, as the sound of a host,—<when they stood> they let down their wings. 25 And there was a voice above the expanse that was over their head,—<when they stood> they let down their wings.

26 And <above the expanse> that was over their heads, as the appearance of a sapphire stone,> was the likeness of a throne,—and <upon the likeness of a throne> was a likeness, as the appearance of a man, upon it [above]. 27 And I saw, <as burned copper> to look upon> as the appearance of fire within it round about, <from the appearance of his loins and upwards>, and from the appearance of his loins and downwards> saw I, as the appearance of fire, and he had brightness round about: 28 <as the appearance of the bow which is in a cloud, on a day of rain> ||[so] was the appearance of the brightness round about, ||[that] was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of Yahweh,—and <when I saw> I fell upon my face, and heard a voice of one speaking.

§ 2. One who Speaks sends Ezekiel to Them of the Captivity.

Chapter 2.

1 And he said unto me,—
Son of man,

And I heard one speaking unto me. 3 And he said unto me—

Son of man,

I’ am sending thee’ unto the sons of Israel, unto rebellious’ nations, which have rebelled against me,—||[they, and their fathers] have transgressed against me, until this very day; 4 and it is <unto such’ sons>—of shameless face, and emboldened heart> that I’ am sending thee,—therefore shalt thou say unto them,

||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh. 5

And ||[they]|| <whether they will hear or whether they will forbear, for ||a perverse’ house|| they are> shall then know that ||a prophet|| hath been in their midst.

5 But ||[thou, son of man]||

Be not afraid of them,

Nor <of their words> be afraid,

<Though >[thorns and thistles] are about thee,
And <amongst prickly plants> thou dost dwell> <Of their words> be not afraid; <At their faces> be thou dismayed,

For  they are!

7 Thou shalt therefore speak my words unto them, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear,

For  they are!

8 ||[Thou, therefore, son of man]], hear what I’ am speaking unto thee, become not perverse, like the perverse house,,—open thy mouth, and eat that which I’ am giving unto thee.

9 So I looked, and lo! a hand’ put forth unto me,—and lo! therein, a scroll; 10 and he spread it out before me, and ||[it]|| was written, on the front and the back,—and there were written thereon, lamentation^b and sighing, and wailing.

... and there were written thereon, lamentation and sighing, and wailing. 3 Then said he unto me...”

Inclusion of the chapter heading for correct bookmark creation prevents it from being displayed as it was in the original printed text.
<What thou findest> eat,—eat this roll, and go speak unto the house of Israel.

10 So I opened my mouth,—and he caused me to eat this roll. 3 Then said he unto me,
Son of man,

<Thy belly> cause thou to eat: and <thy bowels> fill thou with this roll, which I am giving unto thee.

So I did eat, and it became <in my mouth> as honey for sweetness. 4 Then said he unto me,—Son of man,

Go get thee unto the house of Israel, and thou shalt speak with my words, unto them. 5 For <not unto a people deep of lip and heavy of tongue> art ||thou|| sent—[but] unto the house of Israel; 6 ||not unto many peoples, deep of lip and heavy of tongue> whose words thou couldst not understand||,—surely <if> unto them I had sent thee|| they|| would have hearkened unto thee. 7 But ||the house of Israel|| will not be willing to hearken [unto thee], for they are not willing to hearken [unto me],—for ||all the house of Israel|| are [bold of forehead and hard of heart]. 8 Lo! I have made thy face bold, like as their’ faces, and thy’ forehead bold, like as their forehead. 9 <As an adamant, harder than flint> have I made thy forehead,—thou shalt not fear them, neither shalt thou be dismayed at their faces,

For  they are!

10 Then said he unto me,—Son of man,

<All my words which I shall speak unto thee> receive thou into thy heart, and <in thine ears> hear thou: 11 then go get thee unto them of the captivity, unto the sons of thy people, and thou shalt speak unto them, and say unto them, ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear.

12 Then the Spirit [lifted me up], and I heard behind me the sound of a great rushing,— Blessed be the glory of Yahweh,
From his place!

13 Yea the sound of the wings of the living ones, gently touching each other, and the sound of the wheels, along with them, ||even the sound of a great rushing||.

14 So ||the Spirit|| lifted me up, and took me away,—and I went bitterly, in the rage of my spirit, but ||the hand of Yahweh upon me|| was strong.

§ 3. Ezekiel commences his Mission at Tel-abib—First “Watchman” Illustration.
(Comp. chaps. xviii., xxxiii.)

15 Thus came I unto them of the captivity, at Tel-abib, who were dwelling towards the river Chebar, and I dwelt where| where ||they|| were dwelling; |yea I dwelt there seven days, |stunned in their midst||. 16 And it came to pass <at the end of seven days> that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

17 Son of man,

<A watchman> have I appointed thee, to the house of Israel,—and thou shalt hear, at my mouth, a message, and shalt warn them’ [from me]. 18 <When I say to the lawless man—> Thou shalt ||surely die||, and thou hast not given him warning, neither hast spoken to warn the lawless man from his lawless’ way, to save himself alive ||the same lawless man|| [in his iniquity] shall die, but <his blood> [at thy hand] will I require. 19 Whereas ||he|| [in his iniquity] shall die, but ||thou|| hast delivered [thine own soul].

20 And <when a righteous man hath turned’ from his righteousness, and committed perversity, and I have suffered a stumbling-block to be laid before him> ||he|| shall die,—<though thou hast not warned him> [in his sin] shall he die, neither shall be remembered, his righteous deeds which he hath done, but <his blood> [at thy hand] will I require; 21 whereas <when ||thou|| hast warned a righteous man> That a righteous man [must not sin],

b Gr; [turning “speech” into “narrative”]: “And the Spirit lifted me up, and I heard behind me a great rushing sound,—when the glory of Y. arose from its place.” Cp. chap. x. 4, 19—G.n. The difference results from the change of a single consonant (berum for baruk).

Chapter 4.

1 | [Thou] therefore, O son of man, Take thee a tile, and lay it before thee,—and pourtray thereon a city, even Jerusalem.

2 | Then shalt thou lay siege against it, And build up against it a siege-wall, And cast up against it a mound,— And set against it camps, And place against it battering-rams, round about.

3 | [Thou] therefore, take thee a pan of iron, and set it for a wall of iron, between thee and the city,—then shalt thou direct thy face against it, and it shall come into siege, and thou shalt lay siege to it,  shall it be to the house of Israel.

4 | [Thou] therefore, lie thou on thy left side, and lay the iniquity of the house of Israel upon it,—<during the number of the days which thou shalt lie thereon> shalt thou bear their punishment.

5 | [I] therefore, have appointed thee the years of their punishment, by the number of days, a hundred and ninety days,—so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel.

6 | And <when thou hast ended these> then shalt thou lie, on thy right side, a second time, and shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah,—<forty days, one day for each year> have I appointed thee.

7 | Thus then <unto the siege of Jerusalem> shalt thou direct thy face, with thine arm made bare,—so shalt thou prophesy against it. 8 And lo! I have laid upon thee—bands,—and thou shalt not turn thee from thy one side to thine other, until thou hast ended the days of thy siege.

9 | [Thou] therefore, take thee wheat and barley and peas and lentils and millet and spelt, and put them in one vessel, and make them ready for thee as bread,—<during the number of days which thou art lying on thy side, a hundred and ninety days> shalt thou eat it; 10 and [thy food, which thou shalt eat] shall be, by weight, twenty shekels a day,—<from time to time> shalt thou eat it; 11 and <water, by measure> shalt thou drink, the sixth part of a hin,—<from time to time shalt thou drink;> 12 and <as a barley cake> shalt thou eat it,—and <the same, with dung proceeding from man> shalt thou bake, before their eyes.

13 | Then said Yahweh, <In like manner> shall the sons of Israel eat their bread, defiled,—among the nations, whither I will drive them.

14 | Then said I, Ah! My Lord, Yahweh, lo! [my person] hath not been defiled: neither of what hath died of itself, nor of what hath been torn in pieces have I eaten, from my youthful days even unto now, neither hath come into my mouth' the flesh of a foul thing.

15 So then he said unto me,
See, I have granted thee, cow’s dung for man’s dung,—and thou shalt prepare thy bread thereupon.

16 And he said unto me,
Son of man,
Behold me! breaking the staff of bread in Jerusalem,
So shall they eat bread by weight, and with anxious care,
And <water, by measure, and in astonishment> shall they drink:
that they may lack bread and water and be astonished one with another, and pine away in their punishment.\(^a\)

\section{Chapter 5.}
1 ||Thou|| therefore, son of man,
Take thee a sharp cutting instrument,  shalt thou take thee, and shalt cause it to pass upon thy head, and upon thy chin,—and shalt take the balances for weighing, and shalt divide the hair.\(^b\)

2 ||A third part|| <in the fire> shalt thou burn, in the midst of the city, when the days of the siege [are fulfilled],—and thou shalt take a third part, thou shalt smite it with the cutting instrument, round about it, and  shalt thou scatter to the wind, and  will I make bare after them; \(^c\) and thou shalt take from thence, a few in number,—and shalt bind them in thy skirts; \(^d\) and <of them> again’ take, and cast them into the midst of the fire, and burn them in the fire,—<therefrom> shall go forth a fire, unto all the house of Israel.

5 ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
||This|| is Jerusalem,
<In the midst of the nations> I placed her,—and of the countries round about her;

6 But she hath changed my regulations\(^d\) into lawlessness, more than the nations,
And my statutes, more than the countries which are round about her,
For <my regulations>\(^b\) have they rejected,
And <in my statutes> have they not walked.

7 ||Therefore||
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
<Because ye have become more rebellious than the nations who are round about you,
<In my statutes> have not walked,
And <my regulations>\(^f\) have not done,
And <according to the regulations of the nations which are round about you> have not\(^g\) done>:

8 ||Therefore||
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Lo! I am against thee, ||even I||
Therefore will I execute in thy midst, judgments, in the eyes of the nations;

9 Yea I will execute upon thee that which I have not executed,
And like unto which I will not execute again,—
Because of all thine abominations.
||Therefore|| ||fathers| will eat ||sons| in thy midst,
And ||sons| will eat ||fathers||,—
And I will execute upon thee judgments,
And will scatter the whole remnant of thee, to every wind.

11 ||Therefore|| <as I’ live>
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,—
Surely <because <my sanctuary> thou hast defiled, with all thy detestable things, and with all thine abominations>
||Even I also|| will cut off,\(^h\) and mine eye [shall not spare],
||Yea even I|| will not pity.

12 ||The third part of thee|| <by pestilence> shall die, and <by famine> be consumed in thy midst,
And ||the third part|| <by the sword> shall fall round about thee,—

And [the third part] <to every wind> will I scatter, and  will I make bare after them.

13 So shall mine anger [have an end],
And I will cause mine indignation [to find rest] upon them, and will console myself,—

And they shall know that I, Yahweh, have spoken in my jealousy, when mine indignation hath come to an end upon them.

14 And I will deliver thee up to desolation and reproach, among the nations that are round about thee,—in the eyes of every passer-by.

15 So shall it become a reproach and an insult, a warning and an astonishment, to the nations that are round about thee,—in that I have executed upon thee judgments, in anger and in indignation, and in rebukes of indignation,

16 In that I have sent the malignant arrows of famine among them, which were for destruction, which I will send to destroy you,—and <famine> will I increase upon you, and will break for you the staff of bread. 17 So will I send upon you famine and mischievous beast, and they shall bereave thee,—and <pestilence and blood> shall pass through thee,—and  will I bring in upon thee,

§ 6. Against the Mountains of Israel.

Chapter 6.

1 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:
2 Son of man,
Set thy face against the mountains of Israel,— and prophesy unto them; 3 and say,
Ye mountains of Israel, hear ye the word of My Lord, Yahweh,—

¶ Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh—
To the mountains and to the hills, to the hollows and to the valleys,— Behold me!
I’ am bringing upon you a sword,
And I will destroy your high places;
4 And your sun-pillars [shall be broken in pieces],—
And your sun-pillars [shall be broken in pieces],—
And I will cause your slain [to fall] before your manufactured gods;
5 And I will lay the carcases of the sons of Israel, before their manufactured gods,—
And will scatter your bones, round about your altars.

6 <In all your dwelling-places>
[The cities] shall be laid waste, and
[The high places] shall be made desolate,—
To the end your altars may be laid waste and become desolate,
And your manufactured gods [be broken in pieces and cease],
And your sun-pillars [be cut down],
And your handiworks [be abolished],
And the slain [shall fall] in your midst,—
So shall ye know that I, Yahweh.

7 Yet will I leave a remnant,
In that ye shall have such as are escaped of the sword throughout the nations,—when ye are scattered throughout the lands.

8 Then shall they who have escaped of you remember [me], among the nations whither they have been carried captive,
In that I have broken their adulterous heart, which hath turned aside from me,
And their eyes which have adulterously gone after their manufactured gods,

9 So shall they become loathsome in their own sight, for the wicked things which they have done in all their abominations.

¶ Then shall they know that I, Yahweh,—<not in vain> had threatened to bring upon them this calamity.

10 ¶ Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Smite with thy hand, and stamp with thy foot, and say, Alas! regarding all the wicked abominations of the house of Israel,—in that <by sword, by famine, and by pestilence> shall they fall:

11 ¶ He that is far off <by pestilence> shall die, and

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

2 ||Thou|| therefore, O son of man, ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,

3 ||Now|| is the end upon thee,

4 Thus will I stretch out my hand upon thee, and make the land a greater waste and devastation than the desert toward Diblah," throughout all their dwelling-places,—

5 ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh:

6 ||An end|| hath come,

Come’ hath the end,

7 It hath roused itself up against thee,—

Lo! it hath come.

8 The circle [hath come round] unto thee, O inhabitant of the land,—

The time [hath come],

The day of consternation [hath drawn near],

And not the joyful shout of the mountains.

9 ||Now shortly|| will I pour out mine indignation upon thee,

And will bring to an end mine anger against thee, And will judge thee according to thy ways,—

And will lay upon thee all thine abominations.

And mine eye shall not shield thee,

Neither will I have pity,—

<According to thy ways> |unto thee| will I render,
And ||thine abominations|| |in thy midst| shall be found,

So shall ye know' that ||I|| am Yahweh.

10 Lo! the day,

Lo! it hath come,—

The circle [hath gone forth],

The sceptre [hath blossomed],

Insolence [hath sprouted]:

11 ||Violence|| hath risen up as a sceptre of lawlessness,—

There are none of them, And none of their multitude, And none of their throngs, And no lamentation over them.

12 The time [hath come],

The day [hath arrived],

<The buyer> let him not rejoice, and

<The seller> let him not mourn,—

For ||indignation|| is against all her multitude.

For ||the seller|| |unto that which is to be sold| shall not return, though <yet, among the living> were their life, for ||the vision|| is against all her multitude.

He shall not return,

And ||no man|| |by his punishment| shall strengthen ||his life||.

14 They have blown’ the trumpet, even to make All ready, Yet is there none going to the battle; For ||mine indignation|| is against all her multitude.

15 ||The sword|| without, and ||Pestilence and famine|| within,— ||He that is in the field|| <by the sword> shall die, and ||He that is in the city|| ||famine or pestilence|| shall devour him;
While they who escape of them ||shall escape,|| and become, on the mountains, as the doves of the valleys, ||all of them|| cooing,—each one in his punishment.

16 ||All hands|| shall be unnerved; and ||All knees|| shall be weak as water.
Therefore shall they gird themselves with sackcloth, And shuddering shall cover them,— And <in all faces> shall be paleness, And <in all their heads> baldness.

17 ||Their silver|| <into the streets> shall they cast, and ||Their gold|| <for throwing away> shall serve, ||Their silver and their gold|| shall not be able to deliver them, in the day of the wrath of Yahweh, <Their craving> shall they not satisfy, and <Their belly> shall they not fill,— For  hath their iniquity become.

18 <When ||the beauty of his own ornament|| he had <in majesty> placed> Then <the images> of their abominations, Their* detestable things> Made they therein,— ||For this cause|| have I delivered it up to them for removal;

21 Yea I will deliver it Into the hand of foreigners’ for a prey, And to the lawless ones of the earth’ for a spoil, And they will profane it;
And I will turn away my face from them, And they will profane my cherished place,— Yea there will enter it violent men, Who will profane it.

23 Prepare thou a chain,— For ||the land|| is full of the crime of bloodshed, And ||the city|| is full of violence.

24 So then I will bring in the wicked ones of the nations, And they shall take possession of their houses,— And I will cause to cease the pomp of the strong ones, And their holy places [shall be profaned].

25 ||Destruction|| hath entered,— And they shall seek welfare, and there be’ none.

26 ||Disaster upon disaster|| shall come, And ||report after report|| shall arise,— Therefore shall they seek a vision from a prophet, And ||law|| shall perish from priest, And counsel’ from elders.

27 ||The king|| shall mourn, and ||The chief|| shall clothe himself with astonishment, and ||The hands of the people of the land|| shall be wrung in anguish,— <After their own way> will I deal with them, and <With their own sentences> i will I sentence them,
And they shall know’ that ||I|| am Yahweh.

§ 7. The Prophet is carried to Jerusalem in the Visions of God.
(chaps. viii.–xi.)

Chapter 8.

1 And it came to pass ≤ in the sixth year, in the sixth month, on the fifth of the month, I’ being seated in my house, and the elders of Judah being seated before me≥ then fell upon me there’ [the hand of My Lord, Yahweh]. 2 So I looked, and lo! a likeness as the appearance of a man, from the appearance of his loins and downward’ fire, and from his loins and upwards’ as an appearance of shining, as the look of amber. 3 Then put he forth...
the similitude of a hand, and took me by the forelock of my head,—and the Spirit [lifted me up] between the earth and the heavens, and brought me to Jerusalem in the visions of God, into the opening of the inner gate that looketh toward the north, where was the seat of the Statue of Jealousy, that provoketh to jealousy; and lo! <there> the glory of the God of Israel, like the appearance which I had seen in the valley. Then said he unto me, Son of man, Lift up, I pray thee, thine eyes, the way toward the north.

So I lifted up mine eyes the way toward the north, and lo! <on the north, by the gate of the altar> this Statue of Jealousy, in the entrance. Then said he unto me, Son of man, Canst thou see what they’re doing,—the great abominations which [the house of Israel] are committing here, that I should go faraway from my sanctuary? Howbeit <yet again> shalt thou see great abominations.

So he brought me into the opening of the court,—and I looked, and lo! a single hole, in the wall. Then said he unto me, Son of man, Break, I pray thee, through the wall. So I broke through the wall, and lo! a single opening. Then said he unto me,—Go in, and see the wicked abominations, which they’re committing here.

So I went in, and looked, and lo! every similitude of creeping thing, and detestable beast, and all the manufactured gods of the house of Israel,—pourtroyed upon the wall, round about on every side, and ||seventy men of the elders of the house of Israel, with Jaazaniah son of Shaphan, who stood in their midst|| were standing before them, even every man with his censer in his hand,—and the fragrance of the cloud of incense, ascending. Then said he unto me, Hast thou seen, Son of man, what ||the elders of the house of Israel|| are doing in the dark, every man in his image-chambers? for they are saying—

Chapter 9.

Then cried he in mine ears, with a loud voice, saying,

Draw near, ye that have charge of the city,—even every man with his weapon of destruction in his hand.

And lo! [six men] coming in out of the way of the upper gate, which looketh toward the north, even every man with his destructive weapon in his hand, and one man in their midst clothed with linen, having a scribe's ink holder by his side,—so they came in and stood, beside the altar of bronze. And the glory of the God of Israel lifted itself up from off the cherub wherein it had been, unto the threshold of the house,—and he called unto the man clothed with linen, who had the scribe's ink holder by his side. 4 Then said Yahweh unto him, Pass along through the midst of the city, through the midst of Jerusalem,—and set thou a mark upon the foreheads of the men who are sighing and crying over all the abominations that are being done in her midst.

But said he in mine ears, Pass along through the city after him, and smite, let not thy eye shield, neither have ye pity: 6 <elder, young man and virgin, and little ones and women> shall ye slay utterly, but <unto any man who hath upon him the mark> do not ye come near, and <at my sanctuary> shall ye begin.

So they began with the elder men, who were before the house. And he said unto them, Defile ye the house, and fill the courts with the slain,—go ye forth! So they went forth, and smote in the city. And it came to pass while they were smiting them—I being left remaining—that I fell upon my face and cried during the city.

Alas! My Lord Yahweh! art thou about to destroy all the remnant of Israel, in that thou art pouring out of thine indignation upon Jerusalem? And he said unto me, ||The iniquity of the house of Israel and Judah|| is exceeding great, and the land is filled with shed blood, and ||the city|| is full of over-reaching,—for they have said, Yahweh hath forsaken the land, and Yahweh doth not see.

Therefore <as for even me>
Mine eye shall not shield,
Neither will I pity,—
<Their way upon their own head> have I rendered.
And lo! [the man clothed in linen, having the ink-holder by his side], bringing back word, saying,—I have done, according to all which thou didst command me.

Chapter 10.

Then looked I, and lo! <in the expanse which was over the head of the cherubim, as a sapphire stone> ||as the appearance of the likeness of a throne|| appeared over them. 2 Then said he unto the man clothed in linen—then said he, Go in between the whirling wheels even under the cherub, and fill both thy hands with live coals of fire from between the cherubim, and throw over the city.

So he went in before mine eyes. 3 Now ||the cherubim|| were standing on the right side of the house, when the man went in,—and ||the cloud|| filled the inner court. 4 Then arose the glory of Yahweh from off the cherub, unto the threshold of the house,—and the house was filled’ with the cloud, and ||the court|| was filled with the brightness of the glory of Yahweh. 5 And ||the sound of the wings of the cherubim|| was heard, as far as the outer court,—like the voice of the Almighty God when he speaketh. 6 So then it came to pass—when he commanded the man clothed with linen, saying,

Take fire from between the whirling wheels, from between the cherubim, then went he in and stood beside the wheel.
And the cherub put forth his hand from between the cherubim, unto the fire that was between the cherubim, and took up [thereof] and gave into the hands of him who was clothed with linen,—who took [it] and went forth. 8 Now the cherubim appeared to have, the likeness of the hand of a man, under their wings.

9 Then looked I, and lo! four wheels’ by the cherubim—one wheel by one cherub, and another wheel by another cherub,—and [the appearance of the wheels] was to look upon like a Tarshish stone; 10 and <as for their appearance> [one likeness] had they four,—as might be a wheel in the midst of a wheel.

<When they went> [upon their four sides] they went, they turned not when they went, for <to the place whithersoever the head turned> [after it] they went, they turned not when they went. 12 And [all their flesh, and their back, and their hands, and their wings, and the wheels] were full of eyes round about, [even their wheels which they four had]<

13 <To the wheels—> was made the cry—
O whirling wheel!d in mine ears. 14 And [four faces] had each one,—[the first face] was the face of a cherub, and [the second face] was the face of a man and [the third] was the face of a lion, and [the fourth] was the face of an eagle. 15 Then arose the cherubim,e—[the same] was the living one,f which I had seen by the river Chebar. 16 <When the cherubim went> then went the wheels beside them,—<and when the cherubim lifted up their wings, to arise from off the earth> [the wheels themselves] turned not from beside them; 17 <when they stood> these stood, and <when they arose> these arose with them,—<for the spirit of the living one> was in them.

And <when the glory of Yahweh went forth from off the threshold of the house,—and stood over the cherubim> 19 then the cherubim uplifted’ their wings and arose from the earth, before mine eyes, as they went forth, the wheels also in unison with them,—and it stood at the opening of the gate of the house of Yahweh that was toward the east, with the glory of the God of Israel over them.

\[above\]. 20 ||The same] was the living one,\(^g\) which I saw under the God of Israel, by the river Chebar,—then knew I that [cherubim] they were’. 21 <Four faces severally> had each one, and <four wings> had each one,—and [the likeness of the hands of a man] was under their wings. 22 And <as for the likeness of their faces> [they] were the faces which I saw by the river Chebar, [their appearances and themselves]<—<every one straight before him> did they go.

Chapter 11.

1 And the Spirit\(^h\) lifted me up, and brought me into the east gate of the house of Yahweh, which looketh eastward, and lo! <in the opening of the gate> twenty-five men,—and I saw, in their midst, Jaazaniah son of Azzur and Pelatiah\(^i\) son of Benaiah, princes of the people. 2 Then said he unto me,—

Son of man, [These] are the men who are devising iniquity, and who are counselling wicked counsel, in this city; 3 who are saying,

Not near! let us build houses,—
[It] is the caldron, and [we] are the flesh!

4 [Therefore] prophesy against them,—prophesy, Son of man.

5 Then fell upon me the Spirit of Yahweh, and he said unto me,

Say—

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,

||Thus|| have ye said, O house of Israel,—

Yea <the things that come up on your spirit> [I] know, every one.

6 Ye have multiplied your slain, in this city,—And have filled her streets, with slain.

Chapter 12.

1 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Son of man,
In the midst of a perverse house> dost thou dwell,—
Who have eyes’ to see—and have not seen,
Ears’ have they to hear—and have not heard,
For  they are’.

2 ||Thou|| therefore, Son of man,
Prepare thee baggage for exile, and exile thyself, by day, before their eyes,—so shalt thou exile thyself out of thy place unto another place, before their eyes, [peradventure] they will consider, though  they are’.

Therefore shalt thou take forth thy baggage, as baggage for exile, by day before their eyes,— and ||thou thyself|| shalt go forth in the evening, before their eyes, like them who go forth to exile.

3 <Before their eyes> break thou forth by thyself through the wall,—and carry forth through it.

4 <Before their eyes> <Upon the shoulder> shalt thou lift it,
<In thick darkness> take it forth,
<Thy face> shalt thou cover, so that thou see not the land;
For  have I appointed thee to the house of Israel.

And I did so, just as I was commanded, <My baggage> took I forth as baggage for exile, by day, and <in the evening> I brake forth by myself through the wall, by force: <in the twilight> I took it forth—<on to my shoulder> I lifted it, before their eyes. Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, in the morning, saying:

9 Son of man,
Have not the house of Israel, the perverse house, [said unto thee],—
What art thou’ doing?

10 Say unto them,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
||[For] the Bearer|| is this burden, in Jerusalem, and [for] all the house of Israel, such as are in their midst.

11 Say,
||[I] am your sign:
<As I have done> ||so|| shall it be done to them,
<into exile—into captivity> shall they go.

12 Yea ||the Bearer|| who is in their midst
<Upon his shoulder> shall lift it,
<In thick darkness> shall he go forth,
<Through the wall> shall they break, to bear forth through it,—
<His face> shall he cover, to the end that [his own eye] may not see the land.

Then will I spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my snare;
And I will take him to Babylon, in the land of the Chaldeans,
||The which|| indeed, he shall not see.
And yet <there> shall he die!

And <all who are round about him to help him, and all his troops> will scatter to every wind,— and  will I make bare after them.

So shall they know’ that ||[I]|| am Yahweh,—
By my dispersing them among the nations,
And scattering them throughout the lands.

Yet will I leave remaining of them, men easily counted, from the sword, from’ the famine and from the pestilence,—that they may recount all their abominations among the nations whither they have come,
So shall they know’ that ||[I]|| am Yahweh.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
Son of man,
Prophesy against the prophets of Israel, who are prophesying,—and say unto them who prophesy out of their own heart, Hear ye the word of Yahweh:
||Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Alas for the base prophets,—who follow their own spirit, and have seen |nothing|.
<As jackals, f among ruins| ||thy prophets, O Israel|| have been.
Ye have not gone up into the breaches,
Nor built a wall about the house of Israel,—to stand in the battle, in the day of Yahweh.
They have had
Visions of falsehood, and Divinations of lies,
Who say, Declareth Yahweh, when ||[Yahweh]| hath not sent them,—
Yet have they waited for fulfilling of the word.
Is it not
 ye have seen, and
 ye have spoken,
Since ye are saying, Declareth Yahweh!
when ||[l]| have not spoken?
|Therefore|
||Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
<Because ye have spoken falsehood,
And have had visions of lies>s
|Therefore| behold me! against you,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 9. Against the Prophets who have Visions of falsehood.

So then my hand shall be against the prophets who have Visions of falsehood, and who divine Divinations of lies—

In the council of my people shall they not be found,

And in the register of the house of Israel shall they not be written,

And upon the soil of Israel shall they not enter,—

So shall ye know' that ||[I]|| am The Lord, Yahweh.<sup>a</sup>

Therefore

Thus saith my Lord, Yahweh,

So will I break down with a tempestuous wind, in mine indignation,—

And an overflowing rain in mine anger shall there be,

With hailstones, in wrath, to make an end;

And I will pull down the wall which ye have coated with whitewash,

And will bring it unto the ground,

So shall be discovered its foundation,—

Yea it shall fall,

And ye shall come to an end in the midst thereof,

So shall ye know' that ||[I]|| am Yahweh.<sup>b</sup>

Therefore

Thus saith my Lord, Yahweh,

Behold me! against your oracle-cases wherewith ye are hunting the souls, to make them fly,

And I will tear them off your arms,—

And let go the souls of them whose souls ye are hunting as birds;

And will tear off your wraps,

And deliver my people out of your hand, and they shall be no longer in your hand, to be hunted;—

So shall ye know' that ||[I]|| am Yahweh.<sup>c</sup>

Because of the paining of the heart the righteous man with falsehood, whom ||[I]|| have not pained,—

And strengthening the hands of the lawless man, that he should not turn from his wicked way, by letting him live.<sup>d</sup>

So shall ye know' that ||[I]|| am Yahweh.<sup>e</sup>

Therefore

Thus saith my Lord, Yahweh,

And no more' are they who were coating it: <sup>f</sup>

[to wit] the prophets of Israel, who are prophesying unto Jerusalem, and are seeing, on her behalf, visions of prosperity,—when there is no' prosperity,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.
Chapter 14.

Then came there unto me, men, of the elders of Israel,—and sat before me. And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,
||These men|| have brought up their manufactured gods, upon their heart, and
And <their stumbling-block of iniquity> have they set straight before their face,—
Shall I be [at all enquired] of by them?

|Therefore| speak unto them and say unto them,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
≤Any man whatsoever of the house of Israel,
Who shall bring up his manufactured gods upon his heart,
And set <his stumbling block of iniquity> straight before his face,
And then come in unto the prophet>
||I, Yahweh|| have myself answered him thereby,
||By the multitude of his manufactured gods|:

To the end the house of Israel may be taken by their own hearts,—in that they have estranged themselves from me, through their manufactured gods—all of them!

|Therefore| say thou unto the house of Israel,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Turn ye—and make good your return—from your manufactured gods;
And <from all your abominations> make good the turning away of your faces.

For <what man soever of the house of Israel,
Or of the sojourners who sojourn in Israel,
Who shall estrange himself from following me,

And who shall bring up his manufactured gods, on his heart,
And <whose stumbling-block of iniquity> he shall set straight before his face,—
And then come in unto the prophet, to enquire by him of me>

||I, Yahweh|| will myself answer him [on my own account];

And will set my face against that man,
And will make of him a sign and a proverb,
And will cut him off out of the midst of my people:

So shall ye know' that ||I|| am Yahweh.

≤Yea ||the prophet himself|| when he suffereth himself to be deceived, and speaketh a word,
||I, Yahweh|| have suffered that prophet to be deceived≥
Then will I stretch forth my hand against him, and destroy him out of the midst of my people, Israel:

So shall they bear their punishment,
<As' the punishment of him that enquireth>
So' shall [the punishment of the prophet] be:

That the house of Israel |may no more go astray| from following me,
And no more defile themselves by any of their transgressions,—
But may become my' people,
And ||I|| may become their' God,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 12. For a Treacherous Land, not even Noah, Daniel and Job could be heard.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,
≤When ||a land|| shall sin against me by committing treachery, and I shall stretch out my hand against it,
And break for it the staff of bread,
And send thereon famine,
And cut off therefrom, man and beast≥

Then <should these three men be in the midst thereof, Noah, Daniel, and Job>
||They|| by their righteousness should deliver their own lives—

\(a\) Plainly="brought to mind."

\(b\) Or: “for.”

\(c\) So written; but read: “he hath come with the multitude,” etc.
\(Gt.\): “have myself answered him on my own account,” as in ver. 7—G.n.

\(d\) So in many MSS. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn., Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.): but in some cod. (w. 8 ear. pr. edns.): “will make him desolate for a sign and a proverb.” Cp. chap. xx. 26—G.n.

\(e\) Or: “souls.”
For thus were these three men in the midst thereof; as I live, they should deliver neither sons nor daughters.

Yet lo! there hath been left therein a remnant of fugitives to be brought forth—sons and daughters—coming forth unto you, and so ye shall see their way, and their doings, and be consoled, over the calamity which I have brought in upon Jerusalem, even all that I have brought in upon her.

Chapter 15.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man, What can the vine-tree be more than any other tree,—any branch which hath been found among the trees of the forest? Shall there be taken from it wood, to be made into any work? Or will men take therefrom a peg, to hang thereon any vessel?

Lo! into the fire it is given up for fuel,—The two ends thereof doth the fire devour, and it is charred, can it still be made into any work? How much less, when hath devoured it, and it is charred, can it still be made into any work?

Therefore will I set my face against them; as a vine-tree among the trees of the forest, which I have given up to the fire for fuel, ||so|| have I given up the inhabitants of Jerusalem. Therefore will I set my face against them, <Out of one fire> have they come forth, But <another fire> shall devour them,—So shall ye know that ||am Yahweh, by my setting my face against them; I will therefore give up the land as a desolation,—because they have committed treachery.

§ 14. Jerusalem’s Infidelity, under the figure of an Adulteress, is graphically portrayed.

Chapter 16.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man, Let Jerusalem know her abominations.
Therefore shalt thou say—

||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
To Jerusalem,

||Thine origin and thy birth|| were of the land of the Canaanite,—

||Thy father|| was the Amorite,
And ||thy mother|| a Hittite,

And ||as for thy birth|| <in the day thou wast born>
Thy navel-cord was not cut,
And <in water> wast thou not bathed
<to cleanse thee,—
And <as for being salted> thou was not salted,^b
And <as for being bandaged> thou wast not bandaged.

No eye [threw a shield over thee], by doing for thee one of these things, taking pity on thee,—
But thou wast cast out,
Because thy person was abhorred,
in the day thou wast born.

And I passed by thee and looked upon thee
thrusting about thee in thy blood,
And said to thee—
<Despite thy blood> live!
Yea I said to thee—
<Despite thy blood> live!

<Into myriads—like the bud of the field> made
I thee,
And thou didst increase, and become well grown, and didst attain to most excellent adornments,—
||Thy breasts|| were well-formed,^f
And ||thy hair|| was grown,
But ||thou thyself|| wast utterly naked.

And I passed by thee, and looked upon thee,
thrusting about thee in thy blood,
And said to thee—
<Despite thy blood> live!

<Into myriads—like the bud of the field> made
I thee,
And thou didst increase, and become well
grown, and didst attain to most excellent
adornments,—
||Thy breasts|| were well-formed,^f
And ||thy hair|| was grown,
But ||thou thyself|| wast utterly naked.

And I bathed thee in water, and rinsed thy blood from off thee,

And anointed thee with oil;
And clothed thee with an embroidered dress,
And sandalled thee in red leather,—
And wrapped thee about with fine linen,
And put over thee a mantle of silk.

Then decked I thee with ornaments,—
And put bracelets upon thy hands,
And a neckchain upon thy throat;
And put a nose-jewel upon thy nose,
And earrings in^g thine ears,—
And a crown of adorning, upon thy head.

Thus wast thou adorned with gold and silver,
And ||thy raiment|| was of fine linen and silk, and embroidered work,
<Fine flour and honey and oil> didst thou eat,—
And so thou becamest exceedingly' beautiful,
And didst attain unto royalty.

Then went forth thy fame among the nations,
for thy beauty,—
For <perfect> it was'—in my splendour which I had put upon thee,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

Then didst thou trust in thy beauty,
And become unchaste, because of thy fame,—
And didst pour out thine unchastity upon every passer-by, his' it was!

Yea thou didst take of thy raiment and made thine high places of hangings,
And didst commit unchastity thereon,—
Which ought not to have befallen,
And not to have come to pass.

But thou didst take thine adorning' jewels,
Of my gold and of my silver, which I had given
thee,
And didst make thee, images of the male;^i—
And didst act unchastely with them;
And thou didst take thine embroidered raiment,
and cover them,—
And <mine oil and mine incense> didst thou set before them;

And my food' which I had given thee,
Fine flour and oil and honey wherewith I fed
thee,

[^a] "Rubbed or washed with salt"—O.G.
[^b] See prev.
[^c] U.: “soul.”
[^e] See prev.
And didst set it before them for a satisfying' odour,
Yea so it was,—

Saith My Lord, Yahweh.

And thou didst take thy sons and thy daughters,
Whom thou hadst borne unto me,
And didst sacrifice them unto them, to be devoured,—
Is this, of thine unchastity, [a light thing]? y

Yea thou didst slay my children,—
And didst deliver them up
That they should be caused to pass through [the fire] unto them.

And in all thine abominations, and thine unchaste ways thou rememberest not the days of thy youth,
When thou wast utterly naked,
When thou wast thrusting about thee in thy blood!

And it came to pass after all thy wickedness
Woe! Woe! to thee,

Exclaimeth My Lord, Yahweh;—

That thou didst build thee a brothel, a
And didst make thee a height in every broadway:

At the head of every road didst thou build thy height,
And bring thy beauty into disgust,
And open thy feet to every passer-by,—
So didst thou make thine unchaste ways to abound.

Then didst thou extend thine unchaste acts unto the sons of Egypt—thy neighbours, great of flesh,—
And caused thine unchaste ways to abound, provoking me to anger.

Lo! therefore, I have stretched out my hand against the,
And diminished thine allotted portion,—
And have delivered thee up unto the desire of them who hate thee,
The daughters of the Philistines, who are ashamed of thy lewd way.

Thou didst also extend thine unchastity unto the sons of Assyria, because thou wast insatiable.
Yet though thou didst behave unchastely with them, yet couldst thou not be satisfied,
Thou didst therefore cause thine unchaste ways to abound unto the land of Canaan, as towards Chaldea.
Yet wast thou not satisfied. 30
How weak was thy heart!

Exclaimeth My Lord, Yahweh,—
That thou couldst have done all these things,
The doing of a lewd woman, without shame:

That thou couldst have built thy brothel at the head of every road,
And couldst have made in every broadway,—
Yet becamest not as a harlot, to lay claim to a harlot’s hire.

||A wife who committeth adultery instead of her husband’ accepteth strangers’.

||To all harlots they give a present,—
But didst give thy present to all thy lovers,
And didst bribe them to come in unto thee from every side in thine unchastity!

And so there came about the reverse of women, in thine unchastity,
In that they did not follow thee for purposes of lewdness,—
And in that gavest a present, while was given to thee.

So didst thou become the reverse.

Therefore O harlot, hear thou the word of Yahweh;

Because thy money was poured out and thy shame was uncovered, in thine unchastity unto thy lovers,—and unto all thine abominable manufactured gods, even as the blood of thy children, whom thou didst deliver up unto them≥

37 [Therefore] behold me! gathering together all thy lovers, unto whom thou didst make thyself pleasant, Even all whom thou lovedst, With all whom thou hatedst,— Yea I will gather them’ together unto thee from every side, And will uncover thy shame unto them, And they shall see all thy shame.

38 So will I judge thee, with the judgments meted out to adulterers and shedders of blood,— And will repay thee with the blood of indignation and jealousy; And will deliver thee’ into their hand, And they shall pull down thy brothel, a And break in pieces thy heights, And strip thee of thy raiment, And take away thine adorning’ jewels,— And leave thee utterly naked.

39 Then will they bring up against thee a gathered host, b And they will stone thee with stones,— And cut thee to pieces with their swords; And burn up thy houses with fire, And execute upon thee judgments, before the eyes of many women,— So will I cause thee to cease from acting unchastely, Moreover also  shalt thou not give any more.

40 So will I let mine indignation find rest in thee, And my jealousy shall depart’ from thee,— And I will be quiet, and not be provoked any more.

41 <Because thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, But hast enraged me with all these things≥ Therefore also’ behold! ||[I]|| <thy way, upon thine own head> will place, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, And thou shalt not commit a d crime above all thine abominations

42 Lo! ||every one who useth proverbs|| <against thee> shall use a proverb, saying,— <Like the mother> [so] her daughter!

45 <The daughter of thy mother> thou art! One abhorring her own husband, and her own children,— Yea <the sister of thy sisters> thou art, Who abhorred their own husbands, and their own children, ||Your mother|| was a Hittite, And ||your father|| an Amorite.

46 And ||thine elder sister|| was Samaria, she and her daughters, dwelling on thy left hand,— And ||thy sister younger than thou, dwelling on thy right hand|| was Sodom, and her daughters.

47 Yet <not in their ways> didst thou walk, nor <according to their abominations> didst thou do,— <As though that were quite too little> thou didst corrupt thyself beyond them’ in all thy ways.

48 <As I live>

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, Verily! Sodom thy sister had not done, |neither she nor her daughters|,—as ||thou and thy daughters|| have done.

49 Lo! ||this|| became the iniquity of Sodom thy sister,— ||Pride, fulness of bread, and careless security|| came to her and to her daughters, And <the hand of the oppressed and the needy> she strengthened not.

50 So then they became haughty, and committed abomination before me,— And I took them away, when I saw [it], e Nor did ||Samaria|| commit one-half thy sins,— But thou didst multiply thine abominations more than they, And didst cause thy sisters f to appear righteous [by all the abominations which thou didst commit].

52 ||Thou also|| bear thine own reproach, which thou didst adjudge to thy sisters, <by thy sins, in which thou wast more abominable than they> thou didst make them appear more righteous than thou,—

Thou also therefore, turn thou pale, and bear thine own reproach, for making thy sisters appear righteous!

When therefore I bring back their captivity, The captivity of Sodom and her daughters, And the captivity of Samaria and her daughters
Then will I bring back thy captivities in their midst:
That thou mayest bear thine own reproach, And take to thyself reproach, because of all that thou didst in comforting them.
When thy sisters, Sodom and her daughters, shall return to their former estate, And Samaria and her daughters shall return to their former estate
Then thou and thy daughters shall return to your former estate.
And Sodom thy sister was never heard in thy mouth,— In the day of thy pride:
Before thy wickedness was discovered,
As thou art the reproach of the daughters of Syria, and all round about her, the daughters of the Philistines,—who are despising thee on every side.

As for thy crime, and thine abominations thou thyself dost bear them,— Declareth Yahweh.
But I myself will establish my covenant with thee,— And thou shalt know that I am Yahweh:
To the end thou mayest remember, and turn pale, and there be to thee no more an opening of mouth, because of thy reproach,— In that I have accepted a propitiatory-covering for thee, as to all that thou hast done, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 15. Parable of the Two Eagles.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
Son of man, Put thou forth a riddle, And speak thou a parable,— Unto the house of Israel:
So then thou shalt say,
[Thou] saith My Lord, Yahweh,— [A great eagle, with large wings of long pinion, full of plumage, which had divers colours] came unto Lebanon, and took the highest branch of the cedar:
The crown of its young twigs plucked he off, and brought it into a land of traffic, [in a city of merchants] he set it.
So he took of the seed of the land, and planted it in a field for seed,— He took it near mighty waters, [Like a willow-tree] he set it.
And it shot forth, and became a spreading vine of lowly stature, Its branches turning towards him, And its roots [under him] spread,— So it became a vine, And brought forth shoots, And sent forth boughs.
And it came to pass, that there was another great eagle, with large wings, and abundant plumage,— And lo! [this vine] stretched its roots hungry towards him, And [its branches] sent it forth unto him, That he might cause it to drink, out of the beds where it was planted:

---
a So it shd be (w. Aram., Sep., Vul.)—G.n.
b Or: “unveiled.”
c So it shd be (w. Sep. and Vul.). Cp. chap. xxiii. 43—G.n.
d Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns.): “daughters of men” [adam in Heb.] for am—G.n.
e Some cod. (w. 3 ear. pr. edns.): “My Lord”—G.n.
12 <In a goodly field, by mighty waters> was it planted,—
That it might bring forth boughs, and bear fruit,
That it might become [a splendid] vine].

9 Say thou,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Shall it thrive?
<Its roots> will he not tear up?
<Its fruit> will he not cut off, that it wither?
||All the fresh leaves it hath caused to spring forth|| shall wither, without a strong arm, or many people, to pull it up by its roots.

Lo! therefore <though it remain planted> shall it thrive?
<As soon as an east wind toucheth it> will it not ||utterly wither||?
<On the beds where it sprang up>, will it not wither?

Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

10 Say, I pray thee, unto the perverse house,
Know ye not what these things are?
Say thou,
Lo! the King of Babylon entered Jerusalem,
And took her king and her princes,
And brought them unto him in Babylon;

11 Yea took of the seed royal,
And solemnised with him a covenant,—
And brought him into an oath,
Also <the mighty ones of the land> did he take.
That [the kingdom] might be [abased], so as not to lift itself up,—
<By the keeping of his covenant> might be made to stand.

But he hath rebelled against him, by sending his messengers to Egypt, that there should be given to him horses, and much people.
Shall he thrive?
Shall he escape that doeth these things?
Shall he break a covenant' and escape?

16 <As I live>
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Verily! <in the place where dwelleth the king that made him' king,
Whose oath he hath despised,
And whose covenant he hath broken>

<With him, in the midst of Babylon> shall he die.
Neither shall Pharaoh <with a great force, or with a large gathered host> a |work with him| in the war, by casting up an earthwork, and by building a siege-wall,—to the cutting off of many lives.

≤Seeing he hath despised an oath, by breaking a covenant—yea lo! hath given his hand, and ||all these things| hath done≥ he shall not escape.

||Therefore||
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
<As I live>
[Surely it is mine oath] which he hath despised,
And [my covenant] which he hath broken,
Therefore will I bring it upon his own head:
And I will spread over him my net,
And he shall be taken in my snare,
And I will bring him into Babylon and will enter into judgment with him there, as to his treachery wherewith he hath been treacherous against me;
And ||all his fugitives, throughout all his bands|| <by the sword> shall fall,
And ||they who are left|| <to every wind> shall be scattered,—
So shall ye know' that ||I, Yahweh|| have spoken!

||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Therefore will ||I, myself|] take, of the highest branch of the lofty cedar, and set it,—
≤Of the crown of its young twigs≥  will I pluck off, and ||I, myself|| will plant it upon a mountain high and terraced.

Chapter 18.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

What occasion have [ye] to be using this proverb, concerning the soil of Israel, saying,—

[[Fathers]] eat sour grapes,
And [[the children’s] teeth] are blunted?

But when [any man] shall be righteous,—and do justice and righteousness:

Upon the mountains hath not eaten,
And <his eyes> hath not lifted up unto the manufactured gods of the house of Israel,
And <the wife of his neighbour> hath not defiled,
And <unto a woman during her removal> hath not approached;

And <no man> hath treated with violence,
But <his debt-pledge> hath restored,
<Plunder> hath not seized,—
<His bread—to the famished> hath given,
And <the naked> hath covered with clothing;

Upon interest hath not put out [his money],
And <increase> hath not accepted,
<From dishonesty> hath turned back his hand,—

<In my statutes> hath walked,
And <my regulations> hath observed, to do them in truth);
<Righteous> he is
He shall [[surely live]],
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

But he hath begotten a son
≤Who is a violent man,
A shedder of blood,—
Who doeth the like of any of these things;
Whereas [[he]] <none of those other things> doeth,
For indeed’ <upon the mountains> he hath eaten,
And <the wife of his neighbour> hath defiled;
<The oppressed and the needy> hath treated with violence,
Hath ruthlessly plundered,
<The pledge> hath not restored,
But <unto the manufactured gods> hath lifted up his eyes,
<Abomination> hath wrought;
<Upon interest> hath put out,
And <increase> hath accepted,—
And shall he [live]?
He shall not live,
<All these abominations> he hath done,
He shall [[surely be put to death]],
[[His blood]] <upon himself> shall be.

But lo! he hath begotten a son,
≤Who hath considered all the sins of his father,
which he hath done,—
Yea he hath considered, and not done like them:
<Upon the mountains> hath not eaten,
And <his eyes> hath not lifted up unto the manufactured gods of the house of Israel,
<The wife of his neighbour> hath not defiled;
And <no man> hath he treated with violence,

§ 16. The Ultimate Divine Dealing with Individuals.
(Cp. chaps. iii., xxxiii.)

Have dried up the moist’ tree,
And have caused to flourish the tree [that was dry],— [[Yahweh]] have spoken, and performed.
And plunder hath not seized,—
<His bread—to the famished> hath given,
And the naked hath covered with clothing;
From dishonesty hath turned back his hand,
Neither interest nor increase hath accepted,
My regulations hath executed,
My statutes hath walked,—
None of his transgressions which he hath committed shall be remembered against him,—
In his righteousness which he hath done> he shall live.
Could I take delight in the death of the lawless? Demandeth My Lord, Yahweh. Must it not be in his turning from his ways wherein he shall live?
But when a righteous man shall turn away from his righteousness and do that which is perverse, Shall do according to all the abominations which the lawless man hath done he shall live?
None of his righteous acts which he hath done shall be remembered,
In his treachery wherein he hath been treacherous, And in his sin wherein he hath sinned he shall die.
Can ye then say—The way of My Lord will not be equal?—Hear, I pray you, O house of Israel, Will my way not be equal? Will not your ways be unequal?
When a righteous man shall turn away from his righteousness and do that which is perverse, and die because of those things he shall die.
When a lawless man turneth away from his lawlessness which he hath done, And hath done justice and righteousness he shall save his own soul alive:
When he considered then he turned away from all his transgressions, which he had committed, He shall surely live, He shall not die.

Will ||my ways|| not be equal, O house of Israel?
Will not ||your ways|| be unequal?

<Every man according to his own ways> will I decide you, O house of Israel,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.
Return ye—and make good your return—from all your transgressions,
That they become not unto you a stumbling-block of iniquity.

31 Cast off from you, all your transgressions which ye have committed against me,a
And make you a new heart,
And a new spirit,—
For why' should ye die, O house of Israel?

32 For I cannot take delight in the death of him that dieth, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Make good your return then, and ||live||!

§ 17. A Dirge for the Princes of David’s House.

Chapter 19.

1 ||Thou|| therefore, take up a dirge, for the princeb of Israel; 2 and thou shalt say—
How was ||thy mother|| a lioness!
<Between lions> she lay down,—
<In the midst of young lions>
She nourished her whelps;
And she reared up one of her whelps—
<A young lion> he became,
And he learned to rend prey,
-Men> he devoured.

4 Then nations [heard of him],
<In their pit> was he caught,—
So they brought him with hooks,
Into the land of Egypt.

5 And she saw she had waited,
Lost' was her hope,
Then took she another of her whelps,
<A young lion> she made him.

6 Yea he went to and fro amidst lions,
<A young lion> he became,—
And he learned to rend prey,
-Men> he devoured;

7 And he injuredc his widows,
And <their cities> laid waste,—
And deserted’ was the land, and its fulness,
At the noise of his roaring.

8 Then [set upon him] the nations round about,
From the provinces,—
And spread over him their net,
<In their pit> was he caught;

9 And they put him in a cage with hooks,
And brought him to Babylon’s king,db—
They brought him into strong-holds,
That his noise might be heard no more,
Among the mountains of Israel.

10 ||Thy mother|| [was] like a vine of thy vineyard,e
<By water> was planted,—
<Fruitful and full of branches> she became,
By reason of waters abundant;

11 And they served her as staves of power,
For the sceptres of rulers,
And high' became the stature thereof,
With its interwoven foliage,—
And it was seen by its height,
By its multitude of branches.

12 Then was she uprooted in indignation,
<To the ground> was she cast,
And ||an' east wind|| dried up her fruit,—
|Broken off and withered| were her staves of power,
<|A fire| devoured them.

13 ||Now|| therefore, is she planted in a desert,
In a land parched and dry;

14 And there hath gone forth a fire out of her staves
of rods,
|<Her fruit| hath it devoured,
And there is in her no staff of power,
As a sceptre to bear rule.
<|A dirge| it is, and hath been made |a dirge|.

§ 18. The Prophet recounts Israel’s past Treacheries, and protests that she shall not be suffered to become like other Nations.

c So it shd be (w. Sep., Syr., Vul.)—G.n.
<And their regulations> let it not be that ye observe,—
<And with their manufactured gods> let it not be that ye defile yourselves.

||I, Yahweh|| am your God,
<In my statutes> walk ye,—
<And my regulations> observe ye and do them;

<My sabbaths also> hallow ye,—
And they shall become a sign betwixt me and you,
That it may be known' that ||I, Yahweh|| am your God.

Notwithstanding, the children rebelled against me,
<In my statutes> walked they not,
<And my regulations> observed they not, to do them,
Wherein the man [who shall do them] shall live,
<My sabbaths> they profaned.
Therefore spake I of pouring out mine indignation upon them, to bring mine anger to an end against them, ||in the desert||.

Howbeit I withdrew my hand, and wrought with effect, for the sake of mine own Name,—that it should not be profaned before the eyes of the nations, before whose eyes I had brought them forth:

Even ||I|| lifted up my hand to them, in the desert,—
That I would disperse them throughout the nations,
And scatter them throughout the lands;
Because <my regulations> had they not done,
And <my statutes> they had rejected,
<My sabbaths also> they had profaned,—
And <after the manufactured gods of their fathers> were their eyes [turned].

||I myself|| indeed, suffered* them [to walk in] statutes which were [not good],—
And regulations, in which they could not live.*

Yea I let them defile themselves with their gifts, when they caused every firstborn to pass through [the fire],—that I might make them desolate.

To the end they might know' that ||I|| am Yahweh.

|Therefore| speak thou unto the house of Israel,
Son of man, and say unto them,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—

<Yet further in this> did your fathers [insult me], by the treachery wherewith they dealt treacherously against me;

<When I brought them into the land, as to which I had lifted up mine hand to give it them> then beheld they every high hill and every tangled tree,
And offered, there, their sacrifices,
And presented, there, their provoking’ gift,
And placed, there, their satisfying’ odour,
And poured out, there, their drink-offerings.

Therefore said I unto them,
What! ||a high-place||, whereinto ye’ are entering.
And so the name thereof hath been called High-place, unto this day.

|Therefore| say thou unto the house of Israel,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Is it <in the way of your fathers> ye’ are defiling yourselves,—
And <after their abominations> that ye’ are committing lewdness?

Yea <when ye lift up your gifts,
When ye cause your children to pass through the fire>
Ye’ are defiling yourselves unto all your manufactured gods, unto this day,
And shall ||I|| be enquired of by you’, O house of Israel?

<As I live> Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Surely I will not be enquired of by you.

And <as for that which is rising up on your spirit> it shall ||not at all come to pass||,
In that ye’ are saying
Let us be like the nations,
Like the families of the lands,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Surely will I bring you forth from among the peoples,
And will cause you to pass under the rod, and defer from you, and will sever from you, and will bring you into the bond of the covenant;
And will bring you, into the desert of the peoples,—and will contend with you there, [face to face].
And will bring you in unto the soil of Israel,
To the land, as to which I lifted up my hand, to give it unto your fathers.

34 And I will bring you from among the peoples,
And gather you together, out of the lands,
throughout which ye have been dispersed,
With a strong hand, and
With an outstretched arm, and
With outpoured indignation;
And I will bring you forth from among the peoples,
And will sever from you
For in my holy name
Declarereth My Lord, Yahweh;
And I will bring you to pass under the rod,
And will bring you into the bond of the covenant;
And will sever from you, those who are rebelling
and those who are transgressing against me,
Willing that I will contend with you there,
Yet will I contend with you
So shall ye know that I am Yahweh.

35 But as for you, O house of Israel,
[Thus] saith my Lord, Yahweh,
Go, serve every man his own manufactured gods,
Yet afterwards surely
Ye shall be ready to hearken unto me,—
And my holy name shall ye profane no more,
With your gifts, and
With your manufactured gods.

36 But <as for you> O house of Israel,
[Thus] saith my Lord, Yahweh,
Go, serve every man his own manufactured gods,
Yet <afterwards> surely
Ye shall be ready to hearken unto me,—
And my holy name shall ye profane no more,
With your gifts, and
With your manufactured gods.

37 And I will cause you to pass under the rod,
And will bring you into the bond of the covenant;
And will sever from you, those who are rebelling
and those who are transgressing against me,
<Out of the land of their sojournings> will I bring them forth,
Yet <upon the soil of Israel> shall they not enter,
So shall ye know that ||[I]|| am Yahweh.

38 But <as for you> O house of Israel,
[Thus] saith my Lord, Yahweh,
Go, serve every man his own manufactured gods,
Yet <afterwards> surely
Ye shall be ready to hearken unto me,—
And my holy name shall ye profane no more,
With your gifts, and
With your manufactured gods.

39 But <as for you> O house of Israel,
[Thus] saith my Lord, Yahweh,
Go, serve every man his own manufactured gods,
Yet <afterwards> surely
Ye shall be ready to hearken unto me,—
And my holy name shall ye profane no more,
With your gifts, and
With your manufactured gods.

40 For <in my holy' mountain,
In the mountain of the height of Israel>
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
[There] shall all the house of Israel serve me,
[all of it], in the land,
[There] will I accept them, and

||There|| will I seek your heave-offerings, and the firstfruits of your gifts, in all your holy things;

41 <As a satisfying’ odour> will I accept [you],
Through my bringing you forth from among the peoples,
And gathering you, out of the lands, throughout which ye have been dispersed;
Thus will I hallow myself in you, before the eyes of the nations.
So shall ye know that ||[I]|| am Yahweh,
Through my bringing you in unto the soil of Israel,
Unto the land, as to which I lifted up my hand, to give it unto your fathers.

42 Then shall ye call to mind, there, your own ways, and all your own doings, wherewith ye had defiled yourselves,—
And ye shall become loathsome in your own sight, for all your wickednesses, which ye have done.

43 Then shall ye say to the forest of the field of the South;
And prophesy unto the forest of the field of the South;
And ye shall be scorched thereby
For the spreading flame shall not be quenched,
Thus will I hallow myself in you, before the eyes of the nations.

44 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:
Son of man,
Set thy face towards Teman,
And prophesy unto the forest of the field of the South;
And thou shalt say to the forest of the South,
Hear the word of Yahweh,—
Behold me! kindling in thee a fire,
And it shall devour in thee every moist tree and every dry tree,
The spreading flame shall not be quenched,
And all flesh shall see that ||[I]||, Yahweh have kindled it,—
It shall not be quenched.

§ 19. Against Jerusalem. A Sword! Nebuchadnezzar’s Approach depicted.

Chapter 21.

1 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:
   Son of man,
   Set thy face against Jerusalem,
   And drop [thy word] against the holy places;
   And prophesy against the soil of Israel.

2 Thou shalt say then to the soil of Israel,
   ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
   Behold me against thee,
   Therefore will I bring forth my sword out of its sheath,—and will cut off from thee, the righteous and the lawless.

3 <Because I have cut off from thee, the righteous and the lawless>
   [Therefore] shall my sword go forth out of its sheath against all flesh, from south to north:
   So shall all flesh know that ||I, Yahweh|| have brought forth my sword, out of its sheath,—it shall not return any more.

4 ||Thou|| therefore, O son of man, sigh,—
   <In the sharp pain of thy loins and in bitterness> shalt thou sigh, before their eyes.
   And it shall come to pass <when they shall say unto thee, Wherefore’ art thou’ sighing?> that thou shalt say,
   For the report, because it cometh,
   When every heart [shall melt],
   And all hands [be unnerved],
   And every spirit [shall become faint],
   And [all knees] shall be weak as water,
   Lo! it cometh, and shall be brought to pass,
   Saith My Lord, Yahweh.

8 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
   Son of man,
   Prophesy’ and thou shalt say,
   ||Thus|| saith My Lord,—
   Say, A sword! a sword!
   Sharpened, moreover also furbished:
   <To make a slaughter> is it sharpened,
   <That it may flash as lightning> is it furbished,
   Or shall we flourish the royal rod of my son, which despiseth every tree?

11 It hath, however, been given to be furbished, that it may be grasped by the hand:
   ||The same|| is a sword [sharpened],
   Yea ||the same|| is furbished,
   Ready to be given into the hand of the slayer.

12 Make an outcry and howl, son of man,
   For ||the same|| hath come against my people,
   ||The same|| is against all the princes of Israel,—
   Who are [thrown to the sword] with my people,
   |Therefore| smite thou upon thy thigh.

13 For trial hath been made,
   What then, <even though the royal rod despiseth> shall it not be?
   Demandeth My Lord, Yahweh.

14 ||Thou|| therefore, son of man,
   Prophesy, and smite thy hands together,
   And let the sword smite twice, thrice, ||the sword of the slain||,
   ||The same|| is the great sword of the slain, that which hemmeth them i in.

15 <That the heart [may melt],
   And the overthrown’ be multiplied’ at all their gates>
   I have recompensed a slaying by the sword:
   Surelyk it hath been made ready to flash like lightning, ||keen’ for slaughter||,

   Whithersoever thine edge is directed,

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
2 [[Thou]] therefore, son of man,
Wilt thou judge, wilt thou judge, the city of bloodshed; and cause her to know all her abominations?
3 Thou shalt say then,

||Thou|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
A city shedding blood in her own midst
That her time might come,
Therefore hath she been making manufactured gods for herself, to be defiled.

4 <Because of the blood which thou hast shed> hath thou become guilty,
And <with the manufactured gods which thou hast made> hast thou defiled thyself,
Thus hast thou brought near thy days,
And hast come unto thy years,—

<For this cause> have I delivered thee
As a reproach, to the nations,
And as a derision, to all the lands.

5 ||They who are near, and they who are far off from thee|| shalt shew themselves derisive over these,—

O thou of impure name, abounding in confusion!

6 Lo! the [[princes] of Israel] <every man for his own arm> have they been in thee,
For the sake of shedding blood.

7 <Father and mother> have they despised in thee,
<To the sojourner> have they dealt with oppression, in the midst of thee,—

The fatherless and the widow> have they maltreated in thee:

8 <My holy things> hast thou despised,—
And <my sabbaths> hast thou profaned:

9 <Slanderers> have arisen in thee,
For the sake of shedding blood,—
And <unto the mountains> have they eaten in thee,

<Lewdness> have they practised in the midst of thee:

[[A father’s shame]] hath been uncovered in thee,
<Her that was unclean in her removal> have they humbled in thee;

And [[one man]] <with the wife of his neighbour> hath wrought abomination,
And [another] hath defiled [his daughter-in-law] by shameful deed,—

And [another] <his own sister, daughter of his own father> hath humbled in thee:

For the sake of shedding blood,—

<Interest and increase> hast thou accepted,
And thou hast overreached thy neighbour, by oppression,
And <me> hast thou forgotten,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

13 Lo! therefore, I have smitten my hand,
At thine unjust gain which thou hast made,—
And over thy bloodshed, which they have caused in thy midst.

14 Can thy heart endure′ or can thy hands be strong′ in the days when I′am dealing with thee?

And scatter thee throughout the lands,—
And will cause to cease thine impurity out of thee;

And lusted after her lovers,
For Assyrians, so warlike,
Clothed in blue,
Governors and deputies,
Attractive young men, all’ of them,—
Horsemen, riding on horses.

So she bestowed her unchastities upon them,
The choicest men of Assyria, all’ of them,—
And with whomsoever she lusted after—with all their manufactured gods—she defiled herself.

And her unchaste doings from the time she was in Egypt had she not forsaken,
For with her had they lain in her youth,
Yea had pressed her virgin’ bosoms,— and had poured out their unchastity upon her.

Therefore did I deliver her into the hand of her lovers,—
Into the hand of the sons of Assyria, after whom she lusted:

[Therefore] disclosed her shame,
<Her sons and her daughters> took them away,
And herself—unto the sword they slew,—
Thus became she a by-word among women, when judgments they had executed upon her.

Yet did she add, unto her unchaste doings,— when she saw men portrayed upon the wall, likenesses of Chaldeans, Portrayed with vermilion:
Girded with waistcloths upon their loins,
With overhanging high turbans upon their heads,

<In appearance> knights, all’ of them,—
The likeness of the sons of Babylon of Chaldea, the land of their birth.

Then lusted she after them, as soon as her eyes beheld them,—
And she sent messengers unto them to Chaldea.

Then came in unto her the sons of Babylon, into the bed of endearments, and defiled her with their unchaste doings,—
And she defiled herself with them’,
And then was her soul torn from them.

Thus disclosed she her unchaste desires,
And disclosed’ her shame,—
So my soul was torn from her,
Just as my soul had been torn from her sister.

Yea she multiplied her unchaste desires,— calling to mind the days of her youth, when she was unchaste in’ the land of Egypt;

So she lusted after their courtiers,—
Whose flesh was [the flesh of asses], and Whose issue was [the issue of horses].

Yea thou didst look about for the lewdness of thy youth,—
When were pressed, by the Egyptians, thy bosoms,
When they handled thy youthful breasts.

[Therefore] O Oholibah,
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Behold me! rousing up thy lovers against thee,
Even them from whom thy soul hath been torn,—
And I will bring them against thee from every side:

The sons of Babylon and all Chaldeans,
Pekod and Shoa and Koa,
All the sons of Assyria, with them,—
Attractive young men,
Governors and deputies, all’ of them.
Knights and men of renown,
Riders on horses, all’ of them;

And they shall come upon thee—
With battle-axe, chariot and wheel,
And with a gathered host of peoples,

<Shield and buckler and helmet> will they array against thee, on every side,—
And I will put before them, judgment,
And they shall judge thee with their judgments;
<When I set forth my jealousy against thee>
Then will they deal with thee, in indignation, <Thy nose and thine ears> will they remove,
And <[that which is left of thee]> by the sword shall fall,—
||They|| will take away ||thy sons and thy daughters||,
And ||[that which is left of thee]|| shall be devoured by the fire;
26 And they shall strip off thy raiment,—
And take away thine adorning’ jewels!
27 Thus will I cause thy lewdness to cease’, from thee,
Even thine unchastity [brought] from the land of Egypt,—
So that thou shalt not lift up thine eyes unto them,
And <Egypt> shalt thou not call to mind any more.
28 For ||[thus]| saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me! delivering thee up, into the hand of them whom thou hatest,
Into the hand of them from whom thy soul hath been torn;

And take away all thy labour,
And leave thee utterly naked,—
And thine unchaste’ shame shall be disclosed, with thy lewdness and unchastities,
30 These things shall be done’ to thee,—
In that thou hast gone unchastely after the nations,
Because thou hast defiled thyself with their manufactured gods.
31 <In the way of thy sister> hast thou walked,— Therefore will I put her cup into thy hand.
32 ||[Thus]| saith My Lord, Yahweh,<The cup of thy sister> shall thou drink,
The [cup] deep and large,
Thou shalt become a laughingstock and a derision,
||Much|| doth it contain!

33 <With drunkenness and grief> shalt thou be filled,—
The cup of astonishment and desolation,
The cup of thy sister Samaria;
34 Yea thou shalt drink it and drain it out,
<And the sherds thereof> shalt thou gnaw, b
And <thy breasts> shalt thou tear out,—

Wilt thou judge Oholah, and Oholibah?
Then declare thou unto them, their abominations.
37 For they have committed adultery,
And ||blood|| is on in their hands,
Yea <with their manufactured gods> have they committed adultery,
And <even their own children whom they bare unto me> have they set apart for them, d to be devoured.
38 ||[Yet more]|| ||[this]| have they done to me,—
They have defiled my sanctuary. [on the same day],
And <my sabbaths> have they profaned.
39 Yea <when they had slaughtered their children, to their manufactured gods> then entered they into my sanctuary [on the same day], to profane it,—
And lo! ||[thus]| have they done, in the midst of mine own house.
40 ||[Yea verily]| that ye must needs send for men, ready to come in, from afar—in that ||[a messenger]| was sent unto them, and lo! they came,
For whom thou didst bathe thyself,
Paint thine eyes,
And deck thyself with ornaments.

Yet came they in unto her, as men go in unto a

But <righteous men> ||[they]|| shall judge them,

§ 22. Jerusalem likened to a Filthy Caldron.

Chapter 24.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, in the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the tenth of the month, saying:
Son of man,
Write thee the name of the day, this selfsame day,—the king of Babylon cast’ himself against Jerusalem, on this selfsame day.
Put thou forth, therefore, against the perverse house, a parable, and say unto them,
||[Thus]|| saith My Lord, Yahweh:
Set on the caldron, set it on,
Moreover also’ pour into it water:
Gather the pieces thereof into it,
Every good piece, thigh and shoulder,—
<With the choice of the bones> fill it:
Take ||[of the choice of the flock]||
Moreover also’ a pile of bones* [place] under it,—
Boil the pieces thereof,
Yea’ let the bones of it seethe’ in the midst
thereof.

Woe! city of bloodshed
The caldron whose scum is in it, and ||[whose scum]|| hath not gone out of it:
<Piece by piece> bring it out,
There hath fallen thereon no lot.
For ||[her own blood]|| hath come to be |in her

it,—
She hath not poured it out on the earth, that she might cover it with dust.

§ 24. Against the Sons of Ammon.

Chapter 25.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
2 Son of man, Set thy face, against the sons of Ammon,—and prophesy against them.
3 So then thou shalt say to the sons of Ammon, Hear ye, the word of my Lord, Yahweh:a

§ 27. Against Tyre.
(chaps. xxvi., xxvii.)

Chapter 26.
1 And it came to pass <in the eleventh year, on the first of the month> that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
2 Son of man,
≤Because Tyre hath said' concerning Jerusalem,
Aha!
She is broken' that was the doors of the people,
She is turned unto me,—
I shall be filled,
She is laid waste≥
3 |Therefore|
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Behold me! against thee, O Tyre,— So then I will bring up against thee many nations,
As the sea bringeth up its rolling waves;
And they shall destroy the walls of Tyre,
And break down her towers,
And I will scrape clean her dust from off her,—
And make of her the glaring face of a cliff;
4 <A place for the spreading of nets> shall she become, in the midst of the sea,
For ||I|| have spoken,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,—
And she shall become a prey to the nations.
5 And ||her daughters that are in the field||' with the sword shall be slain:
So shall they know' that ||I|| am Yahweh.

Behold me! bringing against Tyre, Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon out of the North, a king of kings,—with horses and with chariots and with horsemen, and a gathered hostb and much people.

8 <Thy daughters in the field—with the sword> shall he slay,—
And shall set against thee a siege-wall,
And cast up against thee an earthwork,
And set up against thee a large shield;
And <the stroke of his attacking-engine> will he direct against thy walls,—
And <thy towers> will he break down, with his axes.c

9 <By reason of the multitude of his horses> their dust shall cover' thee,— <At the noise of horseman and wheel and chariot> shall thy walls tremble', when he entereth into thy gates,
Just as they’ do who enter a city broken open.

10 <With the hoofs of his horses> shall he tread down all thy streets,—
<Thy people—with the sword> shall he slay,
And ||thy pillars of strength|| <to the earth> shall go down.

12 And they shall spoil thy wealth,
And make a prey of thy merchandise,
And break down thy walls,
And <thy pleasant' houses> shall they lay in ruins;
And <thy stones and thy timber and thy dust—in the midst of the waters> shall they lay.
And I will cause to cease the hum of thy songs;
And <the sound of thy lyres> shall not be heard
any more.

14 And I will make of thee the glaring face of a cliff,
<A place for the spreading of nets> shalt thou become,
Thou shalt not be built any more,—
For ||I, Yahweh|| haved spoken it,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

Then shall come down from off their thrones, all
The princes of the sea,
And shall lay aside their robes,
And [their embroidered Har] garments shall strip

<Upon the ground> shall they sit,
And shall tremble every moment, and be

Then shall they take up a over thee, a dirge,
And shall say to thee,—
Howʹ hast thou perished,

Who imparted their terror
To all who dwelt in her!

Thine own skilled men O Tyre, were within
thee,
Thy calkers,—
All the ships of the sea and their mariners were within thee,
To carry on thy traffic

Then will I bring thee down with them that go down into the pit.
Unto the people of age-past times,
And cause thee to dwell in the earth below,
Among the desolations from age-past times,
With them that go down into the pit,
That thou mayest not be dwelt in,— Nor yet present thyselfa in the land of the living.

And thou shalt not be;

Thou shalt not be found any more,
To times age-abiding,

21 And hast gotten gold and silver into thy treasuries:
22 By the greatness of thy wisdom and by thy traffic hast thou multiplied thy riches,— 23 And thy heart hath become lofty in thy riches.
24 Therefore ||[Thus]|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
25 Because thou hast set thy heart as the heart of God
26 And profane thy splendour:
27 To the pit shalt thou take thee down,— And thou shalt die the deaths of one thrust through,
28 In the heart of the seas.
29 Therefore behold me! bringing upon thee aliens, the terrible ones of the nations,—
30 And they shall unsheathe their swords over the beauty of thy wisdom, And profane thy splendour:
31 To the pit shalt thou take thee down,— And thou shalt die the deaths of one thrust through,
32 In the heart of the seas.
33 Therefore||[I]|| have spoken, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And <of gold> was the work of thy timbrels and thy flutes, within thee,
<In the day thou wast created> were they prepared:

<When I appointed thee> <in the holy mount of God> thou wast,
<Amid stones of fire> thou didst walk to and fro:

15  <Complete> wast thou' in thy ways, from the day thou wast created,— Until perversity was found' in thee.

16  <By the abundance of thy traffic> they filled thy midst with violence,
And thou didst sin,—
So I cast thee as profane out of the mountain of God,
And destroyed thee, O covering cherub, from amid the stones of fire:

17  <Lofty> was thy heart, in thy beauty,
Thou didst corrupt thy wisdom, because of thy splendour,—

25  ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
<When I gather together the house of Israel, from the midst of the peoples among whom g they have been scattered, and shall hallow myself in them before the eyes of the nations>
Then shall they dwell upon their own soil, which I gave to my servant—to Jacob:

Yea they shall dwell thereupon, [securely],
Yea shall build houses, and plant vineyards, and dwell [securely],—
When I have executed judgments on all that despised them on every side of them,
So shall they know' that ||I, Yahweh|| am their God. h

§ 31. Against Pharaoh King of Egypt, and against his Land.
(Chaps. xxix.–xxxii.)

Chapter 29.

1  <In the tenth year, in the tenth month, on the twelfth of the month> came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:
Son of man,
Set thy face against Pharaoh, king of Egypt,—
And prophesy against him, and against Egypt [all of it]:
Speak, and thou shalt say—

||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Behold me! against thee, O Pharaoh, king of Egypt,
The great Crocodile that lieth along in the midst of his rivers:
Who saith—

My river is ||mine own||,
Since ||I myself|| made it me!
Therefore will I put hooks in thy jaws,
And the land of Egypt shall become an
ˎ
And I will stretch thee out towards the desert
ˎ
And I will cut off out of thee
ˎ
Behold me! bringing upon thee a sword,—
And they shall know that ||I|| am Yahweh,—
Because they were a staff of reed to the house of Israel:
<Whensoever they took hold of thee by thea hand> thou didst run through, and tear open for them every hand, b
And <whencever they leaned upon thee> thou didst break, and caused all their loins [to halt]. e

||Therefore||

||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Behold me! bringing upon thee a sword,—
And I will cut off out of thee, man and beast;
And the land of Egypt shall become an astonishment and desolation,
So shall they know that ||I|| am Yahweh,—
Because he said—

||The river|| is mine own,
Since ||I myself|| made it d

||Therefore|| behold me! against thee, and against thy rivers,—

And I will make the land of Egypt, to be most desolate, an astounding desolation, From Migidol to Syene, even up to the boundary of Ethiopia:
The foot of man [shall not pass through it],
Nor shall |the foot of beast| pass through it,
Neither shall it be inhabited, forty years:
So will I make the land of Egypt a desolation in the midst of lands made desolate,
And <her cities—in the midst of cities that have been laid waste> shall become a desolation, forty years,—
And I will disperse the Egyptians among the nations,
And scatter them throughout the lands.

For ||thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
<At the end of forty years> will I gather the Egyptians from among the peoples whither I had dispersed them;
And I will turn the captivity of the Egyptians, e
And will cause them to return
To the land of Pathros,
Upon' the land of their nativity,—
And they shall become, there, a kingdom
abased:
<More than [any of] the kingdoms> shall she be
abased,
And shall lift herself up no more over the nations,—
Yea I will make them too small, to rule over the nations.
So shall it become no more, unto the house of Israel, a security,
Calling to mind iniquity, by their turning to follow them,—

And they shall know that ||I|| am The Lord,
Yahweh. g

And it came to pass <in the twenty-seventh year, in the first month, on the first of the month> that the word of Yahweh came' unto me, saying:
Son of man,
||Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon|| hath made his army undergo a long service against Tyre,
||Every head|| hath been made bald, and
||Every shoulder|| worn bare,—

But <pay> hath he had none, nor hath his army, out of Tyre, for the service wherewith he hath served against it.

19 [Therefore]
   ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
   Behold me! giving <to Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon> the land of Egypt,—
   And he shall carry off her multitude,
   And capture her spoil,
   And seize her prey,
   So shall she become pay for his army.

20 <As a reward for his labour wherewith he hath served> have I given to him the land of Egypt,—in that they wrought for me,
   Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

21 <In that day> will I cause to bud a horn for the house of Israel,
   And <to thee> will I give an opening of mouth, in their midst,
   So shall they know that ||I|| am Yahweh.

Chapter 30.
1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
2 Son of man,
   Prophesy, and thou shalt say,
   ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
   Howl ye, Alas for the day!
3 For <near> is a day,
   Yea <near> is a day pertaining to Yahweh,
   A day of cloud,
   <A time of nations> shall it be!
4 Then shall come a sword into Egypt,
   And there shall be a pang in Ethiopia,
   When the deadly wounded one falleth in Egypt,—
   And they take away her multitude, and her foundations are broken down.
5 Ethiopia and Libya and Lydia, and all the mixed multitude< and Cub, and the sons of the land of the covenant <with them—by the sword> shall they fall.
6 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
   Then shall fall' the supporters of Egypt,
   Then shall come down' the pride of her strength,—
   <From Migdol to Seweneh> <by the sword> shall they fall therein,
   Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

3 So shall they be made desolate in the midst of lands that are desolate,—
   And <his cities—in the midst of cities that are laid waste> shall be found.
4 So shall they know that ||I|| am Yahweh,—
   By my setting a fire in Egypt,
   When all her helpers [shall be broken].
5 <In that day> shall messengers go forth from before me, making haste; to cause dread unto Ethiopia so confident,—
   And a pang shall be upon them, in< the day of Egypt,
   For lo! it cometh.
6 ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
   Therefore will I cause to cease' the multitude of Egypt, by the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon.

11 ||He, and his people with him, the terrible ones of the nations|| are about to be brought in to destroy the land,—
   Therefore shall they unsheathe their swords against Egypt, and fill the land with the slain;
12 And I will make the rivers dry,< and will sell the land into the hand of wicked ones,—and make the land desolate, with the fulness thereof, by the hand of foreigners,
   ||I, Yahweh|| have spoken.

13 ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
   Therefore will I destroy the manufactured gods, and Cause to cease the worthless gods, out of Noph,
   <And prince out of the land of Egypt> shall none arise any more,—
   And I will cause fear in the land of Egypt.
14 Then will I bring desolation upon Pathros, and Set a fire in Zoan, and Execute judgments upon No: and Pour out mine indignation upon Sin, the stronghold of Egypt, and Will cut off the multitude of No.<

18 And <in Tehaphnehes> hath the day become dark, Because I have broken, there, the yoke-bars of Egypt, And there shall be made to cease therein the pride of her strength,—

19 Thus will I execute judgments on Egypt; And they shall know' that ||I|| am Yahweh.

20 And it came to pass <in the eleventh year, in the first month, on the seventh of the month> that the word of Yahweh came' unto me, saying:

21 Son of man, <The arm of Pharaoh king of Egypt> have I broken,—

22 [Therefore] ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh— Behold me! against Pharaoh king of Egypt, Therefore will I break his arms, That which is strong, and That which is broken,—

23 So will I cause the sword to fall out of his hand.

24 And I will disperse the Egyptians among the nations,—

25 Yea I will uphold the arms of the king of Babylon, But ||the arms of Pharaoh|| shall fall,—

Chapter 31.

1 And it came to pass <in the eleventh year, in the third month, on the first of the month> that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

2 Son of man, Say unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, and unto his multitude,—

Whom’ art thou like in thy greatness?

3 Lo! ||Assyria|| was a cedar<sup>b</sup> in Lebanon, Beautiful in bough and Dense in foliage, and Lofty in stature,— and <Among the clouds> came to be his top:

4 ||The waters|| made him great, ||The roaring deep|| made him high—with its currents going round about the place where it was planted,

5 ||For this cause|| <higher> was his stature, than any of the trees of the field,—

And multiplied’ were his boughs, And lengthened’ were his branches<sup>c</sup> By reason of the mighty waters, when he shot forth shoots.

6 <Among his branches> all the birds of the heavens made their nests; And <under his boughs> all the wild beasts of the field brought forth,—

And <in his shade> dwelt all the mighty nations.

7 Thus became he beautiful in his greatness, In the length of his waving branches,— Because his root had gone towards mighty waters.

And it came to pass <in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, on the first of the month> that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

1 And of man,
Take up a dirge, over Pharaoh king of Egypt, and thou shalt say unto him,

2 <The young lion of the nations> thou didst deem thyself,—
Whereas <thou> wast like the crocodile in the seas, d
And didst cause thy streams to burst forth,
And didst trouble the waters with thy feet,
And foul their rivers.

3 ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,

Therefore will I spread over thee my net,
With a gathered host of many peoples,—
And they shall bring thee up in my net;
And I will stretch thee out on the land,
<Over the face of the field> will I fling thee,—
And I will cause to settle upon thee all the birds of the heavens,
And will satiate, with thee, the wild beasts of all
the earth;
And I will lay thy flesh on the mountains,—
And fill the valleys with thy blood;
And will soak the earth with thy blood, amongst the mountains,—
And the channels shall be filled with thee.

And <when I quench thee>
I will cover the heavens,
And obscure their stars,—
<The sun—> with a cloud> will I cover,
And <the moon> shall not shed her light;
As for all the light-bearers in the heavens
I will obscure them over thee,—
And will stretch out darkness over thy land,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And I will aggrieve the heart of many peoples,— when I bring them who are broken off from thee among the nations, unto lands which thou hast not known.

Yea I will cause amazement, over thee, unto many peoples,
And the hair of their kings shall stand on end over thee, when I brandish my sword over their faces,—
And they shall tremble every moment, every man for his own life,
In the day of thy fall.

For <thus> saith My Lord, Yahweh:—
<The sword of the king of Babylon> shall reach thee.

<With the swords of mighty men> will I cause
thy multitude to fall,
<Terrible ones of the nations, all’ of them>,—
And they shall spoil the pride of Egypt,
And all her multitude shall be destroyed,
And I will cause to perish all her beasts, from beside the many waters,—

And the foot of man shall not trouble them] any more,
Nor shall [hoof of beast] trouble them.
<Then> will I make their waters [subside],
And <their streams—like oil> will I cause to flow,—
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

<When I make the land of Egypt an astonishment,
A land laid bare of its fulness,
When I cut off all that dwell therein>
Then shall they know’ that ||I|| am Yahweh.

<A dirge> it is’,
And they shall chant it,
||The daughters of the nations||
Shall chant it:
<Over Egypt and over all her multitude>
Shall they chant it,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And it came to pass <in the twelfth year, on the fifteenth of the month> that the word of Yahweh came unto me saying:
Son of man,
Wail thou over the multitude of Egypt, and cause it to descend—<her and the daughters of the famous nations>—into the earth below, with them who descend into the pit.
<Than whom> art thou more precious?
Descend and be laid low with the uncircumcised:
<Into the midst of them who were thrust through by the sword> let them fall,—
<To the sword> hath she been delivered up,
Lay ye hold of her, and all her multitudes.
The chiefs of the mighty [shall speak to him] out of the midst of hades, with his helpers,—
They have descended, They have lain down,
The uncircumcised!
Thrust through by the sword.

<There> is Assyria, with all her gathered host,
<Round about him> are his graves,
<All of them> shall be destroyed,
The fallen by the sword:
Whose graves [have been set]
In the recesses of the pit,

^b Or: “mighty.”
^c Ml.: “will cause the earth to drink an overflow of thee out of thy blood.”
^d Ml.: “And they shall dirge it.”
^e Ml.: “dirge.”
And so her gathered host is round about her grave,
All of them thrust through,
Who caused terror in the land of the living.

24 <There> is Persia, with all her multitude, round about her grave,
||All of them|| thrust through,
The fallen by the sword,
Who have descended, uncircumcised, into the earth below,
Who made themselves a terror in the land of the living,
And so they have borne their confusion, with them who descend into the pit:

25 <In the midst of them who were thrust through> have they have placed a couch for her, with all her multitude,
||Round about it|| are her graves,—
||All of them|| uncircumcised,
Thrust through with the sword,
For that their terror was caused in the land of the living,
And so they have borne their confusion, with them who descend into the pit,

26 <There> are Meshech-Tuba and all her multitude,
||Round about it|| are her graves,—
||All of them|| uncircumcised,
Who were thrust through with the sword,
For that they made themselves a terror in the land of the living;

27 Therefore shall they not lie with the mighty men,
The fallen ones from age-past times,
Who descended into hades with their weapons of war,
And their swords were placed under their heads,
But their iniquities have come upon their bones,
Because of the terror of the mighty, in the land of the living.

28 ||Thou|| therefore <in the midst of the uncircumcised> shalt be overthrown,

And shalt lie low with them who were thrust through by the sword.

29 <There> are Edom, her kings and all her princes,
Who have been delivered up in their might,
With them who were thrust through by the sword,—
||They|| <with the uncircumcised> shall lie low,
Even with them who descend into the pit.

30 <There> are the princes of the North, ||all of them||, and all the Zidonians,
Who have descended with them who were thrust through,
||By reason of the terror they caused|| <of their might> are they ashamed,
So they have lain down uncircumcised,
With them who were thrust through by the sword,
And they have borne their confusion, with them who descend into the pit.

31 <Them> shall Pharaoh ||see||, and be grieved over all his multitude,—
||Thrust through with the sword|| shall be Pharaoh and all his army!
Declareth My Lord Yahweh.

32 For I have suffered his terror to be in the land of the living,
Therefore ||shall be laid low||
||Thrust through with the sword|| shall be Pharaoh and all his multitude!
Declareth My Lord Yahweh.

§ 32. Divine Dealing with Individuals.
(cp. chaps. iii., xviii.)

Chapter 33.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
Son of man,
Speak unto the sons of thy people, and thou shalt say unto them,
||A land||—when I bring upon it a sword,—
And the people of the land shall take one man out of their whole number, and appoint him for them, as watchman;

a Heb.: qâhâl. Cp. chap. xvi. 40, etc.
b Gt.: “have they.” Cp. ver. 29—G.n.
c So it shd be (w. Sep.)—G.n. [M.C.T.: “from among the uncircumcised.”] d Lit.: “broken.”
e See note on chap. xx. 25.
f Written “his”; read: “my”—G.n.
3 And he shall see the sword coming upon the land,—and shall blow with the horn, and warn the people.

4 Then <as for him who ||really heard|| the sound of the horn> and took not warning:
   The sword indeed ||hath come|| and taken him away,—
   ||His blood|| upon his own head shall remain:—

5 <The sound of the horn> he heard, but took not warning,
   ||His blood|| upon himself shall remain,—
   Whereas <had he taken warning> <his own soul> he should have delivered.

6 But as for the watchman—
   When he seeth the sword coming,
   And hath not blown with the horn,
   And ||the people|| have not been warned,
   And the sword ||hath come|| and taken away from among them any person≥
   ||He|| for his iniquity hath been taken away,
   But ||his blood|| at the hand of the watchman|| will I require.

7 ||Thou|| therefore, Son of man,
   <A watchman> have I appointed thee, to the house of Israel,
   So then thou shalt hear, at my mouth, a message,
   and shalt warn them<,> will I demand.

8 ≤When I say to the lawless man,
   O lawless man, thou shalt ||surely die||,
   And thou have not spoken to warn the lawless man from his way≥
   ||He, the lawless man|| for his iniquity shall die,
   But <his blood—at thy hand> will I demand.

9 But ≤as for ||thyself||,
   When thou hast warned a lawless man from his way, to turn therefrom,
   And he hath not turned from his way≥
   ||He|| for his own iniquity shall die,
   But ||thou|| hast delivered ||thine own life||,≥

10 ||Thou|| therefore, Son of man,
   Say unto the house of Israel,
   ||Thus|| have ye spoken, saying:
   ≤When ||our transgressions and our sins|| are upon us,—and <for⁸ them> we’ are melting away≥
   How’, then, can we live?

11 Say unto them,
   <As I live>

   Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
   Surely, I can take no pleasure in the death of the lawless man,
   But that the lawless man turn’ from his way, and live,—
   Turn ye, turn ye, from your wicked ways,
   For wherefore’ should ye die, O house of Israel?

12 ||Thou|| therefore, Son of man
   Say unto the sons of thy people—
   ||The righteousness of the righteous man|| shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression,
   And <as for the lawlessness of the lawless man>
   He shall not stumble thereby, in the day of his return from his lawlessness,—
   Nor shall ||the righteous man|| be able to live thereby, in the day of his sin.

13 ≤When I say of the righteous man, He shall ||surely live|| but ||he|| hath trusted in his righteousness and committed perversity≥
   ||None of his righteous deeds|| shall be mentioned,
   But <by⁹ his perversity which he hath committed—thereby> shall he die.

14 And ≤when I say to the lawless man,
   Thou shalt ||surely die|| but he shall turn from his sin, and do justice and righteousness:
   <The debt-pledge> the lawless man shall restore,
   <Plunder> shall pay back,
   <In the statutes of life> hath walked, so as not to commit perversity≥
   He shall ||surely live||, he shall not die:—
   ||None of his sins|| which he hath committed|| shall be called to mind against him,—

Ye women have wrought abomination,
And every man—with the wife of his neighbour have ye defiled yourselves;
And the land shall ye inherit?

Thus shalt thou say unto them,

As I live surely they who are in the waste places shall fall, And him who is on the face of the field shall be devoured,—
And they who are in the mountain holds and in the pits shall by pestilence shall die;

And I will make the land a desolation and an
astonishment,

So shall be made to cease the pride of her strength,—
And the mountains of Israel shall be too desolate for any to pass through.

So shall they know that I am Yahweh,—
When I make the land a desolation and an astonishment, because of all their abominations which they have committed.

Therefore Son of man,

The sons of thy people who are talking against
thee,

Near the walls and in the entrances of the houses are speaking one with another, every man with his brother, saying,
Come in we pray you and hear, what is the word that is coming forth from Yahweh;

That they may come unto thee as people do'
come,
And may sit before thee, as my people,
And they will hear thy words,
But the words themselves will they not do,— though fond with their mouths they seem to be,
After their unjust gain their heart is going.

And lo! thou art to them—
As a bewitching song. Of one with a beautiful voice,

Justice and righteousness hath he done,
He shall surely live.

And can the sons of thy people say, The way of the Lord will not be equal? Nay! but their way will not be equal!

When the righteous man shall turn' from his righteousness, and commit perversity
Then shall he die for them;

But when the lawless man shall turn' from his lawlessness, and do justice and righteousness shall he' live.

And can ye then say, The way of the Lord will not be equal?

Every man—according to his own ways shall I judge you, O house of Israel!

And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the tenth month, on the fifth of the month, of our exile that there came unto me one that had escaped out of Jerusalem, saying,

Smitten' is the city!

Now the hand of Yahweh had come unto me, in the evening, before the coming of him who had escaped, and he had opened my mouth, by the time that he came to me in the morning,—so my mouth was opened, and I was dumb no longer. Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Son of man,

These inhabitants of waste places, on the soil of Israel are saying thus,

One was Abraham,
Yet he inherited the land,—
But we are many',

is the land' given as an inheritance.

Wherefore say unto them,

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh.

With the blood ye do eat, And your eyes ye do lift up unto your manufactured gods,
And the blood ye do shed; And the land shall ye inherit?

Ye men have taken your stand by your sword,

<Justice and righteousness> hath he done,
He shall surely live.

And can the sons of thy people say, The way of the Lord will not be equal? Nay! but their way will not be equal!

When the righteous man shall turn' from his righteousness, and commit perversity
Then shall he die for them;

But when the lawless man shall turn' from his lawlessness, and do justice and righteousness shall he' live.

And can ye then say, The way of the Lord will not be equal?

Every man—according to his own ways shall I judge you, O house of Israel!

And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the tenth month, on the fifth of the month, of our exile that there came unto me one that had escaped out of Jerusalem, saying,

Smitten' is the city!

Now the hand of Yahweh had come unto me, in the evening, before the coming of him who had escaped, and he had opened my mouth, by the time that he came to me in the morning,—so my mouth was opened, and I was dumb no longer. Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Son of man,

These inhabitants of waste places, on the soil of Israel are saying thus,

One was Abraham,
Yet he inherited the land,—
But we are many',

is the land' given as an inheritance.

Wherefore say unto them,

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh.

With the blood ye do eat, And your eyes ye do lift up unto your manufactured gods,
And the blood ye do shed; And the land shall ye inherit?

Ye men have taken your stand by your sword,
§ 33. Against the Shepherds of Israel. The True Shepherd judges both betwixt Classes and Individuals.

Chapter 34.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
2 Son of man, Prophesy against the shepherds of Israel,— Prophesy, and thou shalt say unto them, even to the shepherds— ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh— Alas! for the shepherds of Israel who have been tending [themselves]! Is it not ||the flock|| that the shepherds should tend?

3 <The milk> ye do eat And <with the wool> ye do clothe yourselves, <The well-fed> ye do sacrifice, b <The flock> ye do not tend:
4 <The weak> have ye not strengthened, And <the sick> have ye not healed, And <the torn> have ye not bound up, And <that which was driven out> have ye not brought back, And <that which was straying> have ye not sought out; But <with force> have ye ruled them, and with rigour.
5 And they were scattered, because there was no shepherd; And they became food for every wild beast of the field, So were they scattered.
6 My sheep did wander’ through all the mountains, And over every high hill,— And <over all the face of the land> were my sheep scattered, And there was none’ to inquire, And none’ to seek out.
7 ||Wherefore|| ye shepherds, hear ye the word of Yahweh:

8 <As I live>—

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, Surely ≤because my flock became a prey, And my flock became food for every wild beast of the field, through having no’ shepherd, Neither did my shepherds inquire after the flock,— But [the shepherds] tended [themselves]. And <my flock> they tended not≥

9 ||Therefore|| ye shepherds, hear ye the word of Yahweh:
10 ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me! against the shepherds, So then I will require my flock at their hand, And will cause them to cease tending the flock, Neither shall [the shepherds] any longer’ tend’ [themselves], But I will deliver my flock out of their mouth, that they may not be their’ food.
11 For

||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,— Here am ||I myself|| Therefore will I inquire after my flock, and seek them out:
12 <As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day he is in the midst of his sheep that are scattered> ||So|| will I seek out my sheep, and will deliver them out of all the places where they were scattered in the day of cloud and thick darkness;
13 And I will bring them out from among the peoples, And will gather them out of the lands, And will bring them upon their own soil,— And will tend them Upon the mountains of Israel, In the ravines, c And in all the habitable places of the land:
14 <In good pastures> will I feed them, And <on the mountains of the height of Israel> shall be their fold,— <There> shall they lie down, in a fold that is good, And <on pasture that is fat> shall they feed, among the mountains of Israel.
15 ||I myself|| will tend my flock, And ||I myself|| will cause them to lie down, a So it shd be (w. Sep. and Vul.)—G.n.

b That is, for eating. Cp. O.G. 257; also Lu. xv. 23, 30.

c Or; “channels.”
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh:

16 <That which is straying> will I seek out, And <that which hath been driven away> will I bring back, And <that which is torn> will I bind up, And <the weak> will I strengthen,— But <the fat and the strong> will I watch, *a I will feed them with justice.

17 And <as for you, O my flock> ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh: Behold me! judging between one kind of small cattle and another, as well the rams as the he-goats.

18 Is it too small a thing for you that <on the good pasture> ye feed, But <the remainder of your pastures> ye must needs trample down with your feet? Or that <of the pure waters> ye drink, But <the waters left remaining—with your feet> ye must needs foul?

19 And ||my flock|| <On what hath been trampled down by your feet> may feed, And <of what hath been fouled by your feet> may drink?

20 ||Therefore|| ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh, unto them: Here am ||I myself||, Therefore, will I judge between fat’ sheep and lean’ sheep,

21 Because <with the side and with the shoulder> ye do thrust, And <with your horns> ye do push all the sick,— Until you have scattered them abroad,

22 Therefore will I bring salvation *b to my flock, and they shall be no longer a prey,—but I will judge’ between one sheep and another,

23 And I will raise up over them one shepherd And he shall tend them, Even my servant David,— ||He|| will tend them, And ||he|| will become to them a shepherd;

24 And ||I, Yahweh|| will become to them a God. ||my servant David|| being a prince e in their midst,—

||I, Yahweh|| have spoken;

25 And I will solemnise for *d them a covenant of prosperity, And will cause to cease the mischievous wild-beast out of the land, And they shall dwell in the wilderness, securely, And shall sleep in the forests;

26 And I will make them’ and the places round about my hill’ a blessing,— And I will cause the abundant rain to come down in its season <abundant rains of blessing> shall they be;

27 And the tree of the field shall yield his fruit, And ||the land|| shall yield her increase, And they shall remain on their own soil, in security,—

So shall they know that ||I am Yahweh,|| When I have broken the bars of their yoke, And shall deliver them out of the hand of them who have been using them as slaves.

28 And they shall be no longer a prey for the nations, Nor shall ||the wild beast of the earth|| devour them,—

But they shall dwell securely, with none’ to put them in terror.

29 And I will raise up unto them a plantation for fame,*— And there shall be no longer the destroyed of hunger in the land, Neither shall they bear any longer the reproach of the nations.

30 So shall they *g know’ that ||I, Yahweh their God|| am with them,— And that ||they|| are my people, the house of Israel,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

31 ||Ye|| therefore, ||my flock, the flock of my pasture|| are ||men||,—

||I|| am your God,*

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 34. Against Mount Seir (Edom).
(Cp. § 25.)

Chapter 35.

1. And the word of Yahweh came `unto me, saying,
Son of man,
Set thy face against Mount Seir,—and prophesy against it; 3 and thou shalt say to it,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Behold me! against thee, Mount Seir,—
Therefore will I stretch out my hand against thee, And I will make thee a desolation and an astonishment:

2. <Thy cities> will I lay waste',
And <thou—a desolation> shalt become,—
So shalt thou know' that ||[I]|| am Yahweh.

3. <Because thou hast had an age-abiding enmity, And hast delivered up the sons of Israel unto the hands of the sword,—
In the time of their misfortune,
In the time of the final punishment for iniquity> 6
[Therefore] <as I live>
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Surely <regarding blood> will I deal with thee,
||Blood|| therefore, shall pursue thee,—
||Since ||[blood] thou hast not hated>a
Therefore ||[blood] shall pursue thee,
So then I will deliver up Mount Seir, to desolation after desolation,—
And will cut off therefrom, him that passeth by and him that returneth,
And I will fill his mountains with his slain,—
<As for thy hills and thy hollows and all thy channels> ||they who are thrust through by the sword|| shall fall therein:

4. <Desolations age-abiding> will I make thee,
And ||[thy cities] shall not be inhabited,b—
So shall ye know' that ||[I]|| am Yahweh.

5. <Because thou hast said,
||The two nations, and the two lands|| [mine] shall become, that we may possess it> 9
Whereas ||[Yahweh]|| had been ||there||
[Therefore], <as I live>
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
I will even deal according to thine anger, and according to thine envy, wherewith thou hast dealt, out of thy hatred, with them,—
So will I make myself known among them, as soon as I shall judge thee.

6. And thou shalt know' that ||[I]|| have heard all thy revilings, which thou hast uttered against the mountains of Israel saying,
They have become desolate,—
<To us> have they been given for food;
And so ye have magnified yourselves against me' with your mouth,
And have caused to abound against me' your words,—
||[I]|| have heard!

7. ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
<When all the earth is rejoicing> ||[a desolation]|| will I make thee:

8. As thou didst rejoice over the inheritance of the house of Israel, because it had become a desolation> ||[so]|| will I do unto thee,—
<A desolation> shalt thou become, O Mount Seir,
And all Edom, ||[all of it]|, So shall they know' that ||[I]|| am Yahweh.

§ 35. The Mountains of Israel are addressed, and Promises are made.

Chapter 36.

1. ||Thou|| therefore, Son of man, Prophesy unto the mountains of Israel,—and thou shalt say,
Ye mountains of Israel,
Hear ye the word of Yahweh.

2. ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
<Because the enemy hath said concerning you, Aha! ||Even the high places of age-past times|| [for a possession] have become ours> 3

3. ||Therefore|| prophesy, and thou shalt say,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
<Because, even because, they have desolated and panted for you, on every side, That ye should become a possession to the rest of the nations, And ye have come up into the talk of the tongue and the slander of the people> 11

---

4—G.n.
b So written; but read: "shall not return” or “be restored”—G.n.
And I will cause you to be inhabited as in your former estates,
And will do you more good than at your beginnings,
So shall ye know' that ||I|| am Yahweh;
12 And I will bring upon you—men, even my people Israel,
That they may possess thee,
So shalt thou be theirs, as an inheritance,—
And thou shalt no more again' make them childless.
13 ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
≤Because they are saying to you,
<A devourer of men> thou art',
And <one that didst make childless thy nations> hast thou been≥
14 |Therefore| <men> shalt thou not devour any more,—
And <thy nations> shalt thou make childless' no more,—
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh;
15 And I will not suffer to be heard against thee,
any more, the insult of the nations,
And <the reproach of the peoples> shalt thou not bear any more,—
And <thy nations> shalt thou not cause to stumble any more,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 36. The Evil Effects of Israel’s Dispersion are to be removed by her Restoration and Abundant Blessing.

And the word of Yahweh came' unto me, saying:
Son of man,
[The house of Israel] were dwelling upon their own soil.
But they defiled it, by their way, and by their doings.
<Like the defilement of her that is removed> became their way before me.
So I poured out mine indignation upon them,
Because of the blood which they had shed upon the land,—
Yea <with their manufactured gods> had they defiled it.
So I dispersed them among the nations,
And they were scattered throughout the lands,—

---

4 |Therefore| ye mountains of Israel, hear ye the word of My Lord, Yahweh,—
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,*
To the mountains and to the hills, to the channels and to the valleys, and to the desolate waste places, and to the cities that are forsaken, which have become a prey and a derision, to the rest of the nations, which are on every side:
5 |Therefore|
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Surely <in the fire of my jealousy> have I spoken against the rest of the nations, and against Edom all of it,—
Who have given my land to themselves for a possession,
In the rejoicing of all the heart,
In contempt of soul,
To make of its produce a prey.
6 |Therefore| prophesy, concerning the soil of Israel,—and say to the mountains and to the hills, to the channels and to the valleys,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Behold me!
<In my jealousy and in mine indignation> have I spoken,
Because <the insult of the nations> ye have borne;
7 |Therefore|
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
||I myself|| have lifted my hand,—
Surely ||the nations which are yours|| round about||<their own shame> shall bear:
8 But ||ye, O mountains of Israel||,
<Your boughs> shall ye shoot forth,
And <your fruit> shall ye bear,
For my people Israel,
For they have drawn near to enter.
9 For lo! I am towards you,
Therefore will I turn towards you,
And ye shall be tilled, and sown;
10 And I will multiply, upon you—men, All the house of Israel, All of it,
Then shall the cities [be inhabited],
And [the waste places] shall be built,
11 And I will multiply upon you—man and beast,
And they shall multiply and be fruitful,—

---

*a Or as two proper names: “Adhonây, Yahweh.”

*b This would seem the most natural rendering of the Hebrew, and the result may prove of value elsewhere.

*c Written: “cause to fall”; but read: “made childless.” Some cod. (w. 3 ear. pr. edns., Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.) both write and read: “make childless”—G.n.
28 According to their way and according to their doing, I judged them.

20 But they entered among the nations where they did enter; then profaned they my holy Name, in that it was said of them, “The people of Yahweh” these! Yet have they come forth!

21 So then I had tender regard for my holy Name, which the house of Israel had profaned among the nations, where they had entered.

22 Therefore say thou to the house of Israel, “Not for your sakes do I do this, house of Israel, but for my holy Name, which ye have profaned among the nations that ye have entered; therefore will I hallow my great Name, that hath been profaned among the nations, which ye have profaned in their midst,—So shall the nations know that I am Yahweh, when I have hallowed myself in you, before their eyes.

24 Therefore will I take you from among the nations, and gather you out of all the lands, and will bring you upon your own soil; and I will throw upon you clean water, and ye shall be clean,—<From all your uncleannesses and from all your manufactured gods> will I cleanse you;

26 And I will give you a new heart, and will put within you,—And I will take away the heart of stone, out of your flesh, and will give you a heart of flesh;

27 And will I put within you,—And will cause That in my statutes ye shall walk, and in my regulations ye shall observe, and do;

28 And ye shall dwell in the land which I gave to your fathers,—And ye shall become my people,

And I will save you, out of all your uncleannesses,—And will call for the corn, and will increase it, and will not lay upon you, famine;

And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the increase of the field,—To the end that ye may not receive any more, the reproach of famine among the nations.

31 Then shall ye call to mind Your ways that were wicked, and Your doings that were not good,—And shall become loathsome in your own sight, For your iniquities, and For your abominations.

32 Not am I working, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, be it known to you,—Turn ye pale and then blush for your ways, O house of Israel.

33 In the day when I cleanse you, from all your iniquities Then will I cause the cities to be inhabited, And the waste places shall be tilled,—Whereas it was a desolation, before the eyes of every passer-by;

35 And they shall say, This land that was made desolate hath become like the garden of Eden,—And the cities that were waste and deserted and thrown down<now fenced> are inhabited;

36 So shall the nations that may be left remaining round about you know that I am Yahweh—Have built that which was thrown down, and have planted that which was made desolate,—II, Yahweh have spoken, and performed.

37 ||Thou|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,

||Thou|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
<Even yet—for this> will I be prevailed upon by the house of Israel, to work for them,—
I will multiply them—
Like a flock—with men:
Like a flock of holy offerings,
Like the flock of Jerusalem, in her appointed feasts;-
||So| shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of men,—
And they shall know' that ||f| am Yahweh.

§ 37. The Prophetic Vision of the Dry Bones.

Chapter 37.

1 <The hand of Yahweh> [being upon me]> he carried me forth in the spirit of Yahweh, and set me down in the midst of a plain,—and [the same] was full of bones: 2 and he caused me to pass near them, round about on every side,—and lo! they were very many, on the face of the plain, and lo!
they were very dry. 3 Then said he unto me,
Son of man,
Can these bones [live]?
And I said,
My Lord, Yahweh, [thou] knowest!
4 Then said he unto me,
Prophesy, over these bones,—and thou shalt say unto them,
Ye bones so dry! hear ye the word of Yahweh!
5 ||Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Unto these bones,— Lo! I am about to bring into you—spirit, and ye shall live;
6 Yea I will lay upon you—sinews,
And bring up over you—flesh,
And cover over you—skin,
And put in you—spirit,
And ye shall live,
Then shall ye know' that ||f| am Yahweh.
7 And <when I prophesied, as I was commanded>— then was there a noise, as I prophesied, and lo! a rattling, and the bones [came near], each bone unto its own bone. 8 And <when I looked> then lo!
upon them were sinews, and ||flesh| had come up,
and there had spread’ over them skin, above,—but <spirit> was there none' within them. 9 Then said

he unto me,
Prophesy unto the spirit,— Prophesy, Son of man, and thou shalt say unto the spirit,
||Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh—
<From the four winds>a come thou, O spirit,b
And breathe into these slain,
That they may live.
10 And <when I prophesied, as he commanded me> then came into them the spirit, and they lived, and stood upon their feet, an exceeding' great army. 11
Then said he unto me,
Son of man,
||These bones| are [all the house of Israel],—
Lo! they are saying,
Dried' are our bones, and lost' is our hope,
We are quite' cut off!
12 |Therefore| prophesy and thou shalt say unto
them,
||Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Lo |[I myself]| am going to open your graves,
And will cause you to come up out of your graves, O my people,—
And will bring you upon the soil of Israel.
13 So shall ye know' that ||f| am Yahweh,—
When I open' your graves,
And cause'a you to come up out of your graves,
O my people,
14 And I will put my spirit within you, and ye shall live,
And I will settle you upon your own soil,—
So shall ye know' that ||f, Yahweh| have spoken and have performed.

Declareth Yahweh.

§ 38. The Reunion of Judah and Joseph (Israel) foretold under the Symbol of Two Sticks becoming One.

15 And the word of Yahweh came’ unto me, saying:
|Thou| therefore, Son of man,
Take thee one stick, and write upon it,

a Or: “spirits.”

b Or: “wind”; but it is a “breathing,” “life-giving” wind; and it is the same word that is rendered “spirit” in ver. 14. The English reader may well regret that he has, in his mother-tongue, no single word which with equal aptness means either “wind” or “spirit.” That is the inimitable felicity of the Hebrew of this passage.

c Or: “by my opening.”

d Or: “by my causing.”
For Judah, and for the sons of Israel his companions, a
Then take thou another stick, and write upon it,
For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and all the house of Israel, his companions.

Then bring them near—the one to the other—for thee, into one stick,—
And they shall become united in thy hand. b
And ≤ when the sons of thy people | speak unto thee, saying,— Wilt thou not tell us, what’ these things are’ to thee?≥
speak unto them,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Lo! ||I myself|| am going to take the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel, his companions, c—
And I will place them upon it, even upon the stick of Judah,
And will make of them one’ stick,
And they shall become one, in my hand.
And the sticks whereon thou shalt write shall remain in thy hand, before their eyes.
Therefore speak thou unto them,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Lo! ||I myself|| am going to take the sons of Israel, from among the nations, whither they have gone,—
And I will gather them from every side,
And will bring them in upon their own soil;
And will make of them one’ nation in the land,
among the mountains d of Israel,
And <one king> shall they all’ have, for king,—
And they shall remain no longer’ two nations,
Nor shall they be divided into two kingdoms
||any more||.
Neither shall they defile themselves any more
With their manufactured gods, or
With their detestable things, or
With any of their transgressions,—

But I will save them out of all their dwelling-places, e wherein’ they have sinned,
And I will cleanse them,
And they shall become my’ people, f
And ||I|| will become their’ God. h

And ||my servant David|| shall be king over them,
And <one shepherd> shall they all’ have,—
And <in my regulations> shall they walk,
And <in my statutes> shall they observe, and do them.

And they shall dwell upon the land, which I gave to my servant—to Jacob, Wherein your fathers |
dwel|t|,—
Yea they shall dwell thereupon,
||They, and their children, and their children’s children||
Unto times age-abiding,
And ||David my servant|| shall be prince i unto them,
Unto times age-abiding.
And I will solemnise to them a covenant of prosperity; j

<A covenant age-abiding> shall it be with them,—
And I will place them, And multiply them,
And set my sanctuary in the midst of them, Unto times age-abiding.

And my habitation shall be over k them,
And I will become their’ God, l—
And ||they|| shall become my’ people. m

So shall the nations know that ||I, Yahweh|| am hallowing Israel,—
When a my sanctuary is in the midst of them, Unto times age-abiding.

(chaps. xxxviii., xxxix.)

Chapter 38.

1 And the word of Yahweh came’ unto me, saying:

a Written: “companion”; but read: “companions” (pl.). In some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn.) both written and read: “companions”—G.n.
b Some cod. (w. 3 ear. pr. edns.): “hands” (pl.)—G.n.
c See ver. 16, n.
d A sp. v.r. (sevir): “cities”—G.n. e Gt.: “apostacies.” Cp. Jer. v. 6—G.n. [A conjectural reading only; yet, surely, much to be preferred!]
f Or: “whereby.”
g Or: “to me a people.”
h Or: “to them a God.”
i Or: “leader.”
j Or: “peace.”
k Cp. Is. iv. 5, 6; Rev. vii. 15.
l Or: “to them a God.”
m Or: “to me a people.”
n Ml.: “by the existence of my s. in,” etc.
Son of man,
Set thy face against
Gog, of the land of the Magog,
Prince of Rosh, Meshech and Tubal,—
And prophesy concerning him; 3 and thou shalt say,

||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
Behold me! against thee, O Gog,
Prince of Rosh, Meshech and Tubal;
Therefore I will turn thee about, and will put hooks in thy jaws,—and bring thee forth, and all thine army, Horses and horsemen, Clothed with gorgeous attire, [all of them],
A mighty gathered host, With shield and buckler, handling swords, [all of them];
Persia, Ethiopia and Libya, with them,
||All of them|| with shield and helmet;
Gomer, and all her hordes,
The house of Togarmah, the remote men of the North, and all his hordes,
Many peoples with thee.
Be ready, and show thyself ready,
||Thou and all thy gathered host, d who have gathered themselves unto thee||,—
And become thou for me, e a guard.

<After many days> shalt thou muster thy forces,
<In the after part of the years> shalt thou enter Into the land of the remnant brought back from the sword,
Gathered from among many peoples,
Upon the mountains of Israel, which have been waste continually,—
But ||the same|| <from among the peoples>
hath been brought forth,
And they shall dwell in security, all of them.

Then shalt thou come up,
<Like a storm> shalt thou enter,
<Like a cloud covering the land> shalt thou be,— ||Thou, and all thy hordes, and many peoples with thee||.

||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
So shall it be in that day, that thoughts will come up on thy heart,—
And thou wilt devise a wicked device; 11 and wilt say—
I will go up over a land of hamlets,
I will enter among them who are at rest,
dwelling securely,—
||All of them|| dwelling without a wall,
Who <bars and doors> have none;
To capture spoil,
And take prey,—
To bring back thy hand over desolate places at length inhabited,
And against a people gathered from among the
nations,
Getting herds and substance,
Dwelling upon the navel of the earth.b

||Sheba and Dedan and the traders of Tarshish
and all her young lions|| will say to thee,
<To capture spoil> art thou' coming?
And <to take prey> hast thou called together
thy gathered host?
To carry off silver and gold,
To take away herds and substance,—
To capture great spoil?

|Therefore| prophesy, Son of man, and thou shalt say to Gog,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh:
Shall it not be <in that day, because my people
Israel are dwelling securely> that thou wilt rouse thyself?
Therefore wilt thou come out of thy place, Out of the remote parts of the North, ||Thou, and many peoples with thee||,—Riding on horses, all of them, A mighty gathered host, Yea a great army;
Therefore wilt thou come up, against my people
Israel, like a cloud covering the land,—
<In the afterpart of the days> shall it be, that I will suffer thee to enter upon my land,

To the end the nations [may know me], when I hallow myself<sup>a</sup> in thee before their eyes, O Gog!

||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,

Art ||thou|| he’ of whom I spake in days aforetime, by the hand of my servants the prophets of Israel, who kept on prophesying in those days, for years,—

That thou shouldst be suffered to come against them?

So then shall it come to pass in that day,

<In the day when Gog entereth’ upon the soil of Israel,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh>

That mine indignation [shall come up] into my nostrils;

Yea, <in my jealousy, in the fire of mine outburst> have I spoken,—

Surely <in that day> shall there be a great trembling upon the soil of Israel:

Then shall tremble before me

The fishes of the sea, and

The bird of the heavens, and

The wild beast of the field, and

Every creeping thing that creepeth on the ground, and

All the men, we are on the face of the ground,—and

The mountains [shall be torn asunder], and

And it shall be enough to keep back them who would pass through,— and they shall bury there, Gog and all his multitude, and shall call it, Ge-hamon-gog.
[That is “The valley of the multitude of Gog.”]

<The flesh of mighty men> shall ye eat,
And <the blood of the princes of the earth> shall ye drink,— Rams, well-fed lambs and he-goats, bullets, Fatlings of Bashan, all of them;
And ye shall eat fat till ye are sated,
And drink blood till ye are drunken,
Of my sacrifice which I have sacrificed for you;

19 So shall ye be sated at my table, with horse and chariot team, mighty man, and every man of war,—
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

21 Thus will I set my glory among the nations,—
And all the nations |shall see|
My judgment, which I have executed,—and My hand, which I have laid upon them.

22 So shall the house of Israel know' that ||I, Yahweh|| am their God,—from that day and forward;

23 And the nations shall know'
That <in^d their iniquity> were the house of Israel exiled’ because they had committed treachery against me, And so I hid my face from them,—And gave them into the hand of their adversaries, And they fell by the sword, [all of them].

24 <According to their uncleanness and according to their transgressions> dealt I with them,—
And so I hid my face from them.

25 ||Therefore||—
="||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
||Now|| will I bring back them of the captivity of Jacob,
And have compassion upon all the house of Israel,—
And will be jealous for my holy’ Name;

Chapter 40.

1 In the twenty-fifth year of our exile, at the beginning of the year, on the tenth of the month, in the fourteenth year, after the city was smitten, came upon me the hand of Yahweh, and he brought me thither: 2 In the visions of God he brought me into the land of Israel,—and set me down upon an exceeding high mountain, and thereupon was, as it were, the structure of a city, on the south. 3 And when he brought me thither then lo! a man, whose appearance was like the appearance of bronze, with a flax-cord in his hand, and a measuring reed,—and he was standing in the gate. 4 And the man spake unto me [saying],

Son of man
See with thine eyes,
And hear thou,
And apply thy heart to whatsoever I am about to show thee,
For to the intent it might be shown thee hast thou been brought hither,— Declare all that thou seest unto the house of Israel.

5 And lo a wall on the outside of the house, round about on every side,—and in the hand of the man was the measuring reed, six cubits by the cubit, and a handbreadth, so he measured the breadth of the enclosing-wall, one reed, and the height, one reed.

Then came he unto the gate that looked toward the east, and went up by the steps thereof,—and measured the threshold of the gate, one reed broad, and the other threshold, one reed broad. 7 And the lodge was one reed long, and one reed broad, and between the lodges was a space of five cubits,—and the threshold of the gate from beside the porch of the gate inwards was one reed. 8 Then measured he the porch of the gate inwards, one reed. 9 Then measured he the porch of the gate, eight cubits, and the projections thereof, two cubits,—and the porch of the gate was within. 10 And the lodge of the gate that was towards the east were, three on this side, and three on that side, one reed; and one measure had they three',—and one measure had the projections, on this side and on that side. 11 Then measured he the breadth of the entrance of the gate, ten cubits,—the length of the gate, thirteen cubits. 12 And the space before the lodges was one cubit, and the space on that side; and the lodge itself was six cubits on this side, and six cubits on that side. 13 Then measured he the gate, from the roof of this lodge to the roof of that, a breadth of twenty-five cubits,—entrance over against entrance. 14 Then measured he the porch, twenty cubits,—even unto the projection of the court, the lodge's of the gate round about on every side; 15 and from the face of the gate outwards, unto the face of the porch of the inner gate was fifty cubits. 16 And latticed windows had the lodges, even towards their projections within the gate, round about on every side, and had the recesses,—and windows round about on every side inwards, and against each projection palm trees.

17 Then he brought me into the outer court, and lo! chambers and a tesselated pavement, made to the court round about on every side,—thirty chambers against the pavement. 18 And the pavement was against the side of the gates, answering to the length of the gates,—the lower pavement. 19 Then measured he the breadth, from the front of the lower gate, to the front of the inner court on the outside, one hundred cubits,—to the east and the north. 20 And as for the gate which looked

24 Then he took me toward the south, and lo! [[a gate]] toward the south,—and he measured the projections thereof, and the recesses thereof, according to these measures. 25 And [[windows]] were there to it, and the recesses thereof round about on all sides, like these windows,— fifty cubits in length, and <in breadth> five-and-twenty cubits. 26 And [[seven steps]] the ascents thereof, with its recesses, within,—and it had [[palm-trees]] one on this side and one on that side, against the projections thereof. 27 And [[a gate]] had the inner court, towards the south,—so he measured from gate to gate, toward the south, a hundred cubits. 28 Yea <when he brought me to the inner court through the south gate> then measured he the south gate, according to these measures; and [[the lodges] thereof, and the projections] thereof, and the recesses thereof, round about on every side,—fifty cubits in length, and <in breadth> twenty and five cubits; and [[there were] recesses, round about on every side,—in length] fifty cubits, and [in breadth] five and twenty cubits; 30 and [[the recesses] thereof] [reached] unto the outer court, with [[palm-trees]] against the projections thereof, and [[eight steps]] were the ascents thereof.

ascending-sacrifice. 39 And <in the porch of the gate> were two tables, on this side, and two tables, on that side,—to slay thereon, the ascending-sacrifice, and the sin-bearer, and the guilt-bearer.

40 And <at the side without, in ascending to the entrance of the north gate> were two tables,—and <at the other side which pertaineth to the porch of the gate> were two tables. 41 ||Four tables|| on this side and ||four tables|| on that side, by the side of the gate,—||eight tables|| whereupon they shall slay.

42 And ||the four tables for the ascending-offering|| were of hewn stone, ||in length|| one cubit and a half, and ||in breadth|| one cubit and a half, and ||in height|| one cubit,—that <thereon> they may lay the instruments wherewith they shall slay the ascending-offering and the sacrifice. 43 And there were ||hooks of one hand-breadth|| fastened within, round about on every side,—and <under the tables> the flesh of the offering. 44 And <on the outside of the inner gate> were the chambers of the singers, in the inner court, whichb was at the side of the north gate, and ||their front||f was toward the south,—||one|| at the side of the southd gate, fronting, toward the north. 45 Then spake he unto me [saying],

||This chamber, whose front is toward the south||, is for the priests’ keeping the charge of the house; 46 and ||the chamber whose front is towards the north|| is for the priests keeping the charge of the altar,—||the same|| are the sons of Zadok,—who draw near, from among the sons of Levi, unto Yahweh, to wait upon him.

47 Then measured he the court, ||the length|| a hundred cubits, and ||the breadth|| a hundred cubits, foursquare,—with the altar before the house.

48 And <when he brought me unto the porch of the house> then measured he the projection of the porch, ||five cubits|| on this’ side, and ||five cubits|| on that’ side,—and ||the breadth of the gate|| was three cubits on this’ side, and three cubits on that’ side: 49 ||the length of the porch|| was twenty cubits, and ||the breadth|| twelve cubits, and by ten stepsb they ascend into it,—and there were pillars against the projections, ||one|| on this’ side, and ||one|| on that’ side.

Chapter 41.

1 Then he took me unto the temple,—and measured the projection, six cubits broad on this side and six cubits broad on that side, the breadth of the tent. 2 And ||the breadth of the entrance|| was ten cubits, and ||the sides of the entrance|| were five cubits on this’ side, and five cubits on that’ side,—and he measured the length thereof, forty cubits, and the breadth, twenty cubits.

3 Then went he inwards, and measured the projection of the entrance, two cubits,—||and the entrance itself|| was six cubits, and ||the sides|| of the entrance|| seven cubits: 4 so he measured the length thereof twenty cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits, at the front of the temple. 5 Then said he unto me,

||This|| is the holy of holies.

Then measured he the wall of the house six cubits,—and the breadth of the side-chamber, four cubits round about on every side of the house, round about. 6 And ||the side-chambers, one over another|| were three, and that thirty times, and they entered into the wall which pertained to the house for the side-chambers round about on every side, that they might have support,—and yet not have support in the wall of the house itself. 7 And there was a broadening and a winding about higher and higher to the side-chambers, for ||the circuit of the house|| was higher and higher round about on every side of the house, ||for this cause|| was there a broadening of the house upwards,—and <fromk the lower> one ascended to the higher, by that which was in the middle. 8 Then saw I that the house had a height round about on every side,—the foundations of the side-chambers, a full reed, six cubits, to the joining.

9 ||The breadth of the wall which pertained to the side-chamber on the outside|| was five cubits,—and which that was left vacant between the side-chambers which pertained to the house.

The altar was of wood, three cubits in height, and the length thereof two cubits, and the corners thereof and the length thereof and the walls thereof were of wood, then spake he unto me saying.

This is the table which is before Yahweh.

And there were two doors to the temple, and to the holy place; and two leaves to the doors, two folding leaves, to the one door, and to the other door. And there had been made unto them, unto the doors of the temple, cherubim and palm-trees, like as had been made to the walls, and thick beams of wood unto the front of the porch without. And there were latticed windows and palm-trees on this side and on that side, unto the sides of the porch, and unto the side chambers of the house and the thick beams.

Chapter 42.

Then he took me forth unto the outer court, the way toward the north, and brought me unto the chamber which was over against the secluded place and which was over against the enclosing-wall, towards the north. <Facing the length of the hundred cubits> was the entrance of the north, and the breadth was fifty cubits: over against the twenty which pertained to the inner court, and over against the pavement which pertained to the outer court was gallery facing gallery, by the thirties; and before the chambers was a walk ten cubits in breadth inward, a way of one cubit, and their entrances were to the north.

Now the highest chambers were shortened, because the galleries took away therefrom more than from the lower or from the middle, in structure. For three stories they were; and had not pillars like the pillars of the courts; for this cause it differed from the lowest and from the middle, from the ground.

And as for the wall that was without, answering to the chambers, toward the outer court, facing the chambers the length thereof was fifty cubits. For the length of the chambers which pertained to the outer court was fifty cubits, and lo! in front of the temple, a hundred cubits. And it was made with cherubim and palm-trees, with a palm-tree between cherub and cherub, and two faces had each cherub.

And the appearance of the holy place was like the appearance of the temple.
under these chambers> was the entry from< the east when one goeth in by them' from the outer court. 10 <In the thickness of the wall of the court toward the east facing the secluded place and facing the enclosing wall> were chambers.

11 And ||[the way before them]|] was like the appearance of the chambers which were toward the north, <as was their length> ||[so] was their breadth,—and ||all their exits| were both according to their regulations, and according to their entrances. 12 And <according to the entrances of the chambers which were toward the south> was the entrance at the head of the way—the way in the face of the covered wall, the way toward the east in entering them.

13 Then said he unto me,

<The chambers of the north, the chambers of the south, which face the secluded place> ||[they]| are the holy chambers, b where the priests who draw near to Yahweh shall eat' the most holy things; <there> shall they lay the most holy things, and the meal offering and the sin-bearer and the guilt bearer, for ||[the place]| is [holy].

14 <When the priests enter’ them> then shall they not go forth out of the holy place into the outer court, but <there> shall they lay their garments wherein they minister, for ||[holy]| they are’, and shall put on other garments, and so draw near unto that which pertaineth to the people.

15 And <when he had ended the measurings of the inner house> then he brought me forth by way of the gate which looked toward the east,—and measured it, round about on every side.

16 He measured the east side with the measuring reed,—five hundred reeds by the measuring reed, round about. 17 He measured the north side,—five hundred reeds, by the measuring reed, round about. 18 <The south side> measured he,—five hundred reeds, by the measuring reed. 19 He turned about to the west side,—he measured five hundred reeds, by the measuring reed. 20 <Toward the four winds>c measured he it, <[a wall]> had it round about on every side, ||[in length]| five hundred, and ||[in breadth]| five hundred,—to make a separation, between the holy and the common.

Chapter 43.

1 Then he took me unto the gate,—even the gate that looked toward the east; 2 when lo! ||the glory of the God of Israel|| coming from the way of the east,—and ||the sound of him|| was as the sound of many waters, and ||[the earth]| shone with his glory.

3 And it was like the appearance of the vision which I had seen, like the vision which I saw—when I came in to destroy the city, also ||[the visions]| were like the vision which I saw by the river Chebar,—so I fell upon my face. 4 And ||[the glory of Yahweh]|| entered into the house,—by way of the gate which looked toward the east. 5 So then the spirit ||[lifted me up]|, and brought me into the inner court,—and lo! the glory of Yahweh filled’ the house. 6 Then heard I one speaking unto me, out of the house,—and ||[man]| there was, standing beside me. 7 Then said he unto me,

Son of man,

||[This is] the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I would dwell in the midst of the sons of Israel, to times age-abiding,—||

But the house of Israel ||must no more defile| my holy’ Name, ||[They], nor their kings]| by their unchastity, and by the carcases of their kings, in their high places.d

8 <When they placed—

Their’ threshold by my’ threshold, and their’ door-post beside my’ door-post,

With only ||[the wall]| between me and them> then defiled they my holy’ Name by their abominations which they committed,

Wherefore I devoured them, in mine anger.

9 ||[Now]| let them remove their unchastity, and the carcases of their kings, far from me,—

So will I make my habitation in the midst of them, to times age-abiding.

10 ||[Thou]|c son of man,

Declare the house ||unto the house of Israel|,

That they may be put to the blush for their iniquities,—

Then let them measure the pattern.

And the arrangement thereof,
And the exits thereof,
And the entrances thereof,
And all the forms\(^a\) thereof, and all the statutes thereof,
And all the forms\(^b\) thereof, and all the laws\(^c\) thereof, make thou known unto them,
And write\(^d\) [it] before their eyes;
That they may keep—
All the forms thereof,
And all the statutes thereof,
And do them.

||This|| shall be the law of the house,—
<Upon the top of the mountain> ||all the boundary thereof round about on every side|| shall be most holy, Lo! ||this|| shall be the law of the house.

And ||these|| shall be the measures of the altar, in cubits, ||a cubit|| being a cubit and a handbreadth; and ||the hollow|| shall be a cubit, and ||a cubit|| the breadth, and ||the boundary thereof unto the edge thereof round about|| shall be a single span.

And ||this|| shall be the upper part\(^e\) of the altar. 14
And <from the hollow of the ground unto the lower ledge> [shall be] two cubits, and ||the breadth|| one cubit,—and <from the smaller ledge unto the larger ledge> [shall be] four cubits, and ||the hollow|| shall be a cubit. 15

Son of man,
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
||These|| shall be the statutes of the altar, in the day when it is made,—for offering up thereon—an ascending-sacrifice, and for dashing\(^f\) thereon—blood. 19
So then thou\(^g\) shalt give unto the priests the Levites, those\(^h\) who are of the seed of Zadok, who approach unto me,

Declareth My Lord Yahweh,
to wait upon me,—a young bullock, as a sin-bearer. 20
Then shalt thou take of the blood thereof, and place upon the four horns thereof, and on the four corners of the ledge, and on the boundary, round about,—and shalt cleanse it from sin, and put a propitiatory-covering over it. 21
Then shalt thou take the bullock bearing sin,\(^i\)—and shalt burn it in the appointed place of the house, outside the sanctuary. 22
And <on the second day> shalt thou bring near a kid of the goats without defect, as a sin-bearer,—and they shall cleanse the altar from sin,\(^j\) just as they cleansed it from sin with the bullock. 23
<When thou hast made an end of cleansing from sin> thou shalt bring near a young bullock without defect, and a ram out of the flock, without defect; 24 and shalt bring them near before Yahweh,—and the priests [shall cast over them] salt, so shall they cause them to go up as an ascending-sacrifice to Yahweh. 25
<Seven days> shalt thou offer a sin-bearing goat, for each day,—and  shall they offer.

<Seven days> shall they put a propitiatory covering over the altar, and shall purify it,—and shall consecrate it.\(^k\) 27 <When the days shall be accomplished> then shall it be, <on the eighth day and forward> that the priests shall offer upon the altar your ascending-sacrifices, and your peace offerings.

And I will accept you,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

Chapter 44.

1 Then he brought me back, toward the outer gate of the sanctuary, which looked toward the east,— but [it] was shut. 2 Then said Yahweh unto me,
   ||This gate|| <shut> shall remain,
   It shall not be opened,
   And ||no man|| shall enter thereby,
   Because ||Yahweh, God of Israel|| doth enter thereby,—
   Therefore shall it remain—shut.

3 The prince! <as prince> ||he|| shall sit therein,
   To eat food, before Yahweh,—
   <By way of the porch of the gate> shall he go in, and
   <By way thereof> shall he come out.

4 Then he brought me in by way of the north gate, unto the front of the house, and I looked, and lo!
   |the glory of Yahweh| filled` |the house of Yahweh|,—so I fell upon my face. 5 And Yahweh
   |said unto me,
   Son of man,
   Apply thy heart,
   And see with thine eyes,
   And <with thine ears> hear thou,
   All that I am speaking with thee,
   As to all the statutes of the house of Yahweh, and
   As to all the laws thereof,—
   And thou shalt apply thy heart
   To the entering in of the house,
   With all the exits of the sanctuary.

6 So then thou shalt say unto the perverse [house],
   unto the house of Israel,
   ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh:
   Let it more than suffice you,
   Out of all your abominations, O house of Israel:

7 That ye brought in the sons of the foreigner,
   Uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh,
   To be in my sanctuary, So that be profaned my house,—

That ye brought near as my food, the fat and the blood, And so they brake my covenant—
   Among all your abominations;

Neither kept ye the charge of my holy things,—
   But ye did set [men] to be keepers of my charge in my sanctuary, for your own pleasure.

||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
No son of a foreigner,
   Uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh,
   shall enter into my sanctuary,—of any son of a foreigner, who is in the midst of the sons of Israel.

But <as for the Levites,>
   Who went far from me, when Israel went astray,
   Who went astray from me, after their manufactured gods>
   Therefore shall they bear their iniquity; 1
   Yet shall they remain in my sanctuary
   As attendants in charge at the gates of the house,—
   And attending upon the house,—
   ||They|| shall slay the ascending-offering, and the sacrifice of the people,
   And ||they|| shall stand before them, to wait upon them.

<Because they used to wait upon them, before their manufactured gods, and became to the house of Israel a stumbling-block of iniquity>
   ||For this cause|| have I lifted up my hand concerning them,
   Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
   and they shall bear their iniquity;

So then they shall not come near unto me,
   To minister as priests unto me,
   Nor come near unto any of my holy things,
   As regardeth things most holy, 1
   But they shall bear their rebuke, and their abominations which they have committed;
   Yet will I make them keepers of the charge of the house,—
   As to all the labour thereof, and

15 But the priests the Levites, the sons of Zadok, Who kept the charge of my sanctuary—when the sons of Israel went astray from me—shall draw near unto me, to wait upon me,—And shall stand before me, to bring near unto me the fat and the blood, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh:

16 ||They|| shall enter into my sanctuary, and ||They|| shall draw near unto my table, to wait upon me,—So shall they keep my charge.

17 And it shall be <when they shall enter into the gates of the inner court> ||Garments of linen|| shall they put on,—Yea there shall come upon them no wool, when they minister in the gates of the inner court, and within:

18 ||Chaplets of linen|| shall be upon their head, and ||Breeches of linen|| shall be upon their loins,—They shall not gird themselves, so as to perspire.||

19 And <when they go forth into the outer court, into the outer court unto the people> They shall put off their garments, wherein they do minister, and lay them in the chambers of the holy place,—And shall put on other garments, That they may not hallow the people by their garments. And <their heads> shall they not shave, Nor let ||the hair|| grow long.—They shall ||only poll|| their heads.

20 And <wine> shall no priest drink,—when they enter into the inner court.

23 And <in a controversy> ||They|| shall stand up for justice, <With my judgments> shall they judge it,—And <my laws and my statutes in all mine appointed assemblies> shall they observe, And <my sabbaths> shall they hallow. And <unto no dead person><shall they go in, to defile themselves,—Save that <for father or for mother or for son or for daughter, for brother, or for sister who hath belonged to no husband> they may defile themselves. Chapter 45.

And when ye shall by lot divide the land as an inheritance, ye shall offer up as a heave-offering to Yahweh a holy portion out of the land, in length five and twenty thousand, and in breadth twenty thousand. And shall it be throughout all the territory thereof, round about. There shall be, out of this, for the holy place five hundred by five hundred, four-square round about,—and fifty cubits, as an open space to it, round about. And out of this measure shalt thou measure, a length of five and twenty thousand, and a breadth of ten thousand,—and therein shall be the sanctuary, the holy of holies; a holy portion out of the land it is, for for the priests who wait in the sanctuary shall it be, who draw near to wait upon Yahweh,—so shall it be theirs, as a place for houses, and a sanctuary, for the sanctuary. And five and twenty thousand in length, and ten thousand in breadth,—and it shall be for the Levites who possess the city, on the west side thereof, round about. And one lamb out of the flock shall be for oil—a tenth part of a bath out of a homer, and a third of a hin, of the finest flour, and the sixth of an ephah out of a homer, and fifteen shekels of the purest gold, for a gift. For the sons of Aaron the Levites, who have charge of the sanctuary, shall have the tenth part of all the offerings of the people for gifts. This shall be their inheritance for their inheritance, heave-offering, and for an ascending sacrifice, and for the peace-offerings, to put a propitiatory-covering over them.

Let it more than suffice you, O princes of Israel, Violence and spoil remove ye, and justice and righteousness execute,—Lift off your acts of expulsion from upon my people, Urgeth My Lord, Yahweh.

Balances of righteousness, and A bath of righteousness, and have ye:

An ephah of righteousness, and the bath, shall be, to contain the tenth of a homer the bath', and the tenth of a homer the ephah', < unto the homer shall be the proportion thereof; and the shekel shall be twenty gerahs,—< twenty shekels, and fifteen shekels> the weight shall be to you.

This is the heave-offering which ye shall offer up,—

The sixth of an ephah out of a homer of wheat, and The sixth of an ephah, out of a homer of barley;

And the statutory portion of oil shall be,—per bath for oil—a tenth part of a bath, out of a cor, which is ten baths, even a homer; for ten baths are a homer.

And one lamb out of the flock, out of two hundred, out of the watered pastures of Israel, for a gift, and for an ascending-sacrifice, and for peace-offerings,—To put a propitiatory-covering over them,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

All the people of the land shall give to this heave-offering,—for the prince in Israel.

But shall rest the ascending-sacrifices, and the meal-offering, and the drink-offering, on the festivals, and on the new moons, and on the sabbaths, in all the appointed meetings of the house of Israel,—shall offer the sin-bearer, and the meal-offering, and the ascending sacrifice, and the peace-offerings, To put a propitiatory-covering about the house of Israel.
18 "Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,

In the first month, on the first day of the month shalt thou take a young bullock, without defect,—and shalt cleanse the sanctuary from sin; 19 then shall the priest take of the blood of the sin-bearer, and put upon the door-posts of the house, and upon the four corners of the ledge of the altar, and upon the door-posts of the gate of the inner court. 20 And shall thou do in the seventh of the month, a for any man that wavereth or is of feeble mind,—so shall ye cleanse the house by propitiation.

21 In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month shall ye have the passover,—a festival of seven days, 8 unleavened cakes shall be eaten; 22 therefore shall the prince offer, on that day, for himself, and for all the people of the land,—a bullock as a sin-bearer; 23 and the seven days of the festival shall he offer as an ascending-sacrifice to Yahweh, seven bullocks and seven rams without defect, daily, for the seven days,—and as a sin-bearer a young goat, daily; 24 and a meal-offering of an ephah to each bullock, and an ephah to each ram shall he offer,—and of oil a hin to an ephah. 25 In the seventh month, on the fifteenth day of the month, throughout the festival he shall offer like these, seven days,—like the sin-bearer, like the ascending-sacrifice, and like the meal offering, and like the oil.

Chapter 46.

1 "Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,

The gate of the inner court which looketh toward the east shall be shut, the six days of work,—but on the sabbath-day shall it be opened, and on the day of the new moon shall it be opened. 2 The prince therefore shall enter by way of the porch of the gate without, and shall stand by the post of the gate, and the priests shall offer his ascending-sacrifice, and his peace offerings, and he shall bow down upon the threshold of the gate, and then go forth,—but the gate shall not be shut until the evening; 3 and the people of the land shall bow down at the entrance of that gate on the sabbaths, and at the new moons,—before Yahweh.

4 And the ascending-sacrifice which the prince shall bring near unto Yahweh shall be on the sabbath day six he-lambs without defect, and a ram without defect; and the meal-offering shall be an ephah to a ram, and to the he-lambs the meal-offering shall be as one is able to give,—and of oil a hin to an ephah. 6 But on the day of the new moon a young bullock without defect,—and six he-lambs and a ram, without defect shall they be; 7 and an ephah to a bullock, and an ephah to a ram shall he offer as a meal-offering, and for the he-lambs just as his hand shall attain unto,—and of oil a hin to an ephah.

8 And when the prince shall enter by way of the porch of the gate shall he go in, and by way thereof shall he go out. 9 But when the people of the land shall enter before Yahweh on the appointed feasts he that entereth by way of the north' gate to bow down shall go forth by way of the south' gate, and he that entereth by way of the south gate shall go forth by way of the north' gate,—he shall not return by way of the gate by which he entered, but shall go forth. 10 But as for the prince in their midst when they enter shall he enter, and when they go forth he shall go forth. 11 And in the festivals and in the appointed feasts the meal-offering shall be an ephah to a bullock, and an ephah to a ram, but to the he-lambs as one is able to give,—and of oil a hin to an ephah.

12 And when the prince would offer, as a free-will offering, an ascending-sacrifice or peace-offerings, 4 as a free-will offering to Yahweh...

then shall be opened to him, the gate that looketh to the east, and he shall offer his ascending-sacrifice and his peace-offerings,\(^a\) just as he would offer on the sabbath’ day,—and \(<\text{when he shall go forth}>\) then shall one shut the gate, after he hath gone forth.

So then ye shall apportion this land to you by the tribes of Israel. 22 And it shall come to pass, that ye shall divide it by lot as an inheritance, to yourselves and to the sojourners who are sojourning in your midst, who have begotten children in your midst,—so shall they be to you as a native among the sons of Israel <with you> shall they cast lots for an inheritance, in the midst of the tribes of Israel. 23 And it shall be, that <with whatsoever tribe the sojourner hath become a sojourner> ||[there] shall ye give his inheritance,

Chapter 1.

1 <In the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim king of Judah> came Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon to Jerusalem, and laid siege against it;
2 and the Lord gave into his hand Jehoiakim king of Judah, and a part of the vessels of the house of God, and he brought them into the land of Shinar, into the house of his gods,—and <the vessels> brought he into the treasure-house of his gods.
3 Then did the king give word to Ashpenaz, the chief of his eunuchs,—that he should bring in <of the sons of Israel, even of the seed royal, and of the nobles> 4 youths in whom was no blemish, but comely of countenance, and skilled in all wisdom, and possessed of knowledge, and able to impart instruction, and who had vigour in them, to stand in the palace of the king,—and that they should be taught the learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans. 5 And the king appointed them the provision of each day upon its day, out of the delicacies of the king and out of the wine which he drank, and so to let them grow three years,—and <at the end thereof> that they should stand before the king.
6 Now there were, among them, out of the sons of Judah,—Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah; 7 and the ruler of the eunuchs gave them names,—yea he gave to Daniel' the name of Belteshazzar, and to Hananiah' of Shadrach, and to Mishael' of Meshach, and to Azariah, of Abed-nego. 8 But Daniel laid it upon his heart, 9 that he would not defile himself with the delicacies of the king, nor with the wine which he drank,—therefore sought he of the ruler of the eunuchs, that he might not defile himself. 9 But <although God had brought Daniel into lovingkindness and tender compassion, before the ruler of the eunuchs>

10 yet said the ruler of the eunuchs unto Daniel, I' do fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your food and your drink,—for why' should he see your faces more sad f than those of the youths of your own age? so should ye bring me under the penalty of mine own head unto the king.

11 Then said Daniel, unto the overseer g whom the ruler of the eunuchs had appointed over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah:
12 I pray thee—prove thy servants, ten days,—and let them give us vegetable food, that we may eat, and water that we may drink:
13 then let our countenances be looked upon before thee, and the countenances of the youths who have been eating the delicacies of the king,—and <as thou shalt see> deal thou with thy servants.
14 So then he hearkened unto them, according to this word,—and proved them ten-days; 15 and <at the end of ten days> their countenances appeared more comely, and fatter in flesh,—than any of the youths who had been eating the delicacies of the king. 16 Thus it came about that the overseer continued taking away their delicacies, and the wine appointed them to drink,—and kept on giving them vegetable food.
17 And <as for these four youths> God [gave them] knowledge and skill, in all learning and wisdom,—and [[Daniel]] had discernment, in all visions and dreams.
18 Now <at the end of the days after which the king had given word to bring them in> then did the ruler of the eunuchs bring them in, before Nebuchadnezzar. 19 So then the king [spake with them], and there was not found, from among them all, one like unto Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah,—therefore stood they before the king; 20 and <in any matter of wisdom and discernment as to which the king [enquired of them]> he found them ten times better than all the sacred scribes—the magicians, who were in all his realm.

Now Daniel continued, until the first year of Cyrus the king.

Chapter 2.

1 And in the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar Nebuchadnezzar dreamed dreams, and his spirit was troubled, and his sleep was gone from him. So the king gave word to call for the sacred scribes and for the magicians, and for the users of incantations, and for the Chaldeans, that they might tell the king his dreams;—they came in therefore, and stood before the king. And the king said to them, have I dreamed, and my spirit is troubled to know the dream.

Then spake the Chaldeans to the king, in Aramaic,—

O king to the ages live! Tell the dream to thy servants, and the interpretation thereof we will declare.

The king answered and said to the Chaldeans, The word from me is unalterable: If ye shall not make known to me the dream and the interpretation thereof ye shall be cut in pieces, and your houses shall be turned into a dunghill;

but if ye will declare the dream and the interpretation thereof ye will receive gifts and a present and great dignity shall ye receive from me;—therefore declare the dream and the interpretation thereof declare ye unto me.

They answered again and said,— Let the king tell the dream to his servants, and the interpretation thereof we will declare.

The king answered and said, Of a certainty I know, that ye would gain, merely because ye see that is the word:

That ye shall not make known to me one and the same is the decree, and a lying and wicked word have ye agreed to speak before me, that meanwhile the time may be changed,—therefore tell ye me, so shall I know that ye can declare for me.

The Chaldeans answered before the king and said, There is not a man upon the earth, who can declare the matter of the king;—although indeed there is no king, chief ruler who a thing like this hath asked of any sacred scribe or magician or Chaldean; and the thing which the king hath asked is difficult, and none other is there, who can declare it before the king,—saving the gods whose dwelling is not with flesh.

For this cause the king was provoked and exceedingly indignant, and gave word to destroy all the wise men of Babylon; and the decree went forth, that the wise men should be slain,—and they sought Daniel and his companions that they might be slain. Immediately made answer with prudence and discretion, to Arioch, chief of the executioners of the king,—who had come forth to slay the wise men of Babylon:

he began to speak and said to Arioch, the king’s captain,—

For what cause is the decree raging forth from before the king?

Then did Arioch make the matter known unto Daniel. So Daniel entered in, and desired of the king—that an appointed time he would give him, and then he would declare unto the king. Then Daniel to his own house departed,—and to Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, his companions made the matter known, that they might seek from before the God of the heavens, concerning this secret,—that Daniel and his companions might not be destroyed, with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.

Then unto Daniel—in a vision of the night the secret was revealed,—whereupon made the God of the heavens:

Daniel responded, and said,
Let the name of God be blessed from age to age,—
In that wisdom and might to him belong;
And he changeth times and seasons,
Removeth kings, and setteth up kings,—
Giving wisdom to the wise,
And knowledge to them who are skilled in understanding:
He revealeth the deep things, and the hidden,— Knoweth what is in the darkness,
And light doth dwell.

Unto thee, O God of my fathers do I render thanks and praise,
In that wisdom and might thou hast given unto me,—
Yea already hast thou made known to me, that which we desired of thee,
For the matter of the king hast thou made known unto us.

Therefore Daniel entered in unto Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon,—he went in, and he said unto him,

The wise men of Babylon do not thou destroy,
Bring me in before the king, and the interpretation—unto the king—will I declare.

Thereupon Arioch—with haste—brought in Daniel before the king,—and he said to him—
I have found a man of the sons of the exile of Judah, who the interpretation—unto the king—will make known.

The king answered and said unto Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar,— Art thou able to make known unto me the dream which I have seen, and the interpretation thereof?

Daniel answered before the king, and said,—
The secret which the king hath asked the wise men, the magicians, the sacred scribes, the astrologers are not able to declare unto the king; but there is a God in the heavens, who revealeth secrets, and hath made known to King Nebuchadnezzar, what shall come to pass, in the afterpart of the days:

Thy dream and the visions of thy head upon thy bed are these:—
As for thee, O king thy thoughts upon thy bed arose regarding what should come to pass hereafter; and he that revealeth secrets made known unto thee what shall come to pass.

But as for me—not for any wisdom that is in me, more than any of the living is this secret revealed to me,—therefore it is in order that the interpretation—unto the king—they should make known, and that the thoughts of thy heart thou shouldst get to know.

As for thee, O king thou wast looking, when lo! a great image, its head was of gold, its breast and its arms were of silver,—its belly and its thighs of bronze; its legs of iron,—and its feet part of them of iron, and part of them of clay.

Thou didst look, until that a stone tare itself away, not by the aid of hands, and smote the image upon its feet, which were of iron and clay,—and they were broken in pieces. Then were broken in pieces at once, the iron, the clay, the bronze, the silver, and the gold, and became like chaff out of the summer threshing-floors, and the wind carried them away, and no place was found for them,—but the stone that smote the image became a mighty rock, and filled all the land.

This is the dream, and the interpretation thereof we will tell before the king.

O king art the king of kings,—for the God of the heavens hath given unto thee the kingship, the might, the power and the dignity; and wheresoever the sons of men do dwell <the wild beasts of the field and the birds of the heavens> he given into thy hand, and hast made thee ruler over them all.

Art the head of gold.

And shall arise another kingdom, inferior to thee,—and another—a third knight, of bronze, which shall bear rule throughout all the earth.

40 And [the fourth kingdom] shall be hard as iron,—<in like manner as iron breaketh in pieces and crusheth all things,—even as iron which bringeth to ruins all these> shall it break in pieces and bring to ruins. 41 And <whereas thou sawest the feet and the toes, part of them of potter’s clay, and part of them of iron> [the kingdom] shall be divided, and <of the hardness of the iron> shall there be in it,—forasmuch as thou sawest [the iron] combined with the miry clay; 42 and <the toes of the feet> [part of them] iron, and [part] of clay,—[some part of the kingdom] shall be strong, but [a part thereof] shall be brittle; 43 and <whereas thou sawest the iron> combined with the miry clay, they shall be combined with the seed of men, but shall not cleave firmly one to another,—lo! as iron is not to be combined with clay.

44 And <in the days of those kings> shall the God of the heavens set up a kingdom, which <to the ages> shall not be destroyed, and [the kingdom] <to another people> shall not be left,—it shall break in pieces and make an end of all these kingdoms, but [itself] shall stand to the ages. 45 <Forasmuch as thou sawest that [out of the rock] a stone tare itself away, but not with hands, and brake in pieces the clay, the iron, the gold,—[the mighty God] hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter.

Exact’ then is the dream, And trusty’ its interpretation.

46 Then’ [King Nebuchadnezzar] fell upon his face, and <unto Daniel> paid adoration; and  gave he word to pour out unto him. 47 The king answered Daniel, and said—

Of a truth] [your God] is a God of gods, and a Lord of kings, and a Revealer of secrets,—seeing thou wast able to reveal this secret.

48 Then’ [the king] exalted [Daniel], and <many large presents> gave he unto him, and set him to be ruler over all the province of Babylon,—and chief of the nobles, over all the wise men of Babylon.

49 And [Daniel] desired of the king, and he appointed—over the business of the province of Babylon—Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego,—but [Daniel himself] was in the gate of the king.

§ 3. Nebuchadnezzar, making an Image of Gold to be Worshipped on Pain of Death, casts Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, for refusing to worship, into a Furnace of Fire; from which, however, they are Miraculously Unharmed.

Chapter 3.

1 ||Nebuchadnezzar the king|| made an image of gold, [the height thereof] sixty cubits, [the breadth thereof] six cubits,—he set it up in the valley of Dura, in the province of Babylon.

2 And ||Nebuchadnezzar the king|| sent to gather together the satraps, the nobles and the pashas, the chief judges, the treasurers, the judges, the lawyers, and all the rulers of the province,—to come to the dedication of the image, which Nebuchadnezzar the king [had set up]. 3 Then’ were gathered together, the satraps, the nobles and the pashas, the chief judges, the treasurers, the judges, the lawyers, and all the rulers of the province, to the dedication of the image, which Nebuchadnezzar the king [had set up],—and they stood before the image, which Nebuchadnezzar [had set up]. 4 And [the herald] proclaimed aloud,—

<To you> is given the word, O ye peoples, races, and tongues: 5 <At what time ye shall hear the sound of the horn, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery, the bagpipes, and all kinds of instruments of music> ye shall fall down and adore the image of gold, which Nebuchadnezzar the king hath set up; 6 and [whosoever shall not fall down and adore] shall instantly be cast into the burning furnace of fire.

7 [Wherefore] <at the same time>—when all the peoples heard the sound of the horn, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery, 8 and all kinds of instruments of music> they were falling down—even all the peoples, the races, and the tongues,—adoring the image of gold, which Nebuchadnezzar the king [had set up].

\[Written: “whereas” (without “and”); but read: “and whereas.”\]

\[In some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns., Syr. and Vul.) both written and read with “and”—G.n.\]
8 Wherefore drew near certain Chaldeans, and accused the Jews: they spake, and said, to Nebuchadnezzar the king:

O king! <for ages> live!

10 ||Thou thyself, O king||, hast made a decree, that any man who shall hear the sound of the horn, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery and the bagpipes, and all kinds of instruments of music|| shall fall down and adore the image of gold; and whosoever shall not fall down and adore shall be cast into the burning furnace of fire.

12 There are certain Jews whom thou hast set over the business of the province of Babylon, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—these men have made thee, O king, of no account, <thy god> they serve not, and <the image of gold which thou hast set up> do they not adore.

Then ||Nebuchadnezzar— with anger and wrath|| gave word to bring Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, then these men brought they before the king. Nebuchadnezzar spake and said unto them,

Is it <with design> O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—that <my god> ye’ are not serving, and <the image which I have set up> are not adoring? Now if ye be ready, <at what time ye shall hear the sound of the cornet, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery and the bagpipes, and all the instruments of music> ye shall fall down and adore the image which I have made, but if ye shall not adore, instantly shall ye be cast into the midst of the burning furnace of fire,—and who is the god that shall deliver you out of my hands?

Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego answered, and said to the king:

O Nebuchadnezzar! we are not accounting it needful, concerning this to answer thee.

17 If it is ||our God, whom we’ serve|| is able to deliver us,—out of the burning furnace of fire, and out of thy hand> O king, he will deliver. But if not be it known to thee, O king,—that <thy god> will we not serve, and <the image of gold which thou hast set up> will we not adore.

Then ||Nebuchadnezzar|| was filled with wrath, and ||the likeness of his countenance|| was changed, against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—he spake and gave word to heat the furnace seven times hotter than it was ever seen heated; and to men, who were the mightiest men in his army> gave he word to bind fast Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—to cast them into the burning furnace of fire.

Then bound they these men in their trousers, their tunics, and their cloaks, and their (other) clothing,—and cast into the midst of the burning furnace of fire. Therefore, because the word of the king had raged forth, and the furnace was exceeding hot> those very men who took up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego were slain by the flame of the fire; and these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego fell down into the midst of the burning furnace of fire, fast bound.

Then ||Nebuchadnezzar the king|| was amazed, and rose up in haste: he spake and said to his nearest friends—

Were there not three men, we cast into the midst of the fire, fast bound?

They answered and said to the king,

Surely, O king!

He answered and said,

Lo! ||I|| see four men, unbound, walking in the midst of the fire, and <injury> there is not in them, and ||the appearance of the fourth|| is like to a son of the gods!

Then did Nebuchadnezzar |draw near| to the door of the burning furnace of fire, he spake and said,

Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, ye servants of the most high God, step forth and come hither.

Then stepped forth Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, out of the midst of the fire. And—being gathered together—the satraps, the nobles, and the pashas and near friends of the king, saw these men, over whose bodies the fire had [no power], nor was ||a hair of their head|| singed, neither were ||their trousers|| disfigured,—nor had ||the smell of fire|| come upon them. Nebuchadnezzar spake’ and said,

Lit.: "did eat their pieces of."

Or: “mantles.” But Fuerst: “turbans,” taking “clothing” as=“upper cl.”

Blessed' be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, who hath sent his messenger, and delivered his servants, who trusted in him,—when <the word of the king> they transgressed, and delivered up their bodies, that they might not serve nor adore any god, saving their own God.

Therefore do I make a decree, that, ||whosoever of any people, race, or tongue it be that shall charge any error\(^a\) upon the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego|| shall be cut in pieces, and ||his house|| <into a dunghill>\(^b\) shall be changed; because there is no’ other\(^c\) God, who is able to deliver, like this!

Then ||the king|| advanced Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, in the province of Babylon.

Chapter 4.

1 ||Nebuchadnezzar\(^e\) the king|| <unto all the peoples, the races and the tongues who are dwelling in all the earth,> Let ||your prosperity|| abound!

2 <The signs, and the wonders,\(^d\) which the most high God hath wrought with me> it is pleasing before me to declare.

3 ||His signs|| how great! And ||his wonders|| how mighty! ||His kingdom|| is an age-abiding kingdom, And ||his dominion|| lasteth from generation to generation.\(^e\)

4 ||I, Nebuchadnezzar\(^c\)|| was at peace in mine own house, and was prosperous\(^f\) in my palace. \(^5\) <A dream> I saw, and it made me afraid,—and ||fancies upon my bed, and visions of my head|| terrified me.

5 Therefore made I a decree, to bring in before me, all the wise men of Babylon,—who, the interpretation of the dream, should make known to me. \(^7\) Then came in the sacred scribes, the magicians, the Chaldeans, and the astrologers,\(^g\)—and <the dream> told I’ before them, but <the interpretation> could they not make known to me. \(^8\) Howbeit <at last> came before me—Daniel, whose ||name|| was Belteshazzar, after the name of my god, and in whom is the spirit of the holy gods; and <the dream—before him> I told [saying]:

O Belteshazzar, chief of the sacred scribes, <because I know that [the spirit of the holy gods] is in thee,—and no secret giveth thee trouble> [therefore] <the visions of my dream which I have seen, and the interpretation thereof> do thou tell.

The visions then of my head upon my bed [were these],—

I was looking, when lo! a tree in the midst of the land.\(^h\)

And ||the height thereof|| was great.

The tree [grew], and became strong,—

And ||the height thereof|| reached unto the heavens,

And ||the view thereof|| unto the end of all the land:\(^i\)

||The foliage thereof|| was beautiful,

And ||the fruit thereof|| abundant,

And there was food for all therein,—

<Under it> the wild beast of the field found shade,

And <among its branches> dwelt the birds of the heavens,

And <therefrom> was well fed [all flesh].

I was looking, in the visions of my head, upon my bed, when lo! ||a watcher and holy one|| <out of the heavens> coming down.\(^14\)

He cried aloud, and <thus> he said—

Hew ye down the tree,

And lop off its branches,

Strip off its leaves,

And scatter its fruit,—

Let the wild beasts flee' from under it,

And the birds, out of its branches;

Nevertheless, <the stock of its roots> in the earth> leave ye, yea in a bond of iron and bronze, in the tender grass\(^k\) of the field,

And let the dew of the heavens be drenched,
And let the wild beasts be its portion;
Let its heart be changed,
And the heart of a wild beast be given to it,—
And let seven seasons pass over it.

By the decree of the watchers is the thing,
And the mandate of the holy ones the matter:
To the intent that the living may get to know that the Most High hath dominion over the kingdom of men, and to whomsoever he pleaseth he giveth it, and one low among men he setteth up over it.

This dream have I, King Nebuchadnezzar seen.
Therefore, O Belteshazzar, the interpretation do thou tell, forasmuch as all the wise men of my kingdom are unable to make known to me, but thou art able, because the spirit of the holy gods is in thee.

Then Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, was astonished for about one moment, and his thoughts troubled him. The king spake and said, O Belteshazzar, let neither the dream nor the interpretation trouble thee.
Belteshazzar answered and said,
My Lord,
The interpretation be for them who hate thee,
And the interpretation for them who are thy foes.

The tree which thou sawest, which grew and became strong, Whose height reached unto the heavens, And the view thereof to all the earth:
Whose foliage was beautiful, And whose fruit abundant,
And food for all was in it,—
Under it dwelt the wild beasts of the field, And in the branches thereof nestled the birds of the heavens.

Thyself, it is, O king, in that thou art grown, and become strong,—and thy greatness hath grown, and reached to the heavens, and thy dominion to the end of the earth.

Whereas the king saw’ a watcher and holy one coming down out of the heavens, who said,
Hew ye down the tree and despoil it,
Nevertheless the stock of its roots—in the earth leave ye, even in a bond of iron and bronze, in the tender grass of the field,—
And let the dew of the heavens let it be drenched, and along with the wild beasts of the field be its portion,
Until that seven seasons pass over it.

This is the interpretation, O king,—and the decree of the Most High it is, which hath come upon my lord the king:
That are they going to drive forth from among men,
And along with the wild beasts of the field shall be thy dwelling,
And grass—like oxen will they suffer to eat,
And with the dew of the heavens will they suffer to be drenched,
And seven seasons shall pass over thee,—
Until that thou come to know, that the Most High hath dominion over the kingdom of men,
And to whomsoever he pleaseth he giveth it.

Wherefore, O king, let my counsel be pleasing unto thee,
Thy sin, then,—by righteousness break thou off,
And thine iniquities by shewing favour to the oppressed,—
If so be it may become the lengthening out of thy security.

All this came upon Nebuchadnezzar the king.
At the end of twelve months, O the palace of the kingdom of Babylon> was he walking: 30

the king spake and said,
Is not ||this|| Babylon the great,—which ||I myself|| have built as the home of the kingdom, by the might of my power, and for the dignity of my majesty?
31<While yet> the word was in the mouth of the king> |a voice| <out of the heavens> fell,— <Unto thee> is it said, O Nebuchadnezzar the king,
||The kingdom|| hath departed from thee;
And <from among men> are they going to drive ||thee|| forth,
And <with the wild beast of the field> shall be thy dwelling,
<Grass—like oxen> will they suffer ||thee|| to
eat,
And ||seven seasons|| shall pass over thee,—
Until that thou come to know that the Most High |hath dominion| over the kingdom of men, and
<to whomsoever he pleaseth> he giveth it.
33 <Immediately> |the word| was fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar, And <from among men> was he driven forth; And <grass—like oxen> did he eat,
And <with the dew of the heavens> his body was drenched,—until that ||his hair|| <like to eagles’ feathers> was grown, and his nails, like birds’ wings.
34 And <at the end of the days> ||I,
Nebuchadnezzar||, |mine eyes| unto the
heavens| did uplift,
And ||mine understanding|| <unto me>
returned,
And <the Most High> I blessed,
And <to him that liveth age-abidingly> I rendered praise and honour,—
||Whose dominion|| is an age-abiding dominion,
And ||his kingdom|| lasteth from generation to
generation;
35 And ||all the inhabitants of the earth|| <as nothing> are accounted,
And <according to his own pleasure> dealeth
he—
With the army of the heavens,
And the inhabitants of the earth,—

And none there is’ who can smite upon his hand,
Or say to him, What hast thou done?
36 <At the same time> ||mine understanding|| returned unto me,
And <for the dignity of my kingdom> ||my
majesty and my brightness|| returned unto me,
And <unto me> ||my nearest friends and my nobles|| did seek,—
And <over my kingdom> was I restored,
And <surpassing greatness> was added unto me.
37 Now ||I, Nebuchadnezzar|| am praising and extolling and honouring the King of the Heavens,
||All whose works|| are truth,
And ||his ways|| right;
And <them who walk in pride> he is able to abase.

§ 5. To King Belshazzar, while dishonouring the Sacred Vessels, is Handwriting put forth, which Daniel interprets, and which is swiftly fulfilled.

Chapter 5.

1 ||Belshazzar the king|| made a great feast, to a thousand of his nobles,—and <before the thousand> was drinking |wine|. 2 ||Belshazzar|| gave word, at the flavour of the wine, to bring the vessels of gold and silver, which Nebuchadnezzar his father [had brought forth] out of the temple which was in Jerusalem,—that the king and his nobles, his wives and his concubines [might drink therein].
3 Then brought they the vessels of gold which had been taken out of the temple of the house of God, which was in Jerusalem,—and the king and his nobles, his wives and his concubines, [drank therein]; they drank wine,—and praised the gods of gold and silver, bronze, iron, wood and stone.
4 <Immediately> came forth the fingers of the hand of a man, and wrote, over against the chandelier, upon the plaster of the wall of the palace of the king,—and [the king] saw the part of the hand’ which was writing. 6 Then <as for the king> ||his bright looks|| changed in him, and ||his thoughts|| terrified him,—and ||the joints| of his

||Whosoever it is that shall read this writing, and <the interpretation thereof> shall declare unto me||,
<With purple> shall he be clothed,
And have a chain of gold upon his neck,
And <as the third in the kingdom> shall he have dominion.

8 Then were coming in all the wise men of the king,—but <the writing> could they not read, nor <the interpretation> make known to the king. 9 Then ||[King Belshazzar]|| was greatly terrified, and ||[his bright looks]| were changed upon him,— and ||[his nobles]| were perplexed. ||[The queen]|| by reason of the words of the king and his nobles| into the house of banqueting| entered,—the queen spake’ and said,
O king! <for ages> live!
Let not thy thoughts [terrify thee], and <as for thy bright looks> let them not be changed.

10 There is’ a man in thy kingdom in whom is the spirit of the holy gods, and <in the days of thy father> ||light, and intelligence, and wisdom like the wisdom of the gods|| were found in him,—and ||[King Nebuchadnezzar thy father]|| appointed him |chief of the sacred scribes, the magicians, the Chaldaeans, and the astrologers|—||thy father, O king!!|| 11 <Forasmuch as ||a distinguished spirit, and knowledge and intelligence, ability to interpret dreams and solve riddles and unravel knotty points|| were found in the same Daniel, whom the king named Belteshazzar| now let ||[Daniel]|| be called, and <the interpretation> will he declare.

12 Then ||[Daniel]|| was brought in before the king,—the king spake’ and said unto Daniel,
Art ||thou| that Daniel, that is of the sons of the exile of Judah, whom the king my father brought’ out of Judah?

13 Then, I have heard concerning thee, that ||the spirit of the gods|| is in thee,—and ||light and intelligence and distinguished wisdom|| are found in thee.

14 ||[Now]|, therefore, have been brought in before me, the wise men, the magicians, that <this writing> they might read, and <the interpretation thereof> might make known unto me,—but they were not able <the interpretation of the thing> to declare.

15 ||[I]| however, have heard concerning thee, that thou art able, <interpretations> to unfold, and <knotty points> to unravel,—
Now <if thou be able [the writing] to read, and [the interpretation thereof] to make known unto me> ||[with purple] shalt thou be clothed, and [a chain of gold] shalt thou have upon thy neck, and <as the third in the kingdom> shalt thou have dominion.

16 Then spake Daniel, and said before the king,
<As for thy gifts> thine own’ let them remain,
And <thy presents> |on another| bestow,—
Howbeit <the writing> will I read to the king,
And <the interpretation thereof>|| will I make known to him.

17 ||[As for thee, O king]|| ||[the Most High God]|| gave |kingship and greatness and honour and majesty| unto Nebuchadnezzar thy father; 18 and <for the greatness that he gave him> ||[all peoples, races and tongues]| used to tremble and to withdraw falteringly from before him,—
Whom he would| he slew,
And <whom he would> he kept alive,
And <whom he would> he set up,
And <whom he would> he put down.

20 But <when uplifted> was his heart and ||[his spirit]|| became obstinate so as to act arrogantly> he was put down from the throne of his kingdom, and ||[his dignity]|| took them from him; 21 And <from among the sons of men> was he driven, And ||[his heart]|| <to a wild beast’s> became equal, And <with the wild asses> was his dwelling, And <grass—like oxen> they suffered him to eat, And <with the dew of the heavens> ||[his body]|| was drenched,—until that he came to know that the Most High God [hath dominion] over the kingdom of men, and <whomsoever he pleaseth> he setteth up over it.

§ 6. Darius the Mede, unwarily Signing an Interdict against Prayer, consigns Daniel to the Lions’ Den, from which the King gladly welcomes him back Unharmed.

And ||Darius the Mede|| received the kingdom,—when about sixty-two years of age.

Chapter 6.

It was pleasing before Darius, that he should set up over the kingdom, a hundred and twenty satraps,—that they should be over all the kingdom; 2 and <over these> three confidential ministers, of whom ||Daniel|| was first,—that <to them> these satraps should render an account, and ||the king|| not be suffering loss. 3 Then ||this Daniel|| signalised himself, above the ministers and the satraps, because ||a distinguished spirit|| was in him, and ||the king|| thought to set him up over all the kingdom.

Then ||the ministers and the satraps|| began seeking to find <occasion> against Daniel, in respect of the kingdom,—but <no occasion nor wickedness> could they find, inasmuch as [faithful] was he, and ||neither error nor wickedness|| could be found against him.

Then ||these men|| were saying,

We shall not find against this Daniel, any occasion; unless we find it against him in respect of the law of his God.

Then ||these ministers and satraps|| crowded together unto the king,—and <thus> were saying to him,

O Darius the king! |for ages| live!

All the ministers of the kingdom, the nobles and satraps, the near friends and the pashas, [have consulted together], to establish a royal statute, and to confirm an interdict,<sup>g</sup>—

That ||whosoever shall ask a petition<sup>h</sup> of any God or man, for thirty days, save of thee, O king|| shall be cast into the den of lions.

Now, O king! wilt thou establish the interdict, and sign<sup>i</sup> the writing, that it may not be changed—according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which may not be abolished.

Wherefore ||King Darius|| signed the writing and the interdict.

But ||Daniel|| <when he knew that the writing was signed> went to his own house, and <the windows being opened to him, in his chamber, toward Jerusalem> ||three times a day|| was he kneeling upon his knees, and praying and giving thanks before his God, in like manner as he had been doing aforetime.

Then ||these men|| crowded together,<sup>j</sup> and found Daniel,—praying and making supplication, before his God.

Then drew they near, and began to speak before the king, concerning the royal interdict,

Didst thou not sign [an interdict],

That any man who should petition of any God or man, for thirty days, save of thee, O king, should be cast into the den of lions?
The king answered and said,

Certainly is the thing—according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which may not be abolished.

Then answered they and were saying before the king,

Daniel, who is of the sons of the exile of Judah, hath made thee, O king, of none account, also the interdict which thou hast signed—but three times a day is asking his petition.a

Then [the king] <when he heard the matter> was sorely displeased with himself, b and <upon Daniel> set his heart, to deliver him,—and <until the going in of the sun> was striving to rescue him.

Then [these men] crowded unto the king,—and were saying to the king,

Know, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is, that no interdict nor statute which the king establisheth may be changed.

Then ||[the king]|| gave word, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. The king spake c and said to Daniel,—

Thy God, whom thou art serving continually, hath he been able to deliver thee from the lions?

Then ||Daniel|| <with the king> spake,—

O king! [for ages] live!

||My God!|| hath sent his messenger, and hath shut the mouth of the lions, and they have not hurt me; forasmuch as <before him> rectitude was found in me, moreover also, <before thee, O king> no ||crime|| had I committed.

Then ||the king|| was exceedingly glad concerning him, and gave word to take up ||Daniel|| out of the den. So Daniel [was taken up] out of the den, and ||no manner of hurt|| was found in him, for that he had trusted in his God.

And the king |gave word| that they should bring those men who had accused Daniel, and <into the den of lions> they cast them—them, their children, and their wives,—and <they had not reached the bottom of the den> when the lions [seized them], and <all their bones> brake they in pieces.

Then ||Darius the king|| wrote to all the peoples, the races, and the tongues who were dwelling in all the earth,

Your prosperity abound! 26 ||From before me|| is appointed a decree that throughout every dominion of my kingdom men tremble and withdraw falteringly from before the God of Daniel,—for that ||he|| is the Living God, and abiding for ages, and ||his kingdom|| that which shall not be destroyed, and ||his dominion|| is unto the end: 27 who delivereth and rescueth, and worketh signs and wonders, in the heavens, and in the earth,—for that he hath delivered Daniel out of the power of the lions.

And ||this Daniel|| prospered in the reign of Darius,—and in the reign of Cyrus the Persian.
§ 7. Daniel here goes back to record his own Dreams. And, first, that of Four Wild Beasts coming up out of the Great Sea, with the Interpretation of which he is favoured.

Chapter 7.

1 <In the first year of Belshazzar, king of Babylon> ||Daniel|| beheld [a dream], and visions of his head upon his bed,—then <the dream> he wrote, <the sum of the matters> he told. 2 Daniel spake and said,

I was looking in my vision [which came] with the night,—when, lo! ||the four winds of the heavens|| bursting forth upon the great sea;

3 and four large wild beasts, coming up out of the sea,—diverse, one from another:—

4 ||The foremost|| like a lion, having [the wings of an eagle],—I looked until the wings thereof [were torn out], and it was lifted up from the earth, and <upon its feet, like a man> was it caused to stand, and <the heart of a man> was given to it.

5 And, lo! another wild beast, a second, resembling a bear, and <on one side> was it raised up, with three ribs in its mouth, between its teeth,—and <thus> were they saying to it,

Rise! devour much flesh.

6 <After that> I was looking, and lo! another, like a leopard, and ||it|| had four wings of a bird upon its back,—and <four heads> had the wild beast, and ||dominion|| was given to it.

7 <After that> I was looking in the visions of the night, when lo! a fourth wild beast, terrible and well-hipped, and exceeding strong, and it had ||large teeth of iron||, it devoured and brake in pieces, and <the residue—with its feet> it trampled down,—and ||it|| was diverse from all the wild beasts that were before it, and it had ||ten horns||.

8 I was considering the horns, when lo! ||another horn, a little one|| came up among them, and ||three of the former horns|| were uprooted from before it,—and lo! ||eyes, like the eyes of a man|| in this horn, and ||a mouth|| speaking great things.

9 I continued looking, until that ||thrones|| were placed, and ||the Ancient of days|| took his seat,—whose ||garment|| <like snow> was white, and ||the hair of his head|| like pure wool, ||his throne|| was flames of fire, ||his wheels|| a burning fire.

10 ||[A stream of fire] was flowing on and issuing forth from before him, ||a thousand thousand|| waited upon him, and ||ten thousand times ten thousand|| <before him> stood up,—||Judgment|| took its seat, and ||books|| were opened. 11 I continued looking, <then' because of the sound of the great words which the horn was speaking> I continued looking, until that the wild beast [was slain], and his body [destroyed], and given to the burning of the fire. 12 <As concerning the rest of the beasts> their dominion [was taken away], but ||a lengthening of life|| was given to them, until time and season.

13 I continued looking in the visions of the night, when lo! <with the clouds of the heavens> ||one like a son of man|| was coming,—and <unto the Ancient of days> he approached, and <before him> they brought him near; 14 and <unto him> were given dominion and dignity and kingship, that all peoples, races and tongues, <unto him> should do service,—||his dominion|| was an age-abiding dominion, which should not pass away, and ||his kingdom|| that which should not be destroyed.

15 The spirit of ||me, Daniel|| was grieved in the midst of the sheath,—and ||the visions of my head|| terrified me. 16 I drew near unto one of them who stood by, and made exact enquiry of him, concerning all this,—so he told me, and <the interpretation of the things> made he known unto me.

17 ||These great wild beasts, which are four||,—are four kings who shall arise out of the earth; but the holy ones of the Highest ||shall receive the kingdom||,—and shall possess the kingdom for the age, yea for the age of ages.

18 Then desired I to be sure, concerning the fourth wild beast, which was diverse from all of them,—exceeding terrible, whose ||teeth|| were iron, and

|his claws| of bronze, he devoured, brake in pieces, and <the residue—with his feet> he trampled down; 20 also concerning the ten horns, which were in his head, and the other, which came up, and there fell—from among them that were before it—three,—and this horn which had ||eyes||, and ||a mouth|| speaking great things, and ||his look|| was more proud than his fellows: 21 I continued looking, when ||this horn|| made war with the holy ones,—and prevailed against them: 22 until that the Ancient of Days |came|, and ||justice|| was granted to the holy ones of the Highest,||—and ||the time|| arrived, that the holy ones should possess ||the kingdom||. 23 |Thus| he said, ||The fourth wild beast|| is a fourth kingdom which shall be in the earth, which shall be diverse from all the kingdoms,—and shall devour all the earth, and shall trample it down, and break it in pieces.

24 And ||the ten horns of that kingdom|| are ten kings who will arise,—and ||another|| will arise after them, and ||he|| will be diverse from the former ones, and <three kings> will he cast down; 25 and <words against the Most High> will he speak, and <the holy ones of the Highest> will he afflict,||—and will hope to change times and law, and they will be given into his hand, for a season and seasons and the dividing of a season, 26 but ||Judgment|| will take its seat,||—and ||his dominion|| will they take away, to destroy and make disappear unto an end.

27 And ||the kingdom, and the dominion, and the greatness of the kingdoms under all the heavens|| shall be given to the people of the holy ones of the Highest,—||his kingdom|| is an age-abiding kingdom, and ||all the dominions|| <unto him> will render service, and shew themselves obedient.

28 Hitherto is the end of the matter.
<As for me, Daniel> greatly did my thoughts terrify me, and ||my bright looks|| were changed upon me, but <the matter—in mine own heart> I kept.||

§ 8. Daniel’s Second Vision—of the Ram and of the He-goat: which is explained by the Angel Gabriel.

Chapter 8.

1 <In the third year of the reign of Belshazzar the king> ||a vision|| appeared unto ||me Daniel||, after that which appeared unto me at the beginning. 2 So then I saw, in the vision, and it came to pass, when I saw, that I’ ||was in Shusan|| the fortress, which is in Persia the province,—yea I saw it in a vision, when ||ll|| was by the river Ulai. 3 So then I lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and lo! a ram, standing before the river, and ||ll|| had two horns,—and ||the two horns|| were high, but ||the one|| was higher than the other, and ||the higher|| had come up ||last||.

4 I saw the ram, pushing strongly westward and northward and southward, so that no wild beast could stand before him, and none’ could deliver out of his hand,—but he did according to his own pleasure, and shewed himself great.

5 Now ||ll|| was observing, when lo! ||a he-goat|| coming in out of the west, over the face of all the earth, but it meddled not with the earth,—and ||the goat|| had a conspicuous horn between his eyes. 6 So then he came up to the ram having the two horns, which I had seen, standing before the river,—and ran unto him, in the fury of his strength. 7 Yea I saw him coming close upon the ram, and he was enraged at him, and smote the ram, and brake in pieces both his horns, and there was no strength in the ram to stand before him,—but he cast him down to the ground, and trampled him underfoot, and there was none could deliver the ram out of his power. 8 But ||the he-goat|| shewed himself very great,—and <when he had become mighty> the great horn ||was broken in pieces||, and there came up afterwards four, in its stead, towards the four winds of the heavens;

9 and <of the first of them> came forth a little horn,—which became exceedingly great, against the south and against the east, and against the

Behold me! causing thee to know, that which shall come to pass in the afterpart of the indignation,—for at an appointed time shall be an end.

The ram which thou sawest, having the two horns, representeth the kings of Media and Persia; and the he-goat is the king of Greece,—and the great horn which was between his eyes is the first king.

Now as for its being broken in pieces, whereupon there stood up four in its stead; [four kingdoms, out of his nation] shall stand up, but not with his strength; but in the aftertime of their kingdom, when transgressions have filled up their measure,—there will stand up a king of mighty presence, and skilful in dissimulation; and his strength will be mighty, but not through his own strength, and wonderfully will he destroy, and succeed and act with effect,—and will destroy mighty ones, and the people of holy ones; and by his cunning will he both cause deceit to succeed in his hand, and will destroy many,—and against the ruler of rulers will he stand up, but shall be broken in pieces.

Now the revelation of the evening and the morning which hath been told indeed it is,—but thou close up the vision, because it is for many days.

Now as for me Daniel then was I sick for days, but I arose and did the business of the king,—and though I was confounded concerning the revelation yet could no one discern it.

beautiful [land];

11 <even as far as the ruler of the host> shewed he his greatness,—and because of him was taken away the continual [ascending-sacrifice], and the place of the sanctuary [was cast down]; and a host was set over the continual [ascending-sacrifice], by transgression,—and faithfulness [was cast down] to the ground, and so he acted with effect, and succeeded.

Then heard I a certain holy one, speaking,—and another holy one said to that certain holy one who was speaking—

How long is the vision of the continual [ascending-sacrifice] as taken away, and the transgression which astoundeth, for both sanctuary and host to be given over to be trampled underfoot?

And he said unto him,

Until two thousand and three hundred evening-mornings,—then shall the sanctuary be vindicated.

And it came to pass, when Daniel had seen’ the vision,—and had sought discernment, that lo! there was standing before me, as the appearance of a man. Then heard I a human voice, between [the banks of] the Ulai,—which cried out, and said, Gabriel! cause this man to understand the revelation.

So he came near where I stood, and I was terrified, and fell upon my face,—but he said unto me, Understand, O son of man, that to the time of the end belongeth the vision.

And I fell stunned upon my face, to the earth,—but he touched me, and caused me to stand up where I was. Then said he,
§ 9. Encouraged by Jeremiah’s prophecies, Daniel makes Intercession for his City and his People.
Gabriel despatched with a direct and intelligible Revelation.

Chapter 9.

1. “In the first year of Darius son of Ahasuerus, of the seed of the Medes,—who was made king over the kingdom of the Chaldeans: 2 in the first year of his reign> ||I, Daniel|| perceived by the writings,—the number of the years, as to which the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah the prophet, to fulfil the desolations of Jerusalem, seventy years. 3 So I set my face unto the Lord God, by prayer, and supplication,—with fasting, and sackcloth and ashes; 4 yea I prayed unto Yahweh my God, and made confession,—and said—

I beseech thee, O Lord, the God great and to be revered, keeping the covenant and the lovingkindness; 5 to them who love him, and to them who keep his commandments. 6 We have sinned and committed iniquity, and been guilty of lawlessness and been rebellious,—even departing from thy commandments, and from thy regulations; 6 and have not hearkened unto thy servants the prophets, who spake in thy name, unto our kings, our rulers, and our fathers,—and unto all the people of the land.

7. “To thee” O Lord, belongeth righteousness, but <to us> the shame of faces, as at this day,—to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and to all Israel, the near and the far off, throughout all the lands whither thou hast driven them, in their treachery, wherewith they had been treacherous against thee.

8. O Yahweh 9 <to us> belongeth the shame of faces, to our kings, to our rulers, and to our fathers,—in that we have sinned against thee. 9 <To the Lord our God> belong compassions, and for ones—<for> we have rebelled against him; 10 and have not hearkened unto the voice of Yahweh our God,—to walk in his instructions which he set before us, through means of his servants the prophets; 11 yea ||all Israel|| have transgressed thy law, even going away, so as not to hearken unto thy voice,—therefore ||were|| poured out upon us| the curse and the oath which had been written in the law of Moses the servant of God, because we had sinned against him. 12 Thus hath he confirmed his words which he had spoken against us, and against our judges who had judged us, by bringing in upon us a great calamity,—as to which there had not been done, under all the heavens, as hath been done unto Jerusalem.

13. “Even as written in the law of Moses” hath ||all this calamity|| come in upon us,—yet entreated we not the face of Yahweh our God, by turning away from our iniquities, 8 and by getting intelligence in thy truth. 9 Therefore hath Yahweh ||kept watch|| for the calamity, and brought it in upon us,—for righteous’ is Yahweh our God concerning all his deeds which he hath done, seeing that we had not hearkened unto his voice.

14. ||Now|| therefore, O Lord our God, who didst bring forth thy people out of the land of Egypt with a firm hand, and didst make for thyself a name, as at this day,—we have sinned, we have been guilty of lawlessness.

15. O Lord! ||according to all thy righteousness|| I beseech thee, let thine anger and thine indignation turn away from thy city Jerusalem, thy holy mountain,—for ||by reason of our sins, and by reason of the iniquities of our fathers|| ||Jerusalem and thy people|| have become a reproach, to all who are round about us.

17. ||Now|| therefore, hearken O our God, unto the prayer of thy servant, and unto his supplications, and let thy face shine, upon thy sanctuary, that is desolate,—for the sake of thy servants, 1 O Lord.

18. Incline, O my God, thine ear, and hearken, open thine eyes, and behold our desolations, and the city on which hath been called thy name; for <not on the ground of our own righteousnesses> are we' causing our supplications to fall down before thee, but on the ground of thine abounding compassions.

19 O Lord, h hear!
O Lord, b forgive!
O Lord, e hearken and perform!
Do not delay!
For thine own sake, O my God,
Because [thine own name] hath been called,
upon thy city, and upon thy people.

20 And ≤while yet I' was speaking, and praying, and confessing mine own sin, and the sin of my people Israel,—and causing my supplication to fall down before Yahweh my God, concerning the holy mountain of my God; 21 while yet I' was speaking in prayer≥ then ||the man Gabriel, whom
I had seen in vision at the beginning, wearied with rapid flight|| touched me, about the time of the evening present. 22 Yea he came, d and spake with me,—and said—
O Daniel! ||now|| have I come forth, to teach thee

23 <At the beginning of thy supplications> came forth a word, ||I|| therefore, am arrived to tell, because  thou art',—mark then the word, and have understanding in the 24 ||Seventy weeks|| f have been divided g concerning

And fill up the measure of sin, h
And put a propitiatory-covering over iniquity,
And bring in the righteousness of ages; i

And affix a seal to j vision and prophecy,
And anoint the holy of holies. k

25 Thou must know, then, and understand: <From weeks,—the broadway and the wall l [shall again m be built], even in the end n of the times.

26 And o <after the sixty-two weeks> shall the Anointed One [be cut off], and have [nothing],—and <the city and the sanctuary> will one destroy with o the Prince, and so will his own end come o with an overwhelming fllood, howbeit <up to the full end of the war>
are decreed astounding things.

27 And he will confirm p a covenant to the many, for one week,—but <in the middle of the week> will cause sacrifice and present to cease, and <in his stead> q [shall be] the horrid abomination that astoundeth, even till [a full end, and that a decreed one] shall be poured

“in his stead.” Cp. chap. xi. 20 [21 & perh. 38]—G.n.
2 In those days ||l, Daniel|| was mourning three sevens of days; 3 <food to delight in> did I not eat, neither flesh nor wine; came into my mouth, nor did I so much as anoint myself, until were fulfilled three sevens of days.

4 And <on the twenty-fourth day of the first month,—when ||l|| was by the side of the great river, ||the same|| is Tigris> 5 then lifted I up mine eyes, and looked, and lo! ||a man|| clothed in linen,—||whose loins|| were girded with the bright gold of Uphaz; 6 ||whose body|| was like Tarshish-stone, 8 and ||his face|| like the appearance of lightning, and ||his eyes|| were like torches of fire, and ||his arms and his feet|| like the look of bronze burnished; —and ||the sound of his words|| was like the sound of a multitude.

7 And ||l, Daniel, alone|| beheld the revelation, and ||the men who were with me|| beheld not the revelation,—in truth ||a great terror|| had fallen upon them, and they had fled while hiding themselves. 8 ||l|| therefore, was left alone, and beheld this great revelation, and there remained in me no strength,—but ||my freshness|| was turned upon me into disfigurement, and I retained no strength. 9 So then I heard the sound of his words,—and <when I heard the sound of his words> then ||l myself|| came to be in a deep sleep upon my face, with ||my face|| to the earth. 10 And lo! ||a hand|| touched me; and roused me up on my knees and the palms of my hands. 11 Then said he unto me,

O Daniel! man greatly delighted in! have understanding in the words which ||l|| am about to speak unto thee, and stand up where thou art; 12 for ||now|| have I been sent unto thee. And <when he had spoken with me this word> I stood up trembling. 13 Then said he unto me,

Do not fear, Daniel, for <from the first day that thou didst set thy heart to understand and to humble thyself before thy God> thy words were heard; and ||l|| am come, by reason of thy words. 13 But ||the ruler of the kingdom of Persia|| withstood me twenty-one days, but lo! ||Michael||, one of the chief rulers, came in to help me,—and ||l|| left him there, beside the kings of Persia. 14 So then I am come to let thee understand that which shall befall thy people in the afterpart of the days,—for yet’ is the vision for [those] days.

15 And <when he had spoken with me such words as these>, —I set my face towards the earth, and was dumb. 16 Then lo! ||like the similitude of the sons of men|| one was touching my lips,—so I opened my mouth, and spake, and said unto him who was standing before me,

O my lord!

<By the revelation> my pains have seized’ me, and I retain no strength. 17 How then can the servant of this my lord speak with this my lord,—seeing that <as for me—henceforth> there remaineth in me no strength, and no ||spirit|| is left in me?

18 Then again’ there touched me one like in appearance to a son of earth, and he strengthened me. 19 And he said,

Do not fear, O man greatly delighted in! peace to thee, be strong, yea be strong! 20 And <as he spake with me> I gained strength, and said,

Let my lord speak’, for thou hast strengthened me.

20 And he said,

Knowest thou wherefore I am come unto thee? But ||now|| must I return to fight with the ruler of Persia; ||l|| therefore am going forth, and lo! ||the ruler of Greece|| is coming. 21 Howbeit I will tell thee that which is inscribed in the writing of truth,—but there is no’ one who holdeth strongly with me concerning these things, save Michael your ruler.

Chapter 11.

1 ||l|| therefore, <in the first year of Darius the Mede> 8 was at my station to strengthen and embolden him; 2 and ||now|| <the truth> I will tell thee:—

Lo! there are ||yet three kings|| to arise—belonging to Persia, and ||the fourth|| will amass greater riches than they all, and <when he hath strengthened himself in his riches> the whole will stir up the kingdom of Greece. 3

Some cod. (w. Sep., Syr., Vul.): “yea be bold”—G.n.
And so a hero king [will arise],—and wield great authority, and do according to his own pleasure; ⁴ but <when he hath arisen> ⁵ his kingdom shall be broken in pieces, and be divided, toward the four winds of the heavens,—but not to his own posterity, nor according to his own authority which he wielded, for his kingdom shall be uprooted, even for others besides these.

But a king of the south [will become strong], even from among his rulers,—and will prevail against him, and have authority,  shall his authority be.

And <at the end of years> they will league together, yea ||[the daughter of the king of the south]] will go in unto the king of the north, to make peace, ⁶—but she shall not retain strength of arm, neither shall he stand, nor his arm, but she shall be delivered up—||[she herself]] and they who brought her in, and he who begat her, and he that strengthened her in the times. ⁷

But one will stand up from the sprout of her roots, [in] his stead, ⁸—and he will enter the army, and enter into a fortress of the king of the north, and deal with them and shew himself strong; ⁹ yea <even their gods, with their molten images, with their delightful vessels of silver and gold, with a host of captives> will he bring into Egypt,—and ||[he]| will stand more years] than the king of the north; ¹⁰ so will the king of the south [enter into the kingdom], and then return unto his own soil.

But ||[his sons]] will rouse themselves to war, and gather together a multitude of large armies, but he will come on and on, ¹¹ and overflow and pass through,—and will return and wage war, ¹² up to his fortress.

Then will the king of the south [be enraged], and go forth and fight with him, with the king of the north,—and will raise a great multitude, but the multitude will be delivered] into his hand.

¹² And <when he hath taken away the multitude> his heart [will be uplifted],—and he will cause tens of thousands to fall, but will not conquer.

Then will the king of the north again raise a multitude, greater than the first,—and <at the end of the times>—some years> he will come on and on' with a great army, and with great substance. ¹⁴ And <in those times> ||[many]] will rise against the king of the south,—and ||[the sons of the oppressors] of thy people]] will exalt themselves to confirm the vision, but will be overthrown.

Then will come in the king of the north, and cast up a rampart, and capture a city of strongholds,—and ||[the arms of the south]] will not rise, nor the people of his chosen ones, ¹⁵ and there shall be no strength to rise. ¹⁶ So shall he that cometh against him do according to his own pleasure, and ||[none]] shall stand before him,—therefore will he take his stand in the beautiful land, and it will languish and be exhausted in his hand.¹⁷

Then will he set his face to enter, with the might of all his kingdom, and <equitable terms with him> will make,—and  will he give him to corrupt her, but she will not remain, nor <his> shall she become.

Then will he turn ¹⁸ his face to the Coastlands, and will capture many,—but a commander [will bring to an end] his reproach against himself, that ||[his reproach]] return not unto him. ¹⁹ Therefore will he turn his face towards the fortresses of his land,—but he shall stagger and fall, and shall not be found.

Then will rise up in his stead, one causing an exactor to pass through the ornament of the kingdom,—but <in a few days>> shall he be broken in pieces, ||[not with anger, nor in battle]].

21 Then will rise up in his stead, one despised, and they will not lay upon him the dignity of the kingdom,—but he will come in unexpectedly, and strengthen the kingdom by flatteries; and the arms of an overflowing flood will sweep all before him, and they shall be broken in pieces,—moreover also, the prince of a covenant:

23 and he will work deceitfully, and will come up and become strong, with a small nation. Unexpectedly, even into the rich places of the province will he enter, and will do what neither his fathers nor his father's fathers had done, <prey and spoil and substance—among them> will he scatter,—and <against strongholds> will he devise plots even until a (convenient) time.

Then will he stir up his strength and his heart, against the king of the south, with a great army, and the king of the south will wage war, with a great and exceedingly mighty army,—but will make no stand, for they will devise against him plots; and they who have been eating his delicacies will break him in pieces, and his army will he overwhelm like a flood,—and many wounded will fall.

Now <as for the two kings> will be set on acting wickedly, and <at one table> will they speak falsehood,—but it shall not succeed, for yet’ is the end for an appointed time.

So then he will return to his own land, with great substance, with his heart set upon a holy covenant; yea he will act with effect, and return to his own land.

<At the appointed time> will he again enter the south,—but it shall not be like the former, nor like the latter.

Then will come in against him the ships of Cyprus, and he will be disheartened, and again have indignation against a holy covenant, and will act with effect,—and again gain intelligence, concerning them who are forsaking a holy covenant.

And <from him> will arise,—and will profane the sanctuary, the fortress, and will set aside the continual [ascending-sacrifice], and place the horrid abomination that astoundeth. And <who are ready to deal lawlessly with a covenant> will he make impious by flatteries,—but the people who know their God will be strong and act with effect. And <who make the people wise> will impart understanding to the many,—yet shall they be brought low, by sword and by flame, by captivity and by prey, for some days; but when they are brought low they shall be helped with a little help,—and many will join themselves unto them] by flatteries; and <of them who make wise> some shall be brought low, to refine them, and to purify and make white, up to the time of the end,—for yet’ is it for an appointed time.

And the king will do according to his own pleasure, and will exalt himself, and magnify himself against every GOD, yea <against the GOD of GODS> will he speak wonderful things,—and will succeed, until exhausted is the indignation, for [what is decreed] must be done; and <for the god of his fathers> will he have no regard, nor <for the delight of women> nor for any god will he have regard,—for <against all> will he magnify himself.

Howbeit <to the god of the fortresses, in his place> will he give honour,—<even to a god whom his fathers knew not> will he give honour, with gold and with silver and with precious stones and with articles of delight. And he will prepare, for the strongholds of the fortress of the sea, the people of an alien god,

40 And <in the time of the end> will the king of the south [push at him], and the king of the north [will rush against him], with chariots and with horsemen, and with many ships,—and he will enter the lands, and overwhelm and pass over;

41 yea he will thrust forth his hand against the lands,—and the land of Egypt shall have no deliverance; and he will have authority over the treasures of gold and silver, and over all the delightful things of Egypt,—with Libyans and Ethiopians among his followers;

42 but tidings] will terrify him, out of the east, and out of the north,—therefore will he go forth with great fury, to destroy and to devote many; and will plant his palace-home between the seas, towards the beautiful holy mountain, but shall come to his end, with none’ to help him.

Chapter 12.

1 And <at that time> will Michael, the great ruler who standeth for the sons of thy people, make a stand, and there will be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation, up to that time,—and <at that time> shall thy people be delivered, every one found written in the book; and many of the sleepers in the dusty ground shall awake,—that they shall be to age-abiding life, but those to reproach, and age-abiding abhorrence; and they who make wise shall shine like the shining of the expanse,—and they who bring the many to righteousness like the stars to times age-abiding and beyond.

But thou, Daniel] close up the words, and seal the book, until the time of the end,—many will run to and fro, and knowledge shall abound.

Then I, Daniel] looked’, and lo! two others standing,—one on this side of the bank of the river, and one on that side of the bank of the river.

And one said to the man clothed with linen, who was upon the waters of the river,

How long shall be the end of the wonders?

And I heard the man clothed with linen who was upon the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left unto the heavens, and bare him that liveth unto times age-abiding,—For a set time and times and a half, and when the dispersion of a part of the holy people is brought to an end then shall come to an end all these things.

And heard, but could not understand,—so I said,

O my lord! what shall be the issue of these things?

Then said he,

Go thy way, Daniel; for closed up and sealed are the words, until the time of the end.

Many will purify themselves and be made white and be refined, but the lawless will act lawlessly, and none of the lawless shall understand;—but they who make wise shall understand; and from the time of the taking away of the continual ascending-sacrifice, and the placing of the horrid abomination that astoundeth shall be one thousand two hundred and ninety days.

Chapter 1.

1 The word of Yahweh which came unto Hosea son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, kings of Judah,—and in the days of Jeroboam son of Joash, king of Israel.

2 The beginning of the word of Yahweh with Hosea was,—that Yahweh said unto Hosea, Go take thee a woman of unchastity and the children of unchastity, for indeed hath the land been going away from following Yahweh.

3 So he went and took Gomer daughter of Diblaim,—and she conceived and bare him a son.

4 Then said Yahweh unto him, Call his name Jezreël: for yet a little and I will visit the bloodshed of Jezreël upon the house of Jehu, and will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel.

5 And it shall come to pass in that day that I will break the bow of Israel, in the vale of Jezreël.

6 Then conceived she again and bare a daughter, and he said to him, Call her name Lo-ruhamah—["Uncompassionated"]—for not again will I have compassion upon the house of Israel, that I should forgive them; but on the house of Judah will I have compassion, and I will save them, as Yahweh their God,—but will not save them by bow or by sword, or by battle, by horses, or by horsemen.

8 And when she had weaned Lo-ruhamah she conceived, and bare a son. Then said he, Call his name Lo-ammi [="No people of mine"],—for ye are Lo-ammi [="No people of mine"], and will not be yours.

10 Yet shall the number of the sons of Israel become like the sand of the sea, which can neither be measured, nor numbered,—and it shall come to pass in the place where it used to be said to them <No people of mine> are ye, it shall be said to them Sons of a Living God!

11 Then shall the sons of Judah and the sons of Israel gather themselves together as one, and shall appoint them one head, and come up out of the earth,—for great shall be the day of Jezreël.

Chapter 2.

1 Say ye unto your brethren, O Ammi [="O my people"], And unto your sisters, O Ruhamah [="O compassionated one"]:

2 Contend ye with your mother, contend, For she is no wife of mine, And I am no husband of hers, Let her then put away her paramours from before her, And her partners in adultery from her embraces:

3 Lest I strip off her under-clothing, And set her forth to view, as in the day she was born,— And make her like a wilderness, And render her like a land that is parched, And suffer her to die of thirst; And <on her children> not have compassion,— Because <the children of paramours> they are.

5 For their mother [hath been unchaste],
And she that conceived‘ them [hath caused shame],—
For she said,
Let me go after my lovers! who used to give flax, mine oil, and my drink.

6 [Therefore] behold me! hedging up hera way,
with thorns,—
And I will wall her in, and <her footpaths> shall she not find.
7 And ≤when she shall pursue her lovers, and not overtake them,
And shall seek them and not find≥
Then will she say,
Let me go my way now! and return’ unto my first‘ husband,
For it was better with me ||then|| than ||now||!
8 But ||she|| owneth not, that [ll] gave her—the corn, and the new wine and the oil,—<silver> also increased I unto her, and gold—[which] they offered to Baal!b
9 [Therefore] will I again’ take away my corn, in the time thereof,
And my new wine, in the season thereof,—
And will recover my wool and my flax [given] to hide her shame.
10 ||Now||, therefore, will I expose her unseemliness,c before the eyes of her lovers,—
And no ||man|| shall deliver her out of my hand!
11 And I will cause to cease all her mirth,
Her pilgrim-festival, her new moon and her sabbath,—and her every appointed meeting;
12 And will lay waste her vine and her fig-tree,
As to which she hath said,
<A present> are they’ for myself, which my lovers’ [have given me],—
And I will make of them a thicket, and the wild beasts of the field shall devour‘ them.
13 So will I visit upon her’ the days of the Baals, Unto whom she used to burn incense, and decked herself with her nose-ring and her jewelry, and went her way after her lovers,— Whereas <me> she forgot,

14 [Therefore] lo! ||ll|| am going to persuade her,
And <though I conduct her forth into wilderness>,
Yet will I speak unto her heart.d
15 Then will I give to her her vineyards from thence,
And the vale of Achor [=“trouble”]e for a door
of hope,—
And she will respond there,
As in the days of her youth,
And as in the day when she came up out of the land of Egypt.f
16 And it shall come to pass <in that day>

 Declareth Yahweh,
That she will call me Ishi [==“My husband”],
And will not call meg any more, Baali [==“Mine owner”].
17 So will I take away the names of the Baals, out of her mouth,—
And they shall not be called to mind any more,
by their name.
18 And I will solemnize to them a covenant, in that
day,
With the wild-beast of the field,
And with the bird of the heavens,
And the creeping thing of the ground,—
And <bow and sword and battle> will I break in pieces out of the land,
So will I cause them to lie down, in security.
19 And I will takeh thee unto myself, unto times age-abiding,— Yea I will takei thee unto myself, in righteousness and in justice, and in lovingkindness, and in abounding compassion;j
20 Yea I will takel thee unto myself, in faithfulness,—

 So shalt thou knowk Yahweh.
21 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will respond,

 Declareth Yahweh,
I will respond to the heavens,—

Chapter 4.

Hear the word of Yahweh, ye sons of Israel,—
That  hath Yahweh with the inhabitants of the land,
Because there is no’ faithfulness, nor lovingkindness, nor knowledge of God, in the land:
||Cursing' and lying, and killing and stealing, and committing adultery|| have broken forth,
And ||blood-shedding|| <unto blood-shedding> doth extend.
For this cause shall the land mourn’,
And everyone who dwelleth therein shall languish’,
With the wild beast of the field and
With the bird of the heavens,—
[Moreover also] ||the fishes of the sea|| shall be withdrawn.
Howbeit let ||no man|| contend,
Nor let him rebuke another,—
Since ||thy people|| are as they who contend against a priest:
So shouldst thou stumble in the daytime,
And even the prophet stumble with thee, in the night,—
And I should destroy thine own mother.
My people [are destroyed]’ for lack of knowledge,—
<Because ||thou|| hast rejected |knowledge|>
Therefore will I reject thee from ministering as priest unto me,
And <because thou hast forgotten the law” of thy God>
||I also|| will forget thy children.
<As they were magnified> ||so|| they sinned against me,—

9 So doth it come to be—
||Like people, like priest||,—
Therefore will I visit upon him his ways,
And <his doings> will I bring back to him;
And they shall eat, and not be satisfied,
They have encouraged unchastity, yet have not been making increase,—
For unto <Yahweh> have they left off giving heed:—

10 Unchastity, and wine, and new wine, take away the heart.\(^f\)

11 ||My people|| <of their Wood> do ask,—
Let ||their Staff|| then tell them,—
For [the spirit of unchastity] hath led them astray,
And they have unchastely departed from under their God.

12 ||On the headlands of the mountains> they sacrifice,
And <on the hills> burn they incense,
Under oak and poplar and terebinth,
Because [pleasant] is the shade thereof:
||For this cause|| do your daughters’ [become unchaste],
And [your brides] commit adultery.

13 I do not bring punishment upon your daughters when they become unchaste,
Nor upon your brides, when they commit adultery,
For [the men themselves]<\(^b\) <with unchaste women> do seclude themselves,
And <with the common women of the shrine> do offer sacrifice,—
And [a people who will not discern] must be ruined.

15 <Though unchaste’ art thou’, O Israel>
Let not Judah’ [become guilty],
Neither let them enter Gilgal,
Nor go up to Beth-aven,\(^1\)
And [then] swear, By the life of Yahweh!

16 For <as a heifer that is stubborn> hath Israel’ [been stubborn],—
||Now|| can Yahweh [turn them out to pasture], like a young ram in a wide place?

17 [Mated with idols] is Ephraim, let him alone.
Their drinking-bout [having passed],—they became [unchaste],
They loved wildly,
<A contempt> became her great men.\(^k\)

19 The wind hath bound her up in its wings,—
That they may be ashamed, because of their sacrifices.

Chapter 5.

1 Hear ye this—O priests,
And attend, O house of Israel,

Even Judah with them [hath stumbled].

<With their flocks and with their herds> will they go to seek Yahweh,
But shall not find him;
He hath withdrawn himself from them.

<With Yahweh> have they dealt treacherously,
For <to alien children> have they given birth,—
||Now|| a new moon [shall devour them], with their portions.

Blow ye a horn in Gibeah,
A trumpet in Ramah,—
Sound an alarm at Beth-aven.a

|Ephraim| shall become [a desolation], in the day of rebuke:
<Throughout the tribes of Israel> have I made known what is sure.

The rulers of Judah have become as they who remove a land-mark.b

<Upon them> will I pour out, like water, my wrath.

<Oppressed> is Ephraim, crushed in judgment,—
Because he hath [wilfully] walked after falsehood.c

But ||I|| was like a moth, to Ephraim,—
And like rotten wood, to the house of Judah.

<When Ephraim’ [saw] his injury’,
And Judah’ [his wound’>
Then went Ephraim’ unto Assyria’,
And [Judah] sent unto a hostile king,d—
Yet ||he|| cannot heal you,
Nor will the wound [remove from you].

For ||I|| will be as a lion unto Ephraim,
And as a young lion to the house of Judah,—
||I, || will tear in pieces, and depart,
I’e will carry off, and none’ be able to rescue.

I will depart, will return’ unto my place!
Till what time they acknowledge their guilt,
And seek my face,—

\[In their trouble\> will they make for me diligent search.

Chapter 6.

1

Come, and let us return unto Yahweh!

For ||he|| hath torn, that he might heal us,— smitten, that he might bind us up.

He will bring us to life, after two days,—
<On the third day> will he raise us up, that we may live before him.

Then let us know—let us press on to know—

Yahweh,

<Like the dawn> is his coming forth assured,—
That he may come
Like a down-pour upon us,
Like the harvest-pour upon us,
Like the seed-pour of the land.

4

What can I do unto thee, f O Ephraim?
What can I do unto thee,g O Judah?

Forh ||your lovingkindness|| is like a morning’ cloud,
Yea ||like the dew, early’ departing||!

[[For this cause]] have I hewn them in pieces by the prophets,
I have slain them by the sayings of my mouth,—
And ||my justice||’ as a light’ goeth forth.

6

For <<lovingkindness>> I desired, and not sacrifice,—
And the knowledge of God,i more than ascending-offerings.

7

But [they]i <like Adam> have transgressed a covenant,—
<There> have they dealt treacherously with me.

8

||Gilead|| is a city of workers of iniquity,— tracked with blood.

9

And <like liers in wait for a man, in troops> is a band of priests,
<On the road> will they murder towards Shechem,—
Because k they have done.

1. If when I would have brought healing to Israel>

2. And they say not to their own hearts, That <all their wickedness> I remember, ||Now|| have their doings [set them about], <Right before my face> have they been done. <By their wickedness> they gladden a king, And <by their flatteries>—rulers. [ ||They all|| are adulterers, Like an oven too hot for the baker,— Who leaveth off stoking, after kneading the dough, till the whole be leavened. ||In the day of our king|| the rulers [have made themselves ill] with the heat of wine,— He hath extended his hand with scoffers. They have become like a deceitful bow,
Their rulers [shall fall by the sword], for the rage of their tongue,

1 <To thy mouth> with a horn!

4 ||They|| have appointed kings,*
But not from me,
Have made rulers,
But I have not acknowledgedd them:
<Of their silver and their gold> they made themselves idols,
To the end they* might be cut off.
5 He hath cast away thy calf, O Samaria,
Kindled* is mine anger upon them,—
How long* shall they not endure to be innocent?
6 For <of Israel> is even that thing!
||A craftsman|] made it,
And ||a No-god|| it is!
For <into fragments> shall the Calf of Samaria be broken.
7 For <to the wind> they sow,
And <to the whirlwind> they reap:*

<If so be it yield> ||foreigners|| swallow it up.
8 |Swallowed up| is Israel;

But Ephraim shall return\(^b\) to Egypt,
And <in Assyria—that which is unclean> shall they eat.
4 They shall not pour out to Yahweh—wine,
Neither shall they be pleasing to him,
||[Their sacrifices] are as the food of mourning\(^c\) to them,
||All that eat thereof] shall defile themselves,
Because ||[their food for their appetite] entereth not into the house of Yahweh.
5 What will ye do, for the day of appointed meeting?
And in the day of the festival of Yahweh?
6 For <though\(^d\) they have gone from destruction>
Yet ||[Egypt]] shall gather them,
||[Memphis]] shall bury them,—
<As for their silver favourites!>
||[Thistles]] shall possess them,
Thorns in their tents.
7 Come are the days of visitation,
Come are the days of recompense,
Let Israel know!
The prophet is foolish',
The man of the spirit doth rave',
<Because of the greatness of thine iniquity>
Therefore great is the prosecution.
8 ||[The watchman of Ephraim] [should have been] with my God:
<As for the prophet,
||[The snare of the fowler]] is on all his ways,
A prosecution [awaiteth him], in the house of his God.
9 They have deeply\(^e\) corrupted themselves, like the days of Gibeah:\(^f\)
He will call to mind their iniquity,
He will punish\(^g\) their sins.
10 <Like grapes in the desert> found I Israel,
<Like the first-ripe in the fig-tree when it is young> saw I your fathers,—
|They]] entered Baal-peor,
And devoted themselves to the Shameful Thing,
Then became their abominations like their lusts.
11 ||[As for Ephraim]]! <like a bird> did their glory |fly away],—
No birth, and\(^h\)
None with child,
No conception.
12 Yea <though they rear their children> yet will I make them childless, till there be no human being,—
For it is ||nothing less than woe]] to them when
I depart from them!
13 ||[Ephraim]]! <just as I provided for Tyre> was planted in a meadow,\(^i\)
Yet ||[Ephraim]] must needs bring forth for a murderer’ his children.
14 Give them, O Yahweh—what’ wilt thou give?
Give them, a miscarrying womb, and breasts dried up.
15 ||[All their wickedness]] is in Gilgal,
Yea <there> have I come to hate them,
<For the wickedness of their doings—out of my house> will I drive them forth,—
No more’ will I love them,
||[All their rulers] are unruly.\(^j\)
16 Smitten’ is Ephraim,
||[Their root]] hath dried up,
||[Fruit]] shall they not bear,—
Yea’ <though they do bring forth> yet will I slay the darlings of their womb.
17 My God will reject’ them, because they hearkened not unto him,—
That they may become wanderers throughout the nations.

<According to the abundance of his fruit> hath he brought abundance to the altars,
<According to the goodness of his land> hath he made godly statues.\(^a\)

2 Hypocritical\(^b\) is their heart,
||Now|| shall they be held guilty,—
||He|| will break down their altars,
He will destroy their statutes.

3 For ||now|| will they say,
We have no’ king,—
For we revere not Yahweh,
And what could ||a’ king|| do for us?

4 They have spoken words, swearing falsely, in solemnizing a covenant,—
Therefore shall judgment [spring up like a poisonous plant] on the ridges\(^d\) of the field.

5 <About the calves of Beth-aven>\(^e\) will the inhabitant of Samaria be concerned,—
For the people thereof [have mourned over it],
And [the ascetics\(^f\) thereof, who <over it> used to exult][ shall mourn] for the glory thereof, because it hath departed from here.

6 ||Itself also|| to Assyria shall be borne along,
as a present to a hostile king,\(^g\)—
<Shame> shall Ephraim receive, that Israel [may be ashamed] of his own counsel.\(^h\)

7 Silenced’ is Samaria:
||Her king|| is as a chip on the face of the waters.\(^i\)

8 So shall the high places of Aven [be destroyed], the sin of Israel,
||Thorn and prickle|| shall come up on their altars,—
Therefore shall they say to the mountains,
Cover us, and to the hills,
Fall on us.

9 <Beyond\(^j\) the days of Gibeah> hast thou sinned,
O Israel:\(^k\)
<There> came they to a stand,

The battle against the sons of perversity [touched them not in Gibeah].

10 <When I please> then will I chastise them,—
And there shall be gathered together against them—peoples,
They being harnessed to their two Iniquities;\(^l\)

11 But ||Ephraim|| shall be a heifer broken in, loving to tread out corn, when ||l|| have passed over upon her fair neck,—
I will drive Ephraim,
Judah’ shall plow,
Jacob’ shall harrow to him.

12 Sow to yourselves in righteousness,
Reap ye at the bidding of lovingkindness,

13 YE have plowed lawlessness,
<Perjury> have ye reaped,
Ye have eaten the fruit of deception,—
Because thou didst trust in thy chariots,\(^m\)
In the multitude of thy mighty men.

14 Therefore shall there arise a tumult among thy peoples,\(^n\)
And [all thy fortresses] shall be plundered,
As Shalman plundered’ Beth-arbel,\(^o\) in the day of battle,—
||The mother|| <upon her children> dashed to the ground.

15 ||Even so|| hath Bethel [done to you], because of your exceeding’ wickedness,—
<In the dawn>\(^p\) shall the king of Israel be [utterly silenced]].

Then let sons |come trembling| out of the West.
Let them come trembling like a small bird out of Egypt.
And like a dove out of the land of Assyria,—
So will I cause them to dwell by\(^k\) their own

   Declareth Yahweh.

11 They have compassed me about—

Chapter 1.

The word of Yahweh, which came unto Joel, son of Pethuel.

Hear this, ye elders, and give ear, all ye inhabitants of the land,—Hath this ever happened in your days? Or in the days of your fathers?

Concerning it to your children, tell ye the story,—And your children to their children, and their children to the generation following:

<That which was left by the creeping locust> hath the swarming locust eaten, and <that which was left by the swarming locust> hath the grass locust eaten; and <that which was left by the grass locust> hath the corn locust eaten.

Awake, ye drunkards, and weep, and howl all ye drinkers of wine, over the new wine because it hath been cut off from your mouth.

For a nation hath come up over my land, bold, and without number,—His teeth are the teeth of a lion, and the fangs of a lioness hath he!

He hath turned my vine to a waste, and my fig-tree to splinters,—He hath ||barked it clean and cast it down, bleached are its branches.

Wail thou, like a virgin girded with sackcloth, for the owner of her youth.

Cut off are the meal-offering and the drink-offering, from the house of Yahweh,—In grief are the priests, the attendants on Yahweh:

Laid waste is the field, in grief is the soil,—For laid waste is the corn, abashed is the new wine, languisheth the oil.

Turn pale, ye husbandmen, howl, ye vinedressers, over the wheat, and over the barley,—For perished is the harvest of the field.

The vine is abashed, and the fig-tree languisheth,—Pomegranate, palm also, and apple—All the trees of the field have withered, yea abashed is gladness, away from the sons of men.

Gird yourselves and beat the breast—ye priests, howl ye attendants of the altar, go in and wrap yourselves for the night in sackcloth, ye attendants on my God,—For withholden from the house of your God are the meal-offering and the drink-offering.

Hallow ye a fast, call a solemn assembly, gather, O elders, all the inhabitants of the land, unto the house of Yahweh your God,—And make ye outcry unto Yahweh.

Alas for the day! For near is the day of Yahweh, and as a veritable Destruction from the Destroyer shall it come.

Is it not before our eyes that food hath been cut off? From the house of our God rejoicing and exultation.

c Heb.: yeleq, “prop. the devourer, because of its voracity”—Davies’ H.L., “Lapper”—G.A.S. e Or: “mead.” O.G.: “sweet wine (prop. pressed out juice).”
f Heb.: “the bâ’îl.”
g Cp. Is. xiii. 6, and see O.G. 454.
h Prob. a play on the word. “And as vehemence from the Vehement doth it come”—G.A.S. (who quotes from Driver: “As overpowering from the Overpowerer.”
Rotted' hath the seed, under their clods,°
Laid waste' are their stores,
Thrown down' are the garners,—
Yea abashed' is the corn.

How do the beasts groan!
Perplexed' are the herds of oxen,
Because there is no' pasture for them,—
Even ||the flocks of sheep|| are destroyed!

<Unto thee> O Yahweh, will I cry,—
For ||a fire|| hath consumed the pastures of the wilderness,
And ||a flame|| hath set ablaze all the trees of the field.
||Even the beasts of the field|| moan unto thee,—
Because dried up' are the channels of water,
And ||a fire|| hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness.

Chapter 2.

Blow ye a horn in Zion,
Sound an alarm in my holy' mountain,
Let all the inhabitants of the land ||tremble||,—
For coming' is the day of Yahweh,
For it is near!—

A day of obscurity and deep gloom,
A day of cloud, and thick darkness,
As dusk, b spread over the mountains,—
A people, many and bold,
<Like whom> hath not been from age-past times,
And <after whom> shall not be again' unto the years of generation after generation.

<Before him> hath a fire' [devoured],
And <after him> shall a flame' [consume],—
<As the garden of Eden> is the land before him,
But <after him> a desert most desolate,
|Moreover also| <escape> giveth he none.

<As the appearance of horses> is his appearance,
And <as war-horses> ||so|| shall they run:
Like the noise of chariots on the tops of the mountains> shall they rattle along,
Like the noise of a flame of fire, devouring dry straw,—

Like a people bold, arrayed for battle.
<Because of him> shall peoples' ||be in anguish||,—
||All faces|| have withdrawn their colour.
<Like heroes> shall they run,
<Like men of war> shall they mount a wall,—
And <every one—along his own road> shall they march along.
And shall not change their paths;
Nor <against each other> shall they strike,°
<Each—on his own highway> shall they march,—
<Though ||in among the weapons|| they fall> they shall not stop.
<Upon the city> shall they leap,
<On the wall> shall they run,
<Up the houses> shall they climb,—
<Through the windows> shall they enter, like a thief.°

<Before him> hath quaked the earth, have trembled the heavens,—
||The sun and the moon|| have become dark,
And ||the stars|| have withdrawn their shining;
And ||Yahweh|| hath uttered his voice, before his host,
For great indeed' is his camp,
For bold' is he who executeth his word,—
For great' is the day of Yahweh, and awful exceedingly,
Who' then shall endure it?

<Even now> therefore,
Urgeth Yahweh,
Turn ye unto me, with all your heart,—
And° with fasting and with weeping, and with lamentation;
And rend your heart, and not your garments,
Turn therefore, unto Yahweh your God,—
For <gracious and full of compassion> is he',
Slow to anger, and abundant in loving-kindness,°
And will grieve over Calamity.
Who knoweth, he may turn and grieve,—
And leave behind him, a blessing,°
A meal-offering and a drink-offering, to Yahweh your God?

° G.A.S.: “unshaved.”
° Every one—though ||in among the weapons|| they fall> they shall not stop.
° Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn., Syr., Vul.) omit this “And”—G.n.
° Cp. Exo. xxxiv. 6. Also Intro., Chapter I., 3. a.
° Or: “present.” Cp. Josh. xv. 19; Jdg. i. 15; 1 S. xxv. 27.
23 Verily, sons of Zion, then, exult and be glad in Yahweh your God.

For he hath given you the seed-rain, in right manner,

Yea he hath caused to descend for you a down-pour, of seed-rain and of the harvest-rain in the first month;

So shall the threshing-floors be filled with corn,—

And the vats overflow with new wine and oil.

Then will I make good to you the years which were eaten by the swarming locust, the grass locust, and the corn locust and the creeping locust,—even my great army, which I sent among you.

And ye shall eat and eat, and be satisfied,

And shall praise the name of Yahweh your God,

Who hath dealt with you wondrously,—

So shall my people not be abashed unto times age-abiding.

§ 2. The Promise of the Spirit.

And it shall come to pass afterwards,

I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh,

And your sons and your daughters shall prophesy,

Your old men shall dream dreams,

Your young men shall see visions;

Moreover also upon the handmaids—in those days> will I pour out my spirit;

And I will set forth wonders in the heavens, and in the earth,—

Blood, and fire, and columns of smoke:

The sun shall be turned into darkness,

And the moon into blood,—

Before the coming of the great and awful day of Yahweh.

And it shall come to pass

15 Blow ye a horn, in Zion,—

Hallow a fast,

Call a solemn assembly:

16 Gather the people,

Hallow a convocation,

Collect the elders;

Gather the children, and the sucklings of the breasts,—

Let the bridegroom come forth from his chamber,

And the bride from her bower;

Or: “gathered host.” Heb.: qāhāl.

Or: “old men.”

“Canopy or pavilion, bridal tent”—G.A.S.

Or: “strength.”

§ 3. All Nations, especially those around Palestine, summoned to the Vale of Jehoshaphat to be judged for their Treatment of Judah.

Chapter 3.

1 For lo! in those days, and at that time,—
When I shall bring back the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem,
2 Then will I gather all the nations,
And bring them down into the Vale of Jehoshaphat,—
And will enter into judgment with them there,
Concerning my people, and mine inheritance Israel,
Whom they scattered among the nations,
And <for my land> they apportioned;
And <for my people> they cast lots,—
And gave a Boy for a harlot,
And a Girl sold they for wine—and drank.
4 [Moreover also] what have [lye] to do with me,
O Tyre and Zidon,
And all the circuit of Palestine?
<A recompense> are ye’ paying back unto me?
But <though ye’ should make a recompense unto me>:
<Swiftly, speedily> would I return your recompense upon your own head.
5 Because <my silver and my gold> ye took away,—
And <my richly beautiful things> carried ye into your temples;
And <the sons of Judah and the sons of Jerusalem> ye sold to the sons of Greece,—
That they might be far removed from their own boundary.
7 Behold me! rousing them up out of the place whither ye sold them,—
So will I bring back your dealing upon your own head.
8 And I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hand of the sons of Judah,
And they will sell them to Sabæans, unto a nation afar off,—
For ||Yahweh|| hath spoken.
9 Proclaim ye this, among the nations,
Hallow a war,
Rouse the mighty ones,
Let them draw near, come up, all the men of war!
10 Beat your plough-shares into swords,
And your pruning-hooks into spears,—
<As for the weak> let him say,
<Mighty> I am’.
11 Give help—and come in, all ye nations on every side, and gather yourselves together,— <Thither> bring down, O Yahweh, thy mighty ones!
12 Let the nations be roused, and come up] into the Vale of Jehoshaphat,—
For <there> will I sit to judge all the nations, on every side.
13 Thrust ye in the vintage knife,
For [grown ripe] is the vintage,—
Go in, tread down,
For full is the winepress,
Flow over’ do the vats,
For abundant’ is their wickedness.
14 Multitudes, multitudes, in the vale of strict decision,—
For near’ is the day of Yahweh, in the vale of strict decision.
15 ||The sun and the moon|| have become dark,—
And ||the stars|| have withdrawn their shining,
And ||Yahweh|| <out of Zion> will roar,
And <out of Jerusalem> will utter his voice,
And the heavens and the earth shall tremble,—
But ||Yahweh|| shall be a shelter to his people,
And a refuge’ to the sons of Israel.
17 So shall ye know’ that ||I, Yahweh|| am your God, making my habitation in Zion my holy’ mountain,—
So shall ||Jerusalem|| be ||holy||,
And ||foreigners|| shall pass through her no more.
18 And it shall come to pass in that day,

And the hills shall flow down with milk,
And \(\text{all the channels of Judah}\) shall flow down with waters,—
And \(\text{a spring}\) <out of the house of Yahweh> shall come forth,
And shall water the torrent-valley of the acacias.\(^b\)

\(19\) \(\text{Egypt}\) <to a desolation> shall be turned,
And \(\text{Edom}\) <to a desert most desolate> shall be changed,—
Because of the violence done to the sons of Judah,
In that they shed innocent blood in their land.

\(20\) But \(\text{Judah}\) <age-abidingly> shall remain,
And \(\text{Jerusalem}\) to generation after generation.

\(21\) And I will free from their blood-guiltiness them whom I had not freed,\(^c\)—

§ 1. After a brief Introduction and Note of Warning, an Unalterable Divine Threat goes forth, in succession, against Damascus, Gaza, Tyre, Edom, Ammon, Moab, Judah, and finally Israel. (chaps. i. and ii.)

Chapter 1.

The words of Amos, who was among the herdmen of Tekoa,—of which (words) he had vision concerning Israel, in the days of Uzziah king of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam son of Joash, king of Israel, two years before the earthquake. So then he said—

||Yahweh||<out of Zion> will roar, And <out of Jerusalem> will utter his voice,— And the pastures of the shepherds |shall mourn|, And the top of Carmel |be dried up|.

Therefore will I send a fire into the house of Hazael,— Which shall devour the palaces of Ben-hadad; And I will break the bolt of Damascus, And cut off the inhabitant out of the plain of Aven, And the holder of the sceptre’ out of the house of Eden,— And the people of Syria |shall be exiled| unto Kir,

Saith Yahweh.

Therefore will I send a fire upon the wall of Gaza,— Which shall devour the palaces thereof; And I will cut off the inhabitant out of Ashdod, And the holder of the sceptre out of Ashkelon,— And will turn my hand against Ekron, So shall perish the remnant of the Philistines, Saith My Lord, Yahweh.“If so be these transgressions of Tyre should be committed, I will not let her rise from her ruins; for she has delivered up her people to Edom, and has remembered not her brotherly covenant, she will be visited with a long-standing anger, and her indignation kept watch perpetually.”

Therefore will I send a fire upon the wall of Tyre,— Which shall devour the palaces thereof.

Therefore will I send a fire into Teman,— Which shall devour the palaces of Bozrah.

Therefore will I kindle a fire upon the wall of Rabbah, Which shall devour the palaces thereof,— With a war-cry in the day of battle, With tempest in the day of storm-wind;

Or, “shepherds.”

Or, “give out.”

Cp. ver. 8, n.

Or, “the Idol” = Baalbec (Heliopolis in Syria)—Davies’ H.L.

Or, perh.: “him that is seated” = “that reigneth.” Cp. O.G. 442. And so in ver. 5.

Or transfer both names: “Adhonây  Yahweh.”

Gt.: “And his anger continued evermore.” Cp. Jer. iii. 5—G.n.
Chapter 2.

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
<Because of three transgressions of Moab, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—
||Because he burned the bones of the King of Edom to lime||
Therefore will I send a fire into Moab,
Which shall devour the palaces of Keriioth,—
And Moab shall die with tumult, with war-cry, with the sound of a horn;
And I will cut off the judge out of her midst,
And <all her rulers> will I slay with him,
Saith Yahweh.

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
<Because of three transgressions of Judah, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—
||Because they have rejected the law of Yahweh,
And <his statutes> have not kept,
But their falsehoods have led them astray, after the which their fathers did walk||
Therefore will I send a fire upon Judah,—
Which shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem.

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
<Because of three transgressions of Israel, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—
||Because they have sold—for silver—the righteous,
And the needy—for a pair of shoes:
Who strive to bring the dust of the earth on the head of the poor,
And <the way of the oppressed> they pervert,—
Yea ||a man and his own father|| go in unto the maid,
To profane my holy Name!
And <on pledged garments> they recline, beside every altar,—
And <exacted> wine do they drink, in the house of their God.

§ 2. A First Solemn Summons to the Whole Family of Israel.

Chapter 3.

Hear ye this word, which Yahweh hath spoken concerning you, ye sons of Israel,— Concerning the whole family which I brought up out of the land of Egypt, saying:—

<Only you> have I acknowledged, of all the families of the ground,||

k Cp. Gen. xii. 3.
||For this cause|| will I visit upon you’ all your iniquities.

3 Can two walk’ together,—
   Except they meet?\(^a\)

4 Will a lion roar’ in the forest,
   When <prey> he hath none?
Will a young lion utter’ his voice out of his den,
   When he hath made no capture?

5 Will a bird fall’ upon a net to the earth,
   When there is no ||snare|| for it?
Will a net rise’ from the ground,
   When it hath ||captured nothing||?

6 Or a horn be blown’ in a city,
   And ||a people’|| not tremble’?
Or calamity happen’ in a city,
   And ||Yahweh|| not have wrought with effect?\(^b\)

7 Surely My Lord Yahweh [will do] nothing’,— except he have disclosed his secret unto his servants, the prophets!

8 ||A lion|| hath roared,
   Who will not fear?
||[My Lord, Yahweh]| that hath spoken,
   Who can forbear to prophesy?

9 Announce it over the palaces in Ashdod,
   And over the palaces in the land of Egypt,—
And say ye—
   Gather yourselves together upon the mountains of Samaria,
   And behold ye—
   The great disorders in the midst thereof,
   And the oppressed within her.

10 Therefore do they not know how to do right,
   Declareth Yahweh,
   who are treasuring up violence and spoil in their palaces.

11 [Therefore]—
   ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,\(^d\)
An adversary! Yea round about the land,—
   And he who shall bring down, \(^c\) from thee, thy strength,
   And spoiled’ shall be thy palaces.
   ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,

\(\leq\)Just as a shepherd rescueth, out of the mouth of the lion, a couple of shankbones, or the tip of an ear\(\geq\)

||[So]|| shall be rescued’ the sons of Israel, who are tarrying in Samaria,
In the corner of the divan, and
On the damask of the luxurious couch.

13 Hear ye and bear witness, throughout the house of Jacob,— Commandeth My Lord, Yahweh,\(^f\)
   God of hosts:

14 That <in the day I visit the transgressions of Israel upon him> then will I punish, concerning the altars of Bethel,
   So shall the horns of the altar [be broken off],
   and they shall fall to the ground;

15 And I will smite the winter’ house along with the summer’ house,—
   And the houses of ivory [shall be destroyed],
   And the great houses [shall disappear],
   Declareth Yahweh.

§ 3. A Second Summons, beginning with the Luxurious Women of Samaria, and culminating in a Fivefold Refrain of Divine Complaint.

Chapter 4.

1 \(\leq\)Hear ye this word, ye heifers of Bashan, that are in the mountain of Samaria,
   Who oppress the poor,
   Who crush the needy,—
   Who say to their lords,
   Bring in, and let us drink!

2 Sworn’ hath My Lord, Yahweh,\(^g\)
   By his own holiness,
   That lo! ||days|| are coming upon you,—
   When he will take you’ away with hooks,
   And your followers’ with fishhooks;

3 And <through fissures> shall ye go out,
   ||Every woman|| straight before her,—
   And ye shall be thrust forth towards the castle,\(^h\)
   Declareth Yahweh.

4 Enter ye Bethel, and transgress,
   <At\(\text{I}^t\) Gilgal> cause transgression [to abound],—

\(^i\) Some cod.: “And at”—G.n.
Yea, carry in, every morning, your sacrifices, <Every three days> your tithes;

Yea, burn thou incense, of that which is leavened, as a thank-offering, And proclaim ye freewill-offerings, let them be known,— For ||so|| ye love [to have it], ye sons of Israel, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.a

[Moreover also] ||II|| have given you Cleanness of teeth throughout all your cities, And want of bread throughout all your dwelling-places,— Yet have ye not returned unto me, Declareth Yahweh.

[Moreover also] ||II|| have withheld from you the abundant rain, when yet’ there were only three months to the harvest, Or I might rain upon one’ city, And <on another’ city> might not rain,— ||One portion|| would be rained upon, And ||the portion whereupon itb should not rain|| would be dried up;

Then would two or three cities totter to one city to drink water, without being satisfied,— Yet have ye not returned unto me, Declareth Yahweh.

I have smitten you with blight and with mildew, When your gardens and your vineyards and your fig-trees and your olive-trees have increasedc the creeping locust would devour them,— Yet have ye not returned unto me, Declareth Yahweh.

I have sent among you pestilence, in the manner of Egypt, I have slain, with the sword, your young men, And therewith have been taken captive your horses, And I have caused to ascend—the stench of your camps, even into your own nostrils, Yet have ye not returned unto me, Declareth Yahweh.

I have made an overthrow among you, Like the divine overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah,

And ye have become like a brand snatched out of the burning,— Yet have ye not returned unto me, Declareth Yahweh.

[Therefore]||thus|| will I do unto thee, O Israel,—<Because’ this’ thing I will do unto thee> Prepare to meet thy God, O Israel.

Or: “lifting”—as if a “burden.”

Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn., Syr., Vul.): “and cannot”—G.n.

Or both as proper names: “Adhonây, Yahweh.”
Lest he break forth, like a fire, upon the house of Joseph,
And it devour with none’ to quench it, for Bethel.
7 Ye who turn <into |wormwood|> |justice|,
And <righteousness—to the ground have let fall>
8 [Seek him]
Who made the Clusterª and the Giant,ª
And turneth, into morning, the shadow of death,
And who <day into night> doth darken,
Him who calleth to the waters of the sea, and poureth them out on the face of the land,
||Yahweh|| is his name:
9 Him who flasheth force on the strong,—
And ||force|| |on the fortress| alighteth!
10 They hate the man who, in the gate, rebuketh,—
And <him who speaketh truthfully> they abhor.
11 |Therefore|—
≤Because ye have trampled on the poor,
And <the gift of corn> ye would take away from him≥
<Though |houses of hewn stone| ye have built>
Yet shall ye not dwell in them,—
<Though |delightful vineyards| ye have planted>
Yet shall ye not drink the wine of them.
12 For I know
How numerous are your transgressions, and
How surpassing’ your sins,—
Ye adversaries of the righteous!
Ye acceptors of a bribe!
<Even the needy in the gate> have they turned away!
13 |Therefore| ||the prudent man|| <at that time> will be dumb,—
Because <an evil time> it is!
14 Seek ye right and not wrong, that ye may live,—
That ||so|| Yahweh God of hosts, may be’ with you, ||as ye have said||.
15 Hate wrong, and love right,
And station |Justice| in the gate,—
|Peradventure| Yahweh, God of hosts, will be gracious’ unto the remnant of Joseph.

16 |Therefore|
||Thus|| saith Yahweh, God of hosts,
My Lord,
<In all broadways> shall be lamentation,
And <in all streets> shall they say, Alas! Alas!
And they shall call the husbandman' unto the mourning,
And <unto the lamentation> them who know a wailing song;ª

17 Yea <in all vineyards> lamentation,—
For I will pass along through thy midst,
Saith Yahweh.

§ 5. A Lament for such as long for Yahweh’s Day, when it can bring them no good.

18 Alas for them who are longing for the day of Yahweh,—
|What good to you| is the day of Yahweh?
||It|| being darkness and not light:
19 As if a man should flee’ from the face of a Lion,
And there should meet’ him—a Bear!
Or he should have entered the house, and leaned his hand upon the wall,
And there should bite’ him—a Serpent!
20 Shall not the day of Yahweh be ||darkness|| and not light?
Yea, thick darkness, and no’t brightness in it?

§ 6. Divine Abhorrence of Israel’s Festivals.

21 I hate, I despise your festivals,—
And can scent no fragrance in your solemn feasts.
22 Nay <though ye cause to ascend unto me ascending-sacrifices, and your meal-offerings>
I will not accept [them],—
Nor <the peace-offering of your fat heifers> will I regard.
23 Take thou away from me, the noise of thy songs,—
<Even the melody of thy harps> will I not hear.
But let [Justice] ||roll along like water||,—
And ||righteousness|| as a torrent over flowing.

ª Or: “Pleiades.”
b Or: “Orion.”
c “Knowers of lamentation, professional mourners”—O.G. 394.
“Skilled in mourning song”—Ibid. 624.

AMOS – Chapter 6.

Chapter 6.

1 Alas for the careless in Zion, And for them who put confidence in the mountain of Samaria,— The distinguished among the first group of nations, To whom came in the house of Israel.

2 Pass ye over to Calneh, and see, And go on from thence to Hamath the great,— And go down to Gath of the Philistines Are they better than these kingdoms? Or their boundary larger than your boundary?

3 Ye who are putting far away the day of calamity,— But bringing near the abode of violence:

4 Who are lying on beds of ivory, And sprawling on their couch of pleasure,— And eating the well-fed of the flock, And the fatted calves out of the midst of the stalls:

5 Who are bawling at the bidding of the harp,— Like David have they invented for themselves instruments of song:

6 Who are quaffing bowls of wine, And with the best of oils anointing themselves,— And are not afflicted for the injury of Joseph:—

Therefore shall they go into exile among the first of the exiles,— So shall be disturbed the revelry of sprawlers. Sworn’ hath the Lord, Yahweh, by his own life, Declareth Yahweh, God of hosts, [Abhorring am I] the grandeur of Jacob, And his palaces I hate,— Therefore will I cast off the city and the fulness thereof.

And it shall come to pass, Though there be left remaining ten men in one house Yet shall they die;

Shall horses run upon a crag? Or will a man plough [there] with oxen? For ye have turned to poison the sentence of justice, And the fruit of righteousness to wormwood: Who rejoice in a thing of nought, Who say, Have we not by our own strength taken to ourselves horns? For behold me! raising up against you, O house of Israel, Declareth Yahweh, the God of hosts,— a nation!

§ 8. Amos, moved by the Two Visions, twice makes successful Intercession for Jacob: a Third Vision—No more Forgiveness!

Chapter 7.

1 ||[Here]|| My Lord, Yahweh\(^b\) gave me to see', and lo! he was preparing the locust, in the beginning of the shooting up of the after-grass, and lo! \([\text{after-grass}]\) cometh after the mowings for the king.\(^2\) And it came to pass \(<\text{when they had made an end of eating the herbage of the land}\) that I said—

Oh, My Lord, Yahweh, forgive, I beseech thee:
By whom shall Jacob [arise]?\(^c\)
For [\text{small}] he is'.

3 Grieved' was Yahweh, over this,—It shall not be, Said Yahweh.\(^d\)

4 ||[Here]|| My Lord, Yahweh\(^e\) gave me to see', and lo! My Lord Yahweh\(^f\) proclaiming that the controversy should be settled by fire,—which, having devoured the mighty roaring deep, should devour the inheritance.\(^5\) Then said I, My Lord, Yahweh, forbear, I beseech thee,
By whom shall Jacob [arise]?\(^g\)
For [\text{small}] he is'.

6 Grieved' was Yahweh, over this,—||[Even this]|| shall not be Said My Lord, Yahweh.

7 ||[Here]|| he gave me to see, And lo! ||[My Lord]|| stationed upon a pinnacle,\(^h\)—and, in his hand, a plummet.\(^i\) And Yahweh said unto me,
What canst thou see, Amos?
And I said,
A plummet,—Then said My Lord,
Behold me! fixing a plummet in the midst of my people Israel,
I will not again' any more' forgive him.

8 So shall the high places of Isaac [be made desolate],
And [the holy places of Israel] be laid waste,—
And I will rise up, against the house of Jeroboam, with the sword.

§ 9. Amaziah, Priest of Bethel, attempts to silence Amos; who defends himself by relating his call to the Prophetic Office, and proceeds to fasten on Amaziah definite alarming Predictions.

10 Then sent Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, unto Jeroboam king of Israel, saying:
A conspiracy' hath Amos raised against thee, in the midst of the house of Israel.
The land [is not able to endure] all his words;
For [\text{thus}] saith Amos,
<By the sword> shall Jeroboam' die,—
And [\text{Israel}] shall [\text{surely be exiled}] from off his own soil.

12 Then said Amaziah unto Amos,
O seer,\(^j\) go flee thee away unto the land of Judah—
And eat, there, bread,
And [\text{there}] mayest thou prophesy;
But [\text{at Bethel}] not again, any more] mayest thou prophesy,—
For [\text{the holy place of the king} it is'],
And [\text{the house of the kingdom} it is'].

14 Then answered Amos, and said unto Amaziah,
[\text{No prophet}'] was I',—
[\text{Nor the son of a prophet}'] was I',—
But [\text{a herdman}'] was I',
And a preparer of sycamore fruit;\(^k\)

15 But Yahweh [took me away] from following the flock,—and Yahweh [said unto me], Go prophesy' against my people Israel.

16 ||[Now]|| therefore, hear thou the word of Yahweh,—Thou' art saying,
Thou must not prophesy concerning Israel,
Nor let thy word drop down upon the house of Isaac.

17 Therefore—

|Thus| saith Yahweh,
|Thy wife| <in the city> will commit unchastity,
And |thy sons and thy daughters| <by the sword> shall fall,
And |thine own soil| <by line> shall be apportioned,—
And |[thou]| <on a polluted soil> shalt die,
And |[Israel]| shall |surely go into exile| away from his own soil.

§ 10. A Basket of Summer Fruit (qayits) symbolises Israel’s End (qêts). Gross Sins call forth Threats of Divers Calamities, including a Famine of the Prophetic Word.

Chapter 8.

1 |Here| My Lord, Yahweh, gave me to see,— and lo! there was a basket of summer fruit.
So then he said,
What canst thou see, Amos?
And I said,
A basket of summer fruit.
Then said Yahweh unto me,
The end hath come unto my people Israel, I will not again any more forgive them;
but palace-songs |shall become howlings| in that day,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Many shall be the dead bodies in every place—
cast forth—[with a] Hush!

2 Hear this,
Ye who pant after the needy,
And to make an end of the oppressed of the land:
Who say,
When will the new moon |pass away|, that we may sell corn?
And the sabbath that we may open grain?
Who diminish the ephah, and increase the shekel, and who falsify by deceitful weights:

3 Who buy—for silver—the poor,
And the needy for a pair of shoes,—
And that the refuse of the grain we may sell.
Sworn hath Yahweh,
By the Excellency of Jacob,—

4 Surely I will never forget any of their doings!
8 Is it not <for this> that the land’ [shall tremble]?
And shall mourn every inhabitant therein?
Shall it not come up—like the Nile, all’ of it,
And be tossed and subside, like the river of Egypt?
9 Yea it shall come to pass, in that day,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
That I will cause the sun to go in at high noon,—
And will darken the earth on a day of brightness.
10 So will I turn your festivals into mourning,
And all your songs into a dirge,
And I will bring up—on all loins—sackcloth,
And upon every head—baldness,—
And I will make it like the mourning for an only one,

5 Even the afterpart thereof as a day of bitterness.
Lo! days’ are coming,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
That I will send a hunger throughout the land,—
Not a hunger for food,
Nor a thirst for water,
But for hearing the words of Yahweh;
12 Therefore shall men rove about—
From Sea to Sea, and
From the north even unto Sunrise,—
They shall run to and fro—seeking the word of Yahweh, but shall not find [it].
13 <In that day> shall the fair virgins and the choice young men faint’ for thirst.

6 ¶They who swear by the Guilt of Samaria,
And say, As thy God [liveth], O Dan!
And, As the Way of Beer-sheba [liveth][]
Shall fall, and shall not rise any more.

§ 11. Offenders cannot escape; yet, though both the Sinful Kingdom and Boastful Individuals be destroyed, the House of Jacob shall not utterly perish.

Chapter 9.

1 I saw My Lord stationed by the altar, and he said—
Smite the capital—that the sills’ [may tremble],
Yea break them off on the head of them all,
And |[the last of them]| <with the sword> will I slay,—

a N.B., Heb.: qayits.
b N.B., Heb.: qêts.
c So O.G. 410.
d Or as two proper names: “Adhonây, Yahweh.”
e Or: “lowly,” “patient.”

f Ml.: “stones of deceit.”
g Refer ver. 3, nn.
He that fleeth of them [shall not flee away],
And he that escapeth of them [shall not make good his escape].

2 <Though they break through into hades>
||From thence|| shall my hand fetch them,—
And <though they ascend the heavens>
||From thence|| will I bring them down;
3 And <though they hide themselves in the top of Carmel>
||From thence|| will I search for them and take them,—
And <though they conceal themselves from before mine eyes at the bottom of the sea>
||From thence|| will I I search for them and take them,—
And <though they go into captivity before their enemies>
||From thence|| will I command the sword, and it shall slay them,—
So will I set mine eyes upon them for calamity, and not for blessing.

4 Now ||My Lord, Yahweh of hosts|| is he—
Who toucheth the earth, and it melteth,
And all that dwell therein [mourn];
And it cometh up like the Nile, all of it,
And subsideth like the river of Egypt:
Who buildeth, in the heavens, his upper rooms, b
And <as for his vault> [upon the earth] hath he founded it,—
Who calleth to the waters of the sea, and poureth them out over the face of the land,
||Yahweh|| is his name.

5 <Like the sons of the Ethiopians> are not ||ye|| unto me, O sons c of Israel?
Demandeth Yahweh:
Was it not ||Israel|| I brought up out of the land
of Egypt,
And the Philistines out of Caphtor, d
And the Syrians out of Kir? e

8 Lo! ||the eyes of My Lord, Yahweh|| f are on the sinful’ kingdom,

And I will destroy it’ from off the face of the ground,—
Save only’ that I will not ||utterly destroy|| the house of Jacob,
Declareth Yahweh.

9 For lo! I’ am giving command, and will sift, throughout all the nations, the house of Israel,—as grain is sifted in a sieve,
Yet shall there not fall a kernel, to the earth.
10 <By the sword> shall die all the sinners of my people,—
Who say, The calamity’ [shall not overtake and close in before us].

§ 12. In the day of final Dealing, David’s Tent shall be raised; and Abounding Prosperity be given to the Replanted Nation, which shall be Uprooted no more.

11 <In that day> will I raise up the pavilion g of David, that is lying prostrate,—
And wall up the breaches of them,
And <his ruins> will I raise up,
And will build it, as in the days of age-past times:
12 That they on whom my name hath been called,
| may take possession | of the residue of Edom
and of all the nations,
Declareth Yahweh, who executeth this.
13 Lo! days’ are coming,
Declareth Yahweh,
That [the plowman] shall overtake’ [the reaper],
And [he that treadeth out the grapes] [him that traileth the seed],—
So shall [the mountains] drip’ [sweet wine], h
And [all the hills] shall melt; t
And I will bring back the captivity j of my people
Israel,
And they shall build waste cities, and inhabit
[them],
And plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof,
And lay out gardens, and eat the fruit thereof:

Saith Yahweh thy God.
Chapter 1.

1 The vision of Obadiah,—
||Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh, \(^a\)
Concerning Edom—

<A rumour> have we heard from Yahweh,
And ||a herald|| [throughout the nations] hath been sent,
Up! and let us rise against her to war.

2 Lo! <small> have I made thee, among the nations,— Despised art thou exceedingly!

||The insolence of thy heart|| hath deceived thee,
O thou that inhabitest
The retreats of the crag,\(^b\)
The height of his habitation,\(^b\)
That saith in his heart,
Who shall bring me down to the ground?

4 Though thou build high like an eagle,
And though <among> the stars thou set thy nest,\(^c\)
||From thence|| will I bring thee down,
Declareth Yahweh.

5 <If ||thieves|| had come to thee,
If robbers by night—how ruined thou art!≥
Would they not have stolen what sufficed them?
||If ||grape-gatherers|| had come to thee>
Would they not have left gleanings?

How have
The things of Esau been searched out!\(^e\)
His treasures been sought up!

6 <Up to the boundary> have they sent thee—
All thy covenant men,
They have deceived thee, prevailed against thee—
The men thou wast wont to salute,\(^g\)—
||The partakers of thy bread||\(^h\) have put a net under thee—
No’ understanding in him!\(^i\)

7 Shall it not be <in that day>
Demandeth Yahweh,—
That I will destroy
The wise men out of Edom,
And understanding out of Mount Esau?

9 So shall thy mighty men, O Teman, [be dismayed],—
To the intent that every man [may be cut off] out of Mount Esau, by slaughter.

<For thy violence against thy brother Jacob> shall shame’ [cover thee],—
So shalt thou be cut off, to times age-abiding.

10 In the day when thou didst take thy stand over against him,
In the day when foreigners took captive’ his forces,—
And ||aliens|| entered his gates,\(^j\) and ||over Jerusalem| cast lots≥
||Even thou|| wast like one of them!

11 Do not, then,\(^k\) look with satisfaction

Just as thou hast done shall it be done to thee,
Thy dealing shall come back upon thine own head.

For as ye have drunk on my holy mountain
All the nations shall drink continually,—
Yea they shall drink and swallow down,
And shall be, as though they had not been.

But shall be a delivered remnant which shall be holy,—
And the house of Jacob shall possess their own possessions;

And the house of Jacob shall be a fire,
And the house of Joseph a flame,

JONAH.

§ 1. Jonah, commissioned to proclaim against Ninevah for her Wickedness, flies from Duty by taking Ship for Tarshish. A Storm overtaking the Vessel, the Sailors reluctantly cast the Prophet into the Sea, when a great Fish swallows him; he prays as out of the Belly of Hades, and is vomited upon Dry Land. Tell us, we pray thee, for whose sake this calamity is upon us?

What is thy business? and from whence comest thou? what is thy country? and of what people art thou?

And he said unto them,

A Hebrew> am I,—and <Yahweh, the God of the heavens> do ||[I]|| revere, him who made the sea, and the dry land.

Then did the men revere' with great reverence, and said unto him,

What is it thou hast done?

For the men knew' that <away from the presence of Yahweh> he' was fleeing,—for he had told them. Then said they unto him,

What shall we do to thee, that the sea may cease' raging over us?

For ||[the sea]|| was raging more and more. And he said unto them,

Take me up, and hurl me into the sea, that the sea may cease' raging over you, for I' do know' that <for my sake> is this great tempest upon you.

Nevertheless the men [wrought hard] to bring it back unto the land, but could not,—for ||[the sea]|| was raging over' them more and more. Then cried they unto Yahweh, and said,

Ah now, Yahweh, pray let it not be that we perish for this man's life, neither lay upon us innocent blood,—for ||[thou, O Yahweh]|| <as thou hast pleased> hast ever done.

So they took up Jonah and hurled him into the sea,—and the sea [left off] her roaring. Then did the men revere' Yahweh' with a great reverence,—and offered sacrifice to Yahweh, and vowed vows.

Now Yahweh had appointed' a great fish, to swallow up Jonah,—and Jonah was in the belly of the fish, three days and three nights.

1 And the word of Yahweh came' unto Jonah son of Amittai, saying:

2 Arise, get thee to Nineveh the great city, and proclaim unto it,—That their wickedness hath come up] before me.

3 But Jonah arose' to flee unto Tarshish, away from the presence of Yahweh,—and went down to Joppa, and found a ship going to Tarshish, so he paid the fare thereof, and went down into it, to go with them' to Tarshish, away from the presence of Yahweh. But ||Yahweh|| hurled a great wind against the sea,—and there arose a mighty tempest in the sea,—and ||[the ship]] thought to be broken in pieces. Then were the mariners [afraid], and made outcry every man unto his own god, and they hurled the wares which were in the ship, into the sea, to lighten it of them,—but ||[Jonah]|| had gone down into the hinder parts of the vessel, and had lain down, and fallen into a sound sleep. Then drew near unto him the shipmaster, and said to him,

What meanest thou? O sound sleeper? Arise, cry unto thy God, Peradventure' God will bethink' himself of us, that we perish not.

And they said—every one unto his fellow,

Come, and let us cast lots, that we may get to know for whose sake this calamity is upon us. So they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah.

4 Then said they unto him,

6 Or: “tackle which was.”

7 Or: “the chief of the rope-men.”

8 Ml.: “may subside from upon us.”

9 Or: “surging higher and higher”—G.A.S. Ml.: “going on and raging.”

10 Ml.: “may subside from upon you.”

11 Or: “was going on and raging over them.” G.A.S.: “grew more and more stormy against them.”

Chapter 2.

1 Then prayed Jonah, unto Yahweh, his God,—out of the belly of the fish;
2 and said—
   I cried—out of my distress—unto Yahweh,
   And he answered me,—
   <Out of the belly of hades> called I,
   Thou didst hear my voice.
3 For thou hast cast me into the deep,
   into the heart of the seas,
   And ||[a flood]|| enveloped me,—
   ||All thy breakers and thy rolling waves|| <over me> passed.
4 And ||[l]|| said,
   I am driven out from before thine eyes,—
   Yet will I again’ have regard unto thy holy’ temple.:b
5 The waters [encompassed me], to the peril of my life,.c
   ||[The roaring deep]|| enveloped me,—
   ||[The sea-weed]|| was wrapped about my head:
6 <To the roots of the mountains> went I down,
   <As for the earth> ||[her bars]|| were about me,
   age-abidingly,—
   Then didst thou bring up—out of the pit—my life, O Yahweh my God.
7 <When my soul’ darkened itself over me|≥
   <Yahweh> I remembered,—
   And my prayer’ came in
   Unto thee|,
   Unto thy holy temple.
8 ||[They who take heed to the vanities of falsehood]||f do <their own lovingkindness>g forsake.
9 But ||[l]|| <with the voice| of praise> will sacrifice unto thee,
   <What I have vowed> I will pay,—
   ||Salvation|| belongeth to Yahweh!

10 So then Yahweh spake’ unto the fish,—and it vomited out Jonah, upon the dry land.i

§ 2. Again commissioned, Jonah this time obeys, and proclaims to Ninevah her impending Destruction; whereupon People and Monarch humble themselves for their Sins and cry unto God for Mercy—which is granted, and Ninevah is spared.

Chapter 3.

1 Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jonah, the second time, saying:
2 Arise, get thee unto Nineveh, the great city,— and cry against it the cry that I’ am bidding thee.
3 So Jonah arose’, and went his way unto Nineveh, according to the word of Yahweh,—||Nineveh|| being a city great before God, of three days’ journey. 4 So Jonah began’ to enter into the city, one day’s journey,—and he cried out and said—<Yet forty days> and ||Nineveh|| is to be overthrown!
5 And the people of Nineveh believed’ in God,— and proclaimed a fast, and clothed themselves in sackcloth, from the greatest of them, even unto the least of them. 6 And the word reached’ unto the king of Nineveh, so he arose from his throne, and laid aside his robe from off him,—and covered him with sackcloth, and sat on ashes. 7 And he caused an outcry to be made—and said—throughout Nineveh,
   <By decree of the king and of his great men>
   Be it known:—
   <Man and beast, herd and flock>,
   Let them taste [nothing],
   Let them not feed,
   And <water> let them not drink:
8 Let both man and beast [cover themselves with sackcloth],
   And let them cry unto God, mightily,— Yea let them turn, every man from his wicked way, and from the violence which is in their hands:

9 Who knoweth whether God himself—[may turn and grieve],—and turn away from the glow of his anger, That we perish not?

10 And God saw’ their doings, that they turned from their wicked way,—and God was grieved’ over the calamity which he had spoken of executing upon them, and executed it not.

§ 3. Jonah, chafing at the Divine Clemency, which he protests he had expected, asks to die; but, instead of obtaining his Request, by the help of a Gourd, is taught a useful Lesson.

Chapter 4.

1 And it was vexing unto Jonah with a great vexation,—and it angered him. 2 So he prayed unto Yahweh, and said—

Ah now! Yahweh! Was not [this] my word, while I was yet upon mine own soil? ||For this cause|| did I hasten to flee unto Tarshish,—

Because I knew that ||thou|| art a GOD of favour and compassion, slow to anger, and abundant in lovingkindness, and art grieved over calamity. 3 ||Now|| therefore, O Yahweh, take, I pray thee, my life from me,—for it were better’ for me to die, than [to live].

4 Then said Yahweh, Art thou rightly’ angry?

5 But Jonah [went forth] out of the city, and abode on the east side of the city; and made for himself there, a hut, and sat under it, in the shade, until he should see what would become of the city. 6 Now Yahweh God appointed[6] a gourd, and caused it to come up over Jonah, that it might be a shade over his head, to deliver him from his vexation,—and Jonah rejoiced’ over the gourd, with great rejoicing. 7 But God appointed’ a worm, at the uprisings of the dawn, the next day,—and it smote the gourd, that it withered. 8 And it came to pass [at the breaking forth of the sun] that God appointed’ a sultry east wind, and the sun smote upon the head of Jonah, that he became faint,—and asked his life, that he might die, and said, It were better’ for me [to die], than [to live].

9 Then said God unto Jonah, Art thou rightly’ angry, over the gourd? And he said, I am rightly’ angry, unto death.

10 Then said Yahweh, ||Thou|| wouldest have spared the gourd, for which thou hadst not toiled, neither hadst thou made it grow,—which <as the off-spring[8] of a night> came up, and <as the offspring[9] of a night> perished;

11 And was not [I] to spare Nineveh, the great city,—wherein are more than twelve times ten thousand human beings, who cannot discern between their right hand and their left, besides much cattle?

§ 1. A brief Introduction, identifying the Prophet, recording his Invocation of all the Earth to hear Yahweh’s witness against his People, and describing the effects of the Divine Appearing.

Chapter 1.

1. The word of Yahweh which came unto Micah the Morashtite, in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, kings of Judah, of which he had vision concerning Samaria, and Jerusalem:

2. Hear, ye peoples; all of you! Hearken, O earth and the fulness thereof, and let My Lord Yahweh be among you for a witness, ||My Lord’ out of his holy’ temple||.

3. For lo! ||Yahweh|| coming forth out of his place,—That he may descend, and march along upon the high places of the earth.

4. Then shall the mountains be melted beneath him, And ||the valleys|| be cleft,—As wax before the fire, As waters poured out in a steep place.

§ 2. The Two Kingdoms, under the titles of “Jacob” (for the Northern) and “Israel,” also “Judah” (for the Southern), denounced for their Idolatry and especially the Governing Classes for their general Moral Corruption.

(chaps. i. 5–iii. 12)

5. <For the transgression of Jacob> is all this, And for the sin’ of the house of Israel,—Whose is the transgression of Jacob? Is it not Samaria’s? And whose is the sin’ of Judah? Is it not Jerusalem?

6. Therefore will I make of Samaria

A heap in a field, The plantings in a vineyard,—And I will pour down, into the valley, her stones, And <her foundations> will I lay bare;

And ||all her images|| shall be beaten in pieces, And ||all her rewards for unchastity|| shall be burned in the fire,
And <her idols> will I make a desolation,—For <out of the reward of unchastity> she gathered [them], And <unto the reward of unchastity> shall they return.

8. ||For this cause|| will I lament and howl, I will go stript and bare,—I will make a lamentation, like the wild dogs,
And a mourning, like ostriches.||

9. For dangerous’ are her wounds,—For she hath come as far as Judah, She’ hath reached as far as the gate of my people, as far as Jerusalem.

10. <In Gath> do not tell,

   For <in thee> have been found the transgressions of Israel.
14 [Therefore] shalt thou give a dismission, against Moresheth-gath,—
   ||The houses of Achzib|| served for a deception to the kings of Israel.
15 The time shall yet be when <the heir> I will bring unto thee, O inhabitress of Mareshah,—

16 Make thee bald, and cut off thy hair,
   For the children of thy pleasures,—
   Enlarge thy baldness, like a vulture,

Chapter 2.

1 Alas for them who devise iniquity and work wickedness upon their beds,—
   <In the light of the morning> they will execute it, for it is in the power of their hand.
2 Thus do they covet fields and seize them,
   And houses and take them away,—
   And so they oppress the master and his household, the man and his inheritance.
3 [Therefore]—
   ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
   Behold me! devising, against this family, a calamity,—
   From which ye shall not remove your neck,
   Neither shall ye walk loftily.
   For  shall it be.
4 <In that day> shall one take up against you a by-word,
   And lament a lamentable lamentation,
   Saying—
   We are made utterly desolate,
   <The portion of my people> he passeth to others,—
   How doth he set me aside!
   <To an apostate> [our fields] doth he apportion.
5 [Therefore] shalt thou have none to throw a measuring-line by lot,—in the convocation of Yahweh.
6 Do not sputter—
   So they sputter!
   They must not sputter as to these things,
   Must he not put away reproaches?
7 O thou who art said to be the house of Jacob,
   Is the spirit of Yahweh impatient? Or are [[these]] his doings?
   Are not [his] words pleasant to him who is upright in his walk?
8 But <against my people> [as an enemy] he setteth himself,
   <From off the robe> they tear away [the cloak],—
   From such as are passing by with confidence, as men averse from war.
9 <The wives of my people> ye do even drive out, each from the house of her darlings,—
   <From over her children> ye do take away mine ornament, as long as life shall last.
10 Arise ye and depart, for [[this]] is not the place of rest,—
   <Because it is defiled> it shall make desolate with a desolation that is ruthless.

13 One making a breach hath gone up before them, They have broken in, and passed through, And by the gate> have departed,—And their king hath passed through before them, with ||Yahweh|| at their head!

Chapter 3.

1 Then said I,
Hear, I pray you, ye heads of Jacob, And ye judges of the house of Israel,—Is it not yours to know justice?

2 Ye haters of right, and lovers of wrong,—Tearing away their skin from off them, And their flesh from off their bones;

3 Who indeed have eaten the flesh of my people, And <their skin from off them> have stript, And <their bones> have they broken in pieces,—And will spread them out, as fleshb with a fork, And as flesh, in the midst of a pot.

||Then|| shall they make outcry unto Yahweh, But he will not answer them,—That he may hide his face from them, at that time, Even as they have made wicked their doings. ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
Concerning the prophets who are leading astray my people,—Who bite with their teeth, and then cry—Prosper!c
<And whoso holdeth not to their mouth> they hallow against him a war!

|Therefore| shall it be
Night to you, for lack of vision, And darkness to you, for lack of divination,—And the sun [shall go in] over the prophets, And the day [shall be overcast because of them]; And the men of vision [shall turn pale],

And the diviners [shall blush], And shall put a covering upon their lip, all of them,—Because there is no answer of God.d

8 But ||in very deed|| I am full of vigour, With the spirit of Yahweh, And of justice and of valour,—To declare to Jacob, his transgression, and to Israel, his sin.

9 Hear this, I pray you, Ye heads of the house of Jacob,e and Ye judges of the house of Israel,—Who abhor justice, And <all right> do pervert;f
Building Zion, with deeds of blood,—And Jerusalem, with perversity.

11 ||Her heads|| <for a bribe> pronounce sentence, And ||her priests|| <for a price> give direction, And ||her prophets|| <for silver> divine,—Yet <on Yahweh> they lean, saying, Is not ||Yahweh|| in our midst? There shall not come upon us, calamity.

12 ||Wherefore,|| <for your sake> ||Zion|| as a field shall be ploughed, And ||Jerusalem|| unto heaps of ruins shall be turned,—And ||the mountain of the house|| shall [be] like mounds in a jungle.

§ 3. In strong Contrast with Jerusalem’s Punishment just described is set forth her ultimate and abiding Royal Destiny.

Chapter 4.

1 But it shall come to pass [in the afterpartb of the days] That the mountain of the house of Yahweh Shall be [set up] as the head of the mountains, And <exalted> shall it be, above the hills,—And peoples [shall stream thereunto];

2 Yea many nations [shall go], and say—Come ye, and let us ascend Unto the mountain of Yahweh, and Unto the house of the God of Jacob, That he may teach us of his ways, And we may walk in his paths,—

Then will we raise up against him,

Seven shepherds, and Eight princes of mankind.

Then shall they shepherd the land of Assyria with the sword,

And the land of Nimrod in the entrances thereof,—

So shall he deliver from Assyria,

When he shall enter our land, and

When he shall tread down within our bounds.

And [the remnant of Jacob] shall be' [in the midst of many peoples],

And [all thine enemies] shall be cut off.

§ 6. But Israel must herself be delivered from her old Sins and from all forbidden Grounds of Trust.

And it shall come to pass <in that day>

Declareth Yahweh,

That I will cut off thy horses out of thy midst,—

And will destroy thy chariots;

And will cut off the cities of thy land,—

And will pull down all thy fortresses;

And will cut off incantations, out of thy hand,—

And <users of hidden arts> shalt thou not have;

And I will cut off thine images and thy pillars,

§ 7. A Renewal of the Controversy (§ 2) between Yahweh and his People.

Chapter 6.

1 Hear, I pray you, what ||Yahweh|| is saying,— Arise thou, maintain thy controversy before the mountains,
And let the hills hear thy voice:—

2 Hear, ye mountains, the controversy of Yahweh,
And ye lasting rocks, the foundations of the earth,\(^b\)—
For  hath Yahweh, with his people,
And <with Israel> will he dispute.\(^c\)

3 O my people! what have I done to thee?
And wherein have I wearied thee?
Testify thou against me!

4 For I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt,
And <out of the house of slaves> I ransomed thee,—
And I sent before thee Moses, Aaron and Miriam.

5 O my people! remember, I pray you,
What Balak king of Moab counselled, and
What Balaam son of Beor answered him,—
From the Acacias as far as Gilgal,
That ye may know the righteousness of Yahweh.

6 [Wherewith] shall I come before Yahweh?
bow myself to God on high?
Shall I come before him with ascending-sacrifice?
with calves of a year old?

7 Will Yahweh be pleased with thousands of rams?
with myriads of torrents of oil?
Shall I give my firstborn for my transgression?
the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?

8 He hath told thee, O son of earth, what is good,—
What then is ||Yahweh|| seeking of thee,
But To do justice,
To delight in lovingkindness,
And humbly\(^e\) to walk with thy God?

9 ||The voice of Yahweh|| <to the city> crieth out,
With safety\(^f\) for him who regardeth his name,\(^i\)—
Hear ye the rod, and who hath appointed it.

10 ||Even yet|| are there, in the house of the lawless one,
the treasures of lawlessness,—and the scant measure—accurst?

11 Shall I be pure with lawless balances? or with a bag of deceitful weights?

12 For ||her rich men|| are full of violence,
And ||her inhabitants|| have spoken falsehood,—
And ||their tongue|| is deceitful in their mouth.

13 [Moreover also] ||[I]|| have made thee sick with smiting thee,—
Laying thee waste because of thy sins.

14 ||Thou|| shalt eat—
And not be satisfied,
But be shrunk with hunger within thee,—
Though thou remove yet shalt thou not set in safety,
And ||what thou dost set in safety|| <to the sword> will I deliver.

15 ||Thou|| shalt sow, but shalt not reap,—
||Thou|| shalt tread the olive, but shalt not anoint thee with oil,
Also the grape,\(^k\) but shalt not drink the wine.

16 For strictly observed are
The statutes of Omri,
And every doing of the house of Ahab,
And ye have walked in their counsels,—
To the end I may give thee up to desolation,

As gleaning-grapes in harvest,
There is no cluster to eat,
(<The first ripe fruit> my soul) [craved].

2 Perished’ is the man of lovingkindness out of the earth,
And <upright among men> is there none,—

<Though I sit in darkness> ||[Yahweh]| is a light to me.

9 <The indignation of Yahweh> will I bear,
For I have sinned against him,—
Until he take up my controversy,
Then will he do me justice,
He will bring me forth to the light
I shall behold his righteousness.

10 So shall she g who had been mine enemy fear,
And shame’ [shall cover her],
Who used to say unto me—
Where’ is Yahweh thy God?
||[Mine own eyes]| shall look upon her,
||[Now]| shall she become one to be trodden down, like the mire of the lanes.

11 <On the day for building thy walls>|—
<On that day| far away shall be thy boundary:

12 ||[The very day]| that [against thee] shall one h come from Assyria, and [from] the cities of Egypt;
Yea from Egypt, even unto the River,
And from sea to sea,
And from mountain to mountain:
Though the land become a desolation,
Because of them that dwell therein,—
By reason of the fruit of their doings.

13 Shepherd thou’ thy people with thy rod, j
the flock of thine inheritance,
Dwell thou k alone, a jungle in the midst of a fruitful field,—
Let them feed in Bashan and in Gilead,
As in the days of age-past times.

Will I shew him wonders.

§ 1. Out of the full-orbed perfection of Yahweh comes the Twofold Manifestation, designed to alarm his Foes and assure his Friends. From Ninevah proceedeth a Wicked Schemer against Yahweh.

Chapter 1.

1 The oracle, on Ninevah,—the scroll of the vision of Nahum, the Elkoshite.

2 <A GOD jealous and avenging> is Yahweh, <An avenger> is Yahweh, and a lord of wrath;"<An avenger> is Yahweh towards his adversaries, And  is he’ to his foes. ||Yahweh|| is slow to anger, but great in vigour, He will not leave [unpunished],— ||As for Yahweh|| <in storm-wind and in tempest> is his way, And |[clouds]| are the dust of his feet. Who rebuketh the sea, and hath made it dry, And <all the streams> hath he dried up,— Withered‘ are Bashan and Carmel, |[Even the bloom of Lebanon]| is withered: |[Mountains]| have trembled because of him, And |[the hills]| have melted,— And the earth |[hath lifted itself up] at his presence, |[The world also, and all who dwell therein]|. <Before his indigination> who shall stand? And who shall abide the glow of his anger? |[His wrath]| hath been poured forth like fire, And |[the rocks]| have been broken down because of him. Good’ is Yahweh, as a protection in the day of distress,— And one who acknowledgeth them who seek refuge in him. But <with an overflow rolling on>  will he make of them who rise up against him, d— And <his foes> will he pursue into darkness.

3 § 2. Yahweh quiets the Fears of his People; threatens the City of Idols; and sends Good News to Judah.

12 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh, <Though they be in full force, And so’ in great numbers> Yet |[even so]| have they been cut off, and have passed away,— <If I humble thee [once]> I will not humble thee again’. ||Now|| therefore, will I break his yoke from off thee,— And <thy fetters> will I tear off. Then will Yahweh give command concerning thee, None of thy name shall be sown any more,— <Out of the house of thy gods> will I cut off carved image and molten image, I will appoint thy grave, For thou art of little esteem.

13 Lo! <upon the mountains> The feet of one, who bringeth Good Tidings! who publisheth Prosperity! Celebrate, O Judah, thy pilgrim festivals, Fulfil thy vows,— For <not again, any more> shall the Abandoned One [pass through thee], He hath been wholly’ cut off.

9 What can ye devise’ against Yahweh? <A full end> is he’ making,— Distress’ [shall not rise up twice]!
10 <Though they were like thorns intertwined, And as drunkards drenched with their drink> Yet have they been devoured, like stubble fully dry.

The oracle of which Habakkuk the prophet had vision:

§ 1. The Prophet’s Complaint.

1 The oracle of which Habakkuk the prophet had vision:

§ 1. The Prophet’s Complaint.

2 How long, O Yahweh, have I called out, And thou wouldst not hear me? Have I kept crying unto thee of violence, And thou wouldst not save?

3 Wherefore shouldst thou let me see iniquity, And wrong shouldst let me behold, And there should have ever been someone who contention and strife would uphold?

4 <For which cause> benumbed’ is the law, And there is never any going forth of justice,— For the lawless doth circumvent the righteous, <For which cause> justice doth go forth perverted?

§ 2. Yahweh, in Answer, announces a Chaldean Invasion.

5 Behold ye, among the nations, and look around, Yea stand stock still—stare,— For a work is being wrought in your days, Ye will not believe, when it is recounted.

6 For, behold me! raising up the Chaldeans, The bitter and headlong nation,— That marcheth to the breadths of the earth, To take possession of habitations not his.

7 <Awful and fearful> is he,—

8 Then <swifter than leopards> are his horses, And ||more sharply they attack|| than evening wolves, And forward’ have leapt his chargers,— Yea [his chargers] <from afar> will come in, They will fly’ as an eagle hath fastened to devour.

9 <Solely’ for violence> will he come, ||The intent of their faces|| is—To the east!

10 And ||he|| <over kings> will make merry, And ||nobles|| will be a scorn to him: ||He|| <at any fortress> will laugh, <Once he hath heaped up dust> he hath captured it!

11 ||Then|| hath he become arrogant in spirit, And hath committed excess, And so is guilty,— ||This his violence|| is due to his god.

§ 3. The Prophet again appeals to Yahweh, since the Invader is Oppressive, Idolatrous, and Cruel.

12 Art not thou from of old, O Yahweh, my God, my Holy One? Thou diest not!f O Yahweh, <to judgment> hast thou appointed him, And, O Rock, <to correction> hast thou devoted him:

13 [Thou] whose eyes are too pure’ to look with approval on wrong, <To respect oppression> canst not endure,— Wherefore’ Shouldst thou respect the treacherous?

HABAKKUK – Chapter 2.

Be silent, when the lawless | swalloweth up |
one more righteous than he?

14 So wouldst thou have made Men, |
Like the fishes of the sea,— |
Like the creeping thing that hath no ruler over it;

15 ||All of which|| <with a hook> one bringeth up, |
Raketh together with his drag, |
And hath gathered with his net,—

16 <On which account> he is glad and exulteth: |
<On which account> |
He sacrificeth to his Net, |
And burneth incense to his Drag; |
Because ||thereby|| | rich is his portion, | and his food—fatness!

17 Shall he <on this account> empty his net?
And <the continual slaying of nations> deem to be no pity?

§ 4. The Prophet awaits a further Answer, which he obtains: in which Nations enlightened with the Knowledge of Yahweh direct a Five-fold Taunt against the Cruel Invader.

Chapter 2.

1 <Upon my watch-tower> will I stand, |
And will station myself upon the bulwark,— |
So will I keep outlook, to see— |
What he will speak with me, and |
What I shall reply, when I am reproved.

2 Then Yahweh answered me, and said, |
Write the vision, |
Yea, make it plain on tablets, |
That one may swiftly read it;

3 For yet is the vision for an appointed time, |
Still, it presseth towards an end, |
And will not deceive,— |
<If it tarry> wait thou for it, |
For it |surely cometh|,— |
Will not be too late.

4 Lo! <as for the conceited one> crooked is his soul within him,— |
But ||one who is righteous|| |by his faithfulness| shall live, |

5 |Moreover also| <when wine’ betrayeth|

[A man] is arrogant, |
And findeth no rest,— |
Because he hath enlarged, like hades, his desire; |
Yea ||he|| is like death, and cannot be satisfied,— |
But hath gathered unto himself, all the nations, |
And assembled unto himself, all the peoples.

6 Shall not ||these, all of them|| <against him> take up— |
||A taunt|| |
A mocking poem, |
Enigmatical sentences—concerning him?|
And say— |
Alas! for him who maketh abundance in what is not his own, |
How long? that he should be burdening himself with heavy debts?

7 Will not thy creditors |suddenly’ rise up|?
And they who shall violently shake thee |all at once become active|? |
Then shalt thou serve for booties, unto them!

8 <Because ||thou|| hast plundered many nations> |
All the residue of the peoples ||shall plunder thee||,— |
For shedding Human blood, |
And doing violence |
To the earth,
To the city, |
And to all who dwell therein.

9 Alas! for him who extorteth an extortion of wrong’ for his own house,— |
That he may set on high’ his nest, |
That he may be delivered from the grasp of calamity.

10 Thou hast counseled shame f to thy house— |
Making an end of many peoples, |
And endangering g thine own life.

1 The word of Yahweh which came unto Zephaniah, son of Cushi, son of Gedaliah, son of Amariah, a son of Hezekiah, b— in the days of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah.

§ 1. A world-wide Destruction is announced, culminating on Judah and Jerusalem for their sins.

2 I will take clean away everything from off the face of the ground. Declareth Yahweh.

3 I will take away man and beast, I will take away the bird of the heavens and the fishes of the sea,
And the stumblingblocks, even them who are lawless,—
And will cut off mankind, from off the face of the ground,
Declareth Yahweh.

4 And I will stretch out my hand—
Over Judah, and
Over all the inhabitants of Jerusalem,—
And will cut off out of this place, The name c of Baal,
The name d of the priestlings, e with the priests;
And them who bow down upon the housetops, to the host of the heavens,—
And them who bow down—
Who swear to Yahweh,
And swear by Milcom; f
And them who turn away from following Yahweh,—
And have neither sought Yahweh, nor enquired for him.

5 For Yahweh hath prepared his b sacrifice,
Hath hallowed his guests. i

6 And it shall come to pass <in the day of Yahweh’s sacrifice>
That I will punish
The rulers,
And the sons of the king,—
And all such as are clothed with foreign apparel;
And I will punish
Every one who leapeth over the threshold; j in that day,—
Those who fill the house of their lords with violence and deceit.

7 Hush! at the presence of My Lord, Yahweh,—
For [near] is the day of Yahweh,

8 And it shall come to pass at that time, That I will search through Jerusalem, with lamps,—
And will punish the men Who are thickened upon their lees,
Who are saying in their heart, Yahweh will not give blessing, Neither will he bring calamity.

9 Therefore shall Their goods become a booty, and Their houses, a desolation,—
And they shall build houses, but not inhabit them,

A strong man—there!—[bitterly crying out]!
< A day of indignation—[that day]!
Day of danger and distress,
Day of rush, and of crash,
Day of obscurity, and deep gloom,
Day of cloud, and thick darkness;
Day of horn, and war-shout,—
Against the fortified cities, and Against the high towers.
And I will bring distress to mankind,
And they shall walk like them who are blind,
Because [against Yahweh] have they sinned,—
And their blood [shall be poured out] as dust,
And their bowels like dung.¹
Neither their silver nor yet their gold shall be able to deliver them,
In the day of the indignation of Yahweh,
But <in the fire of his jealousy> shall the whole earth be consumed;

Chapter 2.

1 Collect your thoughts, aye collect’ them,—
O nation [depressed]!®

2 Ere yet’ the decree’ [have given birth],
<Like chaff> the day [have vanished],—
Ere yet’ shall come upon you,
The glow of the anger of Yahweh,
Ere yet’ shall come upon you,
The day of the anger of Yahweh.

3 Seek Yahweh—
All ye lowly, of the land,
Who have wrought [what he appointed],—
Seek righteousness,
Seek humility,

[Peradventure] ye shall be concealed,
In the day of the anger of Yahweh.ε

4 For [[Gaza] <forsaken> shall be, And [[Ashkelon] [a desolation],— [[Ashdod] [at high noon] shall they drive her forth, And [[Ekron] be uprooted:

5 Alas! for the inhabitants of the line of the sea,
The nation of Kerethim,—
[[The word of Yahweh] is against you,
O Canaan of the land of the Philistines,
Therefore will I destroy thee, to the last inhabitant.

6 So shall the line of the sea become a meadow,
The wells of shepherds, And the folds of flocks;

7 And the line shall belong to the remnant of the house of Judah,
<Thereon> shall they feed their flocks,—
<In the houses of Ashkelon> shall they [at eventide] lie down,
For Yahweh their God will visit them,
And bring their captives back.

§ 1. In the second Year of King Darius, the Prophet Haggai seeks, by appealing to their Experience, to stir up the Zeal of the Returned Captives in building the House of Yahweh in Jerusalem. His Appeal is successful.

Chapter 1.

1 <In the second year of Darius the king, in the sixth month, on the first of the month> came the word of Yahweh, by the hand of Haggai the prophet, unto Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, pasha of Judah, and unto Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest, saying:

   ||Thus|| speaketh Yahweh of hosts, saying,—
   ||This people|| have said, Not yet hath come the time for the house of Yahweh to be built.

3 Therefore hath come the word of Yahweh by the hand of Haggai the prophet, saying:

4 Is it a time that ye yourselves should be dwelling in your own panelled houses, and this house in ruins?

5 ||Now|| therefore, ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,—

6 Apply your heart unto your own experience,—

7 Ye have sown much, but have brought in little,
Have drunk, and not been satisfied with drink,
Have clothed you, and none hath been warm,—
And he that hath hired himself out hath put his wages into a bag with holes.

8 Apply your heart to your own experience:

9 Ascend the mountain—and bring in wood and build the house,—
That I may be pleased therewith and get myself glory,
Saith Yahweh.

10 <When ye looked for much> then lo! it came to little,
<When ye brought it home> then I did blow into it,—
Because of what?

Demandeth Yahweh of hosts,
Because of my house, the which is in ruins,
while ye’ keep running every man to his own house.

11 And I have called for drought,
Upon the land and upon the mountains, and Upon the corn and upon the new wine and upon the oil, and Upon that which the ground bringeth forth,—
and
Upon man, and upon beast, and
Upon all the labour of the hands.

12 Then hearkened’
Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest, and all the remnant of the people, unto the voice of Yahweh their God, and unto the words of Haggai the prophet, as Yahweh their God had sent him,—and the people stood in awe before Yahweh.

13 Then spake Haggai the messenger of Yahweh, in the message of Yahweh, to the people, saying,—

14 Thus did Yahweh stir up—The spirit of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel pasha of Judah, And the spirit of Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people,—and they came in and did service in the house of Yahweh of hosts their God: on the twenty-fourth day of the month, in the sixth month,—in the second year of Darius the king.

Chapter 2.

1 <In the seventh month, on the twenty-first of the month> came the word of Yahweh, by the hand of Haggai the prophet, saying:

2 Speak, I pray thee, unto Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, pasha of Judah, and unto Jehoshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest,—and unto the remnant of the people, saying:—

3 Who is there among you that is left, a that saw this house, b in its former glory? And how do ye see it now? Is it not in comparison with that as nothing, in your eyes?

4 ||Now|| therefore—

Be strong, O Zerubbabel,

Urgeth Yahweh,

And be strong, O Jehoshua son of Jehozadak

the high priest,

And be strong, all ye people of the land,

Urgeth Yahweh,

And work;

For ||I|| am with you,

Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

That <my spirit> abiding in your midst> ye should not fear.

6 For ||thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,

||Yet once|| a little it is,—

And I’ am shaking,

The heavens and the earth, and

The sea, and the dry land;

7 And I will shake all the nations,

And the delight d of all the nations |shall come in|,—

And I will fill this house with glory,

§ 3. Two Months later still, Haggai is sent with a Third Message, in which an Appeal to the Ritual Law is used to enforce whole-hearted Devotion to the Work and Service of their God.

10 <On the twenty-fourth of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius> came the word of Yahweh unto d Haggai the prophet, saying:

11 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,—

I pray you, ask the priests a direction e saying:

≤If a man carry’ holy flesh in the skirt of his garment,

And then toucheth with his skirt bread or a cooked dish or wine or oil or any food≥ Shall it be holy?

And the priests answered f and said, No.

13 Then said Haggai,

≤If one who is defiled for a dead person touch’ any of these≥ Shall it be defiled?

And the priests answered g and said, It shall be defiled.

14 Then answered Haggai and said,

||So|| is this people and

||So|| is this nation before me,

Declareth Yahweh,

And ||so|| is every work of their hands,—

Therefore ||whosoever they offer there|| is |defiled|.

15 ||Now|| therefore, I pray you apply your heart, from this day and upwards,—

§ 1. Zechariah’s First Message to the Returned Exiles: a Simple Reminder that the Threatenings made to their Fathers had confessedly been Fulfilled.

Chapter 1.

1. In the eighth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of Yahweh unto Zechariah, the son of Berechiah, the son of Iddo, the prophet, saying:

2. Yahweh was sore displeased with your fathers; therefore shalt thou say unto them, Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, Return ye unto me, Urgeth Yahweh of hosts,—That I may return unto you, Saith Yahweh of hosts.

4. Do not become like your fathers unto whom the former prophets proclaimed—saying, Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, Return, I pray you, From your wicked Ways, and From your wicked Practices; But they heard not, nor hearkened unto me, Declareth Yahweh.

5. Your fathers where are they? And the prophets to times age-abiding do they live?

6. Howbeit as for my words and my statutes with which I charged my servants the prophets did they not overtake your fathers? and so they returned and said, Just as Yahweh of hosts planned to do unto us, according to our Ways, and according to our Practices;

7. <Upon the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, ||the same|| is the month Shebat, in the second year of Darius> came the word of Yahweh unto Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, the prophet, as followeth;

8. I looked by night, And lo! a man riding upon a red horse, and he was standing among the myrtle trees, in the shade;

9. Then said I, What are these, my lord? And the messenger who was speaking with me said unto me, ||[II]|| will shew thee what these’ [are].

10. So the man who was standing among the myrtle-trees responded and said,—These are they whom Yahweh hath sent to go to and fro through the earth.

11. Then responded they to the messenger of Yahweh, who was standing among the myrtle-trees, and said, We have gone to and fro through the earth,—and lo! ||all the earth|| resteth and is quiet.

12. Then the messenger of Yahweh responded’ and said,

13. And Yahweh answered’ the messenger who was speaking with me, in words that were pleasant,—words that were consoling. Then the messenger who was speaking with me said unto me, Proclaim thou, saying,

18 Then lifted I up mine eyes, and looked,—and lo! Four Horns. And I said unto the messenger who was speaking with me, What are these? And he said unto me, ||These|| are the horns which have scattered Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem.

20 Then Yahweh shewed’ me Four Craftsmen. And I said, What are these coming in to do? And he spake, saying, ||These|| are the horns which have scattered Judah, so that no man’ lifted up his head, but these [others] have [come in] to put them’ in fear, to cast down the horns of the nations, the which have lifted up the horn against the land of Judah to scatter her.

§ 4. Man with Measuring Line. (Third Vision—same Date.)

Chapter 2.

1 Then lifted I up mine eyes and looked, and lo! a Man,—and <in his hand> a Measuring Line. And I said, Whither art thou going? And he said unto me, To measure Jerusalem, to see what [should be] the breadth thereof, and what the length thereof.

3 And lo! the messenger who was talking with me, coming forward,—and another messenger, coming forward to meet him. So he said unto him, Run, speak unto this young man, saying: <Like open villages> shall Jerusalem remain’, for the multitude of men and cattle in her midst;

5 And ||I|| will become to her, Declareth Yahweh, A wall of fire round about,— And  will I become in her midst.

6 Ho! ho! flee ye, therefore, out of the land of the North, Urgeth Yahweh. For <as the four winds of the heavens> have I spread you abroad, Declareth Yahweh.

7 Ho! Zion, deliver thyself,—thou that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon. For ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, For his own honour, hath he sent me unto the nations that are spoiling you,—

9 For behold me! brandishing my hand over them, and they shall become a spoil unto their own slaves,—
And ye shall know that ||Yahweh of hosts|| hath sent me.

10 Sing out and rejoice, O daughter of Zion,—For behold me! coming in, and I will make my habitation in thy midst,

Declareth Yahweh.

11 Then shall many nations [join themselves] unto Yahweh, in that day,
And shall become my people,—And I will make my habitation in thy midst,
So shalt thou know that ||Yahweh of hosts|| hath sent me unto thee.

12 Thus will Yahweh inherit Judah, his portion, on the soil of the sanctuary,—and make choice, yet again, of Jerusalem.

13 Hush! all flesh, before Yahweh,—a—For he hath roused himself up out of his holy dwelling.

standing at his right hand, to accuse him. 2 Then said Yahweh\(^d\) unto the Accuser, Yahweh rebuke thee, O Accuser,
Yea Yahweh rebuke thee, he who is choosing Jerusalem,—Is not ||this|| a brand snatched out of the fire?

3 Now ||Joshua\(^e\)|| was clothed with filthy garments,—though standing before the messenger. 4 Then responded he and spake, unto those who were standing before him, saying,
Take away the filthy garments, from off him;
And he said unto him,
See! I have caused to pass from off thee, thine iniquity,

And will cause thee to be clothed in robes of state.\(^f\)

5 Then said I,\(^g\)
Let them put a clean turban upon his head,—So they put the clean turban upon his head, and clothed him with garments, and ||the messenger of Yahweh|| was standing up. 6 So then the messenger of Yahweh did solemnly affirm unto Joshua,\(^h\) saying:

≤If \(<\)in my ways\(>)\ thou wilt walk,
And if \(<\)of my charge\(>)\ thou wilt keep charge≥
Then \(≥\)even thou shall govern my house,
|Moreover also| thou shalt have charge of my courts,—And I will give thee free access among these who stand by.\(^k\)

Then answered the messenger who was speaking with me, and said unto me, Knowest thou not, what these' [are]? And I said,
No, my lord.

Then responded he, and spake unto me, saying,
||This|| is the word of Yahweh, unto Zerubbabel, saying,—
Not by wealth, nor by strength, But by my spirit,
Saieth Yahweh of hosts.

Who' art ||thou||, O great mountain? <Before Zerubbabel> [brought down] to a plain!
So shall he bring forth the headstone, with thundering shouts Beautiful! Beautiful! Beautiful! thereunto.

Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:
||The hands of Zerubbabel|| have founded this house,
And ||his hands|| shall finish it,—
So shalt thou know that ||Yahweh of hosts|| hath sent me unto you.

For who' hath despised the day of small things? Yet shall they rejoice, when they see the plummet-stone in the hand of Zerubbabel,—||these seven||! <The eyes of Yahweh> they are—running to and fro throughout all the earth.

Then responded I, and said unto him,—
What are these' two olive-trees, upon the right of the lampstand, and upon the left thereof?

And I responded a second time, and said unto him,—
What are the two branches of the olive-trees which join the two golden tubes, which empty out of them the golden oil?

And he spake unto me, saying,
Knowest thou not what these are?
And I said,
No, my lord.

Then said he,
||These|| are the two Anointed Ones,—who stand near the Lord of all the earth.

So I said,
I' can see a flying volume, ||the length thereof|| twenty by the cubit, and ||the breadth thereof|| ten by the cubit.

Then said he unto me,
||This|| is the curse, which is going forth over the face of all the earth,—
<Because ||every one who stealeth|| <on the one side> hath in one' way been let off, and ||every one who sweareth|| <on the other side> hath in another' way been let off> [therefore] have I brought it forth.

4 Then came the word of Yahweh of hosts unto me,
saying:
5 Speak thou unto all the people of the land, and unto the priests, saying,— <When ye fasted and lamented in the fifth and in the seventh, even> these seventy years> did ye really fast? unto >me?

6 And <when ye used to eat, and when ye used to drink> was it not <of your own accord> ye did eat, and <of your own accord> ye did drink?

7 Should ye not [have been doing] the things which Yahweh [had proclaimed] by the hand of the former prophets, while yet Jerusalem was inhabited and in peace, with her cities round about her,—and the South and the Lowland were inhabited?

8 And the word of Yahweh came unto Zechariah,
saying:

9 ||Thus|| spake Yahweh of hosts, saying,—
<With true justice> give ye judgment,
And <lovingkindness and compassions> observe ye, one with another;

10 And <the widow and the fatherless, the sorcerer and the humbled> do not ye oppress,—
And <wickedness between one man and another> do not ye devise in your hearts.

11 Howbeit they refused to give heed, but put forth a rebellious shoulder, and <their ears> made them hard of hearing,  12 that they might not hear;
and <their heart> turned they into adamant,
that they might not hear the law;
nor the words which Yahweh of hosts sent by his spirit, through the former prophets,—and so there came great wrath from Yahweh of hosts.

13 Therefore came it to pass that—<Just as he cried out, and they hearkened not> <So> used they to cry out, and I used not to hearken,

Saith Yahweh of hosts;

14 But I whirled them over all the nations, whom they had not known, and ||the land|| was made desolate after them, that none passed through and returned,— Yea they made of a delightful land—a desolation.

1 And the word of Yahweh of hosts came', saying:a

2 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, I am jealous for Zion, with a great jealousy,— Yea <with great wrath> am I jealous for her. ||Thus|| saith Yahweh, I have returned unto Zion, And will make my habitation in the midst of Jerusalem,— And Jerusalem shall be called The city of fidelity, b And the mountain of Yahweh of hosts The mountain of holiness. Yea shall old men and old women sit in the broadways of Jerusalem,— Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, <Because it will be marvellous in the eyes of the remnant of this people, in those days> shall it be marvellous? Demandeth Yahweh of hosts. ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, Behold me! saving my people Out of the land of the dawn,— and Out of the land of the going in of the sun; And I will bring them in, And they shall have their habitation in the midst of Jerusalem,— And shall become my people, And ||I|| will become their God, ||In faithfulness and in righteousness||. ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, Let your hands be strong, ye who are hearing, in these' days, these' words,—from the mouth of the prophets who <on the day the house of Yahweh of hosts |was founded|> [foretold] that ||the temple|| should be built:—

3 That <before those days> ||hire for man|| could not be obtained, And <hire for beast> was there none,— And <neither to him who went out, nor to him who came in> was there success by reason of the danger, Yea I let all men loose, each one against his neighbour. But ||now|| <not as in the former' days> am I’ to this remnant of the people,— Declareth Yahweh of hosts;

4 For ||the seed|| shall be securec— ||The vine|| shall yield her fruit, and ||The land|| yield her increase, and ||The heavens|| yield their dew,— And I will cause this remnant of the people to inherit’ all these things. And it shall come to pass that—<Just as ye had become a curse among the nations, O house of Judah and house of Israel>||So|| will I save you, and ye shall become a blessing,— Do not fear, let your hands |be strong|. For ||thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, <Just as I planned to bring calamity upon you, when your fathers provoked' me,> Saith Yahweh of hosts,—

5 And I relented not>||So|| have I again’ planned, in these days, to do good unto Jerusalem, and unto the house of Judah,— Do not fear! ||These|| are the things which ye shall do: Speak ye the truth, every man with his neighbour, <Truth and the sentence of peace> pronounce ye in your gates;

6 And let ||no man|| devise ||the injury of his neighbour|| in your heart, <And the oath of falsehood> do not love,— For ||all these|| are things which I hate, d Declareth Yahweh.

[PART II.—SOME UNDATED PROPHECY, ONE OF WHICH IS IN THE NEW TESTAMENT (MAT. XXVII, 9) ATTRIBUTED TO JEREMIAH.]

§ 12. An Oracle, in the manner of the Earlier Prophets; in which, with dramatic suddenness, Jerusalem's King appears, secures Peace to the Nations, and attains to World-wide Dominion in which also the Prophet enacts the part of an Unsuccessful Shepherd, who is contemptuously dismissed; and in which a Worthless Shepherd is represented, who receives consign Punishment.

Chapter 9.

1 The oracle of the word of Yahweh on the land of Hadrach, a

And ||[Damascus]] shall be the resting-place thereof,—

For ||[Yahweh]|| hath an eye—

To mankind, and

To all the tribes of Israel; f

Moreover also ||[Hamath]|] adjoineth thereto, ||[Tyre and Zidon]—because very wise;

Therefore did Tyre build' a stronghold for herself,—

And did heap up silver’ like dust,

Yea gold’ like the mire of the lanes.

Lo! ||[My Lord]|] shall dispossess her,

And smite into the sea, her fortress,—

And ||[she herself]|] <in fire> shall be consumed.

Ashkelon [shall see] and fear,

||[Gaza]| also, which shall write in great anguish,

||[Ekron]| also, because abashed’ is her expectation,—

And the king [shall perish] from Gaza,

And ||[Ashkelon]| not be inhabited; g

And there shall be seated a a half-breed' in Ashdod,—

So will I cut off the arrogance of the Philistines;

And will take away his reeking prey’ out of his mouth,

And his abominations, from between his teeth,

But <he that is left> ||[even he]| shall belong to our God,—

So shall he become as a chief in Judah,

And ||[Ekron]| as a Jebusite!

Then will I encamp about my house—against an army, against him that passeth by, and against him that returneth, k

Neither shall an exactor’ |tread them down any more|,—

For ||[now]| have I seen with mine own eyes.

Exult greatly, O daughter of Zion,

Shout in triumph, O daughter of Jerusalem,

Lo! ||[thy king]| cometh unto thee,

||[Vindicated and victorious]|] is he’,—

Lowly, and riding upon an ass,

Yea, upon a colt, a young’ ass; m

1 Or: “foreigner”—T.G.

2 Ml.: “love ye.”

3 Some cod. (w. Sep.): “many peoples”—G.n.

4 “Let us by all means go”—O.G. 233.

6 “A district near Damascus and Hamath”—O.G.

8 Or: “have none to sit”—“to reign.”

9 I.e.: as king, cp. O.G. 442. Or: “dwell.”

10 Ml.: “son of (the drove of) she-asses.” Cp., for young bull: “a son of the herd.”

11 Or: “saaved.”
So will he cut off
The chariot out of Ephraim, and
The horse out of Jerusalem,
And the war-bow [shall be cut off],
So shall he speak peace to the nations.\(^b\)
And [his dominion] shall be from sea to sea,
And from the river [Euphrates] to the ends of the earth.\(^c\)

11 ||As for thee also||—
<<By the blood of thy covenant>>\(^d\) have I sent forth thy prisoners out of a pit, wherein is no’ water.
Return to the stronghold,\(^e\) ye prisoners of hope,—
<<Even to-day>> do I declare—
<<Double>> will I return to thee!

For I have bent for me—Judah,
<As a bow> have I grasped\(^f\) Ephraim,
Thus will I rouse up thy sons, O Zion, against the sons of\(^g\) Greece,\(^h\)
And will make thee as the sword of a mighty one.

But ||Yahweh|| <over them> will appear,
And forth shall go, as lightning, his arrow,—
Yea ||My Lord Yahweh|| <with a horn> will blow,
And will move along in the whirlwinds of the south.

||Yahweh of hosts|| will throw a covering over them,
So shall they eat, and trample underfoot slingstones,
And shall drink—shall shout as with wine,—
And shall be filled like tossing-bowls,—
Like the corners of an altar.

So will Yahweh their God [save them] on that day,
Yea <as a flock of sheep> his people,—
For [they shall be like] the jewels of a diadem\(^k\) sparkling\(^l\) over his land.

17 For how excellent it is!
Yea how beautiful!
||Corn|| shall make the young men’ flourish,
And new wine’ the maidens.

Chapter 10.

1 Ask ye from Yahweh rain, in the time of the latter rain,\(^m\)
Yahweh’ who causeth flashes of lightning,—
And <rain in abundant showers> giveth he unto them,\(^n\)
<<To every man>> herbage in the field;
For ||the household gods|| have spoken vanity,
And ||the diviners|| have had vision of falsehood,
And <deceitful’ dreams> do they relate,
<<Vainly>> do they console,—
<<For this reason>> have they moved about like a flock,
They suffer ill, because there is no’ shepherd.

3 <Against the shepherds> is kindled mine anger,
And <upon the leaders of the flock>\(^o\) will I bring punishment,—
For Yahweh of hosts hath visited his flock, the house of Judah,
And will make them like his noble horse\(^p\) in battle;

4 <From him> the commander,\(^q\)
<From him> the supporter,’
<From him> the war-bow,—
<From him> shall proceed every one that driveth on, together;

5 So shall they become like mighty ones, trampling on the mire of lanes, in battle,
And they will fight, because ||Yahweh|| is with them,—
And will abash the riders of horses.

6 So will I make mighty ones of the house of Judah,
And <the house of Joseph> will I save,

\(^a\) So it sd be (w. Sep.)—G.n.

And will cause them to continue, because I have had compassion upon them,
So shall they be as though I had not rejected them,—
For [I, Yahweh] will be their God, and will answer them;
And they shall be as the mighty one of Ephraim, And their heart shall rejoice, as through wine,— Yea [their children] shall see and rejoice, Their heart shall exult in Yahweh.
I will signal for them, and will gather them, because I have ransomed them,—
And they shall multiply, according as they have multiplied;
Though I scatter them among the peoples Yet in places far away shall they remember me,— And they shall live with their children, and shall return;
And I will bring them back out of the land of Egypt,
And <out of Assyria> will I gather them,— And <into the land of Gilead and Lebanon> will I bring them,
And [room] shall not be found for them:
Though he pass through a sea of affliction Yet shall he smite the sea, with its waves,
And the roaring depths of the Nile shall appear dry,—
So shall be brought down the pride of Assyria, And [the sceptre of Egypt] shall depart;
And I will make them mighty in Yahweh, And [in his name] shall they march to and fro,—
Declareth Yahweh.

Chapter 11.

1 Open, O Lebanon, thy doors,—
That a fire may devour thy cedar.
2 Howl, fir-tree, for fallen is the cedar, Because [the majestic ones] are spoiled: Howl, ye oaks of Bashan, For the inaccessible[9] forest hath come down.
3 The noise of the howling of the shepherds, For spoiled’ is their majesty,—
The noise of the roaring of the young lions, For spoiled’ are the proud banks of the Jordan.
4 ||Thus| saith Yahweh my God,—
Tend thou the flock doomed to slaughter:|
Whose [buyers] slay them, and are not held guilty,
And whose [sellers] say—
Blessed be Yahweh, that I am become rich,|
And so [their own shepherds] have no pity upon them.
6 Surely I will have pity no longer upon the inhabitants of the earth,
Declareth Yahweh,—
Therefore lo! I am delivering up mankind,
Every man into the hand of his neighbour, and into the hand of his king,
And they will crush the earth, Nor will I deliver out of their hand.
7 So I tended the flock doomed to slaughter, for the sheep-merchants,—and took unto me two staves, <the one> I called Grace, and <the other> I called Union, thus I tended the sheep. And I sent off three shepherds, in one month,—for impatient’ was my soul with them’, moreover also [their soul] felt a loathing against me’. Then said I—
I will not tend you,—
||The dying|| may die, and ||The disappearing|| may disappear, and ||The remainder|| may devour one another.”
8 So I took my staff Grace, and cut it in two,—that I might set aside my covenant which I had

So they weighed out my wage, thirty pieces of silver. c 13 Then said Yahweh unto me,
‘Cast it into the treasury, d
The magnificent price e at which I had been

So I took the thirty pieces of silver, and cast them, in the house of Yahweh, into the treasury. g 14 Then cut I in two my second’ staff, even Union, h—that I might break the brotherhood between Judah and Israel. i Then said Yahweh unto me,— forsaketh h the flock,

A sword’ upon his arm,
And upon his right eye!—
||His arm|| shall be ||utterly withered||,
And ||his right eye|| shall be ||wholly darkened||.

13. A Second Oracle, in which is foretold and portrayed a Final Siege of Jerusalem by all Nations, out of which, by the Interposition of One who had been Pierced, the City, after Extreme Peril and Suffering, shall be triumphantly delivered.

Chapter 12.

1 The oracle of the word of Yahweh, on Israel,—

Declareth Yahweh—

Stretching out the heavens, and Founding the earth, and Fashioning the spirit of man within him:

2 Lo! I’ am making Jerusalem a bowl of reeling to all the peoples, round about,—

[Moreover also] <on Judah> shall it be j in the siege against Jerusalem;

3 And it shall come to pass, in that day,
That I will make Jerusalem a lifting-stone, to all the peoples,
|All who seek to lift her| shall ||cut themselves
in pieces||,—
Though all the nations of the earth |gather themselves together against her|.

4 <In that day>

Declareth Yahweh,

I will smite every horse with terror,
and his rider with madness,—

And <over the house of Judah> will I keep opening mine eyes,
And <every horse of the peoples> will I smite with blindness.

5 Then will the chiefs of Judah say’ in their hearts,—

<A strength unto me> [would be] the inhabitants of Jerusalem, in Yahweh of hosts, their God.

6 <In that day> will I make the chiefs of Judah like a pan of fire among sticks, and
Like a torch of fire in a sheaf,
So shall they devour [on the right hand and on the left] all the peoples round about;
So shall Jerusalem yet [be inhabited] in her own place, [as Jerusalem]. k

7 But Yahweh will save’ the tents of Judah first, l—
Lest the honour of the inhabitant m of Jerusalem,
Should be magnified over Judah.

And the Mount of Olives shall cleave asunder from the midst thereof, Towards the east and Towards the west, An exceeding great valley,—

So shall men dwell therein, and utter destruction shall not be any more,—
But Jerusalem shall abide in security.

And this shall be the plague, wherewith Yahweh will plague all the peoples, who have made war against Jerusalem,—
His flesh shall be made to rot while he is standing upon his feet,
And his eyes shall rot in their sockets,
And his tongue shall rot in their mouth;

And it shall come to pass, in that day,
That there shall be a great confusion from Yahweh among them,—
And they will lay hold every one upon the hand of his neighbour,
And his hand will rise up against the hand of his neighbour;

Moreover also shall Judah fight with Jerusalem,—
And the wealth of all the nations round about shall be gathered together,
Gold and silver and apparel in great abundance.

And so shall be the plague of the horse, the mule, the camel, and the ass, and all the beasts which shall be in those camps,—
Like this plague!

And it shall come to pass, that <as for every one that is left, out of all the nations that came against Jerusalem> That they shall come up, from year to year, To bow down to the king, Yahweh of hosts, And to celebrate the festival of booths.

And it shall come to pass that—
||Whoso shall not come up, out of the families of the earth, unto Jerusalem, to bow down to the king, Yahweh of hosts||,—
There shall not, on them’, be any rain.

And <if the family of Egypt shall not come up, and shall not enter in, upon whom there falleth none> Then shall smite them the plague wherewith Yahweh [did plague] the nations, because they came not up to celebrate the festival of booths.

||This|| shall be the punishment of Egypt,—and the punishment of all the nations, when they come not up to celebrate the festival of booths.

<In that day> shall there be [inscribed] Upon the bells of the horses, Holy unto Yahweh,—
And the caldrons in the house of Yahweh, shall be’ like the dashing bowls before the altar.

And every caldron in Jerusalem and in Judah, shall be Holy unto Yahweh of hosts,—
So shall all who are offering sacrifice, come in, and take of them, and boil therein,—
Neither shall there be a merchant any more’ in the house of Yahweh of hosts, in that day.

||Whoso shall not come up, out of the families of the earth, unto Jerusalem,||,—
There shall not, on them’, be any rain.

And <if the family of Egypt shall not come up, and shall not enter in, upon whom there falleth none> Then shall smite them the plague wherewith Yahweh [did plague] the nations, because they came not up to celebrate the festival of booths.

||This|| shall be the punishment of Egypt,—and the punishment of all the nations, when they come not up to celebrate the festival of booths.

<In that day> shall there be [inscribed] Upon the bells of the horses, Holy unto Yahweh,—
And the caldrons in the house of Yahweh, shall be’ like the dashing bowls before the altar.

And every caldron in Jerusalem and in Judah, shall be Holy unto Yahweh of hosts,—
So shall all who are offering sacrifice, come in, and take of them, and boil therein,—
Neither shall there be a merchant any more’ in the house of Yahweh of hosts, in that day.

||Whoso shall not come up, out of the families of the earth, unto Jerusalem,||,—
There shall not, on them’, be any rain.
MALACHI.

§ 1. Yahweh declares his Love for Jacob, and his Disapprobation of Esau—each considered as a people.

Chapter 1.

1 The oracle of the word of Yahweh unto Israel,—by the hand of Malachi.
2 I have loved you, saith Yahweh,—Yet ye say, Wherein hast thou loved us?

Enquireth Yahweh,—Yet have I loved Jacob,
3 And have I hated,—And made his mountains a desolation,
And his inheritance [a dwelling] for the jackals of the wilderness.
4 Whereas Edom [may say],
We are laid waste, but we will again’ build the desolate places;
[Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts,
But I will pull down,—And men shall call them The Boundary of Lawlessness, and
The people with whom Yahweh hath indignation unto times age-abiding;
5 And your own eyes shall see,—And ye yourselves shall say, Yahweh [be magnified] beyond the boundary of Israel.

§ 2. A Divine Complaint against the People, and especially the Priests, for Disgraceful Negligence and Dishonesty in the Temple Worship: enforced by reference to the hopeful Attitude of Gentile Nations and to the Covenant with Levi.

6 [A son] will honour a father,
And [a servant] his lord,—<If then [a father] I am’> where is mine honour?

And <if [a lord] I am’> where is my reverence?

Saith Yahweh of hosts—
To you, ye priests, who despise my Name, and yet say,
Wherein’ have we despised thy Name?
7 In bringing near upon mine altar, polluted food,
while yet ye say,
Wherein have we polluted thee?
Because ye say,<As for the table of Yahweh> [a thing to be despised] it is’;
8 And when ye bring near the blind as a sacrifice,
[saying]—No harm!b
Or when ye bring near the lame or the sick,
[saying]—No harm!c
Offer it, I pray you, unto thy pasha,
Will he accept thee?
Or lift up thy countenance?
Saith Yahweh of hosts.—
9 ||Now|| therefore, pacify, I pray you, the face of GOD, that he may grant us favour,—
<At your hands> hath this come to pass,d
Will he lift up the countenances [of any of you]?

Saith Yahweh of hosts.
10 Who is there |even among you| that will shut the doors, so as not to set light to mine altar, for nothing?e
I can take no’ pleasure in you,
Saith Yahweh of hosts,
And <your present> can I not accept at your hand.
11 For <from the rising of the sun, even unto the going in thereof> great’ is my Name, among the nations, and <in every place> [incense] is offered to my Name, and a pure present,—for great’ is my Name among the nations,

Saith Yahweh of hosts.
12 But ye’ are profaning me,f—in that ye say,
<As for the table of the Lord> polluted it is',
And <as for his produce> contemptible' is his food.

And ye have said,
Lo! what a weariness!
And ye have snuffed at Me, b

Saith Yahweh of hosts,
And have brought in the torn and the lame and the sick, thus have ye brought the present,—
Could I accept it' at your hand?

Saith Yahweh. c

But accursed' is he that defraughteth,
Who <when there is' in his flock a male> yet voweth and sacrificeth a corrupt thing to the Lord. d

For a great king| am I',
Saith Yahweh of hosts,
And ||my Name|| is revered among the nations.

Chapter 2.

||Now|| therefore, <for you> is this charge, O
ye priests:—

||If ye will not hear, and if ye will not lay it to heart, to give glory to my Name,
Saith Yahweh of hosts>,
then will I send among you the curse, and will curse your blessings,—and indeed’ I have' cursed them, because ye are not at all laying it unto heart.

Behold me! threatening, on your account, the seed, and I will scatter refuse upon your faces, the refuse' of your festivals,—and one shall carry away unto it;

So shall ye know' that I sent unto you this charge,—as being my covenant with Levi,
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

||My covenant|| was with him, Life and Well-being,
So I gave them to him—[I] as One to be revered—

And he did’ revere me,—
And <before my Name> [dismayed] was he’.

||The deliverance' of truth|| was in his mouth,
And ||perverseness|| was not found in his lips,—

<In well-doing and in uprightness> walked he with me,
And <multitudes> did he turn from iniquity.

For ||the lips of a priest|| should keep knowledge,
And  should men seek at his mouth,—

For <the messenger of Yahweh of hosts> he is'.

But ||ye|| have departed out of the way,
Ye have caused multitudes to stumble' at the deliverance,—

Ye have violated the covenant of Levi,
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

Therefore ||I also|| will suffer you to be despised and of no account, unto all the people, b

In proportion as none of you have been keeping my ways,
But have had respect to persons, in giving your deliverance, f

§ 3. The People charged with Unfaithfulness to their Matrimonial Obligations, and with affirming Wrong to be Right.

Is there not ||one Father|| to us all’?
Did not ||one GOD|| create us?
Wherefore should we deal treacherously one with another, f
profaning the covenant of our fathers?

Judah [hath dealt treacherously],
And ||an abomination|| hath been wrought in Israel, and in Jerusalem,—
For Judah [had profaned] the holy place of Yahweh, which he had loved, and hath taken to himself h the daughter of a foreign GOD.

May Yahweh [cut off], from the man that doeth
it—him that crieth out and him that answereth, f

out of the tents of Jacob,—Him also that bringeth near a present to Yahweh of hosts.

13 And <this, a second time> will ye do, covering, with tears, the altar of Yahweh, weeping and making outcry,—because he will not again’ turn unto the gift, and receive [it] with acceptance, at your hands?

14 Yet ye say, For what cause?
Because ||Yahweh|| hath been witness between thee and the wife of thy youth, with whom ||thou|| hast dealt treacherously, though ||she|| was thy consort, and thy covenant’ wife.

15 Now was it not ||One|| [who] made [you] who had ||the residue of the spirit||?
What, then, of that One?
He was seeking a godly seed.
Therefore should ye take heed to your spirit, and <with the wife of thy youth> do not thou deal treacherously.

16 For he hateth Divorce,
Saith Yahweh, God of Israel,
Him also who covereth with violence his own clothing;
Therefore should ye take heed to your spirit, and not deal treacherously.

17 Ye have wearied Yahweh with your words, and yet ye say,
Wherein’ have we been wearisome?
When ye have said,
||Everyone who doeth wrong|| is right in the eyes of Yahweh, and ||in them|| he’ hath taken delight, or,
Where is the God of justice?

Chapter 3.

1 Behold me! sending my messenger,
Who will prepare a way before me,—
And ||suddenly|| shall come to his temple
The Lord|| whom ye are seeking,
Even the messenger of the covenant in whom ye’ are delighting,
Lo! he cometh!
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

2 But who’ may endure the day of his coming?
And who’ is he that can stand’ when he appeareth?
For he’ is like a refiner’s fire,
And likefullers’ alkali;

3 Therefore will he sit as a refiner and purifier of silver,
And will purify the sons of Levi,
And will smelt them, as gold and as silver;
So shall they belong to Yahweh,
Offering a gift in righteousness.

4 Then shall the gift of Judah and Jerusalem ||be pleasant to Yahweh,||—
As in the days of age-past times,
And as in the ancient years.

5 Therefore will I draw near unto you for judgment,
And will become a swift witness
Against the mutterers of incantations, and Against the adulterers, and Against them that swear to a falsehood,—and Against them who rob the hire of the hireling
And that drive away the sojourner
And do not revere me,
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

6 <Because ||I, Yahweh|| have not changed>
therefore ||ye, the sons of Jacob|| have not been utterly consumed.

7 <From the days of your fathers> have ye departed from my statutes, and not observed them
Return ye unto me,
That I may return unto you,
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

And yet ye say,
Wherein shall we return?
Will ||a son of earth|| defraud [God]?
Nevertheless |ye| have been de frauding me,
And yet ye say,
Wherein have we defrauded thee?
In the tithe and the offering.

<With a curse> have|e| been cursing.[b]
And yet <me> have ye been de frauding,—the whole‘ nation.[c]

Bring ye all the tithe into the storehouse, that there may be food in my house,
Yea, I pray you, put me to the proof hereby,
Saith Yahweh of hosts,
whether I will not open to you the sluices of the heavens, and pour out for you blessing, until there be no room.

11 Then will I rebuke, for you, the devourer that he spoil not, for you, the fruit of the ground,— Neither shall the vine in the field [be barren to you],
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

12 So shall all the nations |pronounce you happy|,—
For |ye| shall become‘, a land of delight,
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

<Stout against me> have been your words,
Saith Yahweh,—

And yet ye say,
What‘ have we spoken, one to another, against thee?

14 Ye have said,
Vain‘ is it to serve God,—and What‘ profit
When[4] we have kept his charge, or When[4] we have walked gloomily before Yahweh of hosts?

15 ||Now|| therefore, we‘ are pronouncing happy—the proud,—
The doers of lawlessness have ||even been built up||, and
||They who have put God to the proof|| have even been delivered.

§ 5. A Faithful Few, and their Rewards in Coming Day of Doom.

16 ||Then|| they who revered Yahweh |conversed, one with another|,[f]
And Yahweh hearkened‘, and heard,
And there was written[g] a book of remembrance before him,
For them who revered Yahweh,
And for such as thought of his Name.

Therefore shall they be mine,
Saith Yahweh of hosts,
in the day, for which ||I|| am preparing treasure,—
And I will deal tenderly with them,
Just as a man‘ [dealeth tenderly] with his own son‘ who is serving him.

18 So shall ye return, and see the difference,
Between the righteous and the lawless,—
Between him that serveth God, and him that serveth him not.

Chapter 4.

1 For lo! ||the day|| cometh, that burneth as a furnace,—
And |all the proud and everyone who worketh| lawlessness| shall be‘ |stubble|,
And the day that cometh |shall consume them utterly|,
Saith Yahweh of hosts,
that it shall leave them neither root nor branch.

2 So shall the sun of righteousness |arise to you who revere my Name|, with healing in his wings,—
And ye shall come forth and leap for joy like calves let loose from the stall;

SPECIAL NOTE

ON

THE APOCRYPHA.

It was once customary to bind up the Apocrypha between the authorised versions of the Old and New Testaments. This has now ceased, and as a consequence this curious, interesting, and instructive part of Jewish literature is now known only to scholars. Under these circumstances, the following account of the Apocrypha, condensed from Hastings' “Dictionary of the Bible” (T. & T. Clark), may be useful.

The word “Apocrypha” is applied by English-speaking Protestants to the following collection of books and parts of books:—I. Esdras, II. Esdras, Tobit, Judith, Additions to Esther, The Wisdom of Solomon, The Wisdom of Sirach or Ecclesiasticus, Baruch (chap. vi., Epistle of Jeremy), The Song of the Three Holy Children, The History of Susannah, The History of the Destruction of Bel and the Dragon (ix., x., and xi. are Additions to the Book of Daniel), The Prayer of Manasses, I. Maccabees, II. Maccabees. The collection consists of the excess of the Latin Vulgate over the Hebrew Old Testament; and this excess is due to the Greek LXX. [“Sep.”], from which the old Latin Version was made. The difference between the Protestant and Roman Catholic Old Testament goes back, then, to a difference between Palestinian and Alexandrian Jews.

The word “Apocrypha,” meaning “hidden,” was no doubt first applied to books in a quite literal sense—of books kept from the public. The hiding of a book was easy when copies were few. It might be done on two opposite grounds—to keep from outsiders secret laws or wisdom, or because the contents were judged to be useless or harmful. Official Judaism rejected these hidden books, and declared for the exclusive recognition of the twenty-four books of the Canon. The Catholic Church decided that the Apocrypha were not to be regarded as sacred Scriptures, since publicity and universality were genuineness and truth. Protestantism went over to the Jewish usage, applying the words to the books withdrawn by it from the commonly accepted Canon, though this no longer meant withdrawn from public reading and common use, but only from full authority for doctrine—not disapproved, but recommended as good and useful, not secret or hidden in origin, meaning or use. The evil name, however, helped to lower the first estimate of the books.

In the Eastern Church clearness and consistency have never been reached. In the Latin Church there was an inclination to let Christian usage, rather than scholarly theory, determine the place of the Apocrypha in the Canon. Jerome strongly pressed the sole validity of the Hebrew Canon, but nevertheless gave these books an intermediate position. Luther wavers, but in his Bible (completed 1534) the Apocrypha stands between O.T. and N.T., with the title: “A., that is books which are not held equal to the sacred Scriptures, and nevertheless are useful and good to read.” Calvin reaffirms Jerome’s view. It was not until 1827, after two years’ sharp dispute, that the British and Foreign Bible Society decided to exclude the Apocrypha from all its publications of the Bible. Within the Church of England the number of readings has been, at a comparatively recent date, reduced. In the Revision of Luther’s Bible (1892) the Apocrypha still stands, with Luther’s title. The modern historical interest is putting these writings in their true place as significant documents of a most important era in religious history.
APPENDIX.

DEUTERONOMY, AUTHORSHIP OF

At first sight it might seem as though the translator of the Emphasised Bible had no need to trouble himself about the authorship of the Book of Deuteronomy. There it is: simply translate it, and leave all such questions to commentators and the higher critics. Even had this self-excusing policy prevailed, however, that would not have obliterated the impression naturally received in the process of rendering the book. It is true that the remanding of that impression into silence might have entailed no loss to the world. But there was another reason for offering an opinion, which was this. The design of this Bible—to give effect, among other things, to the interesting distinction between "narrative and speech"—made it imperative to take a definite attitude as to the literary question involved in this discussion. That is to say, it demanded of the translator not only an exercise of his own judgment as to what portions of the book of Deuteronomy were probably editorial, so that he might differentiate them in the margin, setting fully out to the left hand of the column portions that were not "speech"; but the very fact of doing this was sure to draw the inquisitive reader into the problem, by provoking the obvious question why some parts of Deuteronomy are marginally distinguished from other parts; why, for example, chaps. i. 1–5; ii. 10–12, 20–23; iii. 11, 13–14; iv. 41–43, 44–49, are thus separated from their contexts. It seemed better, therefore, to take the reader into confidence; and, first, by a few notes subjoined to the book itself, as at chaps. iv. 13; vi. 5; viii. 17; viii. 2, &c., and then by the present connected statement, to employ the book of Deuteronomy as a very elementary object-lesson, offered once for all, in that legitimate higher criticism which no honest man of reverent judgment needs fear to study.

The purpose thus defined may perhaps be most effectively attained by first presenting, substantially as it was written, a paper which appeared in a weekly magazine two years ago, and by then submitting such further observations as may appear to be called for.

In this book we hear the voice of “the old man eloquent.” As an author, there may be more or less of Moses the man of God in the books of Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers; but here we come within the sound of his living voice, and listen to his impassioned pleadings with Israel. No later writer could have so completely entered into the situation. Moses himself, as revealed in the foregoing history, now stands before us. We perceive in the Speaker, the teachings of the past, the realisation of the present, the fears for the future,—revealing themselves in a manner perfectly inimitable. Such, at least, was the impression made on the mind of the translator when some years ago he wrote out his rendering of the book.

This impression was decidedly deepened when, later on, he carefully revised his translation. It is true that his previous conviction became slightly qualified, yet only in such wise as to strengthen the conclusion to which he had previously come. The more one became familiar with the mannerisms of the speaker’s living voice, the more evident it was that here and there editorial annotations had been subsequently added. The rush and passion and vehement urgency that we feel as we hearken to Moses’ voice are not easily to be reconciled with the deliberate presentation of antiquarian notes, as to the former dwellers in Edom and the other lands through which Israel had passed; far less with the measurements and present location of the bedstead of Og, king of Bashan. Granted here and there an editorial addition, and these things easily fall into their place. They do but momentarily interrupt the flowing periods of the living Moses; but assuredly they formed no part of the original spoken discourse. They enrich the book as we have it, but they would have marred the discourses as actually delivered by a man shortly to die.—This then is the modification to which the translator’s first persuasion readily submitted itself.

But now, after a third survey of the book of Deuteronomy, how does the question of Authorship present itself? Briefly, as follows: That a little further extension of the supposed editorship goes a long way towards placing the first main impression upon an immovable basis. Not antiquarian notes alone betray editorship; but historical introductions, and at least one historical appendix. The historical appendix is, of course, seen and known of all men. Moses certainly did not record his own death and burial; and only a considerably later hand could have finally told how much greater Moses was than any who came after him. The historical introductions—of which there are principally two—are worthy of further attention. There is nothing to show that those introductions may not have been written by Joshua, Eleazar or Phineas, or some other contemporary of the great Prophet, within a few years of his death. The introductions referred to are, first, a general one to the whole book (chap. i. 1–5); and, second, an introduction to Moses’ account of the “ten words” given on Horeb (chap. iv. 41–v. 1). In both of these are found tokens of editorship which challenge our confidence, inasmuch as, in them, two distinct lines of evidence are seen converging to the conclusion that these portions are editorial. The first line consists in this—that, when the Editor writes, he refers to Moses in the third person: “Moses” said or did this or that; whereas when Moses himself speaks, he naturally alludes to himself as “I” or “me”; to Israel, including himself, as “we” or “us”; directly addressing his hearers as “ye” or “you. This of itself is clear enough as marking a distinction between the principal spoken addresses and any editorial supplements. Singularly enough, the line thus drawn is confirmed by the simple word “over” in relation to the river Jordan. Moses we know did not enter the good land: Joshua and others did. To him, “over the Jordan” meant to the west: to them, after they had entered, “over the Jordan” meant to the east, or, as the Editor of Moses is accustomed to add, “towards the rising of the sun.” Now the persuasive coincidence is just this: That in those portions where we presume the Editor is writing because he refers to Moses in the third person,—in them we find that “over the Jordan” means to the east: on the other hand, where we feel sure that Moses himself is speaking, by the clear sign that he says “I,” “we,” “ye,” “you,”—in those very portions “over the Jordan” means to the west. There is but one exception, and that occurs in chap. iii. 8 in the midst of a sentence which by the usual token was spoken by Moses; whereas the phrase “over the Jordan” which occurs in that sentence must mean eastward, as the locality spoken of conclusively shows. The difficulty is at once removed by the very easy hypothesis that that particular clause in the sentence was added as an editorial explanation. Then all is plain, and the exception proves the rule; which rule being a second one, and coinciding with a first entirely independent of it, generates an amount of confidence not easily shaken.

But the evidence of the Mosaic authorship of the speeches—of which, be it noted, the book of Deuteronomy is mainly composed—springs from something more subtle and more conclusive than the aforesaid converging lines of evidence, however satisfactory in themselves those lines may be. It springs from the manner in which the speaker enters into the entire situation, leading us to exclaim, None but Moses could have done it! Coupled with this, and constituting an especial form of it, is the profound emotionalism—in a word, the psychology which pervades the book, prompting us to say, None but Moses could have felt all this!

What, then, was the situation into which the speaker so completely enters? It was a situation created by time, place, event, and personality; and, naturally, owing to the concurrence of these causes, a situation that had never existed before and could never exist again. The time was after the forty years’ wanderings, after the conquest of Sihon, king of Heshbon, and Og, king of Bashan; and just before the passage of the Jordan into Canaan: a momentous time, crowded with memories, throbbing with exciting expectations. The place was the Arabah of Moab, near the Jordan, over against Jericho, the centre of the whole east of Canaan, along which the people had skirted or into which they had penetrated—a place, therefore, which invited them to cross, to enter, to possess, without more delay. And what unique events had already happened: the sullen acquiescence in Israel’s transit by Edom. Moab and Ammon, at the terrible cost of the slain over the matter of Baal-peor with which the names of Balak and Balaam are dishonourably associated; the unexpected conquest of the magnificent lands of Gilead and Bashan, with all the stir of war whetting the swords of Israel’s warriors with keen eagerness for the great invasion. Then, finally, look at the personalities which enter into the situation: Caleb is there, and Joshua, both of whom knew personally something, still vivid in their memories, which, as spies, they had seen—of the inhabitants and cities and products of the land; and there are Eleazar and Phineas, son and grandson of Aaron, Moses’ brother; there, also, the generation whose memories, many of them, reached back to the early days of the wanderings, who had seen that great and terrible desert, who had skirted Edom and Moab and Ammon, and penetrated Gilead and Bashan, many of whom had lost near relatives in the fearful revolt of Baal-peor; and towering above them all was the commanding personality of Moses himself. Now the contention here submitted is, that the speaker of those discourses, which constitute the chief portion of the book of Deuteronomy, so completely enters into the situation created by the time, the place, the events, and the personalities, that he could be no other than Moses himself. Only the man who lived then, and stood there, who had passed through those stirring events, who knew and confronted that generation, could possibly speak in the strain that here greets our eyes.

For note, finally, the marked psychology of this book. What a profound emotionalism the speaker displays! All the forms of speech that betoken depth of feeling are present here—repetitions, as if the speaker could not make sure enough of having effected his purpose; digressions, caused by vivid memories crowding in upon him while he was speaking; appeals, remonstrances, recriminations, which none but Moses could have dared; and, especially confessions of disappointment and regret—so keen, so bitter, as if his heart would break—that he might not himself enter into the good land. Note well, also, the extremes that meet, and are melted into a living whole, by the intense feeling with which the speaker is borne along: “What nation so great!”... “Oh foolish people and unwise!” Note also the labour—the travail—for the people’s well-being into which his passionate love urges him. He speaks, and speaks; he must surely have spoken from day to day! When he has done speaking, then he writes, and writes on: adding perhaps a little, towards the end, which he had not actually spoken, but in penning which he feels as if he were still speaking. And when he has written all—all the law, all his repetition of the law, all his own recollections about the giving of the law, including perhaps variations (most natural in one who spoke and wrote from memory, but very unlikely to have been indulged in by anyone else), when he has done all this, then, Is there anything else he can do, any further stone he can turn, to stem and stay his people’s apostasy? Yes, there is one thing he can do. He can resolve his passion into song—a song for the tongue, for the ear, for the memory; a song to have among the people, to be recited in their gatherings, to be accompanied by the harp. He has harangued them, he has warned them; now he will bewitch them. Thus is born his Witnessing Song (chap. xxxii.) This is not the place to analyse that marvelous composition. Read it; get into sympathy with it. Against the doubt whether Moses could have composed it, let it be enough to say, Could anyone else have composed it? With regard to the Song of “Blessing” which stands in the next chapter (chap. xxxiii.), the case in many ways is very different. Instead of seeming to grow out of the speeches which have gone before, it is couched in a totally opposite strain. It is blessing only—admiration only—felicitation only. What before, it is couched in a totally opposite strain. It is but very unlikely to have been indulged in by anyone else, when he has done all this, then, Is there anything else he can do, any further stone he can turn, to stem and stay his people’s apostasy? Yes, there is one thing he can do. He can resolve his passion into song—a song for the tongue, for the ear, for the memory; a song to have among the people, to be recited in their gatherings, to be accompanied by the harp. He has harangued them, he has warned them; now he will bewitch them. Thus is born his Witnessing Song (chap. xxxii.) This is not the place to analyse that marvelous composition. Read it; get into sympathy with it. Against the doubt whether Moses could have composed it, let it be enough to say, Could anyone else have composed it? With regard to the Song of “Blessing” which stands in the next chapter (chap. xxxiii.), the case in many ways is very different. Instead of seeming to grow out of the speeches which have gone before, it is couched in a totally opposite strain. It is blessing only—admiration only—felicitation only. What then? Shall we contradict Moses’ editor, who records that “This is the blessing wherewith Moses the man of God blessed the sons of Israel before his death”? There is no need! One of two suppositions is open to us, both of which are perfectly rational, either of which would naturally account for the altered mood of the prophet-poet. We may conceive of the “Blessing” as in the main composed long years before these parting scenes, though only now publicly produced. Or we may form another hypothesis: we may conclude that the mind of Moses passed into a serener atmosphere after the excitement and strain of the admonitory speeches and song were over—that his fears having found adequate expression, the man of God rested in the consciousness that he had done his duty: knowing, moreover, that, after all, there was hope in the end for Israel, how many soever her sins would be, how terrible soever the sufferings must be which should follow those sins (chap. xxxii. 43)—knowing this, his profound love for his people, his unshaken confidence in their destiny, stirred and guided by divine afflatus, now moved him to excogitate his most glowing idealisations of Israel’s unique position, and to cast his thoughts into the form of a most lovely and loving song. And so, having prepared and pronounced his “Paradise Regained,” he is parted from the beloved tribes—almost literally—with a “blessing” on his lips.

We have assumed that Moses was a poet. Why not? He was an Oriental—he was an educated man—he had been in love—he had enjoyed forty years of learned leisure in Midian. What wonder if the soul of a poet had been awakened within him, and the stylus of a poet had been trained to commit to papyrus or to parchment the musical numbers with which he had beguiled many a waiting hour during his banishment from his land and his people.

And even in this second song there are, if we mistake not, internal evidences of no small force that no one was ever so fitted to write it as Moses himself. If we wished to cite an example, we would say: The opening lines (chap. xxxiii. 2) descriptive of the Divine Appearing, when Yahweh came forth to meet Israel; Moses going forth at the head of his people, Yahweh advancing to meet them in a pillar of light and fire. Can we think of any human imagination so likely to have been profoundly and permanently impressed by that Theophany as that of Moses himself? What surprise if, before he died, he perpetuated his recollections in one of the most magnificent poems ever written?

In fine: the book of Deuteronomy must have had an author. Making reasonable allowances for editorial preservation and annotation, no man comes before us out of all the centuries of Hebrew history so fitted to be, so likely to have been, that author as Moses, the man of God, the leader of Israel out of Egypt to the confines of the promised land.

Such is the paper as it originally appeared in print. There is little to add. Since it was written some attention has been given to what the critics who treat of the Literature of the Old Testament have to say,—without changing the general persuasiveness of the present writer. It is still conceived that, full allowance being made for the necessary editing of the Sacred Books, it is needless to disturb the internal claim to Authorship where, as in this case, it is plainly made in the writing itself, and where that claim is seen to rest on broad and general grounds of inherent probability. It is, of course, undesirable to get involved in technicalities. It matters little whether the term “author” is applied to Moses or to his Editors, provided it is well understood what is intended. The one weighty question is whether the great Lawgiver did actually deliver the substance of what is here put into his mouth, and whether his speeches have been honestly and competently edited for the purpose, and during the process, of being handed down to us.

ESCAPE GOAT, THE—(FOR AZAZEL).

“And one lot for Azazel” (Lev. xvi. 8).—It seems impossible to dissent from the opinion that “Azazel,” instead of being a name for the (e)scape goat, is the name or title of an evil Being, opposed to Yahweh, to whom the live goat on the great Day of Propitiation was sent. Admitting so much, it still remains to inquire into the meaning of this very peculiar but impressive ceremony of sending the living goat to Azazel. Assuming that Satan is represented by Azazel—and there does not appear anything else which bibliically we can assume—it is most important to observe that there is here no sacrifice offered to the evil spirit. The second goat is not slain, but in marked contrast to its fellow is preserved alive, and remains the living goat to the end. It is true it is led away to or towards the desert, and goes thither bearing the sins of the people which have been symbolically laid upon its head. But it has been too much overlooked, that it carries into the desert something else besides the sins of the congregation. It bears the death of its companion, which has been just as truly put upon it as have the sins of the people (ver. 10). The death thus put upon it was the death of the people’s sin-bearer. Therefore, the only sin it bears into the desert is atoned-for sin—sin for which death has already been exacted. And, unless we stultify the whole transaction of that solemn day, we must admit that, if the sins resting upon the live goat proclaimed to Azazel, “Slay me if thou canst,” the death of its fellow, which covered it, as loudly cried. “Slay me if thou dost! I claim to live! I have already died in my companion whose death is accounted mine!” In point of fact, no hint is given of any harm befalling the goat that was dismissed; and despite the romance of the book of Enoch, preceded or followed by Jewish tradition, to the effect that the goat was precipitated from steep rocks and so killed, it is far more respectful to the Levitical appointment to stop where it closes than to add a sequel which mars the whole symbolic transaction. As well imagine an untimely end to the living bird dipped in the blood of its fellow and then let go free (chap. xiv. 33) as to pursue the escaped goat with any such morbid imagination. That it was taken, by the man appointed, into a lone land is excellent symbology; and may well have pictured the dismissal of the past year’s offences into the land of forgetfulness—into utter oblivion. Instead of fancying anything further, rather let common sense suggest that the released goat could (just as well as its conductor) find its way back to the haunts of men, to be indistinguishably lost in the crowd of its natural congers. Delivered once and for all from this mistaken dream, and reverting once more to the haunts of men, to be indistinguishably lost in the crowd of its natural congers. PHARAOH’S HEART, THE HARDENING OF.

In his commentary on this place (Exo. iv. 21) Kalisch says: “As the external, often accidental, occasion of an event is mostly more obvious, even to the reflecting mind, than its primary cause or its true (often hidden) originator, it has become a linguistic peculiarity in most ancient, especially the Semitic, Languages, to use indiscriminately the former instead of the latter, so that the phrase, ‘I shall harden the heart of Pharaoh’ means: ‘I know that I shall be the cause of Pharaoh’s obstinacy; my commands and wonders will be an occasion, an inducement to an increasing obduration of his heart.’ And the compassionate leniency of God, who, instead of crushing the haughtiness of the refractory king with one powerful blow, first tried to reform him by various less awful punishments, and who generally announced the time of the occurrence of the plagues by the words, ‘Behold, I shall afflict to-morrow,’ in order to grant him time for reflection and repentance; this clemency on the part of God increased Pharaoh’s refractoriness; it was to him a cause of prolonged and renewed resistance.”

The importance of the question thus suggested, coupled with a consideration of the translator’s responsibility to do all he fairly can to guard his readers from going astray, may render a few further facts and observations of practical interest. Is it right, on the part of the translator of THE EMPHASISED BIBLE, that he has endeavoured to avoid representing God as the author or instigator of wickedness?

In furnishing materials for answering this question, it will be sufficient, in this article, to submit two facts. The first is, that words in the original usually expressive of cause are now and then employed to denote occasion, and may be legitimately rendered in the latter sense. The second is, that even positive commands are occasionally to be accepted as meaning no more than permission.

1. That Hebrew Grammars distinctly avow occasion or permission to be sometimes the sense of verbs which ordinarily signify cause can be verified by a reference to the Hebrew Grammar of Gesenius, say in the admirable translation of Dr. Benjamin Davies (p. 120). After stating that the verbal form (conjugation) called piel denotes intensity and repetition, this grammar adds: “It often takes the modifications expressed by permit, to declare or hold as, to help.” Of this, a good example is found in the verb shalah, “to send.” Notice its modification with reference to the raven and the dove in Gen. viii. 7, 8. Noah “sent” them “forth”; that is, he simply “let them go.” The only cause was permission, the removal of restraint. Again, when Eliezer said (Gen. xxiv. 54), “Send me away,” all he meant was, “Let me go,” “Do not hinder me.” So with regard to hayah, “to live”; in piel, “to cause to live.” The historian says that the midwives (literally) “caused the male children to live” (Exo. i. 17)—plainly, “permitted them,” “refrained from putting them to death.” To the same effect in the following verses. Pharaoh asked, “Wherefore have ye done this thing, to let (not really make) the male children live?” (verse 18) and then gave command, “Every daughter shall ye (not cause, but) suffer to live” (verse 22).

In the hiphil conjugation, the same modification occasionally obtains. Deu. viii. 3 (literally “caused thee to hunger,” in fact. “suffered thee to hunger” (as in both A.V. and R.V.); S. Song ii. 14, “Cause me to see thy form,” that is, “Let me see thy form,” in one word, “Appear”; “cause me to hear thy voice,” “let me hear thy voice,” “speak”; Isa. lv. 6, “Seek Yahweh while he causeth himself to be found,” more freely, but quite correctly, “while he letteth himself be found.” And so on, through a considerable number of examples in the aggregate, though still a minority when all the occurrences of the words are surveyed.

If it be asked. How are we to judge whether, in a particular instance, we have come upon an exception to the general rule? the answer is, You can only decide from context and circumstance—taking care to employ upon these as much common-sense as possible. Do I cause this book to fall to the table? Loosely speaking, yes; strictly, no: I merely let it fall; I merely take away the restraint of my grasping hand, and so yield up the book to the causative force of gravitation. God permitted Pharaoh to harden his own heart—spared him—gave him the opportunity, the occasion, of working out the wickedness that was in him. That is all.

If the further enquiry be urged, How are we to make up for the want of “context”? how are we to be sure that we are sufficiently acquainted with the “circumstances” of a particular case, to decide whether we are justified in concluding that here, in any given instance, we may rightfully subdue the apparent cause into the mere occasion or permission?—if this be the tenour of our enquiry—well, we must do our best, and leave the remainder. Generally, we shall only need to revert to the known nature of things, or the known character of persons, to find clear guidance. We know, for instance, that a liberated bird likes to fly away; and, furthermore, that its liberator has no power to attach an impelling force to the winged creature; therefore, it is quite enough for Noah to let go the raven and the dove (Gen. viii. 7, 8); though, with the Hebrew, we can say he sent them forth, knowing that no one can be misled thereby. And we can so well understand the eagerness of Eliezer to depart with the bride he had secured for Isaac, as to feel sure that he needed neither physical force nor insult to send him back to his master: it was enough to be allowed to go. It is true there may be cases we do not so readily comprehend as we do these. But in all such instances as that whereunto these minor ones are designed to lead us, we do positively know enough to settle them with reference to the one question now in hand. We know that God is holy. We know that He hates all sin. We know that there is in Him no complicity with wickedness. And, therefore, we know that, however much and however long He permits iniquity and rebellion. He never is the efficient cause of it. And so, finally, we know that He Himself put no wicked motive force into Pharaoh’s heart, to impel him to defy his Maker.

2. A very few words on the second point will suffice. Commands, even when positive in form, are sometimes clearly seen to be permissive only in sense. Ahimaz, the son of Zadok, desired of Joab that he might run with tidings of Absolom’s death to King David. Joab refused. Ahimaz renewed his request, till at length his general said, “Run.” That was Joab’s permission—no more! (2 Sam. xviii. 23). Again, the sons of the prophets at Jericho asked leave of their new master, Elisha, to send fifty men to seek the lost Elijah “on the mountains or in the valleys.” At first Elisha replied, “Ye shall not send.” But, when they urged him until he was ashamed, he said, “Send.” A command, you may say! But did Elisha himself regard it in that light? On the contrary, when the seekers for Elijah returned without success, he exclaimed, “Did I not say unto you. Do not go?” (2 Kings ii. 16–18.) Why multiply illustrations? Let it suffice to apply those already given. There is at least a single case in which the Most High appears to have commanded an act of deception (1 Kings xxii. 22). How ought that to be understood? In reply we need not take advantage of the highly dramatic form of the representation of which this forms a single item—we need not urge that the prophet Micaiah was in peril of his life, daring to oppose two absolute monarchs, one of whom mortally hated him; though all that is worth remembering. We can go straight to the ultimate mark by declaring that the words of God to the seducing spirit can and must be regarded as absolutely neither more nor less than a permission to deceive. Either this, or the holiness of God is a myth, and the Bible has been written in vain. In fine, on the revealed character of God we rest.

“A Rock! faultless his work,
For all his ways are just,—
A God of faithfulness, and without perversity, Right and fair is he!”

—(Deu. xxxii. 4.)

PROPRIITATORY COVERING.

Instead of “make atonement for” this translation has, mostly, “put a propitiatory covering over”; and this is undeniably a more adequate rendering of the original kipper. The verb kipper is the intensive (piel) form of kaphar, which by general consent means to cover. And though kipper is set apart to denote moral covering, generally by sacrifice, yet it does not follow that the mental conception of covering is thereby lost. Indeed the prevailing reference of this species of covering to persons as its object, and the favourite construction of the verb with ‘al “upon” and ha’ad “about,” point clearly to the wisdom of preserving the more graphic rendering which has here been ventured, and which preserves the striking idealism of the Hebrew. Speaking of the application of kipper to various classes of offerings, the Oxford Gesenius (p. 498) says: “Underlying all these offerings there is the conception that the persons offering are covered by that which is regarded as sufficient and satisfactory by Yahweh.” Although this thought may be held to abate something of its picturesqueness when the action is regarded as taking effect on inanimate objects—such as the “altar,” “the tent of meeting,” &c.—yet these merely derived applications can scarcely be taken to efface the deeper idealism, where that aptly holds good. Kipper may easily be said to signify “to atone,” but the question arises, what is the radical O.G. conception of “atonement”? Or, the word in question may be held to denote “forgiveness,” but still the question is pertinent. Has this great “atonying” word nothing to say regarding the means by which forgiveness is secured? The more must this question be pressed, that in many instances (till it becomes the standing formula in the book of Leviticus) forgiveness is spoken of as a sequel to the atoning act rather than that act itself. The atoning lies behind the forgiving. Even where the verb “to forgive” would seem an apt rendering of the Hebrew kipper, it will generally be found that the more graphic translation which keeps up a filament of connection with the sacrificial means by which forgiveness is secured, is to be preferred. The great gain of this rendering, however, most clearly comes in those numerous cases in which there is an undeniable surrender of life for life. The sacrifice covers the sinner—how? By dying in his stead. One life covers another when one is surrendered and the other therefore spared. The blow must fall; for the wages of sin is death, and without the shedding of blood there is no remission. The sinner—how? By dying in his stead. One life covers another when one is surrendered and the other therefore spared. The blow must fall; for the wages of sin is death, and without the shedding of blood there is no remission. But it falls on the substituted life. The dead covers the living. The living is ransomed—pardon set free. Such covering is essentially propitiatory covering. Substitution is of its essence. Any possible abuse of this fundamental Hebrew concept, will be averted by doing careful and equal justice to the entire Levitical ritual. The offerer consents to the substitution; and by himself or his representative takes an essential part in the transfer of the penalty of the sin which he confesses. Man consents; God consents. The substitutionary death is granted by God: it is accepted by man. It is accepted under the solemn stipulation that the spared life shall be wholly consecrated to the holy and merciful God who brings near this costly salvation. One thing is wanting in the ritual—the consent of the substitute. Nay, a second thing is missing—adequacy of value in the substituted. Be it so! Then when a substitute shall appear who shall willingly bear the sin of the world, and be worthy to bear it; and God consents and ordains; and man consents and accepts; then the whole Ideal of Propitiatory Covering will be complete. It remains for the World and for the Individual to carry the matter to its practical consummation.

SIN=SIN-OFFERING=SIN-BEARER.

One of the most striking and significant facts in the language of Leviticus and of the O.T. generally is that the sin-offering and the guilt-offering are in Hebrew called simply “sin” and “guilt”—the victim being called by the name of the offence which it bears and for which it dies. As this usage could not have been intended to confound moral delinquency or abnormal moral condition with an innocent and unoffending animal, the usage can only be regarded as vividly setting forth the close connection between sin and death—the doom of sin to end in death—the destiny of the sin-bearer to carry the sin unto death and realise its termination in death. The sacrifice thus becomes an impressive object-lesson—a dramatic representation of pathetic moral instructiveness. The victim is put in the offender’s place, and is then slain. One dies; another dies. Between these two facts is interposed the symbolic ceremony of the laying-on (or more exactly, the leaning-on) of the hands of the sinner upon the head of the sin-bearer. The sin is thereby represented as transferred from the former to the latter: the sin, not indeed in its moral blame-worthiness, but in its legal answerableness. To render such a transference possible, Divine sanction is essential. It is chiefly and ultimately against God that sin is committed. His primal law is that the person who sins—the same shall die (Eze. xviii. 4); and he (Yahweh himself) alone can commute or transfer the penalty. Besides, all life is his gift and care. No animal can be lawfully slain without his permission. Hence, in divinely-appointed sacrifice, his permission is seen—a fact formally and solemnly enunciated in Leviticus xvii. 11. He grants, within certain limits what he alone could rightfully grant, the substitution of life for life upon the altar of sacrifice. But although, this divine sanction is essential to acceptable substitutionary sacrifice, the interest and obligation of the offender must not be overlooked. He has done the wrong, and it is for him to make amends, if he can, and if he may. And it is worthy of note that between him and his substitute a near relation is presupposed or secured. To die for me, the lamb must be mine. Accordingly the paschal lamb was to be selected and brought to the offerer’s home, there to be petted and pitied so as to render the offering of it the offering of his own heart—of himself (Exo. xxi. 3–6). In like manner, on the great Day of Propitiation, when all the sacrifices of the year were summed up and completed, it was from the people that the priest was instructed to accept the sin-bearers which were to be offered in their behalf (Lev. xvi. 5). It is of course conceivable that the sinner may be unable to provide an acceptable sacrifice; in which case it is possible that God himself may provide the Lamb (Gen. xxii. 8); and indeed a glimmering perception of the possible need of some notable Divine provision seems to have prophetically carried away the patriarch Abraham into the bestowal, upon Mount Moriah, of the name “Yahweh-yireh” (“Yahweh will provide”), and to have induced others to prolong the anticipation in the saying, “In the mountain of Yahweh shall provision be made” (Gen. xxii. 14). The need of Divine Sanction to the constitution of efficacious Substitution attains its most weighty expression when we read in the prophets: “YAHWEH caused to light upon him the iniquity of us all” (Isa. liii. 6). No other than He could make that transference—be the Suffering Servant who he may. In view of the impressive lesson thus afforded, and which is so prominent in the book of Leviticus (where the word ḥaṭṭath—for nineteen times it means sin—fifty-three times stands for the sin-victim) the translator would fain have followed the severity of the Hebrew and used the one name “sin” throughout. Doubting the intelligibility of such a terminology at present, he has not ventured on that course. He has, however, preferred “sin-bearer” to “sin-offering,” as penetrating just a little further into the heart of the matter. “Sin-bearer,” meantime, may aptly remind us not only of Isa. liii. 6, but of I. Pet. ii. 24; but if we should ever be able to “homologate” the one term “sin” (for ḥaṭṭath) throughout the book of Leviticus, we should assuredly have climbed the high level which would conduct us triumphantly into the great Pauline utterance of 2 Cor. v. 21. The translator is pleased (on reviewing the three editions of his N.T.) to see that he has hitherto resisted the temptation to substitute “sin-offering” for “sin” (“made him to be sin”) in that passage, and he traces it to the influence over him of this remarkable usage in Leviticus: “sin-offering”—yes! but what constitutes a “sin-offering” save the imputation of “sin”? The ancient usage was intensely dramatic; it led the offerer, as he viewed his substitute, to exclaim, “There goes—there dies—my Sin!”
ERRATA.

Deuteronomy xxxii. 5: for “son,” read “sons.”
Isaiah i. 9: for “left as,” read “left us.”
Isaiah lxv. 20: for “accused,” read “accursed.”

PREFA E TO THE FO URTH EDITION.

The Unity of “The Emphasised Bible” has controlled the moulding of its constituent parts. The New Testament, first published in 1872, and then in 1878 (under the title of “The New Testament Newly Translated and Critically Emphasised”), was entirely remodelled and received its present shorter title in 1897, so that it might take its place as an essential portion of the whole book. To that the Old Testament was conformed in size, type, style of translating, and method of emphasising; both Testaments being dealt with in the Expository Introduction placed before the Book of Genesis, in which Introduction the peculiarities of the entire work are explained in Four Chapters.

It is believed that this Unity of Plan and Execution serves to set in clearer light the essential oneness of the Sacred Volume: to render which service as complete as possible, an Introductory Note on “The Interpretation of the Bible” follows this Preface; moreover also a small handbook has been issued, entitled “Our Sacred Books: being Plain Chapters on the Inspiration, Transmission and Translation of the Bible.”

May these endeavours receive the Divine blessing!

June, 1903.
“UNDERSTANDEST thou what thou readest?” is a most natural question for a Translator to ask: first, from an inevitable solicitude that his rendering should not have missed its mark; and, secondly, from the self-restraint with which, though essentially an interpreter himself, he has continually left outlying questions of exegesis to the judgment of his readers.

But, just here, between the Old Testament and the New, the problem of Interpretation becomes momentous and urgent, since therein is involved the very claim of the New Testament to follow the Old as a rightful part of the One Book. In weighing this problem, the following principles demand consideration—namely, continuity, gradation, fulfillment, adaptation and advancement.

1. CONTINUITY, while chiefly consisting in the re-appearance of the things of the Old in the New, runs partly also on verbal lines of connection between the Hebrew Scriptures and the Christian, so that, by the help of such words as “God,” “Israel” and “Gentiles,” “faith,” “holiness” and “salvation,” “heaven” and “earth,” “life” and “death,” “hades,” “messenger,” “age-abiding,” and others too numerous to mention, the reader finds himself resuming in the Later Writings themes with which he had become familiar in the Earlier. And so, notwithstanding the great difference between them, the New Testament appears to run on as a continuation of the Old. The moral atmosphere is the same. It is God who is still speaking, in words which reveal His holiness and love. The appeal is still to men’s consciences.

2. Nevertheless a marked GRADATION may be traced between the Book of Genesis and the Book of the Revelation. Even the earliest Books of the Bible are marked by the appearance of growth. The Book of Genesis is plainly introductory to the Book of Exodus; but the former shows within itself the signs of development—the small germ-record being followed by the larger narrative, each with its fitting commencement. No subtle criticism is needed to reveal these tokens of advancement: they are open to every eye. And as literary development appears, so does historical. The world before the Flood, leaving behind its admonitory lessons for all time, makes way for the world after the Flood. Of the three sons of Noah, Ham and Japheth, after coming on the scene, retire before Shem, because from Shem Abraham is to arise, and from Abraham the Chosen Nation. Simultaneously with the progress of history, prophecy advances, an early promise being amplified into repeated and enlarged predictions, running along the line which history has prepared for their accomplishment. The Man becomes a Nation, the Nation is called to be the Servant of Yahweh for ministry to the other nations of the earth, until at length the Ministering Nation itself is seen led on to its destiny by its Suffering and Conquering Messiah. The Messiah Himself is more and more clearly foreshadowed as time goes on, the promised Seed of the Woman being destined to appear in Abraham’s line, of David’s family, and to come forth from Bethlehem. Then we turn over the leaf, and the Coming One appears, though in lowliness at first, to be rejected—like Joseph, like Moses! Meantime, as history and prophecy march on, morals are uplifted, the temporary permission of half-remedies for social evils being closed when the Greater Prophet arrives; and just when hope rises on loftier wing, patience and self-sacrifice become the crowning virtues, and when the Mystery of Suffering deepens, larger and more satisfying solutions are discerned; so that a half-chapter from the Epistle to the Romans does more to solve the riddle than the elaborate drama and lengthy arguments of the Book of Job, and the Hallelujahs of the Apocalypse, in sweep and fulness of triumph, manifestly transcend any heard in the Psalms or the Prophets.

3. The FULFILLMENT of Prophecy begins in the Old Testament, and then runs over into the New. The one man becomes a great nation, yea many nations spring from his loins. The Messiah appears, and the songs sung by heavenly messengers over Bethlehem’s plains are learned and lisped for centuries by Gentile babes, and myriads of martyrs from among the Nations joyfully surrender their lives for very love of the Crucified Son of David, whose face they are sure they should behold in glory. But fulfilment comes by instalments—the Eternal seems to be in no haste. The Old Testament is partly fulfilled in the New, and this measure of accomplishment forms a magnificent pledge of all the rest; nevertheless a glorious Remainder awaits the times of the accomplishment of all the things that are written. What is not fulfilled by the First Advent will be filled to the full by the Second, when “the heavens shall be set open, and the messengers of God ascend and descend unto the Son of Man.” Christians believe that the Jesus of the New Testament is the Messiah foreshadowed in the Old; they are unwise if they affirm that He has already entered upon the whole work assigned Him. Restraining themselves from assuming too much, they are left free to do the completest exegetical justice to the Hebrew Scriptures as well as to their own. They can well afford to favour a natural interpretation of the whole Bible—of poetry as poetry, allowing for poetical license; of prophecy as prophecy, granting that some dimness must needs rest on things yet to come, especially when the like of them have never happened yet; but abating nothing from the programme, hiding nothing, denying nothing; never allegorising without express warrant or manifest need.

4. Meantime, however, ADAPTATION, as distinguished from fulfillment, claims its due. For a prophecy may be verified in principle long before it is fulfilled according to its own contextual intention. Yahweh has an undoubted right to make “a People” out of Gentiles who before were a “No-people,” as the Apostle Paul well understood; but He has more than the right, He has the revealed intention of bringing the Hebrew nation itself through the three successive conditions of being first “a People,” second “a No-people,” and third “a People” again, as clearly announced by the Prophet Hosea. It is sheer Gentile blindness not to see this; and the habit of overlooking it may, without exaggeration, be said to wreck all sound interpretation of the Old Testament Prophecies. For under its influence nothing in the ancient predictions can be trusted to mean what it says, even after making reasonable allowance for figurative language. Whereas, when borrowed language is frankly acknowledged to bear that character, and the interpreter faithfully reverts to its original intention in its own context—so that, in the Old Testament, “Israel” means Israel and “Jerusalem” means Jerusalem—then the Messiah’s promised Kingdom is seen to remain intact, and the ancient prophecies concerning it can be interpreted according to their obvious significance. The manifold wisdom of God has made ample provision for the Messiah’s Ecclesia, so that her heavenly portion can be assigned her as His Bride, without interference with the Messiah’s Kingdom, the chief earthly place therein being still regarded as inviolably reserved for that ancient Nation whose continued existence is the most extended and persistent miracle the world has ever seen.

5. With just abatement, however, on the score of partial fulfillment in the realm of facts and of free adaptation in the sphere of language, ADVANCEMENT presses its way to the front, claiming that, though injustice must not be done to the Hebrew Scriptures, yet less than justice shall not be accorded to the Christian Scriptures. The advancement made in the progress of events is so decisive as of necessity to charge language with new forces and to create new forms of expression, thereby profoundly influencing the whole science of Biblical Interpretation. The fundamental Christian assumptions are: that the Messiah has come—that His own people have rejected Him—that the promised Kingdom is postponed—that now the First Advent must be followed by a Second—that meantime an Ecclesia (or “assembly”) is being summoned from the ends of the earth—that, though not herself the Kingdom, yet in her heart the hope of the Kingdom is implanted, and by her activities preparations for its establishment are being signally matured—that on this Ecclesia spiritual gifts have been bestowed, and in it spiritual men have been produced who, though in many ways like the prophets of old, yet in some ways surpass them—and that to one of these men in particular, namely Saul, of the tribe of Benjamin, also called Paul, has been committed the stupendous privilege of revealing a New Dispensation, intercalated among the Ages between the Two Advents, in other words between the Rejection and Reception of the Messiah by His own people. It thus comes about that by these concurrent advancements of facts, and of revelation as to their meaning, our methods of interpretation are enlarged and elevated. Many new words and phrases are added to our vocabulary, such as “apostle,” “disciple,” “church” (or “assembly”), “overseer,” “immerse,” “age-abiding life,” “wrath to come”; and some old words are deepened in their significance, such as “good-tidings,” “sacrifice,” “sanctification,” “judgment.” In short, Christians are the same and yet not the same as Jews: the same, inasmuch as the hopes of Christians are loftier and their outlook is more comprehensive. And all these things affect Christian Interpretation, which has to embrace new things as well as old, and therefore is naturally compelled to blend old and new in rightful proportions.

These, then, are the leading principles which, it is submitted, must underlie any successful endeavour to interpret harmoniously the Jewish and Christian Scriptures. To render such endeavour successful is to obtain three results of incalculable value. It is, first, to offer a basis on which each reader may frame for himself a few simple by-laws for Scripture exegesis; secondly, to vindicate the right of the New Testament to stand at the close of the Old as its legitimate sequel; and, thirdly, to offer a triumphant defence of the entire Bible, which—drawn from materials accumulated through long ages, penned by authors mainly to each other unknown, and dealing with facts, laws, and instructions constituting successive dispensations of Divine dealings with human affairs—nevertheless submits to be consistently understood from end to end in a way which satisfies and sanctifies the mind, the conscience, and the life.

| | single upright lines enclose words on which a moderate amount of stress should be laid.
||| Double lines indicate more decided stress.
< > these angular marks ask for more or less force in utterance; are always introductory; and therefore never used at the close of a sentence. In long prefixed clauses, their form will readily catch the anticipating eye of the reader; and due attention to them will, it is believed, prove especially helpful towards an immediate perception of the structure of long sentences. They are occasionally borrowed to meet an emergency, when several shades of emphasis can be distinguished to advantage.
m’: an acute accent denotes the least possible increase of stress. Its nearly uniform application to prefixed adjectives may interest the Greek student. This sign also helps in an emergency.
 A half comma (,) simply relieves the comma, which is apt to be overmuch used or annoyingly omitted.

Note.—When, in the Epistles, the indentation of the type have been carried as far from the margin as was convenient, and yet the thought of the Writer invited a still further subordinating of clauses, a few logical capitals have occasionally been thrown in, suggesting where new lines might be commenced in writing out a passage upon an

In any case, as Logical Analysis is necessarily subjective, and appeals to the reader’s comprehension and insight, the student is counseled, pencil in hand, to revise these typographical indications for himself, by pushing in or drawing out the lines according to his own judgment. On the basis here provided, nothing could be easier, while the profit would be certainly great. As Dr. Richard Moulton well observes in his admirable work “The Bible as Literature,” it is not so much a question of right or wrong, as of good, better and best.
I. The Lineage Roll.

The Lineage Roll of Jesus Christ,—
Son of David, Son of Abraham.

1. [Abraham] begat Isaac,
   And [Isaac] begat Jacob,
   And [Jacob] begat Judah, and his brethren;
2. And [Judah] begat Perez and Zarah of Tamar,
   And [Perez] begat Hezron,
   And [Hezron] begat Ram;
3. And [Ram] begat Amminadab,
   And [Amminadab] begat Nashon,
   And [Nashon] begat Salmon;
4. And [Salmon] begat Boaz of Rahab,
   And [Boaz] begat Obed of Ruth,
   And [Obed] begat Jesse;
5. And [Jesse] begat [David the King],
   And [David] begat Solomon of her [that had been the wife] of Uriah;
6. And [Solomon] begat Rehoboam,
   And [Rehoboam] begat Abijah,
   And [Abijah] begat Asa;
7. And [Asa] begat Jehoshaphat,
   And [Jehoshaphat] begat Joram,
   And [Joram] begat Uzziah;
8. And [Uzziah] begat Jotham,
   And [Jotham] begat Ahaz,
   And [Ahaz] begat Hezekiah;
9. And [Hezekiah] begat Manasseh,
   And [Manasseh] begat Amon,
   And [Amon] begat Josiah;
10. And [Josiah] begat Jechoniah, and his brethren,— upon the removal to Babylon.
11. And [Joseph] begat Jospeh, the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus,—who is called Messiah.

   And [Matthan] begat Jacob;—
16. And [Jacob] begat Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus,—who is called Christ.

§ 2. The Birth.

Now the birth [of Jesus Christ] was [thus]: His mother Mary having been [betrothed] to [Joseph],—before they came together, she was found with child by [the] Holy Spirit.

Moreover [Joseph her husband] being [righteous], and yet unwilling to expose her,—intended [privately] to divorce her. 20 But <when these things> he had pondered> lo! [a messenger] of the Lord [by dream] appeared to him, saying,—Joseph, son of David! do not fear to take unto thee Mary thy wife, for <that which in her> hath been begotten is of [the] Holy Spirit.

Moreover she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus;—for [he] will save his people from their sins.

But |all this| hath come to pass, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Lord, through the prophet, saying:

Lo! [a Virgin] shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son,—and they will call his name Emmanuel;

which is, being translated, God with us.

And Joseph, [awakening] from his sleep, did as the messenger of the Lord directed him,—and took

Chapter 2.

1 Now [when Jesus] was born in Bethlehem of Judæa, in the days of Herod the king> lo! [wise men from eastern parts] came into Jerusalem; 2 saying—

Where is he that hath been born king of the Jews? for we saw his star in the east, and have come to bow down to him.

3 But [when King Herod heard] he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him; 4 and [assembling all] the high-priests and scribes of the people> he was enquiring of them—

Where is [the Christ] to be born?

4 And [they] said to him,

In Bethlehem of Judæa,— for [so] is it written 5 through the prophet:

And [if thou, Bethlehem, land of Judah] 6

By no means least art thou, among the governors of Judah,—

For [out of thee] shall one come forth to govern,

Who shall shepherd my people Israel.

7 [Then Herod] privately calling the wise men, ascertained from them the time of the appearing star; 8 and sending them to Bethlehem, said—

Go search out accurately concerning the child,—and [as soon as ye find it] bring report unto me, that I also may come and bow myself down to it.

8 Now [they, hearing the king] went, and lo! [the star which they had seen in the east] was going before them, until it went and stood over where the child was; 9 and, seeing the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy; 10 and, coming into the house, they saw the child, with Mary its mother,—and, falling down, prostrated themselves unto it, and, opening their treasures, offered unto it gifts—gold and frankincense and myrrh; 11 and <being instructed by dream, not to return unto Herod> [by another way] retired they unto their own country.

§ 4. The Flight into Egypt, the Return, and the Settlement in Nazareth.

13 Now [when they had retired] lo! [a messenger of the Lord]| appeareth by dream unto Joseph, saying,

Arise, take unto thee the child and its mother, and flee into Egypt, and be there, until I tell thee,—for Herod is about to seek the child, to destroy it.

14 And [he] arising, took unto him the child and its mother, by night, and retired into Egypt;

15 and was there, until the death of Herod,—that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Lord through the prophet, saying 8:

[Out of Egypt] called I my son.

16 Then Herod [seeing that he had been mocked by the wise men] was exceedingly enraged,—and sent and slew all’ the male children that were in Bethlehem, and in all its bounds, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had ascertained from the wise men.

17 [Then was fulfilled] that which was spoken through Jeremiah the prophet, saying 9:

[|A voice|| in Ramah] was heard,

Weeping and great mourning,—

Rachel weeping for her children,

And would not be comforted,—because they are not.

18 But [when Herod was dead] lo! [a messenger of the Lord] appeareth by dream unto Joseph in Egypt; 20 saying—

Arise! and take unto thee the child and its mother, and be journeying into the land of Israel,—for they are dead, who were seeking the life of the child. 10

21 And [he] arising, took unto him the child and its mother, and entered into the land of Israel.

22 [Hearing, however, that Archelaus was reigning over Judæa instead of his father Herod] he was afraid [thither] to go,—and so, being instructed by dream, he retired into the parts of Galilee; 23 and came and fixed his dwelling in a city called Nazareth,—that it might be fulfilled which was spoken through the prophets—

[A Nazarene] shall he be called.

Chapter 3.

1 Now [in those days] came John the Immerser, a proclaiming in the wilderness of Judea; 2 saying, Repent ye,—for the kingdom of the heavens hath drawn near. b

3 For [this] is he who was spoken of through Isaiah the prophet, saying, c

A voice, of one crying aloud!

|In the wilderness| prepare ye the way of the Lord,
|Straight| be making his paths.

4 But John [himself] had his raiment of camel’s hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins,—while [his food] was locusts and wild honey.

5 [Then] were going forth unto him—Jerusalem, and all’ Judea, and all’ the country round about the Jordan; 6 and were being immersed in the Jordan river, by him, openly confessing their sins.

7 But <seeing |many of the Pharisees and Sadducees] coming unto his immersion> he said to them,—

Broods of vipers! who suggested to you, d to be fleeing from the coming wrath?

8 Bring forth therefore, fruit worthy of repentance; 9 and think not to be saying within yourselves,—|As our father we have ||Abraham||;

For, I say unto you, that God is able |out of these stones| to raise up children unto Abraham.

10 |||Already also|| the axe |unto the root of the trees| is being laid,—|every’ tree, therefore, not bringing forth good fruit| is to be hewn down, and |into fire| to be cast.

11 |||Indeed, am immersing you |in water, unto repentance||,—but <he who |after me| cometh is |mightier than I|, whose |sandals| I am not worthy to bear> ||he|| will immerse you ||in Holy Spirit and fire||: 12 Whose fan is in his hand, and he will clear out his threshing-floor,—and will gather his wheat into the granary, but [the chaff] will he burn up with fire unquenchable.

§ 6. The Immersion.

13|Then| cometh Jesus, from Galilee to the Jordan, unto John,—to be immersed by him.

14|But [he] would have hindered him, saying—

||I| have |need| ||by thee|| to be immersed,—and dost [thou] come unto me?

15|But Jesus answering, said unto him,

Suffer [me] even now,—for [thus] it becometh us, to fulfil |all righteousness|

|Then| he suffered him. 16 And Jesus <having been immersed> |straightway| went up from the water,—and lo! the heavens were opened a and he saw the Spirit of God, descending like a dove coming upon him; 17 and lo! a voice out of the heavens,—saying,

|This| is my Son, the Beloved, in whom I delight.

§ 7. The Temptation.

Chapter 4.

1|Then| Jesus was led up into the wilderness, by the Spirit, to be tempted by the adversary;

2 and, fasting forty days and forty nights,— |afterwards| he hungered.

3 And, coming near, the tempter said to him,—

<If thou |art| God’s ||Son|| speak! that ||these stones|| may become ||loaves|.

4 But |he|| answering, said, It is written,— f

|Not on bread alone| shall man live,

But on every declaration coming forth through the mouth of God.

5 |Then| the adversary taketh him with him, unto the holy city,—and he set him upon the pinnacle of the temple; 6 and saith to him—

<If thou art God’s ||Son|| cast thyself down,— for it is written, 8

|To his messengers| will he give charge concerning thee;

And |on hands| will they bear thee up,

Lest once thou strike, against a stone, thy foot.

7 Jesus said to him, |Again it is written,— 9

Thou shalt not put to the test |the Lord thy God|.

Chapter 5.

1 But [seeing the multitudes] he went up into a mountain,—and, when he had taken a seat, his disciples came unto him; 2 and, opening his mouth, he began teaching them, saying:—

22 And [they]|straightway| leaving the boat and their father, followed him.

And Jesus was going round throughout all’ Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and proclaiming the glad-message of the kingdom,—and curing every’ disease, and every’ infirmity, among the people. 24 And forth went the report of him into all Syria; and they brought unto him all’ who were sick, |with divers’ diseases and tortures| distressed, demonized and lunatic and paralyzed,—and he cured them. 25 And there followed him large multitudes—from Galilee, and Decapolis, and Jerusalem, and Judæa, and across the Jordan.
11 //Happy// are ye, whosoever they may reproach you and persecute you, and say every’ evil thing against you [falsely, for my sake]. 12 Rejoice and exult, because [your reward] is great in the heavens; for [so] persecuted they the prophets who were before you.

13 [Ye] are the saltè of the earth; but <if the salt become tasteless> wherewith shall it be salted? it is good [for nothing] any more, b save, being cast out, to be trampled on by men.

14 [Ye] are the light of the world: it is impossible for a city to be hid [on the top of a mountain] lying. 15 Neither light they a lamp, and place it under the measure; but upon the lampstand, and it giveth light to all that are in the house. 16 ||In like manner|| let your light shine before men,—that they may see your good works,—and glorify your Father who is in the heavens.

17 Do not think, that I came to pull down the law, or the prophets,—I came not to pull down, but to fulfil. 18 For [verily] I say unto you, <until the heaven and the earth shall pass away> [one least letter, or one point] may in nowise pass away from the law, till all be accomplished.

19 Whosoever, therefore, shall relax one of these commandments, the least, and teach men so> shall be called [least] in the kingdom of the heavens; but <whosoever shall do and teach> [the same] shall be called [great] in the kingdom of the heavens.

20 For I say unto you, that <unless your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees> [in nowise] may ye enter into the kingdom of the heavens.

21 Ye have heard, that it was said, to them of olden time,—

Thou shalt not commit murder, d and <whosoever shall commit murder> shall be [liable] to judgment.

22 But [II] say unto you, that <every’ one who is angry with his brother> shall be [liable] to judgment,—and <whosoever shall say to his brother, Worthless one!> shall be [liable] to the high council; and <whosoever shall say, Rebel!> shall be [liable] unto the fiery gehenna.e

23 <If, therefore, thou be bearing thy gift towards the altar, and [there] shouldst remember that [thy brother] hath aught against thee> leave, there, thy gift before the altar, and withdraw,—[first] be reconciled unto thy brother, and [then] coming, be offering thy gift. 25 Be making agreement with thine adversary, quickly, while thou art with him, in the way,—lest once thine adversary deliver thee up unto the judge, and the judge, unto the officer, and [into prison] thou be cast. 26 [Verily] I say unto thee, [In nowise] mayest thou come out from thence, until thou pay the last halfpenny.

27 Ye have heard, that it was said,

Thou shalt not commit adultery.f

28 But [II] say unto you, that <Every’ one who looketh on a woman so as to covet her> [already] hath committed adultery with her, in his heart. 29 And <if [thy right eye] is causing thee to stumble> pluck it out, and cast it from thee,—for it profiteth thee, that [one of thy members] should perish, and not [thy whole body] be cast into gehenna. 30 And <if [thy right hand] is causing thee to stumble> cut it off, and cast it from thee,—for it profiteth thee, that [one of thy members] should perish, and not [thy whole body] [into gehenna] depart.

It was said, moreover, 1 Whosoever shall divorce his wife> let him give her a writing of divorcement;

32 But [II] say unto you, that <Everyone’ who divorceth his wife—saving for unfaithfulness> causeth her to be made an adulteress,—[and [whosoever shall marry a divorced woman] committheth adultery].

33 [Again] ye have heard that it was said, to them of olden time, 1

Thou shalt not swear falsely,—m

But shalt render unto the Lord, thine oaths.

34 But [II] tell you—not to swear [at all]n.
Chapter 6.

1 {But} take heed, that ye do not [your righteousness] before men, to be gazed at by them,—[otherwise at least] [reward] have ye none, with your Father who is in the heavens.

2 <When, therefore, thou mayest be doing an alms> do not sound a trumpet before thee, just as [the hypocrites] do, in the synagogues and in the streets—that they may be glorified by men,—[Verily] I say unto you, they are getting back their reward. 3 But <thou, when doing an alms> let not [thy left hand] know what thy right hand is doing; 4 that thine alms may be in secret,—and [thy Father, who seeth in secret] will give it back to thee.

5 And <when ye may be praying> ye shall not be as the hypocrites, because they love <in the synagogues, and at the corners of the broad ways> to take their stand and pray, that they may shine before men; [Verily] I say unto you, they are getting back their reward. 6 But <thou, when thou wouldst pray> enter into thy closet, and, fastening thy door, prayh unto thy Father who is in secret,—and [thy Father who seeth in secret] will reward thee. 7 And [being at prayer] use not vain repetitions, just like the nations,—for they think, that [in their much speaking] they shall be heard; 8 do not, therefore, make yourselves like them, for {God} your Father knoweth of what things ye have [need], before ye ask him. 9 [Thus] therefore pray [ye]i:

Our Father, who art in the heavens,—
Hallowed be thy name.
Come may thy kingdom,—
Accomplishedd be thy will, [as in heaven] also on earth:

That they neither sow, nor reap, nor gather

And yet [your heavenly Father] feedeth

29 Now <if the grass of the field—which [today] is, and [to-morrow] [into an oven] is cast—God thus adorneth>
Not much rather [you] little of faith?
30 Do not then be anxious, saying,
What shall we eat? or What shall we drink?
or Wherewithal shall we be arrayed?
31 For [all these things] the nations seek after,—
For your heavenly Father [knoweth] that ye are needing [all these things].
32 But be seeking first, the kingdom and its
righteousness,—
And [all these things] shall be added unto you.
33 Do not, then, be anxious for the morrow;
[For the morrow] will be anxious [for itself];
[Sufficient for the day] is the evil thereof.

Chapter 7.

1 Judge not, that ye be not judged;—
2 For <with what judgment ye judge> shall ye be judged,—
And <with what measure ye mete> shall it be measured unto you.
3 Why, moreover, beholdest thou the mote, in the eye of thy brother,—
While [the beam] in thine own' eye] thou dost not consider?
4 Or how wilt thou say unto thy brother,
Let me cast the mote out of thine eye,—
When, lo! [a beam] is in thine own' eye?
5 Hypocrite! cast first [out of thine own eye] [the beam],—
And [then] shalt thou see clearly to cast the mote, out of the eye of thy brother.
6 Do not give what is holy unto dogs,
Neither cast ye your pearls before swine,—

d Ap: “Soul.”
Lest once they trample [them] down with their feet,
And, turning, tear [[you]].

Be asking, and it shall be given you,
Be seeking, and ye shall find,—
Be knocking, and it shall be opened unto you.

For [whosoever asketh] receiveth, And he that seeketh findeth,—
And [to him that knocketh] shall it be opened.

Or what man [from among yourselves],
Whom his son shall ask for a loaf,—
[A stone] will give him?

Or [a fish also] shall ask,—
[A serpent] will give him?

<If then ||ye|| being [evil] know how [good gifts] to be giving unto your children>
||How much more|| will [your Father who is in the heavens] give good things to them that ask [him]?

<Whosoever things, therefore, ye would, that men be doing unto you>
||So|| be ||ye also|| doing [unto them],—
For [this] is the law and the prophets.

Enter ye in at [the narrow gate];
Because broad and roomy is the way that leadeth unto destruction,—
And [many] are they who enter thereby:
Because [narrow] is the gate, and confined] the way, that leadeth unto life,—
And [few] are they who find [it].

Beware of false prophets,
Who come unto you in clothing of sheep,—
While [within] they are ravening wolves.

[By their fruits] shall ye find [them] out,— Unless perhaps men gather—
<From thorns> grapes!
Or <from thistles> figs!

So ||every good tree|| [fine fruit] produceth,—
Whereas ||the worthless’ tree|| [evil fruit] produceth:

It is [impossible] for a [good tree] to be bearing [evil fruit],
Neither doth ||a worthless tree] produce [fine fruit].

[Every’ tree that beareth not fine fruit]]
Is hewn down, and [into fire] is cast.

After all then [by their fruits] shall ye find [them] out.

[Not every one that saith unto me, Lord! Lord!] shall enter into the kingdom of the heavens,—
But he that doeth the will of my Father who is in the heavens.

[Many] will say unto me, in [that] day,
Lord! Lord! did we not [in thy name] prophesy?—
And [in thy name] cast [demons] out,—
And [in thy name] ||many works of power|| perform?

And [then] will I confess unto them,
[Never] have I acknowledged§ you,—
Depart from me, ye workers of lawlessness!

<Every one, therefore, who heareth [these] my words, and doeth them> Shall be likened to a prudent man, who built his house upon the rock;
And the rain descended, and the streams came, and the winds blew, and rushed against that house, and it fell not;
For it had been founded upon the rock.

<And every one who heareth these my words, and doeth them not> Shall be likened unto a foolish man, who built his house upon the sand;
And the rain descended, and the streams came, and the winds blew, and dashed against that house, and it fell; and [the fall thereof] was [great].

And it came to pass <when Jesus ended these words> with astonishment were the multitudes being struck at his teaching; for he was teaching them as one having [authority], and not as their Scribes.

2 And lo! [a leper] coming near, began to bow down to him, saying,— Lord! [if thou be willing] thou canst cleanse me.
3 And, stretching forth the hand, he touched him, saying,—
   I am willing, be cleansed!
4 And Jesus saith unto him,
   Mind! tell [no one],—but withdraw, [thysel] shew to the priest, a and offer the gift which Moses directed [for a witness unto them].

§ 11. A Centurion’s Servant healed.
   Lu. vii. 1–10.
5 And when he entered into Capernaum> there came near unto him a centurion, beseeching him,
6 and saying,
   Lord! [my servant] is laid prostrate in the house,
   a paralytic [fearfully tortured].
7 He saith unto him,
   I will come and cure him.
8 But the centurion, answering, said,
   Lord! I am of no consideration, that [under my roof] thou shouldest enter,—but [only say with a word] and healed shall be my servant. 9 For I also am a man {set} under authority, having under myself|, soldiers,—and I say to this one,
   Go! and he goeth, and to another, Come! and he cometh, and [to my servant] Do this! and he doeth it.
10 Now Jesus, hearing, marvelled, and said to them that followed,—
   |Verily| I say unto you, |With no one in Israel|
   ||[such faith as this]| have I found.
11 But I say unto you,
   |Many from east and west|b will have come,c
   And shall recline with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, in the kingdom of the heavens;
12 Whereas [the sons of the kingdom]d shall be cast forth into the darkness outside,—
   |[There] will be wailing and gnashing of teeth.
13 And Jesus said unto the centurion, Withdraw! and [as thou hast believed] be it done
   for thee.
   And healed was the servant in that hour.

§ 12. Peter’s Mother-in-law cured, and many others.
   Mk. i. 29–34; Lu. iv. 38–44.
14 And Jesus, coming into the house of Peter, saw his mother-in-law laid prostrate and in a fever, e and he touched her hand, and the fever left her,—and she arose, and began ministering unto him. 16 But, when [evening] came, they brought unto him many demonized,—and he cast out the spirits with a word, and [all] who were sick he cured: 17 that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through Isaiah the prophet, saying,—
   ||[Himself]| |our weaknesses| took, and [diseases]|

§ 13. A Scribe and a Disciple put to the test.
   Lu. ix. 57–62.
18 Now Jesus <seeing a multitude about him> gave orders to depart unto the other side.
19 And a certain scribe, coming near, said unto him,— Teacher; I will follow thee, whithersoever thou goest.
20 And Jesus saith unto him:
   ||[The foxes]| have [dens],
   And [the birds of the heavens] nests,—
   But ||[the Son of Man]| hath not where [his head
   may recline],
21 And [another of the disciples] saith unto him,— Lord! suffer me [first] to depart, and bury my father.
22 But [Jesus] saith unto him,—
   Be following me,
   And leave [the dead] to bury [their own] dead.

   Mk. iv. 35–41; Lu. viii. 22–25.
23 And <when he [entered] into a boat> his disciples followed him. 24 And lo! [a great squall] arose in the sea, so that [the boat] was being covered| by the waves|,—but [he] was sleeping. 25 And,
   coming near, they aroused him, saying,
   Master! save, we perish!
26 And he saith unto them,
   |Why| are ye [fearful], little of faith?

f Graphic! wave after wave swept over it.
|Then, aroused| he rebuked the winds and the sea,—and it became a great calm. 27 But |the men| marvelled, saying,
Whence is this one,—that ||both the winds and the sea|| unto him, give ear?

§ 15. Two Demoniacs delivered.
Mk. v. 1–20; Lu. viii. 26–39.
28 And <when he |came| unto the other side, into the country of the Gadarenes> there met him, two' men demonized, |out of the tombs| coming forth,—fierce exceedingly, so that no one could pass that way; 29 and lo! they cried aloud, saying,
What have we to do with thee, a O Son of God?
Hast thou come hither, |before the right time| to torment us?

§ 16. A Paralytic forgiven and healed.
Mk. ii. 3–12; Lu. v. 18–26.
Chapter 9.
1 And, entering into a boat, he crossed over, and came into his own city. 2 And lo! they were bringing unto him a paralytic, |on a couch| laid prostrate; and Jesus, |seeing| their faith, said to the paralytic,—
Take courage! child, forgiven are thy sins.
3 And lo! |certain of the scribes| said within themselves,—
|This man| speaketh profanely!
4 And Jesus |knowing| their inward thoughts, said,—

To what end are ye cherishing evil thoughts within your hearts?
5 For which is easier—
To say, Forgiven are thy sins,—
Or to say, Rise and be walking!
6 But <that ye may know, that the Son of Man hath |authority| upon the earth, to be forgiving sins>
|Then| saith he to the paralytic,—
Rise! take up thy couch,
And withdraw unto thy house.
7 And, rising, he departed unto his house.
8 Now the multitudes |seeing| were struck with fear, and glorified the God who had given authority |such as this| |unto men|.

§ 17. Matthew called.
Mk. ii. 13–17; Lu. v. 27–32.
9 And Jesus <passing aside from thence> saw a man presiding over the tax-office, called |Matthew| and saith unto him,—
Be following me.
And, arising, he followed him. 10 And it came to pass <as he was reclining in the house> that lo! |many' tax-collectors and sinners| came, and were reclining together with Jesus and his disciples. 11 And |the Pharisees| |observing it|| began to say unto his disciples,—
Wherefore |with tax-collectors and sinners| doth your Teacher eat?
12 And |he| hearing it, said,—
No need have the strong, of a physician, but they who are sick.
13 But go ye, and learn what this meaneth,—b
||Mercy|| I desire, and not |sacrifice|;
For I came not, to call the righteous, but sinners.

§ 18. Then will they fast.
Mk. ii. 18–22; Lu. v. 33–38.
14 Then come near unto him the disciples of John, saying,— Wherefore do |we|, and the Pharisees| fast, d
whereas |thy disciples| |fast not||?
15 And Jesus said unto them,—

§ 19. The Daughter of Jairus raised; and the Woman with a Flow of Blood cured.

Mk. v. 22–43; Lu. viii. 41–56.

18<While these things> he was speaking unto them> lo! a {certain} ruler came, and began bowing down to him, saying,—

               [My daughter] just now died!
               But come, and lay thy hand upon [her], and she shall live.

19And Jesus, arising, was following him, also his disciples.

20And lo! ||a woman, having a flow of blood twelve years|| {coming near behind} touched the fringe of his mantle. 21 For she kept saying within herself,—

              <If only I touch his mantle> I shall be made well!

22And ||Jesus|| {turning and seeing her} said,—

               Take courage! daughter,
               [Thy faith] hath made thee well.
               And the woman was made well, from that hour.

23And <Jesus> {coming} into the house of the ruler, and seeing the flute-players and the multitude in confusion> was saying:

24Give place! for the maiden died not, but is sleeping.

And they began to deride him. 25 But <when the multitude had been put forth> he went in, and grasped her hand,—and the maiden arose. 26 And forth went this report, into the whole of that land.

§ 20. Two Blind men, a Demonic, and Many Others cured; the Kingdom proclaimed; and the Multitude pitted.

27And <as Jesus> {was passing aside from thence}> there followed him, two blind men, crying aloud and saying,—

              Have mercy on us, O Son of David!

28And <when he entered the house> the blind men came unto him,—and Jesus saith unto them,

              Believe ye, that I can [do this]?

They say unto him,

              Yea, Lord!

29Then touched he their eyes, saying,

              [According to your faith] be it done unto you.

30And their eyes were opened. And Jesus [sternly charged] them saying,

              Mind! let no one know!

31[They] however, going forth, made him known throughout the whole of that land.

32And <as] they were going forth> lo! there was brought to him, a dumb man, demonized. 33 And <the demon being cast out> the dumb man spake; and the multitudes marvelled, saying,— [Never] was it seen thus, in Israel.

34{But the Pharisees} began to say,

              [In the ruler of the demons] is he casting out the demons.}

35And Jesus was going round all the cities and the villages, teaching in their synagogues, and proclaiming the glad-message of the kingdom,—and curing every disease, and every infirmity.

36But [seeing the multitudes] he was moved with compassion concerning them, because they were torn and thrown down, like sheep having no shepherd. 37 [Then] saith he unto his disciples,—

              [The harvest] indeed, is great,
              But [the labourers] few;

38Beg ye, therefore, of the Lord of the harvest,—

That he would thrust forth labourers into his harvest.

Chapter 10.

1 And <calling near his twelve’ disciples> he gave them authority over impure spirits,—so as to be casting them out, and curing every’ disease and every’ infirmity. 2 Now [the twelve’ apostles’ names]a are these:—
First Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew, his brother,—
And James, the son of Zebedee, and John, his brother;
Philip, and Bartholomew,—
Thomas, and Matthew, the tax-collector;
James, the son of Alphæus, and Thadæus;
Simon, the zealot, and Judas Iscariot, who also delivered him up.
5 [These twelve] Jesus sent forth, charging them, saying:—
Into any way to the nations do not depart,—
And into any city of Samaritans do not enter;
But be going, rather, unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel.
7 And as ye go proclaim, saying,
The kingdom of the heavens hath drawn near!b
8 Be curing [the sick], raising [the dead],— cleansing [lepers], casting out [demons]:c
Freely ye have received] freely || give.||
Ye may procure—neither gold, nor silver, nor copper, for your belts,—10 neither satchel for journey, nor two’ tunics, nor sandals, nor staff;4
For [worthy] is the labourer, of his maintenance.
And <into whatsoever city or village ye enter> Search out who in it is [worthy],
And [there] abide, till ye go forth.
12 And <as ye enter the house> salute it;
And <if the house be worthy> Let your peace come upon it,
But <if it be not worthy> Let your peace, unto you, return.
14 And <whosoever shall neither welcome you, nor hear your words>
As ye go forth, outside that house or city]

Shake off the dust of your feet:

[Verily] I say unto you,—
|More tolerable] will it be, ||for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment||
Than for [that] city!e

Lo! || send you forth, as sheep amidst wolves;
Become ye therefore—
Prudent, as serpents, and simple,f as doves.

But beware of men;—
For they will deliver you up into high-councils,
And [in their synagogues] will they scourge you,—
And [before both governor and kings] shall ye be brought [for my sake]—
||For a witness to them and the nations].||

And <when they deliver you up>
Be not anxious, how or what ye shall speak,—
For it shall be given you, in that’ hour, what ye shall speak;
For it is not [ye] who are speaking,
But [the Spirit of your Father] that is speaking in you.

And [brother] will deliver up [brother] unto death,
And [father] || [child],—
And [children] will rise up [against parents],
||And will put them to death].||

And ye will be hated by all, because of my name,—
But [he that endureth throughout] | [the same] shall be saved.g

And <when they persecute you in this city> flee into another,—
For [verily] I say unto you,
|In nowise shall ye finish the cities of Israel|
Till || the Son of Man] come.

A [disciple]h is not above [the teacher],
Nor [a servant] above [his lord];

|Sufficient for the disciple| that he become [as his teacher],
And [the servant] as [his lord].
If || [the master of the house]| [Beelzebul] they called>
How much more, the men of his house!

Then do not fear them,—

And [happy] is he, whosoever shall not find cause of stumbling [in me].

But <as these were going their way> Jesus began to say unto the multitudes, concerning John,—

What went ye forth into the wilderness to gaze at?

A reed, by a wind, shaken?

But what went ye forth to see?

A man, in soft clothing, arrayed?

Lo! [they who soft clothing do wear] are in the houses of kings.

But why went ye forth?

|A prophet| to see?

Yea, I say unto you, And much more than a prophet.

[This] is he, concerning whom it is written,—

Lo! [I] send my messenger before thy face, Who shall make ready thy way before thee.³

†Verily I say unto you—

There hath not arisen among such as are born of women [a greater than John the Immerser],—

Yet [he that is less in the kingdom of the heavens] is [greater than he].

But <from the days of John the Immerser, until even now>—

The kingdom of the heavens [is being invaded], And [invaders] are [seizing upon it].

For [all' the prophets and the law] [until John] did prophesy;

And <if ye are willing> to accept it

[He] is Elijah—the one destined to come.⁵

[He that hath ears] let him hear!

But [unto what] shall I liken this generation?

It is [like] unto children, sitting in the market-places,

Who [calling unto the others] ¹⁷ say,

We played the flute to you,

And ye danced not,—

We sang a lament,

And ye beat not the breast.

For [John] came [neither eating nor drinking],

And they say—[A demon] he hath!

[The Son of Man] came [eating and drinking]

And they say,

Lo! a gluttonous man and a wine-drinker! A friend [of tax-collectors] and sinners!

And yet wisdom hath been justified by her works.

§ 23. Favoured Cities upbraided.

Lu. x. 13–15.

[Then] began he to upbraid the cities, in which had been done his noblest mighty works; because they repented not:—

Alas for thee, Chorazin!

Alas for thee, Bethsaida!

Because <if [in Tyre and Zidon] had been done the works of power, which were done in you>

[Of old] [in sackcloth and ashes] had they repented.

Moreover, I say unto you,

[For Tyre and Zidon] [more tolerable] will it be, in the day of judgment, [than for you].

And [thou] [Capernaum]!!

[Unto heaven shalt thou be uplifted?]

[Unto hades thou shall be brought down][²]

Because <if [in Sodom] had been done the works of power, which were done in thee>

It would, in that case, have remained until this day.

Moreover, I say unto you—

[For the land of Sodom] [more tolerable] will it be in a day of judgment, than [for thee].

§ 24. Praise for Babes—Welcome for the Burdened.

Lu. x 21, 22.

[In that season] answered Jesus, and said—

I openly give praise unto thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth,—

In that thou hast hid these things from the wise and discerning,

And hast revealed them unto babes;

Yea, O Father! that [so] it hath become [a delight] before thee.

[All things] unto me have been delivered up by my Father;

And [no one] fully knoweth the Son [save the Father],

Neither doth any one fully know [the Father] [save the Son],—

b Remarkable words! Were they “willing”?
c Mal. iv. 5.
d Is. xiv. 13, 15.
e Chap. x. 15.
And he to whomsoever the Son, may be minded [to reveal] him.

28 Come unto me! all’ ye that toil and are burdened, And [I] will give you rest:

29 Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me,— Because [meek] am I and lowly [in heart], And ye shall find rest unto your souls;

30 For [my yoke] is easy, And [my burden] light.

§ 25. Disciples pluck Ears of Corn on Sabbath.
Mk. ii. 23–28; Lu. vi. 1–5.

Chapter 12.

1 <In that’ season> went Jesus, on the sabbath, through the cornfields,—and [his disciples] hungered, and began to pluck ears of corn and to eat. 2 But [the Pharisees] observing it, said unto him,—

Lo! [the disciples] are doing what is not allowed to do [on sabbath].

3 And he said unto them, Have ye never read what [David] did, [when he hungered, and they who were with him]? how he entered into the house of God and [the presence-bread] did eat, a which it was not [allowable] for him to eat, nor for them who were with him,—save for the priests [alone]?

4 Or have ye not read, in the law, that [on the sabbath] the priests, in the temple, [the sabbath] profane, and are [blameless]?

5 But I say unto you,—[Something greater than the temple] is here!

7 <If, however, ye had known what this meaneth—c

||Mercy|| I desire, and not [sacrifice]|d
Yea would not have condemned the blameless;

8 For [the Son of Man] is [Lord of the Sabbath].

§ 26. Withered Hand healed on Sabbath.
Mk. iii. 1–6; Lu. vi. 6–11.

9 And, passing on from thence, he came into their synagogue; 10 and lo! a man having [a withered hand], and they questioned him, saying, Is it allowable [on the sabbath] to heal? [that they might accuse him]. 11 And he said unto them,

What man [from among yourselves] {shall there be},—

Who shall have one sheep,
And <if this should fall, on the sabbath, into a pit> Will not lay hold of it, and raise it?

12 How much better, then, [a man] than [a sheep]?
So that it is allowable [on the sabbath] [nobly] to act.

13 Then saith he unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand! And he stretched it forth,—and it was restored [whole, as the other].

§ 27. The Pharisees plotting, Jesus retires, quietly healing many.

14 And the Pharisees [going forth] took [counsel] against him, to the end that [him, they might destroy]. 15 But [Jesus] taking note, retired from thence,—and many followed him, and he cured them all; 16 and straitly charged them, lest they should make him [manifest]:

that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through Isaiah the prophet, saying:—

18 Lo! my servant, whom I have chosen, My beloved, in whom [my soul] delighteth,— I will put my Spirit upon him, And ||justice|| unto the nations will he report: He will not strive, nor will he cry out, Nor shall any hear, in the broadways, his voice: 20 [A bruised cane] will he not break, And [a smoking wick] will he not quench,— Until he urge on ||justice|| to victory, And [in his name] shall nations hope.e

§ 28. Demoniac cured. [In Beelzebul?] Blaspheming the Spirit.
Mk. iii. 20–30; Lu. xl. 14–23.

22 Then they brought unto him, one demonized, blind and dumb,—and he cured him, so that the dumb did speak and see. 23 And all the multitudes were beside themselves, and were saying, Can [this one] be [the Son of David]?

24 But [the Pharisees] hearing it, said,
And knowing their inward thoughts he said unto them,

[Every] kingdom divided against itself is laid waste,—

And [no] city or house divided against itself will stand;

And [if] Satan is casting [Satan] out > [against himself] hath he become divided,—

How then shall [his kingdom] stand?

And [if] [in Beelzebul] am casting out the demons>

In whom are [your sons] casting them out?
